CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents.

UNITED STATES.—Donald H. Graham sends us further discoveries in the Dayton envelope dies, as chronicled in No. 1214, including var. 2 on white and var. 10 on amber, both size 5, watermarked "U S S E—1911." He also reports a specimen which has the word "States" almost touching the inner oval.

John F. Steward writes as follows, and proves his statement by submitting the strip in question:

"Frank E. Goodwin, in his article on 'Specialized United States' in MEKEEL'S WEEKLY for November 29, 1913, on page 413, states that the 3c stamps of 1895, printed on eight plates, the lowest of which was No. 91, and the highest No. 450. . . Now I have a strip of three of this stamp, with full imprint, and plate Number 1213 attached."

ANGOLA.—Ewen's Weekly reports the Sweizer Briefmarken Zeitung as chronicling the following new stationery in the Ceres type.

Post Cards.
1c blue green and black on buff.
1x1c blue green and black on buff.
2c carmine and black on white.
2x2c carmine and black on white.
Letter Cards.
2½c violet and black on buff.
2½x2½c violet and black on buff.
5c blue and black on white.

AUSTRALIA.—Frank Kocher shows new letter cards from Australia, with pictorial backs. There are many varieties, and we have not attempted to keep with their issue. Those sent by Mr. Kocher have a waterfall on the "Cairns Railway, Queensland," and "St. George's Terrace, Perth."

Letter Cards.
1d blue green on gray tinted.
1d violet brown on gray tinted.

BAVARIA.—We are able to supplement the information of last week, Whitfield King & Co. having shown us the values from 3pf to 1m inclusive, and the New England Stamp Co. the higher mark values. Stamp experts say series is the handsomest ever issued, the new mezzotint process having all the softness of a lithograph, and the clearness and precision of a steel engraving. The colors are admirably chosen to bring out the lines of the engraving. The higher mark values are of large size, and the portrait oval is surrounded by a large wreath, giving a finish and beauty to the stamp seldom seen. The colors were correctly stated last week, but the process of printing imparts a richness to the stamps, that gives the appearance of distinct new shades.

Mr. Schachne has received the 1914 issues of entires. Instead of the portrait of the Ruler, the cards now have an impressed stamp which bears the arms of the country, the denomination at top of stamp, "Bayern" at bottom. All have divided face.

Post Cards.
No value. black on buff.
5pf green on buff.
10pf red on buff.
5x5pf green on buff.
10x10pf red on buff.
Letter Card.
10pf red on buff.

CAPE VERDE.—Ewen's Weekly quotes the Schweizer Briefmarken Zeitung as chronicling the following stationery in the Ceres type.

Post Cards.
1c blue green and black on buff.
1x1c blue green and black on buff.
2c carmine and black on white.
2x2c carmine and black on white.
Letter Cards.

2½x2½c violet and black on buff.
5c blue and black on white.

CHINA.—There appears to be a general misconception regarding the stamps which were withdrawn from circulation and demonetised on March 31st. The only stamps affected are the unsurcharged Imperial issues, stamps bearing the Republican surcharge, both Statistical Department and Waterlow overprints are still available.

We are officially informed by the District Accountant at Shanghai that the stamps showing a view of the Great Wall of China are Revenue stamps to be affixed on documents as directed by the Stamp Tax Law of China; the overprint in Chinese characters does not convert them into postage stamps, and they are not available for prepayment of postage.—King's Monthly List.

ST. THOMAS AND PRINCE ISLANDS.—Whitfield King & Co. report the full set for this colony, in the Ceres type, the values and colors being the same as previously chronicled for other colonies.

OUR BOOK REVIEW.

Stamp Collectors' Annual 1914.—This book is edited by D. B. Armstrong and is called by its publishers "the Whitaker of the stamp world." An examination of the volume would indicate that the claim of the publishers is well grounded. The contents of the book are of a bright and lively character and besides special articles, include directories of the many philatelic societies throughout the world, dealers, stamp papers, etc. The price of the book is one shilling, and may be obtained from the Philatelic Press, 22 Chancery Lane, London, England.

USED GERMAN COLONIALS.

The postal authorities of the German Colonies have recently introduced a very excellent regulation respecting what are sometimes euphoniously referred to as "philatelically used stamps," that might well be followed by the British and other Colonial governments.

Owing to the small population of most of the German Colonies, the supply of used postage stamps is totally inadequate to the demand by collectors of the Fatherland. Since therefore current German Colonial stamps in used condition command higher prices than unused, a number of German dealers have made a practice of sending large batches of dummy letters covered with values of the current stamps to the various Colonial postmasters with the request that they would postmark them and return to the sender in the ordinary course.

An order has, however, recently been issued forbidding Colonial postmasters to cancel such letters and packets and to treat them as unpaid, returning them to the sender uncancelled!—Stamp Collecting.

THE NEW BELGIUM ISSUE.

L'Annonce Timbrologique gives us the latest news with regard to the proposed new issue for this country. In the new series there will be thirteen values, instead of twelve as at present, one of 15 centimes being added. The values up to 40 centimes will bear an improved portrait of King Albert, the present one giving little satisfaction. The four higher denominations will be in the size of the current Congo stamps; the 5 francs will show a portrait of King Albert in a medallion, framed by portraits of Leopold I. and Leopold II. The 50 centimes will depict a volunteer soldier in a blouse, falling wounded and passing the tricolour flag to another soldier, recalling the death of Count Frédéric de Mérode. The 1 franc will recall the greatest economic event, the liberation of the Scheldt; in the foreground the harbour of Antwerp is depicted, while on the horizon appears a ship bearing the inscription, "Schelde vrij—Escaut libre." Lastly, the 2 francs will symbolise the conquest of the Congo, and will show an officer forcing an Arab slave-driver to recoil before the Belgian flag, while a slave breaks his chains and a negress holds a freed child.

The 1 and 2 centimes stamps will still be printed by typography, but from dies of a larger size. All the other stamps will be recess-printed. The new stamps will probably be issued next September, or in October at the latest.—Postage Stamp.

POSTAL SAVINGS STAMPS OF U. S.

INTRODUCTORY.

Nearly forty years subsequent to the first legislation introduced for the purpose of establishing a system of postal savings banks the bill creating the present system became effective. Credit for this accomplishment is due primarily to the efforts of Ex-Senator Jonathan Bourne, Jr., and Ex-Postmaster-General Hitchcock.

On March 26, 1911, the first Postal Savings banks in the United States were established. On this date the system was inaugurated in one post-office in each of nineteen states. On the following day twenty-five additional offices were established. The offices chosen were the ones showing the best efficiency record in each state. The following list shows the first office established in each state:—

The people of this country greeted this innovation with an immediate and enthusiastic response. From time to time additional offices were established until there were four hundred depositories in operation on June 30, 1911.

One year later, the number had been increased to 10,170 offices, at which time there were 243,801 depositors having to their credit a total of $20,237,084. A year later on June 30, 1913, there were 12,820 offices in operation, the number of depositors being 331,006 and the amount on deposit $33,818,870.

That the Postal Savings Banks undoubtedly rank with the larger corporate institutions of a similar character, is indicated by the following figures showing the amounts on deposit in the five largest offices during the first four months of their operation.

POSTAL SAVINGS STAMPS.

In order to determine the expense of operating the Postal Saving system, it was necessary to provide a special issue of official postage stamps to be used for prepayment of Postal Savings mail. Stamps of five denominations were prepared for this purpose. They are the 1 cent, 2 cent, 10 cent, 50 cent, and $1.00 denominations and these are now current for the purpose indicated. Collectors were somewhat misled during the early months of 1911 by rumors to the effect that that stock of "dollar" denominations of the Series of 1902, then remaining at the Bureau, were to be appropriately surcharged for use in prepayment of postage on Postal Savings mail but the rumor did not materialize.

In connection with the Postal Savings banks, cards were issued to facilitate the saving of sums as small as ten cents. These cards have a face value of ten cents and on them, spaces are provided for the addition of nine Postal Savings stamps. These stamps are similar in design to the Official Postal Saving stamps and from their having been issued at the time the system was started, collectors have been somewhat interested in them although they bear an indirect relation to the stamps issued for prepayment of postage. The writer has included certain available data on the Postal Savings cards, stamps and envelopes for those collectors who are interested in these subjects.

THE PLATES.

The plates for the 1 cent, 2 cent, 10 cent, Postal Savings Official stamps and for the 10 cent Postal Saving stamp contains 400 subjects each, while those for the two higher values, the 50 cent and $1.00 Official stamps contained but 200 subjects each. The plates for the Postal Savings cards contained 18 subjects each. The 400 subject plates are arranged 20 by 20; the 200 subject plates 10 "high" by 20 "wide" while the plates for the cards are 3 "wide" by 6 "high."

The work was started on the plates for the Postal Saving Official stamps on July 1, 1910; for the Postal Saving Stamps on August 1, 1910 and for the Postal Saving cards on October 28, 1910.

The total number of plates made for Postal Savings stamps and cards and Official Postal Savings stamps is thirty-six. The first one made was Number 5,500 for the 2 cent stamps. The latest plate is Number 5,765 for the 10 cent card. Notes on the various printings are given under each denomination and reference list of all the plates is presented herewith:

The plates for the stamps listed above are "starred" plates made with varying spaces, horizontally, between the stamps.

The foregoing list was complete on December 3, 1913. Up to that date, five plates for the cards, Nos. 5597, 5746, 5752, 5758 and 5765 and one plate for the 10 cent Official stamp No. 5697 had not been used. The net total therefore of printed plates is as follows:

1 cent Official Stamps,	1
10 cent Official Stamps,	1
50 cent Official Stamps,	1
$1.00 Official Stamps,	1
10 cent Savings Stamps,	8
10 cent Savings Cards,	14
Not printed,	6
	36

That new plates for these Official stamps will ever be engraved is highly improbable. The life of a plate is about 100,000 impressions or 40,000,000 stamps and up to date the maximum service to which any plate for the Official stamps has been subjected is less than one-tenth of this quantity.

DOUBLE TRANSFERS.

Both the 2 cent and 10 cent Official stamps have been found showing a distinct double transfer in the form of a thin line through the top of the word "CENTS."

One copy of the 10 cent stamp was found in which the oval lines around the words "OFFICIAL MAIL" showed double together with various other details of the general design.

THE DESIGN.

The designs for all the denominations of Official stamps are the same except for the inscription of value. The design for the Postal Savings stamps is similar to that used for the Official stamps.

In the annual report of the Post Office Department for 1911 appears the following official description of the stamps and envelopes:

"Postal Savings Official Stamps. 1 cent purple, 2 cent black, 10 cent red, 50 cent green, 1 dollar blue. The stamp is a rectangle on end, of about the same size as an ordinary postage stamp. In the center is an ellipse containing the words "Official Mail" in white letters, the background within the ellipse being lathe work.

Outside of and following the curve of the ellipse are the words "U. S. Postal Savings" in white letters. In each lower corner is a numeral expressing the denomination and between these numerals the word "Cents" or "Dollar" appears in white letters. In the corners at the top are small triangular panels containing relief work.

Postal Savings Official Stamped Envelope. The embossed stamp is an ellipse on end. The color is red. In the center in plain gothic type appear the words "Official Mail" in two horizontal lines. In the upper half of the border are the words "U. S. Postal Savings" and in the lower, "Two 2 Cents," the numeral 2 being prominent."

At the time the above official description was published the 1 cent envelope had not been manufactured and for this reason it is not mentioned in the above.

CUMULATIVE EFFECT OF ADVERTISING.

By ARTHUR IRWIN SMITH.

"Advertising," says the old-timer, "is a good deal like calomel. One little dose has no perceptible effect, but take several little doses at intervals and it will shake the very foundations of your constitution. Down in the malaria country they treat you sometimes by a course of small tablets, one three times a day, until twenty-five or thirty are taken. The first day does not help you, nor the second, but later the malaria is all driven out, and your system gets on a healthy working basis."

Well, one may liken this to a course of little ads in the classified columns. The first nor second may not make your business pay, but keep it up and the effect of each "adlet" remains, and finally their accumulated, combined effect will put your stamp business on a sound, paying basis. The influence of each ad depends, of course, upon its concentrated strength as well as size.

"I have been seeing your ads in MEKEEL'S for a year or so," writes one active collector to a weekly advertiser, "and I decided to get into communication with you." It may happen that this one patron will make a good customer, and perhaps in time profits from his business will pay the entire advertising bill for the two years. It is ever thus. The spasmodic advertiser attracts the dead-beat and the piker, and the best patrons do not come to him until he has proven his own worth and gained prestige enough to be ranked as being worth while himself.

The old motto, "It pays to advertise," is hardly complete; it should read like this: "It pays to advertise regularly."

OUR MAY 30 SPECIAL NUMBER.

We have written scores of letters trying to help out young dealers in their quest for wholesale offers and office accessories. It is now the chance of the wholesaler to do the needful thing in connection with the use of the WEEKLY May 30. C. H. Holden will advertise an auction sale in that number, if not sooner published. L. V. Cass will take a half column. Who next?

NEW CONSTITUTIONALIST STAMPS.

Robert A. Turner favors us with the information that the fiscal stamps of the Mexican Constitutionalist Government have now been issued, and a sample set has been submitted for examination. The set is composed of two designs, the centavo values showing an eagle holding a reptile in its beak, while the peso values show Justice blinded holding scales. The stamps have the talons so common to Mexican revenues. The denominations and colors are as follows:

1c rose.	1p purple.
2c green.	5p gray.
3c orange.	10p brown.
5c red.	50p purple.

Mr. Turner writes us as follows:—"It was decided to eliminate the 500 pesos purple mentioned in my last letter. An order has just been placed with the printers here in Denver for 13,000,000 regular postage stamps in denominations 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 10, 15, 20, 25, 50c and 1 peso. The design has gone to Juarez for approval and the printing of all values will be rushed to a speedy completion."

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from C. H. Fowle (4).

—H. Tasker reports unsatisfactory dealings with George E. Meyer, John St., Waterloo, Canada, and would be glad to hear from interested parties.

—The first British postage due stamps were issued April 20. Four values comprise the series, viz.: ½d green, 1d red, 2d agate, and 5d brown, in an ornate design by G. W. Eve, with a large numeral of value in the centre and the national emblems rose, shamrock and thistle in the spandrels. The only inscriptions are the words "Postage Due" at the top and the value in words at the foot.—Stamp Collecting.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

Time Will Tell—It is too early at this writing to predict what effect the armed interference or war with Mexico will have on philately in the United States. One of the methods that is always regarded as feasible by legislators to meet the financial emergency entailed by war is a revenue tax on documents and proprietary articles. The proposal already has been made to impose a tax of the kind to be collected by stamps after the manner adopted during the civil war period and that of the Spanish-American war in 1898. At least, stamp collectors may discuss the probabilities of a documentary and a proprietary series of revenue with such animation as they may care to bring to bear on the subject. We think that the enthusiasm engendered by new revenue stamps will not be of the frenzied brand. Well-known time, better than we, can tell what the future has in store for stamp collectors.

In Other Days—We are not so frightfully young that we do not remember the Spanish-American war of 1898 and its influence on philately. In fact, 1898 was an exciting year for philately. It was known in April 1898 that revenue stamps would be issued July 1st, 1898, as a consequence of the war; and at the same time collectors were on the seat of expectancy over the Omaha set which was announced to appear in two colors. However, in May, the postal authorities said that the idea of bi-colored stamps had been abandoned as sufficient time did not remain for the preparation of the stamps; and in June, the set made its entry, including the stamp that many collectors consider the handsomest in philately, the one dollar black, "Western Cattle in a Storm." Then came the emergency issue of the one and the two cent postage, surcharged I. R., to be followed by the permanent set. The calendar of philatelic events for 1898 need not be followed further but it is fair to say that philatelic interest was given a rare zest by the developments of 1898.

Parting Of The Ways—One of the first consequences of war between nations is the discontinuance of postal relations between the belligerents. The result of the suspension of postal reciprocity is that the army of invasion must maintain its line of postal communication to the home and other countries; and here the philatelist is provided for. For instance, postmarks tell the story of the Spanish-American War. First, the soldier's letter from Chickamauga and other camps in this company bore what might be called the introductory special postmarks. When the American forces landed in Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines, respectively, military stations were established which were numbered progressively as the invaders advanced. After the American stamps surcharged appeared the special postmarks of occupancy were retired. To-day, a representative collection of the army postmarkings of the war of 1898 makes a decided impression on those who have not seen the military postmarks in number, heretofore; and we interpose the word here that if there are to be military postmarks in a war with Mexico, it behooves collectors who are interested to get the whole story by obtaining the impressions from the beginning.

It Is Beyond Us—Says a wondering reader: "I have written to several dealers within the past year for selections of stamps and have offered the best of references and even cash deposit and from some of them I have not had a reply. I will admit that the business I do is of small importance but I buy some almost every month and it is queer that they turn a fellow down without even writing to one of my references. I do not blame dealers for wishing to be careful but where some collectors are crooked many more are square, even if their buying is not of large volume." Of course, it is the dealer's own business to dispose of approval selection requests as suits his views and convenience but we cannot guess why such a course is adopted. We thought that competition among dealers was so keen that no avenue of possible profit could be ignored. As it is, evidently there is room for more stamp dealers.

Timely Topic—The Second Class Mail Bag, volume I, number 1, "progress and prosperity's harbinger" has been issued by the Independent Postal League of Chicago. The object of the publication is to preserve the conditions surrounding second class mail, as at present, but what strikes our eye chiefly is a most opportune article, illustrated, "Mail Methods in Mexico," which reveals the difficulties confronting the postal administration in carrying out its service. We shall hope to draw philatelic inspiration from future numbers of the Second Class Mail Bag.

Patient P. M.'s—It is not known to all that the salaries of postmasters falling under first, second and third class heads are computed upon the gross receipts of their office; and a recent act of congress, approved March 9, 1914, provides: "Here-after, in determining the gross receipts upon which the salary of a postmaster shall be based, stamps, stamped envelopes, and postal cards sold in large or unusual quantities to any person to be used in mailing matter diverted from other offices, shall not be included, whether the sale be made with or without solicitation by the postmaster." These outside sales are to be reported to the department by the postmaster whose duty it shall be "to inquire into and ascertain whether the purchaser intends to use such postage stamps or other stamped paper for mailing in his office or another office, or for mailing matter diverted from another office." Fourth-class postmasters have their compensations based on box rents, postage due collections, stamps, etc., canceled on matter actually mailed at their offices; and on amounts received from the sale of waste paper and twine.

Incongruous—James Stephens, the Irish poet whose genius is recognized by many admirers has this to say according to a quotation in a literary supplement: "Whoever has married a prim woman must hand over his breeches and his purse, he will collect postage stamps in his old age, he will twiddle his thumb and smile when the visitor asks him a question, he will grow to dislike beer, and will admit and assert that a man's place is the home—these things come to pass as surely as the procession of the seasons." The acuteness of this bit of introspection, let us say, may be questioned. Without attempting any analysis of the psychological aspect of the finding, its verity may be assailed successfully in a materialistic way. We may not say that one cannot collect without breeches but it is almost too much to hope to collect without a purse. The assertion that the old collector will grow to dislike beer is one for abler pens than ours to dissect; and if it is true, the prohibition campaign committee should circulate philatelic literature in lavish quantity.

VALUES OF BOOKLET PANES.

By H. T. Willcox.

The continued article upon U. S. booklets and booklet panes has been interesting, I am sure, to many readers, but when the author presumes to state that prices appended to the check list indicate present average quotations for mint panes of six stamps, I consider it time to contradict him.

U. S. booklets have been my specialty and study for the past five years. I have probably handled more of these, both in quantity and in number of varieties than any other collector who may read the article in question, for I have sold hundreds of dollars worth of these in that time. I have also been in constant touch with prices asked by most of the dealers who handle book panes, therefore consider myself competent to state that the author has given prices far too excessive in value for the later issues, 1908 to date and prices of the older issues, 1895 to 1903 are too low, if he intends to present to the reader the average quotation. I would myself and I know of others who would buy most of the earlier issues enumerated in quantity at 50% and 100% in some cases more than prices given in the list.

I have always found the 1902 Flag type more difficult to secure and that it sold for more than the 2c, 1895 pane and I am surprised that Mr. Wiley thinks oppositely. Aside from this the historical and descriptive portions of the article are very helpful and of use to the novice but when the author fixes the average prices that the panes are sold at, he should at least secure more representative averages even if he does not consult other dealers in regard to what they think he should give as average selling prices.

NOW THE KOOKABURRA.

The Postmaster General has approved of a design for several new postage stamps. The new 6d stamp, which will be among the first of the new design to be made available to the public, will bear as its chief feature a reproduction of a kookaburra (laughing jackass) sitting upon a branch of eucalyptus. The new blue 2½d stamp will show the head of the King, while the design of the new issue of the 2sh stamp will have a black swan as its central feature.

One of the local newspapers states that the design of the 2sh stamp would in future represent the black swan of West Australia set in neat colours. The expression "neat" is new to us. Are we to understand that only the 2sh stamp will be in neat colours, and that the other denominations will be in untidy colours.

It was stated in the press recently that the Postmaster General has announced his intention of retiring from Parliament, and stated that he has been in Parliament long enough.

We understand that Mr. Wynne's intention is not to seek re-election after the present Parliament is dissolved. But it is stated in some quarters that a general election may be held in May next. Mr. Wynne's retirement may be expected about then.

Is it that the strain of issuing a new series of postage stamps has been too much for that gentleman. No Postmaster General of recent years has had his actions in this respect brought more under review than Mr. Wynne. In some quarters he has been commended, but we suppose he has found out that it is a very difficult thing to please everybody.

We are sorry to learn of Mr. Wynne's decision, for Parliament cannot afford to lose such men. He is not in any sense a professional politician, for we understand that he is a very wealthy man, and has the good of the country at heart, and that he does not follow politics merely for what he can make out of the game. Still we must say that in our opinion Mr. Wynne is a better judge of horses than he is of postage stamps.

Although it was stated in the press as far back as 6th February that the second million of the King George 1d stamps would be on sale in 10 days, they have not up to the time of going to the press made their appearance.—Aust. Stamp Journal.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents.

UNITED STATES.—Scott's Circular has the following to say regarding the new stamps which are now being distributed:

"The colors of the new denominations are said to be really different from those designated by the official announcement; that is, the government idea of color evidently does not agree with the notions of philatelists. The 7c black is reported as shaded to grayish. The 9c pink is described as a light shade of dull rose red, rather than pink, and as being a different color from anything which has previously been used in United States stamps. The 12c maroon is described as being a very dark shade, more like a dark purple brown. The 20c ultramarine is the same color as the recently discontinued 10c Registry Stamp. The 30c vermilion is reported as a combination of brown red mixed with orange. We have strong doubts whether the 7c black will prove a satisfactory stamp when placed in use. Black in the past has never been successful as a color for postage stamps, due to the difficulty of distinguishing the cancellation mark upon it. Every few years, however, a new generation of officials has to learn this fact over again."

BARBADOS.—Lowell G. Ragatz reports the 1d Queen's Head wrapper, overprinted "½d" in violet, double print.

CANAL ZONE.—The current United States postage due stamps have been surcharged "Canal Zone" in black for use in that concession. The surcharge is placed near the bottom and at a slight angle, like the Philippine and Porto Rico surcharges, but in heavier type. No. 87 on each sheet has the final "E" of "Zone" dropped down.

DUTCH INDIES.—George S. Chapman reports having seen a copy of the 3c yellow of 1912, with the first "D" in "Nederlandsch" broken so as to make it look like an inverted "G."

Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the new 5c postage due, all in a single color.

Postage Due Adhesive.
5c pale orange red.

ENGLISH COLONIES.—Official notice has been received by the New England Stamp Co. that "the last of the stock of white paper with colored surface has been used for the new Nigeria stamps, and all future supplies of stamps requiring colored papers, will be printed on paper colored throughout its substance, of which an ample supply has now been manufactured."

FALKLAND ISLANDS.—We have received from J. A. Galbraith specimen copies of the new 10sh and 1 King George. The 10sh is in carmine on green paper and the pound value is black on red.

GREECE.—Bright & Son have shown us the Charity stamps announced in No. 1215. They are well printed and the design is fair though uneven. The design does not show a sister of charity at the side of the wounded soldier, but in the background caring for the wife and child. Two Greek words run across the top, and the dates "1912-1913" across the bottom, the value being in a small square in the lower right corner.

COLONIAL STAMP CO.
B. F. EXELOW, Prop. 814-15 WESTMINSTER BLDG., CHICAGO.
Local collectors and dealers are cordially invited to inspect personally our magnificent stock.

GRENADA.—Hermann Focke has shown us the 3d King George stamp on yellow-tinted paper. This was not included in the Colonial Office Journal published some time since. The 2d orange of the same set is again in issue at St. George's.

HONDURAS.—Lowell G. Ragatz reports the 10c official stamp of 1911, No. 182, with double surcharge.

HONG KONG.—Hermann Focke submits an 8c gray stamp of the King George set, which "has a peculiarity not often seen on stamps which are engraved and printed from copper plates, as the Hong Kong and other British Colonial stamps are. All the letters and characters, including the frame are of a kind of double line printing instead of the one solid line printing of the ordinary stamps, this gives the stamp a sort of blurred appearance, the letters appear thinner, and look as though they are shaded; still, looking at the stamp through a glass, you will see that the impression is perfectly clear, and it even looks like a fine piece of work. Can you explain the reason why the printing machine should have turned out such work? Is it a double print, or what is it? I presume there must be in existence a whole sheet printed in this manner, and the status of the stamps may be the same as that of the 2 annas India stamps of 1883, Scott's 41a, which is termed double impression."

MALTA.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the new 5d stamp and we find that the color is a yellowish olive shade, instead of the true olive shade of the earlier printing. Still the difference is only slight, and difficult to distinguish, except by comparison.

NETHERLANDS.—As announced some time since, the colors of the 50c have been changed, a used copy having been shown us by Louis A. Ruckgaber.

The second line is on a straight tablet with the first and third curved above and below. Both are without frame.

The most successful stamp exchange in the United States. Why? Because it returns value for value received. Because you get stamps you want and pay for them with your duplicates. Because it sends out circuits twice a month. Because it is run on sound principles and can be used only by members of the A. P. S. Because its accounts are kept up to the minute. Because all letters are answered by return mail. Because the men using the exchange are men who want good stamps and can send good stamps in return. The Manager has received 4000 exchange books, has sent out 687 circuits. Send 2c stamp for copy of the Bulletin and see what others say about the exchange. If you are not a member of A. P. A PHILATELIC TREASURE HOUSE.

I learn from the Philatelic Record that C. D. Sherborn has presented his collection of British envelopes, the accumulation of many years of collecting, to the British Museum. Mr. Sherborn published a most valuable article on these envelopes in the Record for February, 1912. In this paper the different dies found on each size and style of envelope were catalogued for the first time. The article was based on the author's own collection, which contains all the type specimens described therein. The collection will soon be available for inspection, if it is not so already, by collectors who will thus be able to verify Mr. Sherborn's statements and compare their own copies with the original types described. The latest gift to the nation is one of importance as an historical record of an important branch of British philately, and students of entires especially will appreciate Mr. Sherborn's generous and valuable gift.

The acceptance of Mr. Sherborn's collection by the Trustees of the Museum, which I assume from the above announcement, may indicate a more favorable attitude towards philately than has been apparent on the part of the trustees in the past. If the acceptance of the Crawford Library and the Sherborn collection of British envelopes serve to awaken the philatelic interests at the Museum there is no reason why that vast repository of valuable records, already the richest national store-house of philatelic records, should not permanently maintain its pre-eminence as the Mecca of the philatelic student.—Postage Stamp.

A MILLION STAMPS.

How They Figured in a Boy's Attempt to Endow a Hospital Cot.

Did you ever dicker with a millionaire even without knowing it?

This boy was interested in collecting postage stamps and he noticed a newspaper paragraph that told of the efforts of a girls' club in a small country town to accumulate a million cancelled stamps under the impression that they could by that means endow a bed in a hospital.

Of course there never was a hospital that made a practice of exchanging an endowed bed for old postage stamps, but some one started that story going years ago and it springs up every once in a while and somebody believes it.

The newspaper article told of the chagrin of the girls when the club members learned that all their work had gone for nothing, and the boy thought that perhaps he could help them to dispose of the stamps and so gain a little money toward their object. So he wrote to the club and offered to dispose of the stamps as best he could among stamp dealers whom he knew.

In reply the boy received a letter signed simply "G. E. Jones," which said: "I have the million postage stamps and would be glad to have you sell them."

The address given was a house on a West Side street in New York, and when the boy called he was taken to an upstairs sitting room. It was the middle of summer and the furniture and pictures were all covered with linen shrouds and the boy got no idea whether the house was handsomely furnished or as plain as the home from which he came.

A short, pleasant faced man appeared and quietly introducing himself as "Mr. Jones" rolled out of a closet a flour barrel almost full of cancelled postage stamps.

"I don't know how many are there," he said with a smile, "for I never counted them; but I guess there are a million."

He suggested that he send the barrel by express to the boy's home and that the boy see what he could get for the contents. There was no question of whether he would pay for them, Mr. Jones showing by his attitude that between gentlemen good faith was to be expected without any security other than a manly boy's word.

The man and the boy chatted a few minutes about stamp collecting and then Mr. Jones brought out part of his own collection, and the boy saw some stamps that he had never seen before and never expects to see again except in exhibitions.

Then his host began bringing out envelopes of duplicates for which he said he had no particular use, and the boy's eyes grew bigger and bigger, until he could not restrain his curiosity, and asked the man where he had obtained such a quantity of rare stamps.

"I have been favored with unusual facilities," said the man, simply and unassumingly, "and my friends have been very kind in saving what they could."

Finally he brought out an envelope full of the old black five cent issue of the city of New York, which preceded any national issue. There were some seventy-five of them, in fours, pairs and singly, and the boy blinked as he realized that they were catalogued at from $4 to $5 each.

"Do you think you could sell some of those?" asked the quiet man who was so unconcerned about what seemed to the boy to be untold wealth.

The boy thought he could and his host counted out about fifty of them and told him to take them along.

"You can sell them for me," he said, "and keep for your trouble all you can get over $2.50 each. You must make a little money for your trouble, you know."

That was the start of a series of transactions between the man and the boy that lasted all that summer. All the time the boy's new found acquaintance was a mystery, for it was unusual to see such quantities of valuable stamps in the possession of any one but a dealer.

It was not until some years afterward that the boy learned that he had been handling only a very small part of the overstock of what was one of the most valuable collections of stamps in the world and that those wonderful lots of old stamps had been accumulated in the office of a great newspaper during the previous generation.

It was when the boy had grown up and got into the newspaper business himself that he learned that his "G. E. Jones" was Gilbert E. Jones, who was at that time part owner of the New York Times and of the building it occupied. Had the boy known who this pleasant spoken, modest man really was he would have been embarrassed and ill at ease, and Mr. Jones was wise enough to realize that and keep his identity concealed.

But whenever stamp collecting is mentioned in the boy's hearing nowadays his thoughts go back to those old trades of his, and when some one berates millionaires he recalls one rich man who was so pleasant and trusted him so readily.—N. Y. Sun.

POSTAL SAVINGS STAMPS OF U. S.

THE INKS.

The colors used for printing this series are as follows:

1c Official Mail, violet.
2c Official Mail, black.
10c Official Mail, carmine.
50c Official Mail, green.
$1.00 Official Mail, ultramarine.
10c Postal Savings Stamp, orange.
10c Postal Savings Stamp, blue.
10c Postal Savings Card, orange.
10c Postal Savings Card, blue.

The color of ink used for the 1 cent stamps is similar to that used for the 3 cent stamp of general issue, series of 1908. The plates for the 1 cent stamp were first put to press on February 28, 1911. Two additional printings have been made to date, one on March 6, 1912 and another on April 3, 1912. The stamps of the first printings are in a shade decidedly lighter than those of the two subsequent printings. This is occasioned by a difference in the constituent red pigments used in making the violet ink.

The original printing of the 2 cent denomination was made on August 18, 1910. A later printing made on September 21, 1911, is in deeper black than the original which has a decided grayish tinge. A very slight shade difference is noticeable in the other denominations.

THE PAPER.

Two varieties of paper have been used for this issue, paper having the double line watermark was used for the first printings of the 2 cent which has since been printed on the current single line watermark.

The 1 and 10 cent Official stamps were printed only on paper having the single line watermark. The 50 cent and $1.00 denominations were printed only on paper having the double line watermark. The 10 cent orange Postal Savings stamp was printed on both papers although copies on the double line watermark are rather scarce as the plates for this stamp were put to press on August 24, 1910, two days after the single line paper was first used. The 10 cent blue Postal Savings has been printed only on the single line watermark.

THE 1 CENT OFFICIAL STAMP.

But one plate was prepared for this denomination. The number of this plate is 5646. Up to the present time, this plate has been put to press three times, the first being from February 28, 1911 to March 3, 1911, the second from March 6, 1912 to March 8, 1912 and the third from April 3, 1912 to April 8, 1912. No one cent stamps have been printed since then. This stamp occurs in two decided shades of violet. The light shade showing reddish tints was printed the second or third time, probably, that the plate was used as this shade began to appear in the summer of 1912. The total number of stamps printed from this plate is 2,120,799. The deliveries to postmasters have been as follows:

1911	23,000	March 29, 1911.
1914	107,051	Dec. 3, 1913.
Total	1,369,950

The reader will remember that the years referred to in this article are fiscal years beginning July 1, and ending June 30th. By the year 1911 is meant the fiscal year ending June 30, 1911. The paper used for the 1 cent stamps is that having the single line watermark.

With the exception of the shade varieties, the writer knows of no other minor varieties which exist in this denomination.

THE 2 CENT OFFICIAL STAMP.

This stamp which is the commonest of the series was printed from four plates, the numbers of which are 5,500, 5,501, 5,502 and 5,503. Two printings have been made of this denomination, the first being made from August 18, 1910 to August 20, 1910 and the second from September 21, 1911 to September 25, 1911.

During this period the total number of stamps printed amounted to 3,653,599. Up to December 3, 1913, a total of 5,039,600 had been delivered to post-

OBSOLETE NEW ISSUES.
We have done a land office business in the past two months in supplying to new customers, issues that have recently become obsolete. We very seldom get a new name but we find in his collection some spaces that were left vacant by his former new issue service. We feel really proud of the way we have taken care of our customers in the past two years and we are still out for improvement. We have not indulged in fake issues that pay the dealer five hundred per cent. profit and later when they can be bought for a few cents per set mean a corresponding loss to the collector, but for good, straight issues we do not take off our hat to any service on the Map.

IMPERF. PAIRS, STRIPS

masters. These deliveries were as follows:

1911	395,400	Dec. 23, 1910.
1914	185,451	Dec. 3, 1913.
Total	3,039,600

This stamp was printed upon both varieties of paper, those having the single line and double line watermark. Approximately two million of these stamps were printed upon paper having the double line watermark. The color of this stamp is black. The early printings on the paper having the double line watermark often showed a grayish tinge which is the only shade variety existing.

A very interesting minor variety is a double transfer in which there is a line through the top of the word "CENTS." In a few cases this double transfer was shown in the horizontal lines of the background on the lower part of the stamp.

The 10 Cent Official Stamp.

Two plates were prepared for this stamp, their numbers being 5,613 which was put to press from January 28, 1911 to January 30, 1911, from September 7, 1911 to September 12, 1911 and from September 21, 1911 to September 27, 1911 and Number 5,697 which has never been used. A total of 2,497,599 of these stamps have been printed of which 1,741,610 had been delivered to postmasters up to December 3, 1913. The deliveries were as follows:

1911	126,800	Feb. 7, 1911.
1914	134,111	Dec. 3, 1913.
Total	1,741,610

This stamp was printed upon paper having the single line watermark only. One or two minor shade differences are noticeable but these seem to me to be the result of variations in printing methods and plate conditions rather than differences in the hue or shade of the ink, the color of which is carmine red.

In addition to an interesting double transfer variety in which the line through the top of the word "CENTS" appears as in the case of the 2 cent stamp, another double transfer may be found in this denomination, the shift showing more or less distinctly in various details covering all portions of the stamp.

The 50 Cent Official Stamp.

But one plate was prepared for this stamp. This plate which is Number 5614 was put to press from January 27, 1911 to January 30, 1911 and from August 10, 1911 to August 18, 1911. The total number of stamps printed is 455,999 of which there had been delivered to postmasters up to December 3, 1913, a total of 131,975. The deliveries were as follows:

1911	10,000	Feb. 7, 1911.
1914	5,351	Dec. 3, 1913.
Total	131,975

This stamp was printed only upon the paper having the double line watermark. The color of the stamp is green and no minor varieties of any kind are known to the writer. This stamp is by far the scarcest of the series at the present time although it is probable that it will become about as common as the $1.00 stamp provided the use of these stamps is continued.

The $1.00 Official Stamp.

As in the case of the 50 cent stamp, but one plate was prepared for the $1.00 stamp which is the highest denomination of the series. The plate is Number 5615 which was put to press from January 27, 1911 to January 28, 1911 and from August 10, 1911 to August 19, 1911. During this period, there was printed a total of 446,599 stamps of which 122,450 had been delivered to postmasters up to December 3, 1913. The deliveries were as follows:

1911	10,000	Feb. 7, 1911.
1914	5,401	Dec. 3, 1913.
Total	122,450

The color of the $1.00 stamp is blue. No shade varieties or other minor varieties are known to the writer. This stamp was used in large blocks on the packages of supplies consigned to various Postal Savings offices. The writer knows of two packages on which the postage exceeded $25.00 and of another package which carried postage to the amount of $50.02 and of a fourth package which is the record breaker to the best of his knowledge, on which more than $108.00 worth of postage was used. These large sums are invariably prepaid with the $1.00 stamp and packages carrying more than one copy of the 50c are exceptional.

The 10 Cent Postal Savings Stamp.

These stamps which are somewhat similar in design to the Official stamps were issued for use on the Postal Savings cards nine of them affixed to a Postal Savings card which carries a reproduction of the 10 cent stamp together with spaces for nine additional adhesive stamps, is accepted for deposit as the equivalent of one dollar at any Postal Savings Bank.

Eight plates were prepared for this stamp, the first four plates, Numbers 5504, 5505, 5506, 5507 were put to press from August 24, 1910 to August 30, 1910, from June 29, 1911 to July 7, 1911, from August 3, 1911 to August 15, 1911, from August 31, 1911 to September 9, 1911 and from September 15, 1911 to October 19, 1911.

The remaining four plates which were Numbers 5698, 5700, 5703 and 5704 have been put to press but once, the dates being from October 18, 1911 to October 27, 1911. Up to the present time, the total number of these 10 cent Savings stamps which have been printed is 71,387,599 of which there had been delivered to postmasters up to December 3, 1913 a total of 32,643,999. Dates of deliveries are as follows:

1914	263,100	Dec. 3, 1913.
Total	32,643,999

The color of these stamps is at present blue although an orange ink was used at first and approximately forty millions were printed in orange. None of the blue stamps were issued on paper having the double line watermark although the orange stamps may be found on both the single line and double line papers. The use of the single line watermark paper commenced on August 22, 1910, and the 10 cent Postal Savings stamp plates went to press a few days later on August 24, 1910. To the best of my knowledge, no shade varieties or plate errors exist in this stamp.

Postal Savings Cards.

There are eighteen of these cards on each plate and in cutting them and trimming them, the plate numbers are invariably cut off. For this reason, none of these cards with plate numbers attached have ever been obtainable at Postal Savings offices. To the present time, there has been printed a total of 6,164,599 of these cards. The deliveries to postmasters have been as follows:

1911	524,000	Dec. 23, 1910.
1914	38,700	Dec. 3, 1913.
Total	3,360,199

The use of the new single line watermark paper commenced on August 22, 1910. The 10 cent Postal Savings Stamps went to press on August 24, 1910, but we are unable to say whether any of these stamps were printed on the old watermark or not as it is probable that both kinds of paper were at press for a few days until the stock of old paper was exhausted.

The Postal Savings Official Envelopes.

The bulk of the official correspondence connected with the operation of the various Postal Savings banks is mailed in official envelopes of special design. These are manufactured by the same contractors who supply the ordinary United States envelopes. The denominations which have appeared up to the present time, are the 1 cent which is printed in green ink and the 2 cent which is printed in carmine. The paper for the 1 cent envelope has been white or buff. Two sizes of this envelope have appeared and the Specialist will find three varieties of paper.

The writer wishes to call attention to the various interesting original covers issued in this series. In addition to the numerous combinations of Official stamps and envelopes, covers may be found in which carry both the official stamps and one or more of the general issues. These covers are in one or two rare instances the result of a shortage of Official stamps but generally they indicate cases in which private individuals have registered replies to Postal Savings offices in official envelopes which had been sent to them in the course of the banking business.

In conclusion the writer wishes to emphasize the fact that Philatelists are particularly indebted to J. E. Ralph, Director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, through the courtesy of whom this article becomes available.

THE NEXT BELGIAN STAMP ISSUE.

The Sunday label is to be abandoned from the Belgian stamps if our Parisian namesake, Le Timbre-Poste, is correctly informed. A new series of stamps is nearly ready, the current stamps of King Albert's reign having failed to give satisfaction. In the new issue we are to have some novelties, for all thirteen values, except the 1 centime and 2 centimes, will be printed from recess plates. The King's portrait will figure on the values up to 40 centimes, including a new denomination, 15 centimes. The 50 centimes and higher values will be of larger size, similar to those beautiful issues of Belgian Congo. The vignette on the 50 centimes is to represent an incident in the War of Independence, when the wounded Comte de Mérode handed over the tricolour flag to another volunteer. The 1 franc shows a vessel riding in the freed Escaut, or Schelde, bearing the words, "Schelde Vrij." The 2 francs vignette is an allegory of the Belgian dominion over the Congo; and the 5 francs bears the portraits of the royal triumvirate, Leopold I., Leopold II., and Albert I.—Postage Stamp.

EDITORIAL.

The New Stamps—Here is the official description of the new United States postage stamps, the issue of which has been anticipated for some time past. The announcement was dated Washington, April 23rd, and was received by us just too late for the issue of last week:

"1. Postmasters are notified that the Department is prepared to issue five new denominations of ordinary postage stamps. They are intended particularly for use on parcels, but are valid for postage on all classes of mail.

DESCRIPTION.

2. The new stamps are of the same shape (a rectangle on end) and size (about 7-8 by 23-32 inch) as the other ordinary stamps, series 1911. The denominations are 7-cent (black), 9-cent (pink), 12-cent (maroon), 20-cent (light blue) and 30-cent (vermilion).

The 7-cent bears the head of Washington in profile, from Houdon's bust, looking to the left. The border design is the same as that of the first six denominations of the current series.

The 9-cent, 12-cent, 20-cent and 30-cent bear the head of Franklin in profile, from Houdon's bust looking to the left. These four denominations have the same border design as the current 8-cent to $1 stamps.

3. No requisition will be filled for the new 7-cent, 9-cent, 12-cent, 20-cent and 30-cent stamps alone, but postmasters may include them in their next requisition on form 3201 for other stamped paper, using the blank lines and designating the new denominations desired. See April, 1914, Postal Guide, page 5, as to new requistion Form 3201.

4. When any variety of postage stamps or other stamped paper is needed, the postmaster will inventory his stock and include in the requisition all varieties of stamps, postal cards and stamped envelopes likely to be needed in the ensuing three to twelve months, depending upon his storage facilities, and not exceeding the number of stamps that can be adequately protected. This will avoid the necessity for frequent requisitions, and will be advantageous to the postmaster as well as the Department.

A. M. DOCKERY,
Third Asst. P. M. Gen."

On Mexican Soil—The post office follows the flag; and it is interesting to observe the steps of progression in an administrative way whereby an office is established on alien ground. On April 24th, the Postmaster General announced that under Section 4021 of the Revised Statutes, a Mail Agency was created at Vera Cruz, Mexico to be known as the United States Mail Agency, Vera Cruz, Mexico; and that Mr. H. M. Robinson, Superintendent of Railway Mail Service, was assigned as postal agent in charge. Three days later or under date of April 27th, the Second Assistant Postmaster General directed that "until further notice all mail for the United States military and naval forces and United States officials at Vera Cruz and Tampico, or addressed in care of said forces or officials shall be sent to Galveston, Texas, for dispatch thence to destination."

Rates—On the same day, April 27th, 1914, the Third Assistant Postmaster General completed the story by issuing a schedule of postage rates on mail to and from the U. S. Mail Agency, Vera Cruz, Mexico. The first paragraph of the order explains: Postmasters are informed that mail originating in the United States or any of its possessions for transmission to the United States Mail Agency, Vera Cruz, Mexico, and that originating at such agency for transmission to the United States or any of its possessions is subject to the United States domestic classification, conditions and rates of postage. Only United States stamps are valid for the prepayment of postage on such matter." It is announced that Vera Cruz is subject to the eighth zone rate of twelve cents for each pound or fraction of a pound on parcels sent from the United States or any of its possessions; and that the same rate prevails from the Vera Cruz Agency on parcels despatched to this country.

An Unconscious Hit—Under the heading, "Navy Cancellations," we said in the issue of April 18th: "In a list of 'United States Naval Vessels in which Navy Mail Service was in Operation, March 31, 1914,' we count ninety-seven ships. The cancellations of the different vessels are interesting and judging from the one before us take this form: 'U. S. S., Oct. 13, P. M., 1913, New Hampshire. Tampico, Mexico.' We can imagine that collecting these cancellations would be a fascinating pursuit, particularly as they would show foreign postmarks on the United States stamps in so many cases." When the foregoing paragraph appeared, the aspect of affairs in Mexico was not so threatening as it became later but soon afterwards the critical developments there seemed to give the paragraph a most piquant interest judging by the requests that were received for a copy of a list of the vessels. Under the circumstances, we print the list as revised April 7th, 1914, as the succeeding paragraph.

Complete List—"United States Naval Vessels on which Navy Mail Service was in operation, March 31, 1914: Albatross, Alert, Annapolis, Arkansas, Birmingham, Buffalo, California, Celtic, Chester, Cheyenne, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Colorado, Connecticut, Constellation, Culgoa, Cumberland, Delaware, Denver, Des Moines, Dixie, Eagle, Elcano, Florida, Galveston, Georgia, Glacier, Hancock, Hannibal, Hartford, Helena, Idaho, Illinois, Iris, Jupiter, Kansas, Lebanon, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Mayflower, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Mohican, Monadnock, Montana, Monterey, Montgomery, Nashville, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Orleans, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Ozark, Paducah, Petrel, Pittsburgh, Pompey, Prairie, Princeton, Rainbow, Raleigh, Reina Mercedes, Rhode Island, Salem, San Francisco, Saratoga, Scorpion, Solace, South Carolina, South Dakota, Southery, St. Louis, Supply, Tacoma, Tallahassee, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Vestal, Virginia, Villalbos, Washington, West Virginia, Wilmington, Wisconsin, Wheeling, Wyoming, Yankton, Yorktown.

How It Happened—An envelope without stamp but marked with a postmark impression, "Paid All," and the St. John's, Newfoundland, postmark dated in October 1897, was duly mentioned in the WEEKLY many years ago. Recently, one of these envelopes used as with a one cent stamp was resurrected; and a description of it was sent to the postmaster general of Newfoundland, who wrote our informant as follows: "General Post Office, St. John's, Newfoundland, 18th April, 1914. Sir: In reply to your letter of the 4th respecting the 'Paid All' stamp mark dated October, 1897, I beg to say that it is remembered that such a stamp was in use for a few days. In that year a consignment of postage stamps coming to us from the manufacturers was lost in the wreck of the steamer 'Capulet' and pending the arrival of a fresh consignment it became necessary to use the stamp described by you." The letter is signed by "Woods, Postmaster General."

Drawing the Lines—The post office department beginning July 1st, 1914, will require on stamped envelopes "the name of street and number to be included in the return cards printed by the Department for post offices having city delivery." There is a desire on the part of the post office division to discourage the use of the indefinite address. At the same time, the injunction again is issued that "no advertisement or special device of any kind nor the names of addresses shall be printed on stamped envelopes by the department." Several violations of this ruling had been reported where cleverly an advertisement more or less veiled was incorporated in the formula.

A Dangerous Game—We are pleased to say that instances are not lacking where the post office inspectors have been alert and anxious to prosecute stamp frauds through the mails; and there are indications that the espionage of the department over the mail it carries will become more stringent with each succeeding year. The time surely will come when stamp swindlers who depend on the mails for the furtherance of their fraud will find their transactions attended with grave possibilities; and the dealer who gets the cash and does not fill the order and the chap that does not return the approval sheets that he applies for will find old Nemesis on their trail.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—The stamps of Dr. J. B. Mencke will be sold May 22 by the Philadelphia Stamp Co. The catalog received is exceedingly well written and bears the ear-marks of P. M. Wolsieffer, who has recently become associated with the Company. Collectors interested in auction sales will do well to send for one of these catalogs.

—Wm. W. Raymond, supervisor of the Village of Owego, N. Y., and one of the prominent business men of the town, died April 17, at the age of 44. He was one of Owego's most popular citizens and had been honored with many positions of trust. Mr. Raymond was a devoted stamp collector, possessing a very extensive and valuable collection.

—The Philadelphia Stamp Co. sends us the particulars of a transaction with R. R. Knight, Dallas, Texas, who claims to operate the Texas Stamp Co. A communication sent this party was returned marked "Not in city directory."

—Clippings have been received from H. E. Klotzbach.

—The St. Louis post office has been called upon to furnish an equipment for the U. S. post office which is being established at Vera Cruz.

—The Ararat Stamp Co. has sold out the business to other N. Y. parties. The former manager, Vahan Mozian, as per card elsewhere, will, for the present, conduct a mail order business.

—The April number of Linn's Way contains a very painstaking article on the stamps of Sonora by Geo. W. Linn. Anyone desiring a specimen copy can no doubt secure one by sending postage.

—On May 1 the firm of Perrin & Co., removed from their office on East 23rd St. to 1 East 28th, two doors east of Fifth Avenue. The firm now has a new, well-lighted and attractive store and will make a stronger appeal than ever before for the business of New York collectors.

—We recently chronicled and illustrated the Swiss Jubilee stamp and stated in the article that their use was limited to Switzerland and certain nearby nations. Frank Kocher, Cokeburg, Pa., submits a card bearing a pair of these stamps which was delivered without the payment of postage due.

—We are indebted to Mrs. L. W. Kellogg for a specimen of the perforation gauge advertised elsewhere in this issue.

—We are advised of the death of V. A. Alderson, Wausau, Wis., an oldtime stamp collector and a highly respected and honored citizen of the city named. His death occurred April 20.

—"I have in my possession copies of Zululand, Nos. 3, 9, and 10, also No. 2 with inverted surcharge, and have seen No. 2 normal; all of these surcharges are counterfeit. The surcharge measures 12½x2 mm., and was applied to postally used British stamps of those types."—LAMBERT H. MCQUESTON.

A BIT OF IMPORTANT NEWS.

Freeman Putney, Jr., has disposed of his interest in the Scott Stamp & Coin Co. to Hon. Charles E. Hatfield of Newton, Mass. It is understood that Mr. Putney will retire from the Scott Co. Mr. Hatfield was formerly Mayor of his city, and has recently been prominently before the public as Chairman of the Republican State Committee of Massachusetts.

COLLECTING ALONG DEFINITE LINES.

EDITOR SCOTT IN Metropolitan.

The New York Times lately honored philately or themselves by a short editorial on collecting in which it admitted that in many respects stamp hunting was the best and most elastic means of gratifying an instinct latent in the entire human race, the more pronounced the higher we go in civilization and culture. The great beauty in stamp collecting is exemplified by the fact that none are too poor or too ignorant to get pleasure out of the pursuit, while it affords relaxation and entertainment to many of the greatest minds in all the principal centers of culture. An instructive and beautiful collection of stamps can be formed at a cost of one cent per week while the wealthy have collections on which they have expended many hundreds of thousands and they can still find material with which to keep up their interest in the pursuit. The great trouble with American collectors is that they cannot let the commercial side drop out and at the sight of any loss many get disgusted. The profit in philately is for those who conscientiously form a collection along definite lines and strive to get every stamp their scheme calls for. Eventually such an album must become valuable while those who are simply looking for stamps that they expect to advance in price will find both losses and gains, only those gifted with second sight will become great winners; such ones can make more money in many other lines of business and can easily afford to look on philately as a pleasure pure and simple. The most pronounced speculator certainly has a love for the objects of his quest or he would turn his mind to objects which would be more congenial to him and leave stamps to their friends and lovers. The real collector never tires and is as interested at eighty as when he took up the pursuit at eight, which is about the present limit of the oldest collector.

A PRETTY EGYPTIAN COVER.

We have a number of these covers bearing the 1m, 2m, 3m and 4m stamps lightly cancelled and we give them as a premium with 15 weeks' subscription to new subscribers never before on our mail list. Price 15c (10c without subscription). These stamps are the 1914 picture set.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents.

UNITED STATES.—Donald H. Graham adds to previous lists, Var. 1, watermarked "U S S E—1911"; old knife; size 8 on oriental buff.

ALBANIA.—Frank B. Eldredge shows us covers from Albania, of considerable interest at the present time. One bears five of the 5q Scanderbeg stamps, which present a very fine appearance, being well engraved and printed. The other has impressed by a rubber stamp on the reverse of the envelope, two of the early provisionals showing the double headed eagle and various native characters, with "25 Paras 25" stamped across at another operation. The first design is in pale violet and the value in dull red.

BAVARIA.—Edgar S. Bissinger sends us used copies of the new 5pf, 10pf and 20pf stamps with early cancellations.

E. L. Southwick submits a cover with two of the old 5pf stamps and a third stamp, evidently from a stamp book having the advertisement of a well known German stamp dealer in place of the stamp. On the back is a label of striking design advertising the "Exposition of the Book Industry and Graphic Arts," (translating freely), at Leipsic, 1914.

COSTA RICA.—This Republic will issue a series of stamps in September, commemorative of the Centenary of the birth of Juan Rafael Mora, who was three times president of the Republic.

FRENCH COLONIES.—Lemaire's Journal says that the French Postal Authorities have decided to issue a reply stamp for the French colonial and intercolonial mails.

GREECE.—The L. L. Albright Co. submits specimens of the current 5l stamp, engraved, which shows imperfect printing, colorless marks and spots appearing in the squares containing the figures of value.

SERVIA.—It is proposed to add 35 and 60 para values to the current set.

SIAM.—New values and provisionals are likely to appear shortly, owing to a change in post tariffs, says Lemaire's Journal.

SOMALI COAST.—According to Lemaire's Journal a new series of stamps is being prepared for this colony. There will be four designs, all being of the usual large shape.

VENEZUELA.—The L. L. Albright Co. submits specimens of the 50c purple of 1911, showing similar variations in the shades of frames and centres as already noted in the other centimo values. Mr. Albright has also discovered variations in the engraving of the frame, the later printing having figures of value and lettering thicker than on the earlier printing.

"PHILATELIC SCOOPS."

Just now Editor Melville is discussing with Editor Armstrong some of those finer points in journalism that can only be appreciated by one who has tried to fill the editorial chair. Editor Armstrong very naturally speaks right out in public, patting on the back Stamp Collecting as an uptodate exponent of our hobby, but only to get the following as a rejoinder from Editor Melville in the Postage Stamp:—

But while our contemporary counts its scoops it does not remind its readers how many of them were canards! It does not now take so great credit for trying to boom "those scarce and interesting stamps" of the Antarctic Expedition postmarked in London, a bit of journalism which surely deserves to go down to posterity as one of the most astounding indiscretions in philatelic journalism. Nor does it challenge our statement that we noted the Colonial surface-coloured paper a month before our contemporary came into existence. Nor do we find our contemporary taking any credit for its "brilliant" exposition of alleged re-touches of our English stamps, and the explanation of slight variations in the dimensions of the watermark as probably indicating "the employment of a new dandy-roll."

Of course our rival did get in first with the tale, supposed to have been telegraphed from New York, on October 28, that Baron Erik Leijonhufvud's Swedish collection at the Exhibition there was valued at £5,000. We did not give this news, as it was not true; the Baron's collection was not there. And it is difficult for us to discover how on October 28 anyone could telegraph from New York that Rudolf Friedl "shows a collection of Austrian, Hungarian and other stamps worth £5,000." Possibly this was "intelligent anticipation" for such a collection did arrive a couple of days or so after the telegram was sent!

Our contemporary's greatest scoop, however, appears to have been "a full account by our Shanghai correspondent of a special issue of overprinted stamps put in use at the U. S. Postal Agency, Shanghai, between November—and December 20th, 1913." A full description of this issue followed, and a wonderful tale told which made the stamps appear to be very rare provisionals, "probably not over 100 specimens of each kind were sold in all." Just over 40 varieties of the stamps were listed, and possibly these are the 40 leading items in which our contemporary claims to have got ahead of us! But the Postal Agent at Shanghai has shattered this illusion in the letter published by us last week stating that the supposed overprinted stamps are nothing more than precancels. Anyone with a modest knowledge of United States postage stamps could have guessed as much. So much for our contemporary's chiefest and greatest scoop.

It may be interesting, but it is of very dubious authenticity to learn that "the only specimens of the Post Office Mauritius known to exist are those which were affixed to the envelopes of these invitations" [to the Governor's ball] and that "just after the postal authorities had received the issue the post office was destroyed in a hurricane." We suppose the majority of the Governor's guests were expected to come all the way from Bordeaux, or some other French port, and that our contemporary has not any of the unused ones in its reference collection!

The latest and not the least wonderful "scoop" is "Great Britain: An unknown Rarity," which is only a time-worn fable revived.

BOSTON, MASS., April 21, 1914.

The 312th (regular) meeting was held at the Club Room this evening with 30 members and friends present.

Messrs. Chas. E. Beckwith and Howard S. Wheeler were elected as Members Nos. 591 and 592 respectively. The application of Sr. Samuel Giberga was posted. The resignation of No. 560 was accepted.

The Secretary presented the Society with a set of photographic prints from the original negatives made for the "Canada" book. A package of counterfeits was received from Mr. Chas. S. Hill. Donations for the new Society collection in the form of albums were received from the New England Stamp Co. and W. L. Aldrich; also donations of stamps from seven different members and of $5.00 in cash by a number present at the meeting.

The following was presented:—

And the current numbers of the following magazines generously contributed by the publishers:—Gibbons Monthly, Mekeel's Weekly, Stamp Journal, Postage Stamp, Philatelic Journal of Great Britain, Scott Stamp & Coin Co. Circular, Philatelic Gazette, Collectors' Monthly, Collectors' Journal, New England Stamp Monthly, British Guiana Philatelic Journal, New Yorker Briefmarken Zeitung and Mitteilungen des Oberelsassischen Philatelisten Klubs.

The matter concerning the so-called "proofs of essays" was referred back to the Council with full power to act, after some discussion.

The sudden death of Mr. Jesse W. Sargent was announced and the Secretary instructed to write the family a letter of condolence.

Mr. Alex P. Brown gave the Society an interesting talk on his collecting days and experiences connected therewith, and ended with some practical advice in stamp matters growing out of his observations and experience.

HER SON'S SECRET.

By Arthur Irwin Smith.

"Robert!" called a voice from the kitchen. "Oh, Robert!"

Robert Tyndale started nervously, picked up a package he had been examining and hastily piled it with some letters into his trunk. After he had locked the trunk and put the key into his coat pocket, he answered the call which was becoming more and more insistent.

"What, in the name of goodness, were you doing?" demanded his mother.

"Oh, nothing, much," he answered carelessly.

"Well, you ought to know it's milking-time," she said, rebukingly.

Without a word, Robert left the house.

"I am afraid Robert'll never amount to much," and his mother sighed anxiously. "He's always forgetting his duties about the place, and is eternally fooling with some trash or another. He gets piles and piles of letters and spends enough time answering them to make an extra crop of corn."

"What were you saying?" asked Mr. Tyndale, coming in with a load of stove wood.

She repeated what she had said, and he shook his head in disapproval of Robert's actions.

"The boy ain't lazy, but he beats all I ever saw foolin' his time away with some foolishness or other. Yet we ought not complain, for what he does with his spare time isn't half as bad as gadding about over the country and getting into trouble like many other boys do," declared Mr. Tyndale.

By the time supper was ready, Robert returned with the milk. He whistled cheerfully as he put the pail down on the table, and got ready for the appetizing meal. Mrs. Tyndale watched him with a troubled expression of which Robert was entirely unconscious. He was a bright, clear-eyed lad of fifteen, just such a son as any mother needs to be proud of. That Mrs. Tyndale did not appreciate him was because she did not understand him. Robert never confided in his parents. Long ago he found out that they did not know how a boy felt about things or what a boy needed to make him happy. When very small he had become interested in athletics, and asked for a ball, bat and mitt. His father would have bought them for him, but his mother interposed, declaring that ball-playing was not only dangerous but a waste of time. Now he was not in the school-team, and his rebellious thought as he watched the other boys play did not help to establish confidential relations with his parents.

"Robert," began his mother, somewhat hesitatingly. "Robert—what were you doing when I called you to milk?"

"Oh, nothing much," he answered, doggedly.

"But you were doing something?"

"You wouldn't understand," he answered, quietly.

"You have no right to keep things from me and your father," Mrs. Tyndale declared, her voice rising almost angrily.

Robert's face flushed. If he told them, they would probably say he would have to quit. He knew it was neither harmful nor a waste of time, so he closed his mouth determinedly. He was not the kind of boy to quarrel with his mother, and he hurriedly finished his supper and went back to his room.

Even before Robert left the table, Mrs. Tyndale was complaining about the injured air which he wore. Robert evidently felt like a cat does when rubbed the wrong way.

After the lamps had been lighted and the supper cleared away, Mrs. Tyndale came into the room adjoining Robert's and watched him as he emptied out a package of what seemed to her to be bits of tiny paper. Soon he had them sorted into several little piles.

"What in the name of goodness can he be doing?" she muttered. She even had Mr. Tyndale come into the room and watch him also.

"Oh, let the boy alone," said the father, laughing. "I guess he is not as crazy as he looks."

Mrs. Tyndale, after her failure at the supper table to get an explanation, could only decide with Mr. Tyndale now, and both turned away and left Robert undisturbed.

For many days afterwards Mrs. Tyndale worried over Robert's conduct. First she had worried because she thought he was wasting his time, then she worried because he wouldn't explain what he was doing, and finally she began to worry because her son was a stranger to her. Her mother heart was now alarmed lest she had lost her boy's love as well as his confidence. She had always wanted him to do the safest and best things, the things she picked out for him to do and what she thought would be best for him. She had never thought that he might like to do something on his own initiative.

At last she carried the matter to the school-teacher with whom Robert was on good terms. The teacher, at least, seemed to understand him.

"You must let him know you are interested in him being happy first of all," said Miss Blount. "Is there not some pursuit he likes that he has been kept from following just because you had forbidden him?"

Mrs. Tyndale remembered the baseball episode. "Why, yes, he did want to play ball, and I wouldn't let him," she said with a sudden feeling of shame.

"A boy needs play as well as work. Play gives him the exercise he needs to make him strong for his work in life," said the teacher. "I am sure you can find some way to make him feel that you are his friend, then you will soon gain his confidence."

"Well, I am going to try, anyway," returned Mrs. Tyndale as she drove away.

She cooked a supper especially to please Robert's palate. Her voice was unusually kind. She even wore a new dress for the occasion. Both Mr. Tyndale and Robert looked at her wonderingly, but, of course, she did not explain anything.

"There's going to be a ball game here, Saturday, I hear," Mr. Tyndale remarked.

Instead of her usual tirade against ball games in general, Mrs. Tyndale began asking questions about the game as if she was greatly interested. It was not long until both Mr. Tyndale and Robert were giving out much information.

"Say, Robert, why is it you don't play with them?" Mrs. Tyndale asked as innocently as if she didn't know why.

"Why, mother, I thought you would not like it!" exclaimed Robert in surprise.

"If you would like to play, I'd like for you to do it. I used to be afraid you'd get hurt, but I guess boys have to be allowed to run some risks," she replied.

Robert's face was positively radiant as his mother made the startling announcement.

After supper was over, his mother went into his room. He was bending over his work, unconscious of her approach.

She came up close, inwardly disquieted but outwardly appearing unconcerned, and looked over his shoulders.

"What a lot of stamps!" she cried wonderingly. "Do tell me about them, Robert."

The barrier was swept away between them forever, as she listened with sympathetic interest to what he told her of his stamp collection.

"I think stamps must be interesting for a boy. I'm glad you've shown me your collection, because they interest even old-fogy me!"

"I was afraid you and father might object to my collecting, that's why I would not tell you about them before," confided Robert. His mother laughed light-heartedly and passed into the next room.

TASTELESS STAMP HINGES.

The Postage Stamp, always ready to do what it can to cheer up struggling philatelists, says:

"We have discovered another novel means of giving pleasure to our readers by introducing to their notice without charge the new Tasteless stamp hinges."

Following this announcement I fully expect next month's London Philatelist will contain something like the following:—

"We have discovered a novel measure of giving pleasure to those of our readers who are not members of the Royal; they may assemble outside our meeting place and see the members go in. No bus or 'tube fares paid."

Continuing their serial the Postage Stamp says:—

"We have concluded arrangements with a well known firm of manufacturers for a supply of packets of a new kind of stamp hinge, the 'Tasteless' stamp hinges whose functions are the same as any ordinary stamp hinge."

How can their functions be the same if they are tasteless?

Still harping upon hinges, the Postage Stamp says:—

"To those using hinges frequently, the rank, bitter, and sometimes offensive taste has often been a source of annoyance."

Moral, never use a hinge frequently—that is to say more than a dozen times; if you do, no wonder it grows rank and bitter.—Mr. McTavish in P. J. G. B.

U. S. STAMPS AS A FIELD FOR SPECIALISM.

By H. L. WILEY.

Chapter I.

The most substantial factor today in Philately is the increasing number of collectors who are abandoning the generalities of stamp collecting to pursue one or more of its details. They find greater satisfaction and a keener pleasure in an attempt to learn all the facts concerning one stamp, or one issue, than they did in the days when their roving knew no bounds except those imposed by the limitations of their bank account.

A specialist in "stamps" is a collector who values the facts concerning a stamp more than the stamp itself. In spite of what we stamp men repeat to each other, Philately is not yet recognized with the same civil and serious consideration as that which greets the collecting of rare books, or prints or gems. It is partly because of the fact that a "complete" collection is a futile dream and that no benefit other than a selfish satisfaction in the feeling of possession can result even should completeness be a possibility.

The collector who does not seek to obtain knowledge of stamps along with the stamps themselves has not progressed beyond the motives of the school boy who with his Seebeck-tickled retina dances in nervous excitement until the multi-colored ten peso unused becomes his property for the sum of ten cents. The invariable reaction is a feeling somewhat between "What's the use!" and "Where can I sell this 'complete' junk?"

The writer is a reformed stamp collector who recognizes the futility of pressing unsolicited advice upon the satisfied conservatives who still labor under the anesthetic of "variety" collecting, but to the increasing numbers who hesitate between the restrictions which govern the "old line" collecting and the untried satisfaction of specialism, there is one brief suggestion which may reveal the nearer vistas of the specialists' world.

In the tones of the parlor entertainer, I will request that you "Select any stamp." Observe it carefully, then investigate the details of ink and paper and gum and dies and plates. If it should be the only one of its kind in existence, your labors will have accomplished nothing more than an essay on an unrelated curiosity, but if the stamp should be one of an issue of ten millions, you will probably have given to philately, a dozen new varieties and a monograph of general interest to the kindred collectors whose thirst for knowledge is greater than their nervous passion for stamps.

To judge from the expressions of the majority of people who are informed of my hobby, stamp collecting bears about the same relation to book collecting, or the accumulation of period furniture, or rare rugs, as the gentle game of ping pong does to football. They are right within their limitations for their mental picture of a stamp collector is one of a sticky-fingered school boy, clutching a few bits of vari-colored paper. The picture would be different if the facts were known. My studies have brought me a fairly broad technical knowledge of nearly every phase in the manufacture of inks and paints and paper and glue; and this knowledge is acquired by every collector who has seriously specialized.

The country in which one lives usually offers more material or greater facilities for obtaining data and information than any other because the facts and material are close at hand. The stamps of about ten countries are especially susceptible to satisfactory treatment by the specialist. Among these none offers a wider field than the stamps of the United States. Recent issues are as rich in material as those of fifty years ago and stamps or data concerning them are easily obtained. The Bureau issues, dating from the time the government began to design and print the stamps, offer a clearly defined field for specialism.

One specialized line involves more or less of another. Assuming that one is interested in the paper varieties or perforations of any stamp, or series of stamps, it will be found that the factors in the study of the stamp of the hour broaden until all the characteristic features related to the stamps under discussion are included in one well-rounded treatment of what, at first, seemed to be but the work of a few minutes. But when the information is obtained, the discoveries made and the results recorded, there comes the reward that follows upon the completion of any piece of valuable and interesting work. The things we learn are not guarded about with that selfishly tinged spirit, characteristic of the ownership of some rare stamp. The knowledge, which has gradually become of more value to one than the stamps themselves, is freely shared with the fortunate collectors of one's acquaintance.

As a general fact, and one to be regretted, it is true that collectors have been inert and inactive in the pursuit of knowledge relating to their stamps. The few students of the past stand out in decided contrast to the thousands who merely collected stamps.

Fifty years from now the ten collections which are called the "greatest" of the present day, will be scattered among a thousand new owners. The men who have formed these collections will with certain brilliant exceptions, have been forgotten in the world of stamps. The exceptions will be those men who have studied their vast accumulations of material and who have freely given us the results of their studies through the medium of the philatelic papers.

The big results call for hard work and intelligent endeavor and the rewards and recognition are in exact proportion to the effort and study involved. No immortality awaits the careless or hurried investigation, some examples of which have been accepted in lieu of anything better, but the student who creates some monograph of real worth through his enthusiastic and conscientious efforts may be sure of his commensurate reward. The only distasteful penalty is the probability that the term "expert" will be applied to him. Even this epithet can be borne with increasing patience as the passage of the years obscures the type of the so-called "expert" of a former generation. The writer always expects and welcomes adverse criticism from some sources for his attitude on the "expert" question. When this becomes intense, the pleasures are shared with several acquaintances, among whom Stevenson, of Michigan, affords him the greatest pleasure by his immediate and sympathetic response.

Chapter II.

In his prefatory remarks the writer has attempted to outline the peculiar advantages derived by the stamp specialist. This paper presents a few of the more interesting subjects which await the study of the collector. More or less has been written on each of these, but nevertheless there is still much to be discovered and recorded.

The subjects treated are as follows: United States Stamps.—(1) Plate numbers; (2) perforations; (3) stamp books; (4) double transfers; (5) stamp plates; (6) inks; (7) paper; (8) gum and (9) stamp manufacture.

1. Plate Numbers.

The plate number specialist can obtain his material at face value at any post office. His research into the early issues must probably include the assistance of one or two of the larger stamp companies who from time to time obtain specimens to which the imprint and plate number is attached. No complete list of the Bureau issues has ever been presented and the one or two lists which were published contain very little of value except the unadorned number and denomination.

The Bureau has manufactured nearly seven thousand plates for stamps in the twenty years that have passed since that work was undertaken. Several distinct types of letters and numerals were used on these plates. Some bore an imprint preceding the number while recent ones did not have it. A few numbers have been engraved and erased from the plates and re-engraved in another position, traces of the former numbers remaining for the keen eye of the investigator.

The peculiar spacing of a series issued about two years ago was indicated by means of a star between the number and imprint. These "starred" plates have never been listed for philatelists. Some plates were printed before and after the star was added. To the margins of a few plates was added one or more parallel lines running the full length of the edge of the plates for the purpose of limiting the space in which the printer's "receipt" initials could be stamped. Some of the plates were cracked or checked in the process of hardening previous to being printed.

The stamp booklets and the coils of stamps recently issued carry plate numbers but because they are difficult to find, no record has been published that even approximately exhausted the subject.

2. Perforations.

The perforation specialist can find an opportunity for considerable hard work in an attempt to determine just what issues and denominations have been perforated with each or several of the 8½, 10, 12 and 15 official perforations, the combinations of the two, and the "part perforates" which are classed as errors. Ever since the first stamps were issued perforated, there has appeared from time to time, one or more unintentional specimens in imperforate or part perforate condition. Official records do not cover the errors of this class, but the existence of several interesting examples is easily proven. There have been issued in recent years a series of "premeditated" part perforates and yet every list which the writer has seen, including one for which he is personally responsible, contains errors of greater or less importance. A recent controversy on the subject of the 3 cent, 1908 with the 12 perforation serves to illustrate the limits of philatelic knowledge upon the question.

The records of the unofficial perforations are shrouded with a fog of misinformation but such fragments of fact as have been distributed have met with an enthusiastic response. Only about one tenth of these special perforations are known to the philatelic world. To the best of the writer's knowledge, fully fifty machines of various types have been designed for vending or affixing stamps and yet the only ones with which philatelists are familiar, are the extensively used Schermacks, Mailometers, Auto-Vending and Brinkerhoff, the issues of which have been exploited to a greater or less extent in various stamp papers in approximate ratio to the condition of the stock of these varieties reposing in the possession of the owners of the papers in which the stamps were described.

The writer, with nothing of the kind to sell, is working on the subject of special perforations and hopes to have the pleasure of presenting the readers of Mekeel's Weekly with a few results within a month or two.

3. Stamp Books.

The plate numbers, accurate dates of issue, quantity printed and other matters of interest to the specialist who has turned his attention to this line have never been published in a complete form.

These books are a comparatively recent departure on the part of the government and yet the interested student is at once confronted by a number of problems which require patient effort and plenty of hard work.

The paper and perforations, watermarks and plates from which the books were printed and a lot of relative data are missing from the records available. Much of interest might be obtained from the stamp literature of the past ten years and yet no one has attempted a conscientious compilation.

The writer's brief treatment of a few features relating to "Booklet Issues" will probably have been presented to readers of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY before this is published. As I remember the article, it but touched the surface of the subject, but the study it involved was of great interest and sufficed to show the various pleasant possibilities which await the student who turns his attention to this specialty.

4. DOUBLE TRANSFERS.

A "Double Transfer" is an error in the manufacture of a stamp plate or a transfer roll in which the imperfect register between the die and the transfer roll or between the transfer roll and the plate during their contact subsequent to the first impression, causes one or more of the lines in the design to be impressed in a different position from that of the first impression. It is indicated in the printed stamp by the presence of two lines where but one exists in a normal copy. If these lines are color lines, the error has been made in transferring the design to the plate and if the lines are white or colorless, the error has been made in transferring the design from the original die to the transfer roll. Exceptions to this rule, while highly improbable are not absolutely impossible, but they are matters of such remote possibility that they do not enter into a practical discussion of the double transfer question.

The "double transfer" specialist meets with considerably greater encouragement today than he did two or three years ago, for it has been proven that a number of common issues of the past ten years exist in this state.

Dr. Carrol Chase had treated the early issues in an interesting manner; everybody who knew a double transfer from a milk ticket, "discovered" the double transfers in the Columbian issue about a year ago. Wm. L. Stevenson reported the Jamestown issue with telegraphic brevity and a less considerate writer used several overworked adjectives in announcing the fact that double transfers existed in some values of the Parcel Post, the Postal Savings and other recent issues. The Hudson-Fulton "double" was overlooked for two or three years and is now priced with the aid of a dollar mark.

The work of the specialist in this line must include an up to date check list and a study of comparative rarities together with an attempt at discovering the numbers of the plates upon which the double transfer is found.

5. STAMP PLATES.

The specialist who thoroughly investigates the manufacture and printing processes of stamp plates will have obtained an extensive general knowledge of the manufacture of steel and the chemistry and various tests, and heat treatments thereof before his work is finished. With those notes which may be considered of interest to stamp collectors, will be presented the results of his research into the question of plate lines, imprints, "arrows" cracked plates, engravers' and printers' initials and the size of the plate, and the number of subjects thereupon engraved. The question is closely involved with that of plate numbers in certain instances. His collection will include examples showing the various spacing of the stamps of each issue and the notes will cover the location of the various designs engraved upon the plate which are not even suggested by a single stamp.

The recent experiments made by the Bureau to have reached a successful conclusion, may eliminate the flat plates. The newer cylindrical plates have been briefly mentioned but nothing complete has been published on this subject. The adoption of the new process will involve a number of changes each of which will result in new varieties and all of which are of interest.

Without having seen Niagara Falls, some author whose name the writer cannot easily recall, described it so perfectly that even the most casual reader instantly recognized the town before the brakeman announced its name. The above statement may be inaccurate in places but it is probably true that no stamp man could afford philately an accurate description of the "cylinder printing" machine without having seen it at close range. This detail of the field is thus narrowed to the Washington philatelists unless Director Ralph with his characteristic courtesy, should consent to lend the machine to the writer who attempts the subject of "Stamp Plates."

The student will soon become involved in the subject of dies and transfer rolls when he begins his research work on stamp plates and these related details will intensify the interest excited by his efforts.

AN UNSOLICITED TESTIMONIAL.

This letter from Mr. D. M. Ward of Gary, Ind., speaks out very clearly and convincingly. Mr. Ward has patronized our trade column for some months and hereafter will use displayed space. A letter such as this only serves to clinch the claim we make as to the strength of our mailing list:—

"I enclose copy for four advertisements, to appear May 16th to June 6th in your regular advertising columns. Hope you will make me a good rate, based on a yearly contract. I have had splendid results from the trade column, sometimes more than I could handle promptly. As a result I have more than a hundred good customers who buy at present about $125 worth per month. This from ten months' trade column advertising seems to me pretty good. Of course I have backed the advertising with the goods."

This sounds good to us!

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

Old Postal Documents—It is known that the archives of the post office department at Washington lack many of the publications pertaining to postal affairs of the first half of the last century, that were published before 1850. At different times the postal administrations have undertaken to repair the omission so far as possible, as they realized for practical and sentimental reasons, the propriety of completing so far as possible the printed annals of the postal service, the greatest business enterprise of our times. The following call for historical records has been issued from Washington under date of May 5th, 1914: "Postmasters are instructed to furnish the Chief Clerk, Post Office Department, the following information, if they have in their post offices any old written or printed records, books and documents relating to the postal service prior to 1850. 1. The date in each case. 2. Description of the contents. 3. Whether books, documents or correspondence. The matter should not be forwarded to the Department unless specific request is later made therefor."

Give Wanamaker Credit—In his report to the President for the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1889, John Wanamaker, Postmaster General, expressed his wish to establish in Washington, "a Government Museum that shall, so far as possible, represent the progress of the postal system of the United States from its beginning, and at the same time contain everything that may be offered or can be collected in connection with the work of the service that is either of special interest or of general historic value." Surmising that many articles "worthy of display and preservation in such a museum" were in the possession of the postmasters throughout the country, Mr. Wanamaker under date of March 27th, 1890, addressed a circular to the postmasters requesting their cooperation in securing material for the proposed institution and further, that they acquaint those members of the public who might be in a position to further the plan, with the desire of the department. As examples of the articles in demand by the museum were: Copies of old editions of the postal laws and regulations, or other postal documents, books or essays on the postal service; while specimens of local postage stamps and envelopes with "Paid" impressions used before the first national issue of 1847 were sought especially.

The Start—Up to the time of the issue of this circular referred to in the foregoing paragraph, an album was kept in the stamp division of the post office department; and its contents were the nucleus of the present government collection, we infer. The general issues of the United States were well represented in the album, beginning with the two stamps of 1847 but it was the page devoted to the unused set of the 1869 issue, unused, that could always be counted upon to command the greatest admiration from the public and the philatelists, alike. As for the oldest printed postal document in the possession of the department, we have been told that it is a list of post roads, etc., issued about 1808. We know of a few philatelists who could augment the library of the department considerably if it were not for the fascination that is exerted upon them by these self-same "relics."

We Capture Bill—Bill Bloss has been engaged to conduct our boys' department and though Bill is young in years, yet according to what he knows about stamps he is a greybeard indeed. Bill knows boy nature and will administer advice in palatable pellets. Old Bill will comfort the confused; help the halting and delight the dolorous in his own characteristic way. When puzzled or in pain, write Bill. So soon as Bill's department gets in full swing, it will be a regular merry-go-round for our boy readers.

Write Again—Our contributor of over a decade ago, Mr. W. J. Stanton, the original "philatelic index" man now writes us from San Diego, California: "It may be of interest to your readers to learn that the Hague convention of 1907 adopted an article relating to free postage to prisoners of war as follows: 'Article XVI. Inquiry offices enjoy the privilege of free postage. Letters, money orders and valuables as well as parcels by post, intended for prisoners of war, or despatched by them, shall be exempt from all postal duties in the countries of origin and destination, as well as in the countries they pass through.' The Inquiry Office, instituted by the Hague Convention has the duty of replying to all inquiries about prisoners. As America's representative stamp journal, I can see where it is up to MEKEEL'S to send a member of the staff to Vera Cruz, who will permit himself to be captured as a Mexican, in order that your subscribers may have covers franked by the military authorities." Who'll volunteer?

We Can See It—We are told by Mr. Frank E. Goodwin: "F. D. Collins of St. Louis, has found a double transfer in the five cents of 1847 which has heretofore been unnoticed. In brief, the 'shift' is downward and slightly to the left. A very light line below the frame at bottom shows ragged. A line below the top frame line is stronger. The curves which terminate in the rounding out of the lower part of the '5's' are shifted to the left and are very plain. A second copy picked up by the writer verifies the discovery and precludes the 'shifting' from being classed as a 'slip' in printing." From the crude drawing that Mr. Goodwin encloses, we should say that the shift constitutes a visible variety.

Laid Paper Reported—In a letter, Mr. John R. Wolter says: "I have added to my collection of specialized United States, a rarity in one-cent blue, type 3 of the 1857 U. S. issue, whereof I have a copy which is on close diagonally laid paper. This has been submitted to Mr. Klein for an opinion and the stamp has been accepted as genuine. I find on looking up the authorities on this issue that this stamp with this kind of paper is not even mentioned by John Luff; and Mr. Klein also has told me that he has never heard of it before."

We See—From several correspondents we have received word that in all probability, the James Buchanan signature on the envelope belonging to Mr. Beebe, described in the issue of April 25th in this column is that of President James Buchanan of Pennsylvania; and the Keystone Stamp & Coin Co. removes any uncertainty by showing a similar envelope with the "Washington City, D. C." postmark, in addition to the frank and "free." Mr. Beebe's envelope bore no postmark but it must have emanated from Washington, under the circumstances. The "Buchanan" on Mr. Beebe's envelope was almost a copy of the "Buchanan" on the Baltimores. The same company reports a sheet in its possession of the two-cent black newspaper stamp, No. 1005, with imprint of the Continental Bank Note Company on soft instead of hard paper. In this instance as in a good many others, the American Bank Note Company used the Continental plate with no alteration; and collectors should know that American printings from Continental plates were on soft paper. The Continental imprint sometimes misbrands the stamp; and the existence of American printings from the Continental plates should always be borne in mind.

THE POSTAGE STAMPS OF GAMBIA.

By R. E. R. DALWIGK.

The first actual postal reference to Gambia to be found was in 1866, the date Postmaster General F. Bisset Archer ascribes to certain postal changes regarding the scale of charges. The table below gives a good idea of the fluctuations in the postal business, the large revenue and expenditure variations of some years being caused almost entirely by the demands of collectors and stamp dealers.

The enormous increase of revenue in 1905 was caused by the appearance of the 5d, 7½d, and 10d stamps and the introduction of the multiple watermark.

In Mr. Archer's semi official handbook, we are informed that the mails are carried from Bathurst to M'Carthy's Island weekly by steamer, and that there is no postmans' delivery in either town. On January 1, 1879, Gambia joined the Universal Postal Union; while on December 25, 1898, Imperial Penny Postage was inaugurated.

On October 15, 1908, the Cash on Delivery system was brought into use.

Issue I, 1869.

THE UNWATERMARKED IMPERFORATE "CAMEOS."

It was not until 1869 or twenty-nine years after the introduction of adhesive postage stamps, that this British West African Colony entered the field as a stamp issuing country. The first announcement of the appearance of postage stamps hailing from this portion of His Majesty's dominions is to be found in the March number of the Philatelist for the year 1869, and the following extract chronicling their existence is taken from the following month's issue of the Stamp Collector's Magazine, the premier philatelic journal of the period. It is entitled "Gambia and Its New Stamps," and reads as follows:—

"We have had the pleasure during the last few years of enrolling under the banner of postal progress many kingdoms, colonies and republics, and the cry is 'still they come.' Last month we gave particulars of a South African state, which has joined, or is on the eve of entering the ranks; and now we have to chronicle another recruit from the same continent, this time one of our dependencies in the west—Gambia, to wit.

"This colony is composed of several small towns and factories on the banks of the river whence it takes its cognomen."

"The capital is Bathurst in the district of St. Mary. The West African Settlements are Sierra Leone, Lagos, Gambia, the Gold Coast and their dependencies. The Governor and Commander-in-chief is Sir A. E. Kennedy, C. B., whose residence is at Sierra Leone. The Gambia legislative council is at present composed of the Administrator, who acts as Resident, the Chief Magistrate, the Collector of Customs, and the Hon. T. Brown, one of the justices. The Governor receives a salary of £3,500 a year. The population in 1854 was 5,693. The census has not since been taken, but if it had been would show an extensive increase.

"The River Gambia was discovered in 1447 by Nunez Tristan, who after ascending it for some hundreds of miles, finally met his death from the poisoned arrows of the natives. The River is navigable for more than six hundred miles into the interior. Like the Nile it annually overflows its banks. Its mouth is at Cape St. Mary, where the width is eight miles.

"The supply of crocodiles is always quoted as being greater than the demand. Although the climate is not everything that can be desired for the 'creature's comfort' it is not nearly so unhealthy as that of Lagos or of the Gold Coast."

"Their hottest season is from October to March. The country is well stocked with cattle, wild animals, and birds, some of the latter being of beautiful plumage. Sugar, rice, Indian corn and potatoes are amongst the chief productions. Some of these were shown at the 1862 Exhibition and elicited general commendation."

"After the fashion of those children who leave all the plums in their cakes till the last, we now come to our 'tit bits' in the shape of the new postage stamps.

"A white embossed head of Her Majesty is contained in a circle. GAMBIA is inscribed in a straight label above; the value is in white relief below, the spandrel ornaments being also embossed. The stamps we have seen are unperforated. There are two values:—

4 pence deep brown
6 pence deep blue."

This and all subsequent issues used until 1898 are known as the "Cameo" or "embossed" series, on account of the embossed cameo-like portrait of the Queen depicted. The emission consisted of only the two values, viz: 4d deep brown and 6d deep blue, which were the only values required at the time, owing to the postal rates then in existence.

The stamps were printed in small sheets of fifteen only, in three rows of five, by Messrs. De La Rue & Co., who

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents.

UNITED STATES.—The International Stamp Co. has shown us a copy of the 3c grilled stamp of 1870 on very thin paper. While the papers used from 1870 to 1879 varied greatly in thickness and quality, this specimen is evidently a rare paper.

C. F. Nissen shows us a McKinley card, blue ink, which has a defect in the right figure 1, showing colorless marks at each side of the figure. Mr. Nissen found seven copies of the freak in 2,000 cards.

ALBANIA.—Bright & Son have shown us two new post cards with the Scanderberg stamps.

Post Cards.

5 quint green on white.
10 quint red on white.

AUSTRIA.—Offices in the Levant.—James J. Lessig calls attention to the fact that the 1pi deep blue of 1908 is found on four papers—indigo blue, white, gray blue with white back, and ultramarine on indigo. Scott only mentions one, deep blue on blue.

CANADA.—George S. Chapman shows us a postmark from Canada evidently being used in place of stamps. The inscription reads "Postage Paid at"—"Toronto, Ont." between circular lines, with the date in the centre.

DOMINICA.—Hermann Focke reports the 5sh value in the King George set.

Adhesive.

5sh green and red on yellow.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC.—We are indebted to A. W. Dunning, Frank P. Brown and Hermann Focke for specimens of the new series of stamps. The set was issued to commemorate the Centenary of the Republic's Independence, and will be in use only from April 15 to July 15. The stamps are of a crude design, showing the flag of the Republic, with a portrait of Liberator Juan Pablo Duarte. In order to give room for the portrait, the flag is placed on ends, the stamps being an upright oblong, with the design 21x27 mm. The value and "Correos" appears at the top and "Republica Dominica" at the bottom. The figures of value appear in colorless spaces in the upper corners and the dates "1813" and "1913" in the lower corners. The portrait is framed in a heavy "ornamental" frame, with "Centenario de Juan Pablo Duarte" in small type below. The flag is in the proper color, and the portrait in black on all values, the only change being in the color of the frame. This makes three impressions necessary to production. Mr. Focke informs us that the stamps were surface printed at the German Government Printing office in Berlin, the paper being the familiar "Wurttemberg" paper watermarked crosses and circles. The stamps are perforated 12½x13½. In design and appearance they are exceedingly crude, and reflect credit on neither designer nor printer. Mr. Focke is informed that the stamps are available only for inland postage.

Mr. Dunning also sends us a card with stamp of the same design, which has come through the mail, but with the addition of two 1c stamps of the regular issue.

Adhesives.

½c blue, red, black and orange.
1c blue, red, black and green.
2c blue, red, black and salmon.
5c blue, red, black and gray.
10c blue, red, black and purple.
20c blue, red, black and ochre.
50c blue, red, black and yellow brown.
1p blue, red, black and violet.

Post Card.

5c blue, red, black and gray.

DUTCH INDIES.—Bright & Son send us the current post card, with stamp without lined background.

Post Card.

5c rose on rose.

EGYPT.—Bright & Son show us two errors in the provisional post card "3 milliemes 3" on 5m carmine on rose. In one the whole surcharge, which is placed diagonally, is inverted, and in the other only the right hand "3" is inverted.

GREAT BRITAIN.—Ewen's Weekly reports the issue of the new postage due stamps. This is the first postal stamp to appear without the Royal portrait. The design shows the Rose, Thistle and Shamrock, with "Postage Due" at the top, the figure of value in the centre and the value in words at the bottom.

Postage Due Adhesives.

5d brown.

Offices in the Levant.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us another value in the King George set.

Adhesive.

30pa on 1½d red brown.

HONDURAS.—H. Chitraro has shown us the 20c on 1c official stamp, steamer type, with a perfect double impression of the black surcharge of new value.

LOURENZO MARQUES.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the new Ceres stamps for this Colony the values and colors being the same as for the other Colonies having a similar currency.

MALTA.—Whitfield King & Co. report the issue of the 6d and 2sh values in the new set.

NICARAGUA.—Hermann Focke has shown us another provisional from this Republic the 35c blue official stamp having been overprinted like those previously mentioned. There are five of these on the cover submitted, one having an error, being printed "c0.10" instead of "c0.01."

Provisional Adhesive.

"c0.01" on 35c blue and black.

RUSSIA.—Bright & Son have shown us new letter cards and an envelope on blue paper instead of cream as formerly.

Envelope.

7k blue on blue.

Letter Cards.

3k red on blue.
7k blue on blue.

SIAM.—A. W. Dunning and Philip H. Ward, Jr., have shown us the first of three surcharges which were issued in Bankok, the 10 on 12s April 1, and the others April 15. The old value at the top is obliterated by two lines and the new value printed in two languages at the bottom. These provisionals were due to a change in postal rates.

Provisional Adhesives.

"5 satang" on 6s carmine rose.
"10 satang" on 12s gray and brown.
"15 satang" on 28s chocolate.

TURKEY.—From Bright & Son we have received the new stationery, including envelopes, cards and letter cards. The stamp is the same for all—a circular embossed design with the star and crescent as a prominent feature. Within the star is the Tonghra and the autograph of the Sultan. Arabic inscriptions are at the top and "Postes Ottomnes" below. The effect is striking, if not beautiful. Mr. Schachne also reports the new cards.

Envelopes.

Registration Envelope.

1pi black brown on gray.

Wrappers.

2pa brown violet on buff.
10pa green on buff.

Post Cards.

10pa green on buff.
20pa red on buff.
10x10pa green on buff.
20x20pa red on buff.

Letter Cards.

20pa red on buff.
1pi blue on buff.
20x20pa red on buff.
1x1pi blue on buff.

UNION OF SO. AFRICA.—Bright & Son have shown us some new stationery from this Colony. The letter card has the stamp of the adhesive set, but the envelope has a new embossed stamp of handsome appearance.

Envelope.

1d red on cream.

Letter Card.

1d red on gray.

URUGUAY.—The 3c card, liberty head type, has been overprinted "2 centesimos" between two lines in black, a copy having been shown us by Bright & Son.

Provisional Post Card.

2c on 3c dark brown on buff.

ZANZIBAR.—Bright & Son have shown us some new stationery from Zanzibar with stamp in the new type.

Envelope.

6c red on cream.

Post Cards.

3c green on buff.
6c red on buff.
3x3c green on buff.
6x6c red on buff.

SOURCASM.

I am surprised to see, in No. 1218, that you have no explanation to offer for the reported failure of several dealers to respond to requests for selections of stamps. The business of sending out unsolicited approvals has grown, in certain quarters, to such proportions that the time has come when a man who has to ask for them may rightly be regarded with suspicion. Let your correspondent join one of the stamp-collecting societies and his troubles will be over.—DARTOVER.

COURT GAYETIES.

"King George doesn't seem to have any of those merry little parties that King Edward used to love."

"No, but life at court is not without excitement. The king is always glad to show interested friends his collection of postage stamps."—Kansas City Journal.

THE ALBUM PROBLEM.

By Arthur Irwin Smith.

That the beginner requires a high-class album which will serve at once as both album and catalogue, and that the book, to hold his interest, must not be too big or too complicated, is a fact which is fast becoming recognized. That is evidenced by the two new albums recently put out, the "Best" and the "Junior."

The boys and beginners of to-day are the philatelists of to-morrow. The complications of watermarks and minor varieties have discouraged many a collector who might have graduated later into a specialist under the proper tutelage. The crying need of stamp collecting to-day is, in my opinion, not so much a new standard catalogue, as it is a new standard beginner's album.

The "Best" seems to be a good step in the right direction, and with the elimination of a few typographical errors, and some further simplifications, would serve the purpose. The "Junior" makes a mistake in omitting spaces for the scarcer stamps. The ideal album must show every stamp of every issue it covers, but it must cut down its territory to straight varieties of adhesive postage—no minor varieties of color, perforation or watermark to be given, and all surcharges to be omitted. This latter feature would meet with opposition, but the future of philately demands that the line be drawn somewhere, and this mush-room growth of surcharges is a burden that should be cut off from the general collectors.

Specialists can follow any line they choose, but there will always be a demand among advanced collectors for surcharges and other minor varieties; and the truth of the matter is that there will be many more specialists if the path of the beginner and general collector is made easier.

(A suggestion to the owners of first class material.)

A prominent collector sent us his collection offering us our choice at a certain percentage of Catalogue. We went through his books and found a total value of over $2100.00 that we could use. We understand that the balance of his collection will be offered in an Auction Sale. The owner tells us that by disposing of his collection in this manner, he expects to realize more than if he had offered the entire collection at Auction.

were just at this period coming to the fore as postage stamp manufacturers, and who have printed all subsequent issues of the colony. The reason for the diminutive size of the sheets of these stamps as compared with the majority of other British Colonial issues is that it was found to be impossible to produce satisfactory impressions of embossed designs in sheets of larger dimensions, as unlike the early embossed stamps of great Britain, which were each struck singly, the whole of the fifteen stamps were, in this case, embossed at one operation.

As regards the method of production of the cameo stamps various theories have been put forward by divers writers. One thing, however, is certain and that is that the printing took place by a double process of flat printing and relief embossing.

The paper employed was of a white wove texture, whilst two distinct hues of the gum are known e. g., white and yellow—a peculiarity which is also common to the later issues.

All sheets of the Cameo stamps bear what are known as "printers guide dots," that is to say one or more dots upon the margins of the sheets in the colour of the stamp. In the case of this issue the dots are to be found opposite stamps Nos. 6 and 10.

Shades are not prolific, although some good intermediate hues are often seen, but it is probable many of these have slightly changed from their original colours through exposure or climatic influence.

The 6d "sloping label" is a very well known Gambian variety and it makes its first appearance in Issue I, but is not so pronounced as in the 1880 series. The plate of this value was defective as regards the top row of five stamps, the defect primarily arising from the fact that all stamps in the top row are ½ mm. than those in rows 2 and 3. The two stamps at the ends of row 1, that is Nos. 1 and 5, slope downwards towards their outer extremities so that the outer line above "Gambia" is not at right angles to the right and left vertical outer lines. Stamp No. 5 shows this peculiarity to the best advantage as the left side of the adhesive is 22½ mm. high and the right only 22 mm.

Other minor varieties consist of slight variations of the curl, but are of little importance.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BILL BLOSS, 2729 Hampden Court, Chicago, Ill.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

INTRODUCING BILL.

It gives me great pleasure to greet the readers of this department, as its editor. If space permitted, I might be tempted to enlarge upon this statement, with the result that the circulation of this paper would decrease considerably. As the publishers are hot after the eight thousand mark, I won't make it harder for them.

Beginners, this is Your department. It is designed for you, and should contain the matter you want to read. I have been a beginner, specialist, advanced collector, and amateur dealer, so believe that I can help make this page interesting for you. However, I want the help of every reader. I want to make every reader my personal friend. Write and tell me what you think of this page, how you would improve it, what you like about it, and what you Do Not like about it. Without your aid, I cannot give you what you want.

I intend to make this section interesting by means of special features, as well as the Question Box, Good Stamps to Buy, Hints for Beginners and Contests. Won't you tell me about your collection, how you take care of your duplicates, how you became a collector or give me any other matter you think will be of interest to the readers? Let me hear from you.

BILL BLOSS.

PHILATELY AND STAMP COLLECTING.

The dictionary defines a philatelist as "one who collects postage stamps." Since that dictionary was written, however, stamp collecting has become more of a science, so now a philatelist is apparently one who "studies postage stamps" and is in fact one who collects stamps, analyzes them as to composition and material, studies them as to history, manufacture and design, (using benzine cups, high power glasses, perforation gauges, and a library of the studies of others of his kind) and classifies them as to perforation, shade, thickness of paper, watermark, minor differences of design, cancellation, etc. It is entirely proper for him to have a hundred copies of one stamp in his collection if he can point out a particle of difference in each one.

A stamp collector is one who collects stamps because they are stamps, classifies them according to design and series, saves whatever stamps come his way, and is glad to get them. He worries not whether a stamp is perforated fourteen or four hundred, if it is clean, and looks nice in his book. What cares he whether or not it is Die II. watermark reversed, on Chalky paper, with Control Mark C 3? His stamps are from all quarters of the globe. They speak of strange places, and lead him to dreams of foreign lands. He remembers where he got each specimen. He thinks kindly of the friend who added that odd Australian one to his lot. He remembers the day he traded a cover from Guatemala for the Straits Settlement tiger stamp. He appreciates his stamps as such, because he is not working at the hopeless task of hunting for that double transfer, or the scarce five cent with the dot back of Washington's ear.

Who gets the most pleasure, the philatelist or the stamp collector?

SOME GOOD EUROPEANS TO BUY.

For the past ten years, the writer has been more or less interested in current issues, and during his search for stamps, has found that certain values of every set are more or less elusive, and, in fact, some are really "rarities," though low priced. The following notes may be of some interest to the new collector who wants to know what stamps to buy, or what stamps are "best." In making up this list, no particular attention has been paid to the catalogue values, though nearly all the scarce values are priced higher than others in the catalogue. Also, of course, in all sets, the higher values are better than the lower values, and so, unless there is some particular reason for noting them, they have been omitted from this list. The writer will be very glad to hear from other collectors on this subject. Notes on other sections of the world will follow.

Austria—The scarcest value is the 12 heller. The writer looked for the 12 heller of the 1904 type for some time before he found one. The 30 heller, 60 heller, and 72 heller are all moderately scarce.

Bavaria—The stamps of this state vary in scarcity gradually according to face value, and no value seems to be unusually scarce. The 60 pfennig is rather desirable.

Belgium—The 2c, 20c and 35c appear to be the "hard-to-get" stamps of this country. In the Parcel Post issues, the 15c, 25c, 35c and 40c are the values most seldom seen, though the 15c is the only one really scarce.

Bosnia—The stamps of this country are of such a speculative nature that all are more or less common. In the earlier issues, however, the 30, 35, 40 and 45 heller are quite scarce, and genuine postally cancelled copies of these values in all sets should be desirable. As a matter of fact, all postally cancelled Bosnias are scarce, especially in America.

Bulgaria—The 3stot appears in the catalogue as a value slightly scarcer than the other low values. The writer has found the values of 30stot and higher to be quite hard to find.

Denmark—The 15 ore, 25 ore, 35 ore and higher values are good.

France—The 20c and 30c are the scarcest denominations in the stamps of this republic. The 30c orange, of the current issue, seems to be quite scarce, though low priced in the European lists. Unused French stamps are rather hard to secure in good condition.

Germany—All values are quite common, though the 2 pfennig, 25pf, 60pf and 80pf seem to be in demand. Of these, the 2pf and 60pf are the scarcest.

Great Britain—The 4d and 7d and higher values are desirable. The 7d appears to be especially good, the King Edward 7d being listed at 15c cancelled.

Greece—The 30 and 40 lepta are better than the 50 lepta, and are actually harder to get than some of the higher values, though cheaper.

Italy—The writer experienced some difficulty in finding the 40c values of this country. The 45c and 50c values are scarce, but are more frequently met with than the 40c.

Netherlands—The 3c, 7½c, 17½c, and 22½c values are the most desirable of this country. The 22½c of all sets is very good.

Norway—The 15 ore, 25 ore, 30 ore and 60 ore are all quite scarce.

Portugal—The 10. 15, 20, 75 and 80 reis values are desirable.

Roumania—The 15 bani is the only scarce value of this country.

Russia—The 4, 5, 14, and 15 kopec values are in demand. There is a good demand for all Russian values in nice condition.

Spain—The 2c, 20c and 40c values are desirable. For some reason, recent Spanish stamps are not as common as heretofore.

Sweden—The 8, 15, 25, 30, and 35 ore values are good. Of these, the 8 ore is by far the best, being really very seldom found.

Switzerland—Experience has shown that the 3c, 12c, and 15c values are apt to increase in value. The 35c and 70c are also rather difficult to find.

Turkey—The 5 para of several series is evidently scarce used, according to the catalogue, though the writer has found all values to be quite common, up to 5 piastres.

By knowing the money standards of the various countries, and with some knowledge of the postal rates, the collector can soon learn to determine for himself just what values are scarcest. Of course, when a collector tries to complete a set, and finds several values unobtainable, he will realize that they are the scarce ones. However, some collectors may get many of these odd values without realizing that they are particularly desirable.

Stamps with a face value of 5, 10, 25, and 50 centimes, being equivalent to the United States 1c, 2c, 5c, and 10c stamps, are as a rule, common in all countries. For the same reason, the values of 5, 10, and 20 ore, and pfennig; 5, 10, 25, hellers, fillers, lepton, stotinki, and 25 and 50 reis, are also common.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—In a recent number of the WEEKLY H. C. Bouldin of Cleburne, Tex., was reported for substitution. Mr. Bouldin disclaims all knowledge of any substitution of stamps and claims that he has been misrepresented. He affirms his innocence and desires the publication of this item.

—The S. P. A. annual convention will be held in Indianapolis, Sept. 8-9, 1914. Hotel Claypool will be headquarters.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from A. W. Dunning.

TRADE NOTE.

Mr. B. F. Enelow, Chicago, recently purchased the name and stock of the Colonial Stamp Company from Mrs. W. F. Bishop. The Colonial Stamp Company was operated by Mr. W. F. Bishop until the time of his death; and his accumulation of British Colonials was known for its high grade and fine condition. Mr. Bishop published a stamp paper at one time and placed several albums on the market in his career of thirty or more years as a dealer. The enterprise of Mr. Enelow certainly scores in obtaining the Bishop stock and readers saw recently a sample lot of offerings in our columns. In this list in the issue of May 2nd, the 1898 Falkland Islands, 2s 6d was offered for $1.40 by mistake instead of $2.40 but all orders were filled at the wrong figure until the supply of the stamp was exhausted.

U. S. STAMPS AS A FIELD FOR SPECIALISM.

By H. L. WILEY.

Color varieties are the results of changes produced by moisture, light and "impure" air, or by a difference in the constituent chemicals and minerals from which the inks are made or by the action of other chemicals to the action of which the ink is exposed.

Errors in color may or may not be premeditated changes produced by the skilful experimenter, but the importance with reference to the catalog value is sufficient incentive to inspire considerable investigation.

The 3 cent stamp of 1861 is an example of the kind. The pink stamp sells for about five hundred times as much as the common rose shade.

The inks used for stamp printing are innumerable. They range from the simplest pigment made from a natural earth to the anilines of the most complicated chemical nature. The action of the residual chemicals left in the insufficiently washed paper pulp or that of the constituent elements of the gum may greatly affect the color of the stamp.

Some of the colors used in printing United States stamps are more or less fugitive, even when kept in a dark place and unexposed to impure or gas-laden atmosphere.

Ultramarine is an example of this type; it is comparatively well known that color pigments made from lead bases are subject to rapid oxidization and darkening, especially if exposed to an atmosphere containing a sulphurous gas. Lead oxide forms the base of many pigments used in printing inks.

This investigation is not beyond the ability of any philatelist who has had "high school" chemistry, and yet there has been very little published on the subject.

7. PAPER.

Perhaps there is no secondary subject of more vital interest to stamp collectors than the paper upon which their stamps are printed. The two general varieties of paper, wove and laid, are pretty well understood by the general collector, but he is quite often unable to define the quality of a specimen under consideration.

There is perhaps no subject closely related to our hobby, which is as interesting as that of the manufacture of paper. The sixty or seventy years that have passed since the first few postage stamps were manufactured have witnessed two great changes in the commoner processes of paper making.

Paper making machines have revolutionized some details of manufacture and the development of the chemical process has practically eliminated the use of hand made papers. The "chemical" process is the one in which the wood fibers are reduced to cellulose by means of strong chemicals. The "mechanical" wood pulp is pulp which has been ground from the original wood fiber. The characteristics of these two general classes are quite distinct and easily determined by means of simple reactions.

The treatment which the pulp receives in the course of its transition into paper is susceptible to a great number of mechanical or chemical variations so that a finished paper made from the same materials as another may present different characteristics. Assuming that different fibers and "filler" and "size" enter the composition of two kinds of paper, it is possible to subject them to mechanical treatments which will render them very similar in appearance.

The philatelist who undertakes the study of this subject has a broad field and likewise a lot of "clues" on which to work. In United States stamps we have the little understood "chemical" papers and "pink" papers of forty years ago, the "pelures" which may indicate any one of ten primary causes, and the "China Clay" or the "bluish experimental" papers of two or three years ago.

The coloring matter used in the "bluish" papers was ultramarine. Various counterfeits which were submitted to the writer for his opinion were colored with Prussian Blue. One of these pigments is soluble in an acid and is not greatly affected by an alkali while the reverse is true of the other so that the ease with which it is possible to determine these counterfeits is readily apparent, but unfortunately this simple reaction was not known to collectors in general as it should have been.

The first requirements of a valuable monograph on the subject of paper with relation to stamps is a classification of the source and nature of the fibers of which it is made. This is a work for the test tube and the microscope, but the amateur need not hesitate for much of the work is comparatively simple.

8. GUM.

The gum which has been applied to stamps is a factor of minor importance in many cases although the characteristics have varied more or less with the improved methods of manufacture of the succeeding years.

One point, however, should not be overlooked. The gum may contain residual chemicals which may have a very decided effect upon both the paper and the ink used in the manufacture of the stamp. It is probable that a number of the "queer" stamps of fifty years ago owe their distinguishing characteristics to the chemical nature of the gum used upon them.

The methods used in applying the gum to the sheets of stamps are matters of interest. Not long ago, a well known stamp man attributed the so-called "laid" lines appearing in some of the 1902 series to the effect of the "new brushes" with which the gum was applied whereas the fact is that no brushes are used. The gum is contained in a reservoir in which a smooth glass cylinder or roller is revolved. The lower edge of the cylinder is immersed in the gum and as the sheet of stamps is rolled over this cylinder, the contact gums the sheet, incidentally contradicting a very pretty piece of guesswork.

9. STAMP MANUFACTURE.

The requirements of an article on the above subject include a more or less technical description of every process from the time the materials are delivered to the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, up to the finished stamp. The details of the manufacture of stamp booklets have never been published for philatelists and as a result, we are somewhat in the dark on a number of points.

The article must be one from the pen of a writer who has spent a few observing hours at the Bureau and who can describe what he has seen.

The writer believes that American collectors are entering upon an "inquisitive" era and that collectors are becoming less inclined to accept unverified statements made by "prominent" philatelists whose audiences were formerly too often impressed more by the great man's name than by his accomplishments. I have read that the King of England is a philatelist when he is not busy with his kingly duties, but his contributions to the hobby are of considerably less value to the United States collector than the average piece of research work from the pens of men like Stevenson and Pack.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—There is a letter in this office for Donald H. Graham. Our mailing list is not arranged alphabetically and we shall be glad to have the state and town address supplied.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from Edw. Ebbels, W. F. Van Dusen.

—The International Stamp Co. announces this week a new blank album and a full description is given in the advertisement elsewhere in this issue. The leaves are held in place by strips of rawhide and the book opens absolutely flat. The firm claims that in the use of this album there will be no rubbing of stamps. It should prove a good competitor of the albums already in the market.

—Messrs. Reidell, Gibson and Stiles of Schenectady, N. Y., are endeavoring to organize a stamp club in their city, to be known probably as the Schenectady Stamp Society. It is hoped that this new project will be a success, and the organizers desire the coöperation of all interested parties, especially if residents of that city.

—Samuel C. Scharf, N. Y. City, in February wrote the International Stamp Co., requesting stamps on approval, and giving as reference, Chas. A. Townsend, Akron, Ohio, who wrote: "I have looked through card index covering all cards back to 1905 and can find no Samuel Scharf of New York or any other place."

—A new issue of the 1d King George Aust. Commonwealth is reported and notwithstanding the rumors of changes, the stamp is identical with the first printing.

EIFFEL TOWER ON NEW STAMPS.

PARIS, May 16.—The French authorities are considering the issue of a series of stamps with a new design. Instead of Roty's familiar "Sower," the new stamps will have a picture of the Eiffel tower with an aeroplane flying over it. The reason for this change is that the present stamp is easily copied by forgers. The proposed new design is meeting with much criticism. It is said that if the government must supersede Roty's graceful figure it might be something more pleasing than the Eiffel tower.—Chicago Tribune.

WANTED! -- A few more customers who will cheerfully write us a letter like this one:—

"B. F. Enelow, Care Colonial Stamp Co., 110 So. Dearborn St., Chicago.
Dear Sir:—The sets of Niger Coast and Uganda which I ordered two days ago arrived today. To say that I am delighted with them is putting it mildly. I find the stamps exactly as you advertised them, absolutely perfect. I am especially pleased with your promptness in answering, which is quite a contrast to a certain Eastern dealer whose minimum time for replying is six weeks. I am also delighted with the elegant manner in which you mount the stamps for mailing, which again is quite a contrast to the slovenly fashion in which many dealers transact their mail business. Respectfully yours,
Evansville, Ind., May 14, '14. H. A. M."

I wish to apologize to the contestants and others interested for the long delay, but the long illness and death of my father and the resulting business cares, together with the unexpected amount of work involved in the contest prevented an earlier announcement.
The use of two dictionaries made the work much greater. Abbreviation, prefixes, suffixes and simplified spelling and foreign words, proper or geographical names were barred and many lists required much revision.

THE MONACO "O L" OVERPRINT.

Our readers will find in the Standard Catalogues a series of Monaco stamps mentioned bearing an overprint consisting of the letters "O L" within a circle of dots. We shall now show that this so-called overprint is really not an overprint at all, but a very interesting postmark, the sign of a unique arrangement whereby, contrary to the conventions existing between them the stamps of the two States of Monaco and France were used for nearly seven years in a certain limited fashion in each other's territories and post offices.

Hand stamps consisting of the letters "O L" (=Origine Locale) or "O R" (=Origine Rurale) within a circle either of dots in the former case or continuous in the latter, have been in use in France for many years. The "O R" stamp was first used in 1836, and the "O L" about 1847. These handstamps were furnished to country postmen and had to be used by them on letters which were delivered to them by hand during their rounds, or later collected by them from the boxes. Sometimes these marks were applied to the covers and not to the stamps, but occasionally the stamps were struck. In the case of letters collected by country postmen from boxes and delivered by them to the addresses on the same round, the postmen were instructed to apply the "O R" mark twice to the stamps in order to obliterate them, for such letters would not pass through any post-office and the stamps thereon might remain uncancelled. It is therefore only to be expected that we should find these marks on covers bearing Monaco stamps and occasionally struck on the stamps themselves.

The town of Monte Carlo, owing to its many attractions and above all owing to its far-famed Casino, drew thousands of visitors, and in consequence the town spread itself out on every side and encroached on to French territory, where eventually a large and flourishing suburb, called Monte Carlo Supérieur, grew up. Although Monte Carlo Supérieur was on French territory and for many years postally and administratively attached to the French Commune of La Turbie on the mountains above, at last it became too large to be conveniently managed from La Turbie, and it was therefore then attached to the Administration of the Posts of the Principality of Monaco. No post-office nor even an auxiliary office was, however, installed there; consequently Monégasque postmen crossed the frontier, collected Monte Carlo Supérieur's letters from the boxes and recrossed into the Principality where the letters were delivered to the Monte Carlo post-office. These letters were, of course, generally franked with Monaco stamps. This took place in 1902, and it was decided to supply the postmen with the "O L" handstamps, they being instructed to apply these handstamps to the stamps on letters collected from the boxes at Monte Carlo Supérieur. The wide-awake and astute philatelist at once noted this peculiarity, and numbers of letters were posted at Monte Carlo Supérieur in order to obtain Monaco stamps with the "O L" cancellation. The desire then grew up for these "provisionals" in mint condition, and the obliging postmen quite willingly applied their "O L" stamp to unused stamps in panes and sheets, no doubt in consideration of a little pourboire. Thus is explained the existence of Monaco stamps in mint unused condition with the "O L" handstamp, which has been considered a veritable overprint.—Postage Stamp.

THE STAMPS OF SONORA.

H. R. Howard, sending the managing editor a few Sonora covers for his collection, gives some particulars concerning postal rates that may be of value to the readers of the WEEKLY. We quote from his letter as follows:

"Covers with other than 5 or 10c rates are comparatively scarce in Sonoras. 1c is the rate on printed matter and also local post card rate; 2c the domestic post-card rate and local or 'drop letter rate;' 3c the 'official' letter rate; 4c the foreign post card rate; 5c the domestic letter rate (for 20 grams or about ⅔ of an ounce); 10c the foreign letter rate and registration fee.

"While 2c is the local letter rate, it does not seem to be generally known as many business houses, etc., stamp all sealed letters with 5c stamps. Some years ago, I don't know just when, the Mexican P. O. D. granted to all city, county and state offices a special 3c letter rate which explains the commonness of the ordinary 3c Mexican stamp. The majority of these are probably used 'officially.' The P. O. D. itself and offices of the national government generally use 'penalty' envelopes.

"In Sonora, most of the government offices franked their correspondence with the seal of the office or the letters 'S. O. D. G. D. E.' (Servicio Oficial del Gobierno del Estado) or both. The 3c Sonora stamp is seldom found used 'officially'."

CONGO FREE STATE ON THE MARKET.

PARIS, May 15.—Because of the great cost that is now involved in its maintenance, the Congo Free State, the rubber plantations of which enriched and disgraced the late King Leopold, of Belgium, is to be sold by the Belgium government according to private advices that have reached this city.

It is regarded here as certain that France will take advantage of the right of priority given her in the recent agreement made with Great Britain and Germany, and will add the African territory to its colonial possessions by becoming the purchaser. The information as to the decision of the Belgium government is believed to be an intimation to France to buy.

TRADE NOTE.

We have received from the United Stamp Company, the first instalment of the Marquette Sectional Loose Leaf Album, consisting of eight pages devoted to the U. S. issues from the postmasters' stamps to the 1857-60 issues. The pages are issued as a supplement to the United Stamp Company Herald. The plan of the album proposes the abridgment of issues in the respect that rarities of the practically unattainable class are not given spaces. The sample pages under notice embody an innovation that we commend highly as the issues are "written up" in an instructive way; a point of distinction is given by the prefatory descriptions conveying concisely, pertinent and interesting explanations. The cuts of originals and imitations of the 1847 issue and of the type varieties of the succeeding two issues are helpful indeed. The printed annotations are on one side of the sheet and the blank spaces, numbered, are on the complementary page opposite. The paper is of good quality and the printing is in keeping. The enterprise of the publishers should be amply rewarded as the album marks a progressive step in album making.

A RECORD CIRCULATION

7700 We have many warm friends and admirers who will rejoice with us in the splendid progress that we are making toward the 8000 mark. Approaching as we are the summer season, it is possible that we may have to postpone until next winter the achievement of this much-desired goal, but this week we have 7700.

There is no stamp paper in the world that has attained the influence that the WEEKLY has secured, and we are greatly indebted to those who by their cooperation have made our great success possible.

We have a deep sense of the responsibility resting upon us to uphold the dignity and delight in our hobby and shall try to continue to measure up to it.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

Arrived—The new United States stamps are no longer novelties as they present no variations in design from the stamps in use. The colors of the younger set are their points of distinction; and several of the colors are striking. The official circular published in our issue of May 9th tells the story of the stamps. We may only add that the centering of the first consignment of the newcomers seems to be unusually poor.

The Melting Pot—From Mr. William E. Marsh, editor of the Western Newspaper Union, Oklahoma City, we have received a newspaper clipping describing the recent destruction by fire in the furnace of the United States navy yard of the disused plates of postage and revenue stamps, bank notes, etc., of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, for the year past. The event is an annual one and at the latest incineration, 41,800 pounds of metal representing 4,326 pieces were consigned to the flames. The care taken to ensure the total destruction of the plates certainly is thorough; and there is no chance that anything be "saved from the flames." The account says: "The melted steel is poured into molds covering a great variety of castings that eventually find their way to the armament of our modern battleships."

Stuck Down—Some months ago, Mr. W. S. Aldrich called attention to the reprehensible custom of those collectors who secured stamps on approval and carried them in their pockets only to have the original gum specimens adhere more or less firmly to the leaves. Needless to say, the value of such specimens is impaired to some extent even though the dealer takes time and pains to loosen the stamps carefully when they are returned. Now that warmer weather is coming, it is all the more necessary to realize that the adhesive quality of gum needs but little encouragement to show its nature. Frankly, the collector who subjects the dealer to loss and inconvenience in the manner described is responsible for the consequences of his heedlessness.

Only Right—Chicago Branch One, American Philatelic Society, at its May meeting paid a deserved tribute to two of the present officers of the parent organization who originally were presented by the Chicago Branch. W. C. Ault, secretary, and C. F. Mann, treasurer, were renominated for the ensuing term.

A Well-Spring Of Joy—Our fount of inspiration, Mr. H. Wesley Legg, diffuses a refreshing spray on us; he writes: "It seems that there was once a troupe known as the 'Postage Stamp Company' as described on the bill enclosed which I found in a collection of old play-bills which I bought recently." Upon sighting the booklet, which is in the form of a folder of ten pages exploiting pictorially and in text, the musical farce comedy, A Postage Stamp, we cried, a la Bret Harte's boys of the bonanza days, Eureka! as a quest of many years had come to a successful close. In 1888 or so, Dr. Mitchell moved at a meeting of the National Philatelic Society, New York, that early adjournment be taken so that the members might attend a performance of the play, "A Postage Stamp," and since then we felt that it was our duty to investigate the play with the idea of discovering whether or not the attendance of the members of the society in a body was impelled by a desire for serious philatelic study or whether the members sought the distractions of the theatre with frivolous intent. The years rolled on and our research was unrewarded; and just as we were about to yield to despair, the wand of our good fairy, more or less, Mr. H. Wesley Legg, changes sadness into joy.

Curiosity of Literature—The face of the folder advertising "A Postage Stamp," takes the form of an envelope which is postmarked, "Boston, Mass., Jul. 4, 7-45 P., 1888." The cancellation is six parallel bars horizontally, enclosing the sub-station number, 8; and the "stamp" has for its central design the head of the stage Irishman; above is, "A Postage Stamp" and below, "Come 2 Laugh." The return card reads: "Coming. A Great Laughing Success. The Musical Farce Comedy, A Postage Stamp, by Henry C. Stanley, accompanied by the Grand Military Black Hussar Band and Magnificent Star Orchestra. Under the management of D. J. Sprague. Fred. F. Platts, Agent." The address is: "A Special Invitation —X 10 ded 2 U to C—A Postage Stamp Co." in three lines. The folder advertises this "jolliest of all farce comedies" in a superlative manner, the writer indulging in an orgy of adjectives that would put the circus poster writer to blush. The pictures in the folder are on a par with the text; and so "funny" are they that they are more than humorous. All in all, the circular is an interesting reflection of the days when the farce comedy was dearly beloved by the playing going populace; and when "A Paper Doll," "A Rag Baby," "We, Us & Co.," literally swayed hundreds of thousands with laughter. We must admit that the only suggestion of philately that is carried by A Postage Stamp is the name.

We Want To Know—In his Metropolitan Philatelist, Mr. J. W. Scott finishes an editorial on the proper collecting spirit with these words: "The real collector never tires and is as interested at eighty as when he took up the pursuit at eight, which is about the present limit of the oldest collector." In the past, philatelic writers have dwelt on the seeming connection between philately and longevity and we know that particularly abroad, have there been inspiring examples of philatelists living to very advanced ages. Of course, we should all like to think that philately was conducive to longevity but in reality, we can only say that the gentle pursuit of stamp collecting has the effect of a tonic or stimulant without any debilitating after effects. What we wish to know is this. Who is our oldest subscriber in years? We know that we have many venerable readers and we are proud of the fact. Every now and then, we are gratified to hear that such and such a subscriber is a veteran of many years; and now we wish to know who our oldest readers are. In all respect we ask those readers who think that they are "along in years" to send us a card or letter telling their age. The WEEKLY will esteem it a favor to add a good stamp to the collection of its oldest reader.

Team Work—Says a subscriber: "Some time ago, I bought stamps at auction from a firm that guaranteed them without limit to time. Soon afterwards, the auctioneers painlessly sank beneath the surface; and now an expert tells me that the stamps are degenerates of the worst kind and should be annihilated. What is the answer? (I go to all this trouble to write and ask this question merely to give the opportunity to answer: 'Patronize reliable and established firms only')." We shake the helping hand of our reader and drop a tear of sympathy on it.

U. S. Mail—The man who thinks that four or five deliveries of mail are not enough each day is respectfully referred to the following contract which is typical of many that are entered into by the post office department:

"Sunrise to Knik Anchorage (n. o.). Accept the proposal of James Henry Denny, of Hope, under the advertisement of Jan. 29,, 1914, for service from Sunrise, by Hope, to Knik Anchorage (n. o.), and back twice a month from May 1 to Oct. 31, each year, in safe and suitable steam or other power boats, by a schedule satisfactory to the Department, in close connection at Knik Anchorage (n. o.) with mail steamers from Seattle, from July 1, 1914, to June 30, 1918, at the rate of $875 for the period, each year."

VALUE OF A HOBBY.

Will Add Spice to Life's Menu.

WILLIAM MATHEWS.

Arctic explorers tell of the dreadful persecution of the six months' polar day, and of the terrible depression produced by perpetual darkness in the six months' night. But hardly less depressing is perpetual work, work, work, day after day in the same shop or office, at the same unchanging task, in the same mill-horse round. A hobby, to which a man springs the moment the pressure of his customary work is removed, draws him out of his rut. It breaks up the stagnation and monotony of his life, and vivifies the faculties which have become blunt and dull. It emancipates a merchant or a stockbroker from the click of the telegraph and the bondage of the day-book and the ledger, a clergyman from his musty theology, and a lawyer from his wearisome precedents, obiter, dictas, and fi fas. Last, not least, it delivers a jaded and fretted housewife from the round of petty, monotonous domestic cares which tyrannize over her daily life, and out of the toiler reproduces and recreates the woman.

Not the smallest merit of a hobby is that it liberalizes its rider. It delivers him from narrowness and onesidedness—that tendency to judge everything from a single standpoint which is so often the curse of the toiler in one groove. It has been said that there is not an artisan in the country who, if he but had a hobby,—a pet avocation,—would not be a more contented man, less a victim of acridity, and less disposed to believe in the wrongs of inequality of condition.

In nothing are men's differences and idiosyncrasies more vividly seen than in their hobbies. Of the odd tastes of collectors, especially, there is no end. A century or two ago there was a mania for collecting old hats, caps, and boots, —of which last there was a famous collection at Hotel Cluny at Paris, showing all the changes in the cobbler's art since the flood,—also shoes, slippers, garters, wigs, snuff-boxes, pipes, walking-sticks, brushes, gloves, watches, clocks, and even ropes with which men had been hanged! In our day there is a rage for old china, armor, brasses and bronzes, bric-a-brac, cameos, pictures, furniture, books, postage stamps, butterflies and bugs. One of the pleasantest, but one of the most expensive hobbies, is that of the picture-collector. A charming hobby for a man with money is that of a rose-fancier. Few men ever experience a keener delight than that of a bibliomaniac, when, after mousing for days and even weeks about old bookstalls, he comes suddenly upon a rare old volume, for which he has been long searching, and which, thanks to the ignorance of the owner, he bears triumphantly home for a few silver coins.

The best hobbies are intellectual ones. They not only delight and recreate their devotees, but are also preservative against selfishness, vulgarity and wordliness. They have, however, one disadvantage,—that they are apt to be ridden too hard, and thus, instead of refreshing and invigorating, to send a man back to his work fatigued and depressed. Such was the case with that English glutton of work, Sir George C. Lewis, who, when chancellor of the exchequer, home secretary and secretary of war, devoted himself, in the intervals of his official labors, to the study of history, politics, philology, anthropology, and antiquarianism, and to the copying of Greek manuscripts in the British Museum. The result was that he died at the age of fifty-seven, when, if he had had fewer hobbies, and ridden them less hard, he might probably have lived to fourscore or longer. "Blessed is the man that has a hobby!" says Lord Brougham, who kept a whole stableful, and I agree with him; but I agree also with Bulwer that it will not do to have more than one at a time. "One hobby leads you out of extravagance. A team of hobbies you cannot drive, till you are rich enough to find corn for them all."

ACCIDENT TO FRED. J. MELVILLE.

The many friends of the President of the Junior Philatelic Society will regret to hear that, late on Tuesday the 14th inst., the taxi in which he was proceeding to his residence in Brixton, was run into by a 5-ton motor-lorry, with results which, happily not very serious, might easily have been fatal to Mr. Melville.

So far as the taxi was concerned, they evidently were fatal, if one may judge from the debris in the Brixton road; the motor-lorry also suffered to a considerable extent.

The unfortunate "fare" awoke from sudden oblivion to find himself, with bruised ribs and a vague recollection of recent events, in a neighbouring surgery, undergoing examination by its medical owner.

The medico's prescription was, we gathered from a note Mr. Melville recently sent us—bed die ac nocte for the rest of the week, which we hope will put him all right again.—Stamp Collectors Fortnightly.

"MEKEEL'S" FOUND EVERYWHERE.

L. W. Charlat, who recently gave up his stamp office in New York City, is journeying through Europe and we have received a card from him from Paris. He writes us: "I am going all over Europe looking for U. S. and other good things to offer your readers. I have made some fine purchases."

Mr. Charlat goes on to add, "Your paper is found everywhere and is very highly esteemed."

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents.

AUSTRALIA.—Whitfield King & Co. announce that a second printing of one million penny stamps of the King Geo. type has been made, and contrary to general expectation they are practically undistinguishable from the first printing. This second issue has been placed on sale without any restrictions.

GREAT BRITAIN.—We have now seen the new postage due stamps, as announced last week, a full set having been shown us by the New England Stamp Co. The colors are slightly different from those given in Ewen's Weekly, but the description is correct, the shape being a horizontal oblong about the size of the United States Panama-Pacific stamps. These stamps are watermarked "G V R" sideways and perforated 14x15.

Adhesives.

½d emerald green.
1d rose carmine.
2d black brown.
5d yellow brown.

Postmasters in the United Kingdom are forbidden to sell these postage due stamps, but they can be obtained at the Somerset House under certain restrictions, this forming a refreshing contrast to the petty restrictions of the United States Postal Department.

HONDURAS.—Hermann Focke has shown us the provisional "10 cent." on 6c dark violet noted in No. 1210, and we find that the overprint is in red.

INDIA.—According to Champion's Bulletin the 3p, ½a and 1a have been surcharged "C. E. F." for use of the Chinese Expeditionary Force.

NICARAGUA.—H. Chitraro and Hermann Focke have favored us with further provisionals, printed on the blue official stamps, with statue of Liberty. Mr. Focke also shows a new Cordoba surcharge, the 10c gray Locomotive envelope having been surcharged "Dos—centavos—de—Cordoba."

Provisional Adhesives.
On Officials of 1912

"c0.02" on 20c blue and black.
"c0.01" on 25c blue and black.
"c0.02" on 50c blue and black.

Provisional Envelope.

"Dos centavos" on 10c gray; locomotive.

NORWAY.—The Jubilee stamps, announced some time since and described in No. 1213, have at last been issued, and specimens have been shown us by Hermann Focke and the Sterling Stamp Co. The stamps are a large horizontal oblong, 28x22½ mm. As announced, the scene depicted is the constitutional assembly at Eidsvold, from the painting by Wergeland. This picture is framed in a simple yet attractive frame, with the value in figures in the centre of the upper line of the frame, with "Norge" in the lower frame line. "Post" is worked twice into the upper frame line, and the dates "1814" and "1914" into the lower frame line. The plate was engraved by Prof. Schirnbock of Vienna. The stamps are handsomely engraved and printed; wove paper, perforated 13½.

Adhesives.

5 öre green.
20 öre slate blue.

SWEDEN.—The Sterling Stamp Co. has shown us the new 5kr stamp recently announced. The design is Scott's A14 and the stamp is printed on yellow paper, watermarked large crown.

Adhesive.

5kr red violet on yellow.

UNITED STAMP COMPANY'S New United States Album
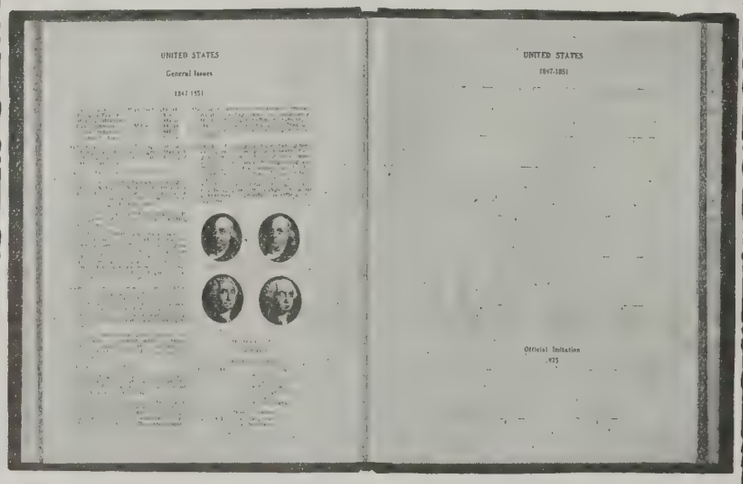
NOW READY



Announcement is made that the first two parts of our entirely new printed loose leaf sectional album for the Adhesive Postage and Revenue stamps of the United States are now ready. Each month parts of not less than eight pages will be issued as a supplement to our house organ, the United Stamp Company Herald.

HERALD—Our house organ (now in its third year) is a monthly journal of sixteen pages, attractively printed on fine paper, half of which is devoted to good reading matter, the balance being used for our announcements. No matter how many philatelic publications you subscribe for you will find that the Herald duplicates or conflicts with none, and in point of actual value is, at least, the equal of the best.

STOCK—The Album Supplement is printed on a very high grade linen ledger paper from absolutely new type and the best cuts that money can buy.

SIZE—Each sheet is 7½ inches by 9 inches in size including the part used as a hinge in the binder. The space available for mounting stamps is 6 by 9 inches as indicated below.

SCOPE—At present we will issue sections for United States Adhesive stamps only, including Departments, P. O. Seals, Special Delivery, Registration, Newspaper, Postage Due and Revenue stamps. The great rarities will be excluded as these are often unobtainable even by well-to-do collectors. Assurance is given that the plan outlined above will be completed and that continuation sheets will be supplied at regular stated intervals in the future at reasonable prices.

BINDER—An entirely new springback binder will be ready shortly to contain these sheets. The modest price of $1.00 post free, brings it within the reach of all. Although low in price, the binder will compare favorably with the best of its kind. All sheets will be punched to standard Marquette Loose Leaf System to fit the new Marquette Binder now being made.

HOW OBTAINED—Every subscriber to the Herald will receive at least 8 pages of this album each month, gratis and post free, until the expiration of their paid up subscription. Thereafter an additional charge of 25c per year will be made for the Album Supplement, making the total cost for both 50c per year. For a limited time we will date your subscription back to Vol. 3, No. 1 (Jan. 1914) unless otherwise instructed.

GUARANTEE—Send 50c today for your subscription and if you are not entirely satisfied with the value received, we will return the amount of remittance plus your postage.

We Pay Cash for Collections

We are always in the market for collections, Dealers' Stocks, Accumulations and Properties of all kinds and pay cash for them. If you are contemplating the disposal of your stamps write us before selling. We constantly need stamps to fill our orders and will pay good prices for anything we can use.

CATALOG AND PRICE LIST—Our 100 page catalog and price list should be in the hands of every collector. The type illustrations of the United States varieties alone are worth the small price asked. Post Free 25c.

AUCTION SALES—We hold sales at auction every four to six weeks in the year, and have held 190 sales to date. We solicit consignments for sale at auction. Liberal advances up to $10,000.00 can be made pending sale if desired. We make prompt returns of net proceeds. We sell for cash only and thus have no long drawn out accounts to delay settlements. Write for terms.

Ask to have your name put on our mailing list.

THE NEW BRITISH POSTAGE DUES.

We have all along advocated that the postage due stamps should be made accessible in the unused condition to collectors and dealers, and we are glad to learn that the Post Office has made arrangements to this end.

Now collectors and dealers need have no difficulty in getting the stamps unused. Collectors will be best served by the dealers in this matter, and need not grudge the small percentage over face value that the dealers may ask as in buying from dealers collectors will have the best copies.

The Due stamps were at first printed at Somerset House, and bore the control "D.14", but these printings were of very limited extent, and from the first most of the stamps in use are understood to have been Messrs. Harrison's printings with the Control "D 14" (without the dot).

The sale of the stamps in the way we have mentioned should prevent any such abuses as were common in the days of the now abandoned "Official" stamps. There should also be a good sum derived from the sale, which sum represents "found money" to the Post Office Department. But the Department accedes to the proposal that the stamps be sold in this way without any special desire to be gracious to collectors, and the latter must not expect courtesy apparently even from the Controller of the London Postal Service.

Our application (22.4.14) for blocks showing controls, which are convenient in the philatelic historian's reference book was met by the curt quotation of the regulation of May 7, 1912, viz.:—

SALE OF POSTAGE STAMPS, DEALERS OR COLLECTORS NOT TO BE ALLOWED TO SELECT FROM STOCK.

"Applications for postage stamps taken from a certain part of a sheet or for stamps of value or interest to stamp dealers or collectors which require Counter officers to examine whole stocks of postage stamps cannot be complied with."

Remembering this regulation since its birth, we never should have made the request to a "Counter Officer"; our request and application were addressed to the Controller of the London Postal Service, and so far as we are aware he does not come under the style of counter officer, and the Postage Due stamps are not sold over the counter. We thought he might oblige us for journalistic purposes, but we did him and his department too much credit for an over-burdening anxiety to please!—Postage Stamp.

SOME TRADE NOTES.

The collection and stock of the late Ignaz Stauffer is being sold by Albert Rassman, Carnegie, Pa. Mr. Rassman feels that he can get the most out of a collection by selling it to our subscribers and it will no doubt be a good opportunity for our readers to fill their wants.

We have a second request for a first page square, this time from Iole Dione, Grandview, Wash. Mr. Dione writes that the WEEKLY pays him on a cost basis three times better than any other paper he has ever tried.

This week our run is 7700.

This from Hugo Griebert & Co.:—
"We are pleased to say that we have received a great number of American subscribers to our New Issue Service, in fact with every mail new ones are coming in by the dozen.

This is a certain proof of the great value of an advertisement in your paper."

Gabriel Cannon writes us that he has had a very satisfactory business during the past year and will undoubtedly close a contract for the use of space during the coming year.

More and more dealers are beginning to realize the value of our space in doing business with auction buyers. Note Voorhees' advertisement this week.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' LETTERS.

Letters sent by soldiers, sailors and marines in the United States service, located in the United States or any of its possessions, or other places where the United States domestic mail service is in operation, addressed to places in the United States or any of its possessions, when indorsed "Soldier's letter," "Sailor's letter," or "Marine's letter," and signed thereunder, either with facsimile hand stamp or in writing, with his official designation, by a field or staff officer, post or detachment commander, to whose command the soldier belongs, or by a surgeon or chaplain at a hospital where he may be; and in the Navy and Marine Service by any commissioned officer attached to the vessel, or officer commanding a hospital or detachment ashore, may be dispatched to destination without prepayment of postage, and only the single rate of postage shall be collected on delivery.

A. S. BURLESON, Postmaster Gen.

SOME "DON'TS" THE DEALER WILL APPRECIATE.

Don't ask a dealer to send you stamps cataloguing 25c to $2.00 each, if you cannot afford to buy that quality.

Don't think your dealer a "Piker" if he cannot supply you with every stamp in the catalogue. No dealer can do that.

Don't keep that approval selection longer than six months. The dealer might want to send it to some one else.

Don't ask your stamp man how much the stamps of Philippine Islands are worth complete, or expect him to identify your stamps for you. He has consolidated his information bureau with ours, and has asked us to attend to those questions for him.

Don't write to every dealer in the WEEKLY for a selection, just to get the premiums. Buy your stamps with the money you would use for postage.

Don't think the dealer is trying to "skin" you if he makes a mistake. Remember he is nearly 80% human, and is liable to err.

Don't forget that nearly all the "worth while" dealers are soliciting your trade through this paper; so don't forget to watch their ads.

WILSON'S POLICY toward MEXICO is undecided. Don't let yours be. Get Mexican Revs. while still cheap. 100 varieties, $1.00. 400 varieties, $10.00. Collections up to 1000 varieties, prices on application.

WHAT OF NEW ISSUES?

By BILL BLOSS.

The question, whether to buy new issues or not, is one that confronts every collector and dealer at some time or other. The beginner picks up his catalogue and notes, for instance, that the shilling Cayman Islands, black on green paper, issued in 1909, watermarked Single CA catalogues $1.75. He knows that this stamp would cost him at least 75c, and more probably $1.50. At best, he would pay two hundred per cent. over face for it at the present time. Purchased at 30c through a new issue service at the time of issue, this stamp would have realized a profit of probably three times the original price. The collector wonders if it would not be a good idea to buy all stamps at the time they are issued. He considers the matter in detail and studies the various new issue price lists. He finally draws his conclusion that new issues pay or do not pay. Usually he decides that certain new issues cannot fail to bring splendid returns on the money invested, and he soon learns by experience which class of countries to collect.

The new issues of British Colonials are almost sure to increase rapidly in value. Very few remainders have been put upon the market by any of the colonies. The Edwardian issues have proven to be excellent purchases at the new issue rates. The Colonial Color Scheme sets of the Edwardian stamps have already started to climb upward in the catalogue, and in some instances, they will not stop until they have reached heights too dizzy for the average collector. The 5 shilling Gold Coast King Edward, issued in the new color scheme, was distributed less than two years ago at new issue rates of $1.37 to $1.50. To-day this stamp brings $12.50 to $15.00, and is very scarce at that.

Even the Georgian issues have increased considerably in some instances. The stamps with white backs, or rather, on surface colored paper, are beginning to show signs of becoming obsolete, and hence, will soon increase at a speed depending upon the demands of collectors, and judging from the demand for stamps with slight differences in watermark and varieties of less importance than these "white backs," they will bring some very fancy prices in some cases. British Colonials have an established face value. The increases in value have so far exceeded losses by demonetization, or disposal of remainders, that the objections can scarcely be noticed.

Buying the new issues of other countries, however, is quite another story. The South American and Southern European countries are not, as a rule, good purchases on a face value basis, for the reason that as fast as a new set is issued (which is sometimes once or twice a year) the old series is made invalid for postal use, is cancelled-to-order, or even sold unused, and the high values are worth but a few cents more than the lowest value. The Portuguese Colonials have appreciated in value to quite an extent in many instances, but on the other hand, include a host of speculative sets issued to separate the easy philatelist from his good money, and as it is the habit of the money-loving Portuguese to use up every remainder by applying a new surcharge, or by cancelling whole issues to order, one can never tell when that government will decide to dispose of the remainders without treating them to a new value, thus saving the additional cost of printing, but hitting the fellow who bought them at their face value.

The French Colonials are clean in general, but quantities are sold from Paris to collectors, so they are easy to obtain, and as they usually remain in issue several years, do not seem to increase in value. Up to the present time, however, these stamps have been priced at a very low per cent. over face in the catalogue, making it unprofitable for the dealer to stock them, and hence they are not common in this country.

The Northern European countries are stable in their financial foundations, and can afford to look beyond the stamp collector to support their postal systems, so their issues do not depreciate, and almost always increase in value. Of course, in most of the countries philately is well represented, and more of the stamps are purchased and stocked than in the small out-of-the-way places. Even at that, though, fine copies, with gum, of these countries sell readily.

H. F. COLMAN,
Second National Bank Bldg., WASHINGTON, D. C.

Heretofore, I have treated this subject from a financial standpoint. From the point of view of the collector who has the money to purchase stamps without regard to their financial standing (and he is a very scarce and desirable person for the dealer to do business with) I would say collect everything. The man who first said "a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush" was the ancestor of the first Nicaraguan specialist, and had reference to certain surcharges of that country. If a collector can afford to buy everything that comes his way, by all means let him pursue the new issue in all its branches. He will find it far easier to buy his stamps as they appear, than to attempt to complete his countries long after the stamps are obsolete. Unfortunately for him, however, the new issue service has never been established which can supply every stamp issued. He will always have a few provisionals to look for. Usually the scarcest ones, too, are the ones left out. Also, a collection of new unused stamps cannot be surpassed for beauty. The writer has seen collections of as many as ten thousand varieties of twentieth century stamps unused, and always feels like burning his own collection after seeing one of these "new issue" collections.

To summarize the above, if the collector buys "new issue" British Colonials, and uses discretion in buying the other countries, he cannot "go wrong." If the collector intends to collect unused stamps, surely the time to buy them is when they are current, and just come out.

The new issue question as it confronts the dealer must be handled differently. Whether or not the dealer can carry new issues in stock at a profit depends largely upon the class of trade he caters to. If he sells only to the beginner or does "kid" business, he cannot readily dispose of new issues, excepting the very low values, which sell very easily. If he sells to the advanced collector, he must carry new issues, and as nearly a complete line as possible, in order to supply all wants. The question of new issues must be decided by every dealer for himself, as no fixed rule can be laid down. Success in handling any line, stamps or merchandise, depends upon the selling of that line.

In the stamp business, the writer is of the opinion that success lies in keeping stock moving, rather than buying and holding for speculation. The looked for increase may be slow in coming, resulting in loss of interest on the capital involved, as well as loss of profits on sales of stock which could have been turned over many times. Of course, face value stamps are an almost certain security, and can command more of a fixed price than odd lots or collections of stamps based on catalogue. These latter must bring what the buyer chooses to give for them, as they have no real value aside from a philatelic sense. The face value stamp represents money invested, and if it is still in use, can be collected on at or near its face value by the holder. Therefore, the dealer who stocks new issues is assured of a loss of not much more than the per cent. he paid over face in the event that he be forced to dispose of them at a forced sale.

For the benefit of the new dealer who lacks experience with new issues, however, let me caution him to "go easy" and not to buy every lot that is offered him. Lots of odd values, and broken sets, do not sell readily at retail, and are equally hard to dispose of at wholesale. The writer was "caught" with quite a lot of miscellaneous new issues at one time, and after placing them before half a dozen of the large dealers and being advised "that they had too many lots like that already" was forced to dispose of them at nearly twenty per cent. less than face value.

By careful study and judicious buying, new issues may be laid away for a rise, and a handsome profit realized from them. ALL stamps do not increase soon enough to pay to hold them. The secret lies in picking the stamps that are bound to jump up. By carefully studying the past issues, the saleability of the country, and the characteristic of the new stamp, the dealer soon learns what to hold and what to turn at once. In the case of the 4d Jamaica, black on yellow, the writer reasoned that as the colonial color scheme called for black and red on yellow, this stamp might be recalled at any time. Also, Jamaica is a good country to stock up on. Accordingly, when the 4d stamp was changed suddenly, the writer was able to realize 75c each for one hundred copies of a stamp that cost him 10c each not many months before. In speculating in British Colonials, the dealer finds it a one-sided gamble in his favor. If he buys at or near face, he cannot lose, and may win.

For the specialist who stocks only a few countries, it is necessary that he carry all issues of that country in stock, and accordingly, he should invest in enough new issues to last him for some time.

New issues, like every other branch of the stamp business, must be stocked carefully. Under the new issue service system, it is necessary to buy all stamps. All new issues are saleable at time of issue, and the wise dealer sells them at that time at a profit, laying away only such surplus as he thinks may increase for some reason, or as he thinks necessary to keep his stock in shape. A good rule to follow is the one used by the large merchants throughout the country.

"Keep your stock moving and turn over your money as often as you can."

OUR BOOK REVIEW.

Via P. & O.—A true love story by Jane Stocking. Published by Dodd, Mead & Co., N. Y. City. Price $1.00. It is very seldom that we have occasion to review a work of this character. It is certainly unique and in addition to its setting in the scenes of Shanghai and the development of a delightful love story, there is a philatelic flavor of more than passing interest. The cover is adorned with an imitation of an envelope and upon it is a Shanghai local stamp. Any of our readers desirous of a vacation book will find this little story very interesting.

THE KING'S NEW RARITY.

The British rarity recently unearthed, the 5s Telegraph, Plate 3, with the 12½ perforation, has made quite a stir in the world. A full description of it, given by Mr. Fred J. Melville in the Daily Telegraph, has been followed by paragraphs long and short in various provincial newspapers, greatly swelling my latest budget of clippings from the press-cutters. In each of these newspaper references the greatest emphasis is reserved for the fact that the stamp has been acquired for the collection of His Majesty the King.

What an asset to Philately King George has proved! Not only has he raised the status and the prestige of the pursuit, but he has silenced, now and for all time, the scoffer's gibes at Philately as a mere schoolboy's hobby.—S. C. Fortnightly.

DEALERS' APPROVAL SHEET RECORD.

By FRANK E. GOODWIN.

The matter of keeping a record of approval books and sheets was one which gave me no little concern when I first started in dealing in postage stamps in a small way. Being on the road often at that time, I had opportunity to investigate the systems of a number of dealers—both large and small. I am free to confess that none of their methods especially appealed to me, so it "was up to me" to evolve a system of my own which would prove satisfactory.

There were several requirements which were to be met before it could be said to be a satisfactory system of record keeping:

It must be so simple that no added help would be required.

It must be accurate, to prevent mistakes in charging up the value of the stamps sent out.

It must be so arranged that any desired line of stamps could be quickly located and sent out to applicants, or to show approximately when the stamps would be returned from holder, so that applicant could be promised when a book would reach him.

It must absolutely prevent duplication, or sending the same book or sheet a second time to the customer.

It must bear a check-list of stamps, if they are of considerable value, so that one could always know every stamp remaining in the book. This information is of inestimable value in case claim is made for losses.

In meeting every requirement outlined above, any other system than that of card index could not be thought of. A small filing case was obtained. It held 500 cards 3x5 inches, "Library" ruled. These can be obtained from any dealer in filing devices. A red ruling crosses the card near the top, about 1/3d of an inch from the top. The balance of the card is ruled with faint blue lines horizontally. A vertical line about 5/8ths of an inch is at each side of the card. These I prefer to file by consecutive number, rather than by letter or customer.

I prefer mounting stamps in books, rather than on sheets, and have only a few of the latter. Each book is numbered, consecutively, with a brief description of the kind of stamps contained in the book, with lowest and highest catalogue number. The value of the book is marked in the upper right hand corner.

Now I am ready to enter the books on the cards, for record. At the left upper corner I write the number of the book. Along the red line the description of stamps contained therein. In the upper right hand corner is the value—net or gross.

If the stamps have considerable value I turn the card over and write the catalogue numbers of the stamps the book contains, placing a star in front of the number of a stamp if unused and o. g. If unused, and without gum, an asterisk takes the place of the star.

I try, as much as possible to keep stamps of a line together—used in books by themselves; unused same; cancellations, strips, pairs, blocks, departments, revenues, part perforates, book leaves, etc., so that customers who submit their preferences will not receive something they are not interested in. The regular issues start with a certain number, easily remembered; departments with another, revenues still another, and so on through the list. If I handled a general line of stamps, including foreign, I should use letters as well as figures.

When a request is received for certain things in stamps, the right book can usually be easily located, as they are kept in compartments to separate the lists.

The book is taken from stock, and the card which identifies it is removed from the file. Then I write, first the date sent; on the same line the name and address of the customer, a letter "R" if registered; "I" if insured, and both letters if registered and insured. If this is the first time the book has been out no further entry on the card is necessary.

A daily "Reminder" or "Tickler" on the desk keeps one constantly reminded that he "has something coming." I guide my notations thereon by the distance the book is to go. If it journeys only to a nearby state I turn the desk pad dates up ten days and just enter the number of the book thereon. When in the course of time the pages are turned over I will come to that number. If it has not been crossed I remove the card bearing that number, and find that John Jones has had the book ten days, counting transit. A notice to that effect goes to him before anything else is done. Then the number of the book is moved forward ten days, and the card is returned to its proper place.

When a book is returned the sales are checked with the amount remitted. If it is correct, the amount is entered on the card along side the name, and another book is mailed, if the buyer wishes, or a reminder is put upon the calendar pad some days ahead when a certain book ought to be free. In the later case when a book is out, and a customer wants that particular book, I slip a paper clip over the top of the card bearing the same number, and this tells me, when the book is returned that someone desires to see it.

After the book is returned from its first trip, the amount of sales is, as was previously stated, entered upon the same line as the name of the collector to whom it was sent. This amount is subtracted from the total value and the remainder is entered directly under the amount shown at right hand corner of the card. In this way the net value of stamps contained in the book is always ready to accompany the book; the amount of sales just preceding it shows when added just how much has been taken from the book when it is ready to be retired and broken up.

This system absolutely prevents a collector receiving the same book a second time, unless he may ask for it.

In the case of very valuable stamps, as soon as the book is returned I check off on the list on back of card the stamps removed. This always shows me what stamps are still contained in the book.

This is a very simple and easy system of record keeping, and one which will, I believe, appeal to the small dealer whose time is limited, and who depends upon his own efforts to please his customers, and still keep his accounts clear. There is very little opportunity to make mistakes, and the small dealer's protection is always the best.

BOOKLET PANES.

By H. M. SOUTHGATE.

I have been very much interested in Mr. Wiley's article on booklet panes and booklets, recently brought out in the WEEKLY, and believe that it will be of much value in stimulating interest in this branch of our own issues. Surely no specialized collection is complete without these booklets, their covers and guide line panes.

Mr. Wiley has stated that the 1898 issue of booklet panes was printed from sheets of 180 subjects. While this is undoubtedly so, I believe that there is evidence to show that sheets of some other number, possibly 360 subjects, were used in the first issues.

In my collection I have copies, both plain and surcharged Philippines which show a guide line running across the top or binding margin, not at a point of division between panes as in the present sheets but about half way between the perforations and the top of the pane. One copy I have shows as well the arrow at the left hand end of this guide line, the intersection of the arrow lines being in a line with the extension of the side of the stamps below.

These panes are in a deep carmine color while the panes with the guide line running through the pane are a decidedly paler shade or washed out color. My specimens with this latter guide line come from the group of plates number 1324-1327, the last series of the '98 issue.

I do not know if from this any deductions of value may be drawn but it looks as though at least two different plate groupings were made and that the last series of plates were 180 subject plates.

As a collector I would not quarrel with Mr. Wiley's present average quotations for these panes. I will be glad to pay double the price he suggests for many, the 2 cent 1902 flag type with plate number for example. The question of price will work itself out doubtless to the satisfaction of all.

Approval Selections, 70% Discount

I offer to general collectors and dealers a nice line of foreign stamps on approval at 70% discount. All my stamps are offered at 70% discount and my stock is large enough and of sufficient variety to enable me to send selections as long as anyone wishes to continue the correspondence. I have no stamps to offer at a less discount. All stamps are priced according to the latest standard catalogue, and are guaranteed genuine. I send selections on approval to any collector or dealer furnishing satisfactory references or a cash deposit. I send selections on these terms to all parts of the world. My sheets are used by a great many dealers whose stocks are not large enough to enable them to fill all of their approval orders. A reasonable amount of credit will be given to any dealer (or collector) who furnishes satisfactory references so that the stamps can be paid for after they have been sold.

It will pay anyone who can use general selections of foreign stamps to give my approvals a trial. My sheets are intended for collectors having 10,000 varieties or less, but collectors with as high as 15,000 varieties have frequently found a great many stamps that are needed.

PRECANCELS

I offer a miscellaneous assortment of the low values of stamps precancelled at ½c each. I have very few of the higher values, but I can offer a few $1 stamps of the issues of 1902, 1909, and 1912 at 22c each and the 50 cent of the 1909 issue at 12c. All four are precancelled "Philadelphia, Pa." and will be sold for 70 cents postpaid, if ordered at one time.

In conclusion I wish to impress upon the readers of this advertisement the fact that I have been dealing in stamps since 1899 and have accumulated a large stock of stamps, all of which, with the exception of the precancelled stamps, I am offering to collectors and dealers at 70% discount from current catalogue prices. My stamps are all in good condition and guaranteed genuine. I am offering a genuine bargain and I will ask for an order from every general collector with less than 15,000 varieties, and from every dealer who can use general selections in his trade.

As to my own reliability I refer my prospective clients to the Hanover Savings Fund Society, Hanover, Penna. Further, I am a member of the American Philatelic Society (No. 4076), Southern Philatelic Association (No. 117) and The Philadelphia Stamp Club (No. 156). I devote all my time to the stamp business, which insures prompt attention to all orders.

SHOULD A DEALER SPECIALIZE?

By WENDOVER NEEFUS.

I believe there are four major conditions that enter into the solution of this question. I place dealers into four classes the conditions of which influence and probably control the business they do. These classes are as follows:

(1) The dealer with large and ample capital.

(2) The dealer with limited capital.

(3) The dealer in a large city with its counter trade.

(4) The dealer in a small city with only a mail trade.

There can be no question raised to the statement that a dealer who specializes can carry a more complete stock on a smaller capital than the one who does a general business.

The dealer in a large city has his chance at the counter trade and I believe the counter trade is a very paying one. I know of some dealers who do wonderful businesses in counter trade only. Many collectors are critical in making purchases* and want the chance of looking over the stamps they desire and will not consent to approval selections. The city dealer gets their trade and it's ofttimes big trade, too.

The dealer without ample capital has no business to open an office in a large city. Competition from other dealers is too keen. The counter trade wants general lines. The dealer with a capital pleases the collector specialists with a large stock of most any country. Thus a specialist dealer in a large city has a very limited field to draw from and his office and other expenses are heavy and equal to those of his competitors who are able to carry general lines.

For the dealer with ample capital, but located in a small city, the proposition is a hard one. He may gather a wonderful stock but he has no chance at the counter trade and its many big sales. After he has built his mail business to the point of requiring clerks, he will find it a hard proposition to secure competent ones at figures within his means. In the large cities competent clerks are paid good wages but the counter trade supports it.

The limit of business possible for a dealer with limited capital and living in a small city is necessarily low. He seldom gets the big trade with its large and profitable sales, as he has not the stock to cater to it. The big trade goes where it can get what it wants when it wants it; so he has to confine his business to the smaller trade and he can never realize what it means to make a really big sale.

My conclusion in the matter of specialism among dealers is based on quite a number of years of experience and a great deal of analytical thought. Dealers with good counter trades should not specialize, for the counter trade is too valuable an asset to limit by lines of specialism. Counter trade calls for a large, general stock and that requires a large and ample capital. That disposes of the large city dealer entirely, for there is no room in such a city for a specialist, either through personal interest or through lack of capital. The dealer in a small city must choose his own way. His only chance is with the mail business, whether he has an ample or a limited capital. Even with a large, general stock, it is hard to get the big trade, unless he has some particular argument for getting it and I believe that specialism is such an argument. With an argument such as dealing exclusively in the country in which a collector is specializing, the dealer is apt to get at some of the big trade.

In concluding my argument, let me say that a specialistic business takes a great deal more time, patience and expense to build up than a general business, but I believe the trade is more permanent, as the collector who gets to specializing is usually a true and constant collector and consequently a constant buyer of anything he needs. Neither time, stock, patience nor expense is what really makes a business, for in addition to those necessities comes good judgment, honest dealings and broad business principles. Each dealer has a personality that will control his success, whether he chooses the general or the specialistic field, and I know of no way of testing his possible success better than to try both fields, each for a reasonable time.

AGAINST SAN FRANCISCO!

By C. V. WEBB.

I do not favor San Francisco as the 1915 convention seat of the A. P. S. for the following reasons:

First, San Francisco is not easily accessible to the great majority of members. The members of the A. P. S. live principally in the East. San Francisco is far from being centrally located.

Second, Our Convention in San Francisco would receive scant courtesy by the public in general. Already two hundred and twenty-six societies have decided to meet in San Francisco in 1915. Our convention would be an insignificant one among many.

Third, the convention would be held in the absence of a great many of the leading men in the East who are almost a necessity to a convention of the A. P. S. and who have shaped its destinies rightly for years. A trip to San Francisco would occupy more time than the average member in the East could spare from his business.

Fourth, Attractions outside of the program would make the attendance at the business sessions far from what they should be in accordance with the number actually registering as present.

COVERT STAMP COMPANY
708 Ellwanger & Barry Bldg., Rochester, N. Y.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

A SIMPLE ARRANGEMENT OF STOCK.

By THORN SMITH.

The beginning dealer had much better put his money into actual stock than in elaborate furnishings but whatever scheme is adopted, compactness and accessibility should be made paramount. A system should be used whereby he knows where to put his hand on a want or easily learn whether he has a certain stamp in stock. Even the small dealer can waste half his time trying to locate a stamp which he knows is somewheres in stock. Other information that should be just as available is the cost of each lot and the approximate number in stock as well as the catalogue number and price.

The writer has been a "spare time" dealer for the past five years and during all of that time has endeavored to simplify his system. He has tried all manner of schemes so that even now he has stock in envelopes, in boxes, and in stock books. This state of affairs is being remedied as rapidly as disposition permits. In his opinion the envelope system, in spite of the statements frequently made that it is becoming obsolete, is the best method of disposing of a stock be it large or small providing that the right kind of envelope is used.

The actual working of the scheme now in use is as follows: Pine lumber 6 inches wide by ⅜ of an inch thick was obtained and a compartment case without a back made. To be brief it looks like the call boxes in a Post Office. Each compartment is 3½ inches high by about the same width and of course 6 inches deep. It is entirely home made, not from necessity but more for the purpose of discovering what a saw and hammer in the hands of a novice could do in a short time. It is placed directly against the wall on a shelf two feet above the floor and occupies a space of about 5 feet by 6. It is stained a cherry red.

The capacity without crowding is over 600,000 stamps. The first stamps to go into the case are those of Argentine, then Austria, etc. A label is pasted just below each compartment. Some countries require several compartments which is allowed for by a knowledge of the stock on hand.

The envelope used is 3 by 4⅞ inches, a stock size of good stiff manila and opens on the end. The price is 60 cents per 1,000. The cost is so low that it is advisable to use one where but five or ten stamps of a kind are in stock. Each envelope holds up to 200 copies without crowding or bulging. On the outside is made a memorandum of the country, the catalogue number and price, also the number bought and the cost. The latter is better keyed, thus

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 0

A lot cost RT which means to the purchaser 60 cents. There will be plenty of room left on the envelope for further notes such as "a poor lot," "paid too much," "fine sellers," or "see Senf or Gibbons."

In handling any stock there are always stamps that get out of place and accumulate. These are placed in colored envelopes of the ordinary letter writing type and placed in their respective compartments. When occasion offers they are sorted and placed in the proper manila envelope.

Stock books may or may not be advisable. It all depends on the point of view but at any rate a large outlay is to be depreciated until the dealer knows definitely what he wants. It is probable that a few small ones for the better grade of stamps of which the dealer has but one or two will insure their being well kept and more available. There is no basic patent on stock-books and anyone can make his own which will answer the purpose just as well as those he can buy. The fact must not be lost sight of that all stock-books however elaborate are the evolution of home made affairs.

On the whole the best advice to give the new dealer, be he young or old is to go slow. Don't adopt an elaborate system until it has been tried out and found adapted to your particular way of going at things and don't adopt any great big cross reference scheme at any time or your horse will get behind the cart. A study and development of systems may be of value in other lines in which one is engaged. At any rate do not look at your endeavors entirely from the commercial point of view.

AUSTRALIAN VARIED STAMP DESIGNS.

Finality has been reached by the Postmaster-General regarding the principal designs for the new issue of postage stamps of the Commonwealth. It was the idea of the late Postmaster-General, Mr. C. E. Frazer, to abolish all the old designs, including those showing the King's head, and substitute a uniform type for every denomination. This was to have the kangaroo as the central feature in each instance.

Mr. Wynne intends to retain the kangaroo for the half-penny stamp, and to restore a presentation of the King's head for the one penny and two-penny stamps. The design of the six-penny stamp will be a kookaburra, while that of the shilling stamp will be a black swan.

"That will do for the present," remarked the Minister. "You will see that I have not abolished the kangaroo. I might use that design for some of the other stamps, as well as for the half-penny. The reason for having the King's head on the penny and two-penny stamps is that these go abroad more than the others, and it has been truly said that it is a great advertisement to a country to send out a good stamp. That is why I was anxious to have the new penny stamps steel engraved, as well as the two-penny ones; but I am advised that there is a new plate printing progress that is almost equal to steel engraving. Plates for the King's head penny stamps have been ordered, and will be here in about a month. After that I shall get a plate for the kangaroo half-penny stamp."

West Australia has been supplied with its quota of the second million of the steel engraved penny stamps. The other States will get their shares shortly. There will not be any restriction on the number any individual purchaser may desire, as there was in the case of the first million, when six was the maximum purchasable at the one time.—Herald, Melbourne.

MY FIRST AUCTION SALE

Will be held in Chicago, on June 13th, 1914, and is remarkable for the very fine condition of all the lots. The words "thinned" and "thin spot" are almost unknown and but very few "off centered" stamps. Every thing in very fine or perfection condition, and made up of moderate priced stamps. I have not hesitated to catalogue a single stamp, where the catalog price was under $2.50, when I thought the demand for the particular stamp would warrant it. I have tried to arrange the sale so that all who needed some of the "hard-to-gets," would not have to buy a large lot to secure one stamp.

There are 104 lots of literature, including American Journal of Philately, Second Series to 1903; Gibbons' Stamp Weekly; London Philatelist in ¾ morocco; Moen's Catalogue, Post Office and other scarce bound volumes.

STAMPS ON ORIGINAL COVERS

Only 111 lots of these, including many fine desirable moderate priced stamps, and some "hard-to-gets," notably the 5c 1847 with GREEN cancellation; 10c 1847, used from Montreal to New York City; a block of four and a vertical pair of the 2c No. 207, Confederates, on one cover; a nice lot of Great Britain, used in Danish West Indies; Gibraltar, Malta and Peru; Mulready's essays and Mexico.

Off of the cover is an offering of 279 lots of U. S., including departments; many rare imperforates, in pairs and blocks; nice lot of envelopes, Telegraphs, Imperforate Revenues in pairs and strips; a rare 5c New Orleans, brown on white, printed on both sides and an unused 5c brown on blue.

Great Britain and Colonies offer 106 lots, including an exceptionally fine BLOCK OF FOUR WITH MARGINAL INSCRIPTION of the 1840 1d black, full o. g., and a careful selection of single stamps from the colonies, 96 lots of stamps from the rest of the world, making 750 lots of as nice a selection of stamps as you would like to look at.

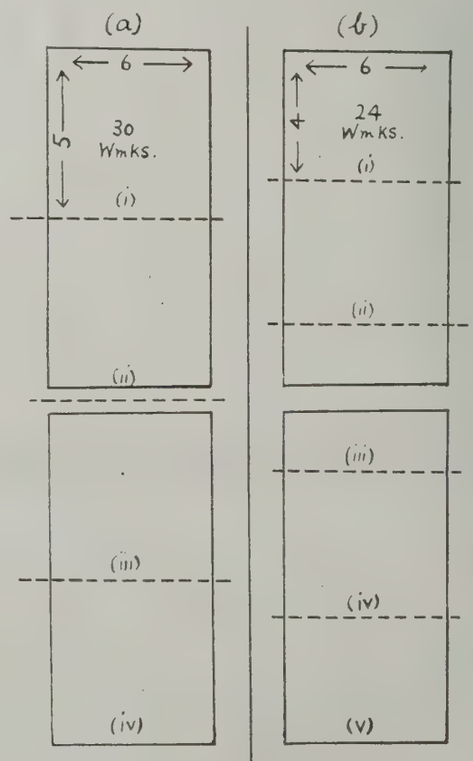
By R. E. R. DALWIGK.

Issue II.

THE "CROWN CC" SERIES OF 1874.



The second issue of postage stamps for this Colony took place about August, 1874, and was identical with that already described except that the stamps were this time printed upon paper watermarked with a Royal Crown above the initial CC signifying Crown Colony. They are still imperforate and have white gum. Although chronicled as both having been issued in August, 1874, it would appear that the sixpence was in use for some time previous to the issue of the fourpenny value, although consignments of both stamps may have been sent out to the Colony together. The Sixpence was first chronicled in Le Timbre-Poste for December 1874, but the appearance of the Fourpence was not noticed until several months later. The watermarks of the stamps of this issue are very irregularly spaced and it is a rare thing indeed to come across a specimen of either of these stamps showing a perfect and complete Crown C.C. This is accounted for by the fact of the stamps being printed in such small sheets; the paper on which they were printed being originally intended for the printing of stamps in large sheets of 240 divided into four panes of sixty. In The Philatelic Record of 1883, Major Evans wrote: "Some of my readers may have noticed that the watermark is not always very clearly shown in the Gambia stamps. This is due partly to the fact of their being embossed and partly to their being arranged in small blocks of fifteen—three horizontal rows of five—so that a row of five stamps is printed on a row of six watermarks, and in most cases a complete watermark is not found on any one of the stamps in a block. Very frequently the upper and lower blocks of a sheet encroach on the margins, and consequently some of the stamps show portions of the words CROWN COLONIES in watermark; and I have seen a block which had been printed in the centre of one side of a sheet, and the middle row of which was watermarked COLONIES, while the upper and lower rows have the Crown and CC."

In order, therefore, to procure sheets of watermarked paper of a size to fit the plates used for the printing of the embossed stamps of this issue, it was necessary to divide these sheets into smaller sheets of 24 or 30 watermarks, a full description of which will be found later under the issue of 1880. These stamps are also known watermarked with the two narrow lines which mark the outline of the panes, whilst to complete these somewhat complex watermark variations, there are also inverted and reversed watermarks to be found. Again both values are known with double embossing and specimens may also be seen with yellow gum in additional to the more general white gum.

CROWN COLONIES

Issue III, 1880.

FIRST PERFORATED "CAMEOS."

Consequent on the admittance of Gambia, together with the other British West African possessions to the Universal Postal Union on January 1st, 1879, the want was felt of other denominations than those then available, and in the following June an entirely new series of the same design, and printed from the same plates, but containing seven instead of two values only, made its appearance. The early printings show the watermark Crown CC in an upright position as before, but later it was found that the paper could be made to fit the plates better if introduced sideways into the press, and consequently later consignments sent out to the Colony have the watermark sideways (normal from left to right) on the stamp. The wmk. also exists reversed and inverted. Mr. Weber, writing in an American journal, remarks: "The plates from which the stamps of Gambia were printed did not consist of a single pane of fifteen, but were made up of a number of such panes. The very economy will appeal to everyone and more particularly to a printer. Moreover, when searching the sheets for the little flaws, etc., some were found that did not occur on all sheets but do occur on sheets representing the same parts of the paper before cutting.

H. F. Ottley, a dealer in stamps and V-Pres. of the local philatelic society at Rochester, N. Y., writes:—"Having carefully examined the GOLDEN GENIE MIXTURE No. 2 of 7,500 stamps, I want to give you my honest opinion of it. To fail to write you in appreciation of the quality and value of this lot would indeed be negligence. I found more real value than I expected. I am convinced that this lot has no equal for less than double your price as it contains salable stamps only while 'dealer's stocks' offered by others contain much trash and many questionable stamps."

"In the case of the stamps with the watermark vertical the plates were in all probability made up of eight panes, but it was soon found that if the panes were placed sideways the same sheet of paper would be sufficient for twelve panes of fifteen stamps each."

Should this deduction prove correct, it shows at a glance the economy of the resort to using the sheet of printing paper sideways, as when printed in the upright position, the sheets of fifteen and their margins occupied the space equivalent to thirty watermarks, whilst sideways they occupied the space of only twenty.

That the paper was divided up into twelve panes for the printing of the "sideway watermarked" sheets is correct without doubt, but there does not appear to be the same conviction in the idea expressed that the "upright" printings were the result of the paper being cut up into eight panes—why not ten? We know that five stamps were printed upon six upright watermarks horizontally, so the only point not clear is the number of vertical rows of watermarks. According to Mr. Weber five vertical rows made up the sheet of fifteen, but it appears just as safe (and much more probable) to assume that four rows would also have served the purpose—and more economically. Four rows would have been just about the correct size as is shown by the later method of cutting the Crown CA paper—5x4. Therefore the paper for the upright sheets would have been cut into ten panes, each 6x4. Below a diagram (i) is given in which the complete sheet of paper has been vertically divided down the centre, the first half of the diagram (a) showing the division of the half sheet to make eight small panes, and secondly (b) divided to make ten panes. The second diagram (ii) shows the division of the paper for the printing of the sideway watermark sheets of Gambia.

With the issue of this series perforating was first introduced as a means of dividing the stamps, and the perforations of this issue form an interesting subject.

The first machine employed was of the type known to philatelists as "Single-line," consisting—as the name implies—of a single row of punches. Stamps in sheets with margins that have been perforated by this machine may be readily distinguished by the fact that all four margins are perforated right through, whilst in the case of blocks of four or more, the perforating holes will almost invariably be found to fall foul of each other where they cross vertically and horizontally. The question of determining single specimens to their correct perforations is by no means easy. Mr. Melville, in his booklet, gives the following suggestion: "Single copies perforated in this manner [single line machine] can occasionally be detected by the distance between the vertical perforations. In the later perforation of this issue the distance is fixed, and the distance is 20½ mm., measuring from perf. point to perf. point across the stamp. Any stamp differing in width to any extent more than ½ mm. may therefore be set down as perforated by the single line machine."

The 2d rose and 1sh green are the only values which have not been seen perforated by the single line machine although many authorities, including Mr. Bacon, believe that they both exist.

By far the greater percentage of the single line perf. stamps have the upright watermark, and all sheets have one printer's guide dot in the centre of each side margin, such dots being apparently placed as a guide for the correct placing of the sheet in the press.

Subsequently the second type of perforating machine was brought into use for these stamps, known as the comb, from the fact that it has a number of teeth projecting from the single line of punches giving it the appearance of an ordinary hair comb, and enabling three sides of a row of stamps to be perforated at a single operation. Sheets of stamps perforated by this comb machine have one margin imperforate; either that at the top, or at the bottom of the sheet according to which way it was inserted into the machine. The comb machine employed was that used by De La Rues for perforating the Colonial stamps printed by them in sheets of four panes of sixty stamps each (10x6). As stated above, at each ascent of the pins this machine perforates three sides of each stamp in a horizontal row of twelve, with two vertical lines of pins forming a narrow space in the centre, corresponding to the vertical division of the sheet into panes. In the case of the embossed stamps of Gambia this narrow space falls on the right margin of the sheet, thus giving the appearance of having been doubly perforated. In a few cases, it would appear, that the sheet had been put into the machine upside down; the double rows of perforation appearing on the left instead of the right hand side of the sheet; but such sheets are conspicuous by their absence.

In order to make quite clear the results obtained by the different usages of this comb machine, we give below the effects obtained. Upon the application of the left hand portion of the machine the sheet was inserted in an upright position, with the result that the top row of stamps was perforated first so that the top margin is imperforate, whilst the bottom row is cut through by vertical perforations. If the sheet was inverted the apparent double perforating would have been on the left margin.

A curious point is to be noted when the right hand portion of the comb machine was employed, namely that the sheets were—almost without exception—inverted before being inserted in the machine, so that in this case the bottom margin was imperforate and the top cut through by the perforation holes: the double perforating being again on the right hand side.

These printings have two additional dots, in the right hand upper and lower corners of the sheet, thus in all having one dot on the left margin (in the middle) and three on the right. Some sheets appear to have a dot in the upper right and lower left hand corners in addition to the two original dots in the centre of each side margin.

All values are known with the watermark inverted, and with double embossing.

Specimens of the ½d in citron and pale ochre, and also in citron on ribbed paper, are believed to be colour trials by some, and by others to be due to atmospheric changes—probably the correct theory.

There are several shades of each value indicating various printings, those of the ½d, 4d, 6d, and 1sh being perhaps the most decided.

On the Sixpenny stamps of this series the watermark is as a rule very indistinct.

The sloping label varieties of the 6d stamp have become very prominent in this issue.

No. 6 in the sheet of the 2d denomination has a white flaw just in front of the nose, while the ½d pale orange vermilion exists doubly perforated at sides and top.

The other minor varieties will all be found listed in the reference list at the end of this issue, most of which will only be of interest to the specialist.

The catalogue quotations of this series are interesting:

UNITED STATES AT WHOLESALE

I do not pretend to be a wholesale dealer, but I ofttimes have to buy larger quantities of certain stamps than I need in order to get a better price and the surplus I am glad to offer at a small advance over cost. Here are a few items in that line all in good condition. I believe United States are good buys just now, as many varieties are bringing full catalogue at auctions and the supply is getting low.

EDITORIAL.

A Reigning Question—For many years one of the questions most commonly asked by readers has been on the subject of dealing in stamps. There is a continuous demand for information about stamp dealing and it is impossible to devote space in the paper to explanations so often as they are desired by the seekers after knowledge of the commercial side of philately. The inquiries seemed to arise spontaneously from widely scattered sources and they come unceasingly. The great majority of questions were asked by boys, it was apparent, and knowing how the idea of dealing in stamps appealed to the business instinct that as a rule is latent in young America, we accepted the questions as a matter of course and answered them in a way more or less concise by letter and again through the columns of the WEEKLY.

Fast and Furious—Last season, the call for information about stamp dealing came in such a volume that we could not meet it fairly and our question bureau, so to say, was so pressed that its service was hurried and inadequate. Some measures had to be resorted to improve conditions and it was decided to run a series of articles on "How to Deal in Stamps." These articles contributed by authorities on their subjects were received with favor as they possessed an interest even for the reader who had no thought of ever dealing in stamps; and the matter was subsequently published in handbook form, "How to Deal in Stamps," at ten cents a copy. This book has relieved us of much work as now we can with a feeling of assurance, refer expectant dealers to the instructions of the twenty-four pages of the little brochure. The book covers its field in a sensible and thorough manner and what may be termed the intimate details of dealing are discussed in all candor. No attempt was made to paint the picture in too lively colors and the first chapter of the work, "Decision," by Washington Grant is a masterly treatment of the question to deal or not to deal.

Unforced—The demand for information about stamp dealing is a genuine one that is created by no methods of advertising or publicity. The impulse to deal is one originally implanted in the breasts of many stamp collectors, chiefly boys, and in many cases, it is given encouragement by parents who regard the experience gained through dealing as a fitting preliminary for larger operations in the future perhaps in different lines. We do not care to avoid a consideration of a natural phase in the career of many stamp collectors in this country or to ignore a condition that would exist despite all argument but rather, we encourage the development by the best council and precept that are available. By doing so the result usually is that the new dealer pursues his course in a regular way and adds to the activity of the world of philately.

This Special Number—When we are asked where the dealers buy their stocks and similar questions we know that specific answers are desired if they are to be of value. In a book, it is not advisable to list names and addresses; and even by letter one cannot enter fully into the subject. Consequently, this special issue is provided as a directory of established dealers who are in a position to sell to new dealers at wholesale. The advertising pages of this number are an index to dealers who can serve other dealers and collectors; and in connection with "How to Deal in Stamps," they point out the road to real dealing in stamps.

Questioned—A stamp dealer writes: "In regard to making dealers it seems to me that you overlook one factor. That is the demoralization of the trade and the injury to collecting in general of a crop of dealers ignorant of stamp values and costs. Many dealers do not realize what it costs to do business and so sell at a price which really causes them to lose money and collectors get to believe that all dealers should sell all stamps at similar prices." Our correspondent proceeds to say that the result is that most of the really scarce cheap stamps are being driven to Europe in consequence. We believe that any irregularity of this kind is only temporary and is to exist during the period of adjustment. If the new dealer sells too low he will not last long but while he does deal, he brings an element of competition into the business world of stamps that is not without its stimulating influence. Each dealer is likely to make a few customers who continue to buy even though the dealer gives up. The collector's ability to discriminate between stamps grows with experience just as it does with the dealer. If the boy is going to deal come what will, it is better that he be put through a sort of training school.

They Are Here—Have you got your Vera Cruz postmark on U. S. stamp yet? The regulation Mexican office postmarking stamp is used, we understand, beginning May 15th, 1914.

Various and Sundry—From Mr. J. J. Prendergast, Dorchester, Mass., we have received one of his budgets sent periodically, of odds and ends. He writes: "I enclose a few freaks for your 'Museum.' On one cover, you will notice how the post office department is prepared for accidents of this nature; and in this connection, I think that a collection of all the rubber-stamped paper of the department would be interesting. The 'miscues' remind one of a picture in the vestibule of the Massachusetts General Hospital years ago, labeled 'Base Ball Fingers,' and you may be sure that they were a misshapen lot. I am wearing three or four of them. I have noticed several Schermack covers with one stamp over the other; and this piling of stamps is money in the pocket of Uncle Sam. The light-house service tag is a new one to me. I record all the precanceled stamps that I get that are not listed in Smith's catalogue and some day my lists will come in handy for future cataloguers." On the envelope stamped, "Adhered to back of letter addressed—Chicago, Ill.," is the Chicago postmark although the letter was mailed from Boston to another city in the same state. In referring to a penalty envelope used for sending circulars not connected with the government but covered by regular postage, the opinion is given that the envelopes are obsolete having been issued for use of referee in bankruptcy or similar case.

Stamp Duty Instructions—On the reverse side of an old deed, bearing a pair of the twenty-five cent power of attorney, and dated December 16th, 1865, sent us by Mr. W. E. Marsh, we find an interesting schedule under "Stamp Duty." We do not remember ever having seen heretofore detailed instructions of the kind for the convenience of the user of the legal blanks; and the information certainly must have been acceptable to parties executing deeds as all the different kinds of deeds and their stamp requirements are named. For instance: "Sheriff's Deed requires conveyance stamp" and "Deed of Land to Widow in lieu of Dower-Stamp for actual consideration." It may be said here that recently a book that will appeal to those who are students of the Civil War period tax has been published: The United States Federal Internal Tax History, from 1861-1871, by Harry Edwin Smith. $1.50 net. Houghton, Mifflin, Boston.

CO-OPERATION AMONG STAMP DEALERS.

By W. F. SLUSSER.

The need of a stamp dealer's protective association in the United States has impressed me more than once, and considering the advantages which could be derived from an organization of this kind the question seems timely—why not?

A competent organizer is needed—one who is sufficiently well known to the trade to lend substantiability to the proposition, and if the matter is given the proper amount of publicity I doubt not but what most of the reliable dealers would respond.

To be successful, the organization should at the start pay its secretary a sufficient sum to insure his attention to the business of circulating bulletins of information, and this information should consist of authentic cases of fraud and forgery; information relating to reprints, reissues, sales of remainders, demonetized stamps, new issues and such other items of information as would interest a dealer.

A call for ten charter members should be made and then plans formulated for a permanent organization. Dues should not be placed too low, as proper service can only be acquired at proportionate expense.

As to who would be eligible for membership, the necessity of membership and the expense of dues would very likely regulate that, while a supervising board could pass on the business references and "past performances" of the applicant.

A Western paper now calls my attention to the attempted formation of an organization of this kind, but I am not very enthusiastic over the prospectus at hand. To begin with the object of the association is solely to eradicate the "pikers" while the dues are placed at $1.00. This in my opinion, is entirely too low as an initial assessment. It is noteworthy that the main plea is for the dollar. Nothing is outlined definitely nor promised.

For a properly organized association of stamp dealers, obviously, the bulletin system would be best for circulating information among stamp dealers, and these bulletins should be issued at least once a week.

The editorial work could be done by the members, and this is where coöperation comes in. The secretary gets the data; has the bulletins printed and mailed, and if he acts as treasurer also he can keep the membership books.

As I said before, the main thing is coöperation. The future of Philately demands a present reform, and an organized body of stamp dealers, who are on record for clean business, can do much to eliminate some of the present questionable methods of some dealers—not only in this country, but abroad.

There is another phase of the matter which should receive attention, and that is professional ethics among dealers. To illustrate: A letter of inquiry was recently directed to a prominent stamp firm, requesting information of a prospective client who had given them as reference. The firm replied that the party in question had purchased several cheap packets of them, but that they could see no reason why he should give their firm's name as reference. Subsequent investigation revealed the fact that the prospective client had purchased several hundred dollars worth of stamps from this firm's approval sheets, and he had the receipts to show for it.

I could give other instances of this kind.

A small dealer out West writes me as follows: "Being a collector as well as a dealer, I often have my letters ignored or my requests refused just because I have advertised as a dealer. One firm not a thousand miles from Chicago actually accused me of wanting to get posted on their business methods when I applied for a special line of approvals."

This follows pretty near my own experience, and a number of cases could I describe did time and space permit.

A stamp dealer's protective association could well eliminate such methods as these. It is my opinion that any person willing to pay for services or goods ordered should be treated with the strict business courtesy which is their due.

In conclusion I desire to state that, while my time is limited, if there is any way I can serve the promotion of this protective association idea, such service I offer freely.

THE SCOTT CO. BUSINESS CHANGE.

Important developments in the business history of the Scott Stamp and Coin Company have occurred during the past month. The control of the holding company has passed to new interests and Charles E. Hatfield has been elected President of both the Scott Stamp and Coin Co. and of the American Collectors Co., a large majority of the stock of which he now controls.

Mr. Hatfield has been a stamp collector for many years, but until now his name has not been especially familiar to philatelists. In Massachusetts, however, where most of his interests lie, he is well known as a successful, aggressive business man. He is President of the First National Bank of Newton, Mass., (in fact, if the writer is not mistaken, he controls that institution), and is a director of the Lowney Chocolate Company and of various other important commercial enterprises in Boston and vicinity. He has also been active in politics, has served as Mayor of his home city, and for several years was State Chairman of the Republican Party organization in Massachusetts.

Mr. Hatfield's accession brings the assurance of abundant financial backing for the Scott Stamp and Coin Company as well as intelligent and up-to-date business management. His plans include the steady improvement of the already immense stock of stamps, and funds will be available at any time for desirable material, from single stamps up to large collections. It goes without saying that the service rendered to American collectors for over fifty years by this concern will reach a high point of efficiency under these conditions, particularly in the filling of want lists.

Associated with Mr. Hatfield is Hugh M. Clark, who for two years past has been nominally in charge of the approval and auction departments, but whose efforts have made themselves felt throughout the entire business. Mr. Clark will be in immediate charge of the active operations of the company, as general manager. Mr. Luff, Mr. Russell, and Mr. Vandenheuvel remain in active charge of their various departments.—Circular.

SUGGESTIONS FOR BUYING.

By P. C. SMITH.

One of the first serious propositions that confronts a dealer in stamps is "When and where to buy." The first part of the question is easily answered in that a good trade is always worthy of purchase if you are in need of the merchandise offered and it can be secured at a figure that is attractive from a dealer's standpoint.

There are opportunities during the summer months for the buying of collections of medium size that sometimes include here or there some rare stamps. Generally these come from the younger collectors and should not be mistaken for those put upon the market by speculators who skim the milk of its cream and offer the balance at the original price. These men will invariably tell you that "they have removed one or two copies only for their own collection." A good point in favor of buying collections is that you increase your varieties and your ability to supply certain stamps or fill want lists. Care should always be taken to examine the quality of each stamp and don't be over anxious to secure the lot remembering that it is easier to raise a low offer than retreat from a high one and that "well bought is half sold."

As for buying in wholesale lots, a great deal can be recorded in this regard. In many instances a great difference is found in prices of the same stamps. One or two large wholesalers are always "bottom" on the certain values and this can only be found out by continual search.

The writer has made it a practice to catalog every wholesale price list received and by so doing has in his files a ready reference and when hunting for certain stock can, by comparison, soon find the lowest quotation. Again low value stamps are always cheapest in price where they are used largely which is generally in the cities or larger towns of that country. For illustration when the 1908 Austrian Jubilee set 1h to 2kr was being sold in U. S. for about 4½ to 5c a set it was to be had of a large Austrian dealer at 2c per set and this same dealer offered the 1903 Malta, 2½d at 6c each, which was considerably lower than they could be secured here.

It is quite often that what is higher in Europe is cheaper here but a practice of pricing all catalogs and wholesale offerings will furnish information quickly and readily. Only recently a set of stamps was bought in England that catalogs by Scott at $3.00 for 15c, which further proves that a dealer must keep his eyes open continually.

An advertisement in MEKEEL'S for wholesale lists and offerings will very likely secure a generous supply of them. Try it once.

One other suggestion, that of syndicate buying. In the business world there are combinations of men who get together and buy in a body. For instance where one man purchases $100 in goods, ten men will purchase $1000 and quite often at a good deal better price than the single buyer. Why can not this be applied to stamp dealers? I believe that much money can be saved in this way to use in advertising, which means enlarged and growing business, and this spells in large letters, "greater success."

POOLE'S "STAMP COLLECTOR'S GUIDE."

(This is a sample chapter from Poole's splendid book of which there are no less than thirty-two chapters dealing with all the intricacies of stamp collecting. Remit 25c to this office and have a book sent you.)

CHAPTER XXII.—Official Stamps.

Another important class of stamps not available to the public comprises those issued for official use. These stamps are used for franking the mail matter of the more important Government departments. As a matter of strict reality all such mail is carried free but some countries use special stamps as an easy way of determining the exact amount which ought to be credited to the Post Office for the service. Most countries now dispense with the use of these special labels and use instead official envelopes. These official stamps are either of distinctive design or are overprinted with some word or letters to indicate their special use. Generally one series suffices for all the Government departments of a country but occasionally individual series are issued for each separate department as was the case with the United States stamps of 1873-79. These stamps were all inscribed with the name of the Department for whose use they were intended but most other English speaking countries have converted their ordinary postage stamps into official ones by the simple expedient of applying an overprint.

Where the word "OFFICIAL" or "SERVICE" forms part of the inscription or overprint the character of the label is at once apparent. Thus the overprints "Army Official," on the stamps of Great Britain, or "Army Service," on the stamps of Sudan, are self explanatory and at once show that the labels were used on the correspondence of the department dealing with army matters. Where other words or simply letters are used the beginner may find some difficulty in arriving at the proper character of these stamps but the following list of overprints (except where otherwise stated) should simplify matters:—

Admiralty Official.—A British Government department dealing with naval affairs.

Board of Education.—A Government department of Great Britain.

G. F. B.—Found on some of the stamps of Tonga. The letters stand for "Gaue Faka Buleaga" which means On Government Service.

Govt. Parcels.—An overprint found on various British stamps issued to the different Government departments for use on parcels.

I. R. Official.—Used in connection with the Inland Revenue department of Great Britain.

O. H. M. S.—"On His Majesty's Service." Found on some of the King Edward stamps of the Somaliland Protectorate.

On H. M. S.—"On His (or Her) Majesty's Service." Found on the stamps of India and the Somaliland Protectorate.

On Public Trust Office Business.—This lengthy inscription forms the chief part of one of the official stamps of New Zealand issued in 1891.

On S. S. S.—"On Sirmoor State Service." On the stamps of the Indian Native State of Sirmoor.

O. P. S. O.—"On Public Service Only." Found on many of the stamps of New Zealand.

O. S.—"On Service." Found on the stamps of New South Wales, South Australia, Trinidad, and Liberia.

O. S. G. S.—"On Sudan Government Service." On the stamps of Sudan.

O. W. Official.—Used in connection with the Office of Works department of Great Britain.

P. G. S.—"Perak Government Service." On Straits Settlements stamps converted for the use of Perak.

Postage Free.—These words, with a crown between, and a border around like that on the first stamps for the Cook Is. form the design of an official stamp used in New Zealand in 1887.

R. H. Official.—On British stamps used in connection with the Royal Household.

In addition to the above South Australia furnishes a series of 55 different overprints but as these are rarely met with it is hardly necessary to detail them with their respective meanings.

In countries where the inscriptions are not in the English language more difficulty will be experienced in identifying the official stamps. Most of those of the Central and South American republics are easily distinguished for the word "OFICIAL" or "FRANQUEO OFICIAL" (Official Frank) forms part of the design or overprint. Other forms will be found in the list given below:—

AMERICAN NEWSPAPER STAMPS.

By Fred. J. Melville.

At the present time, when the United States Post Office is simplifying its stamp system by abandoning the distinctive stamps for special services, it is interesting to recall the rather grotesque and afterwards very handsome series of stamps issued in America for newspaper postage. With the exception of a short period subsequent to the passing of the Postal Act in 1851 newspapers and periodicals have enjoyed generally preferential rates of postage in the United States. But in the early days, while the Government post was saddled with the unremunerative transmission of newspapers, the privately owned express companies and local posts were in competition with the Government on the profit-earning side of the business.

To the newspaper proprietor the express companies and local posts unhampered by the routine of the Government service, could offer advantageous rates for and quicker distribution of newspapers in bulk from publishers to distributing agents. In 1863 the Postmaster-General was empowered to fix rates and terms upon which route agents were to receive and deliver packages of newspapers and periodicals "not received from nor designed for delivery at any post office." Under this system the difficulty of keeping a check on moneys received called for the use of special stamps, and the series of "newspaper and periodical" stamps of the United States was inaugurated in the summer of 1865.

Only three denominations were provided, and these stamps are probably regarded as the largest postage stamps ever issued. Had they been designed for letter-postage it might have been said of them, as of the Djibouti and Obock postage stamps, that instead of sticking the stamp on the letter, it was necessary to stick the letter on the stamp. Their measurements are, roughly, 4 in. by 2¼ in., and they were generally cancelled, not with an ordinary postmark, but with a brush dipped in blue or black ink. These three stamps are the only surface-printed postage stamps which have been issued by the United States Post-office, and they form a crude contrast to the handsome general issues engraved in taille-douce. They bear portraits; the 5c blue shows a bust of Washington after the statue by Jean Antoine Houdon, the 10c green depicts Benjamin Franklin, and the 25c scarlet was the first stamp issued bearing a portrait of Abraham Lincoln, whose assassination in 1865 qualified him for admission in that year to the series of stamp portraits of America's illustrious dead. These stamps are also peculiar in that they bear a reference to the Postal Act authorising their use. "Sec. 38, Act of Congress, approved March 3d, 1863."

In 1874 Congress approved an Act which provided for a new method of newspaper distribution, and new rates, the latter being 2c a pound for publications issued not less frequently than once a week, and 3c a pound for those issued less frequently. The publisher, or a known agent, delivered the entire issue for distribution to postal subscribers to the post-office, where they were weighed in bulk, and assessed at the pound rate without regard to the number of individual addresses or covers. For the operation of the new system a handsome series of twenty-four stamps was issued, not for affixing to the newspapers or periodicals, but for affixing to the memoranda of mailing or other postal forms. The twenty-four denominations were ranged so that any multiple of the 2c or 3c per pound rate could be obtained by the use of not more than five stamps. The values, with their allegorical designs, were: 2c, 3c, 4c, 6c, 8c, and 10c, statue of America, after Crawford's statue on the dome of the Capitol; 12c, 24c, 36c, 48c, 60c, 72c, 84c, 96c, statue of Astræa or Justice; $1.92, Ceres, Goddess of Agriculture; $3, Goddess of Victory; $6, Clio, the Muse of History; $9, Minerva; $12, Vesta, Goddess of the Fireside; $24, Goddess of Peace; $36, figure representing Commerce, with caduceus in left, and a miniature ship in right hand; $48, Hebe, Goddess of Youth; $60, statue of an Indian maiden.

These stamps were printed by the Continental Bank Note Company until 1879, when the American Bank Note Company took over the contract. The printings by these two firms can be distinguished chiefly by the thin hard paper used by the earlier contractors, and the soft, porous paper used by their successors. In 1879 the uniform rate of 2 cents per pound was applied all round on newspaper and periodical matter, so the 3 cents and 9 cents denominations were discontinued. In 1885 the rate was reduced to 1 cent per pound on all such matter sent through the mails by publishers or newsagents, and a 1 cent stamp (statue of "America") was issued.

The Government department known as the Bureau of Engraving and Printing took over the manufacture of all United States adhesive postage stamps in 1894, and printed a few values of the old newspaper and periodical stamps in that year. The following year the bureau produced a series in similar designs, but with a different range of denominations, and the "cents" values were of smaller size. These were 1, 2, 5, and 10 cents (America), 25 and 50 cents (Justice), $2 (Victory), $5 (Clio), $10 (Vesta), $20 (Peace), $50 (Commerce), $100 (Indian Maiden). These were at first issued on paper without any watermark, but later they appeared on paper watermarked U. S.P.S. (United States Postal Service).

The use of special stamps for newspapers and periodicals was discontinued in 1898, and nowadays postmasters collect the postage from publishers and newsagents in money, giving receipts therefor. In 1899 the United States Post Office offered for sale to collectors 55,000 sets of reprints and remainders of the bureau's series of newspaper stamps, deriving a total income of $134,945 from this source. —Daily Telegraph.

Please remember these are not "special" prices—they are the regular prices taken from my counter books. Prices on all other stamps are in the same proportion, and may I reiterate every stamp is priced NET just what I ask for it, whether you "want" it or not. I do NOT do a "50% off or 25%" or any "discount" business and then charge "catalogue" on "want list." One fair, honest price on each stamp and the same price to everybody. WHY NOT WRITE ME!!

FRANK P. BROWN COMPANY, 325 Washington Street, BOSTON, MASS.

THE "ONE-LUNGER."

By Edwin B. Hill.

I have seen many men and some women with that hopeless misery in their faces which bear likewise the pariah's knowledge of doom: for this is the "Winter of our discontent," wherein the health-seeker from the East, fleeing the approaching cold, revels in the blue skies and glorious warmth of an Arizona winter. I repeat, I have seen many men—but keep me, pitying gods! from second sight of one passing face in which shone forth the hopeless longing for the home forever closed to him by reason of his affliction, and thought of the possible fate of dear ones should his life and theirs further converge.

I had known Barton Mack as boy and man; for he was from my home town. Unfortunately for him, he had not outgrown the illiberalism of youth. Our free full life did not appeal to him; and, besides, he was cursed with a certain aloofness which he could not overcome, and this, of itself, prevented the "mixing" essential to proper understanding of men and manners in the West. I had done my best, but gave him up as hopeless a fortnight before. I couldn't even interest him in stamps. This morning he passed the shack, afoot, his face studiously set against me. I did not hail him. This fact was strong on my conscience. When the sting of it was just taking hold, the inevitable cloud of dust appeared. It was a minute later that Jimmy O.' threw himself from his petted cow-pony, hurtled his way up the path to the hammock, flopped into it, and delivered himself of the single phrase, "By heck!" that expressed to him grief or anger. Then he laughed.

"Say! It sure would get you! That old cow-puncher, Jack Frazer's got an auto—I see him stickin' the spurs into it an' yellin' 'whoa! whoa!' as he went up MacDonald street, me wavin' my Scotch plaid at him an' yellin' fit to bust my lungs. I sure near got pinched by that new marshal, only the boys kidded him to a finish. An' Phil Meta, too—he's got an auto. Criminy Jims! Next we know, you'll be gettin' yours out, an' Johnny'll be buyin' one, an' the hull range'll smell o' gasoline, an'—"

Jimmy was out of breath. He rolled a cigarette, and looked quizzically at me, for my auto was taboo. I had bought "Doc" Palmer's one-lunger discard, which "Doc" declared would really go without the aid of horses, got stuck on the desert seven miles from home, and was towed ignominously into town by two gleeful cowboys, one of whom insisted upon relieving me at the steering-wheel. After that experience, I carefully locked the one-lunger in the shed and tinkered with it off and on. It had its fits and starts of going, but the fits predominated.

All of which is a stage aside.

"Anyway," resumed Jimmy, from the obscurity of cigarette smoke, "since Frevor Moore went 'hover 'ome' after sellin' his ranche to good ole Johnny Williams, an' ole Eddy Fyne's foreman, an' the red-headed girl in the postoffice is properly roped an' tied to her puncher choice—thereby deprivin' me of my light through life,—I say, friend o' mine"—

Jimmy stopped, looking expectantly down the path. Barton Mack was passing once more, reading a letter. He looked up, smiled, spoke, and passed on. Jimmy turned to me again.

"It's a bum bully old world, an' we like it lots. But me—well, breathe it not—or at least gentle-like: I'm goin' back to college—Engineerin' fer mine."

I looked incredulous.

"Yes; I shall resume my studies and my English undefiled. This tranquil life has no further charms for me. Dad has issued his call to the wild—and I have heard it."

When Jimmy sloughed his range language I knew it was generally serious. This time it was fatal.

"Before I soak up education I'm continuin' human," declared Jimmy, with his whimsical smile. "Meantime, who's your friend?"

I told poor Mack's history from the cradle to the verge of the grave.

"And, Jimmy," I said in closing, "if there's anything you can do—anything you can think up to interest him, do it. It'll save his life.

Jimmy smoked and blew rings for an hour while I read the Weekly, small ads and all. Then he broke the silence.

"Speakin' of autos, what'll you take fer yours?"

"Jimmy," I said, sadly, "if you weren't a friend of mine I'd give it to you."

"Nope. I'll lease it," declared Jimmy.

So, for the sum of one dollar, to make it legal, Jimmy O.' leased a certain Cadillac one-lunger, which I warranted not to go, and I further loaned him the use of tools and shop—garage, Jimmy insisted on calling it—for the same period. Jimmy took possession at once, and I started into the mountains that afternoon, to delve amongst some prehistoric dwellings.

Three weeks later I came into town, brown, unshaven, my clothing in rags, but rich with precious specimens of other days. A familiar chug-chug struck my ear, and behold! up the main street of Willow went my old one-lunger, Barton Mack at the wheel, Jimmy beside him.

"The holy pride of parenthood's in their systems," explained Jack Frazer, whom I encountered on the bank corner.

An hour later Jimmy came up the old path to the waiting hammock, dug up "the makin's," and when properly obscured, explained:

"You see, I knowed that boy was plumb dyin' fer somethin' to occupy his twenty-four hours, only eight of which he had to sleep in, so I thinks o' your auto. That'd keep anybody busy. Sure!"

I nodded approval.

"Then I milled around till eatin' time, an' follered 'em in to the chink's. Jack was there—an' Phil—an' Bart—all lookin' solemn as a Pima on parade. Me—I felt some swelled up.

"'Hello!' I says. 'Where's your auto, Jack?'

"'Shop,' says Jack, sour like.

"'Broke a laig, Jack? You sure'll have to shoot it.' I says. Bart snickered—fer the first time since he left home, I bet.

"Jack had to grin, an' he says: 'Well, ole scout, wait till you get one!'

Then Jack started to eat his soup, but I cooled it for him. I says:

"'Me? Oh, I got one, now."

Jimmy looked at me quizically.

"But I won't repeat the language them two ole bachelors used up on me when they found it was Doc's—er—former patient. But say! the kid—Bart—he flares up an' butts in; says that auto was made in his ole town—Detroit-fer-Mine—nothin' to beat it, even if it was old and honest—an' he 'lowed he'd make it go if I'd let him. Say! He showed as much interest as an over-due mortgage, an' we fed 'im plenty.

"We never stopped fer pie, even, but hit it fer the garage Say, if there's anythin' in mechanics Bart don't know, shoot me! He had to disembowel that auto an' for four days I was cleaning parts. Then he gets busy an' assembles. Go? You seen us!"

Jimmy swung back and forth, the joy of conquest in his soul. Up the path came Barton Mack, color in cheeks, and eyes alight with interest, with a warm clasp of the hand, he said:

"Can't thank you enough. If it hadn't been for 'Old Faithful' and Jimmy, here, I'd ended everything three weeks ago. Now I'll get well—the Doctor tells me so—said all I needed was to take interest"—

"He's renewed the mortgage," interrupted Jimmy, from his obscurity.

"And I love the country and the people—and the family is coming out to spend the Winter!"

Mack was happy as a boy. He had arrived!

"One of his sisters collects stamps," added Jimmy, "an' she's goin' to bring 'em with her. She's got Monaco complete, shades an' all, an' two copies o' the five francs, first issue, Bart tells me. She specializes in Monaco, he says."

"She'll give you one of them sure, Jimmy," declared Mack. "I'll make her."

Jimmy looked horror-struck; then he blushingly added:

"An' now that we're closin' these simple annals of the range, allow me to add that I'll take that course in engineerin' in little ole Ann Arbor. I'll board at Bart's."

"Which is fitting close for these chronicles and Jimmy's history.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Herman Boers sends us a goodly batch of clippings dealing with the parcel post service. He informs us that Ernest Hack, formerly with the McGraw Stamp Co., has gone into business as a dealer in old coins, postage stamps and bills at 206 Jefferson Av., Detroit.

—A long-time subscriber calls our attention to the fact that during the past season he has written no less than five representative dealers seeking approval selections from them, upon the strength of previous purchases amounting to hundreds of dollars, only to have his communications pigeon-holed or absolutely ignored. May we remark that this is a very poor way for a dealer to build up a business.

—"As per your request of the 4th instant beg to advise that the United States Postal Agency at this point formally began the sale of stamps, issuing money orders, and registration on May 4th. However, we began the city delivery by native carriers on the previous day—the 3d."—H. M. Robinson, Postal Agent, Vera Cruz.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from S. H. Nason, R. H. Mann, Herman Boers (4).

—Mr. King, of the firm of Whitfield King & Co., has gone on a month's vacation, making a cruise to Portugal, the Azores, Madeira, Canary Islands, Gibraltar and the Mediterranean.

—We are indebted to Hugo Kuenstler for a number of clippings in relation to the parcel post service, also several others taken from papers of bygone days.

—Collectors are keen on the scent for U. S. stamps with Vera Cruz cancellation. R. G. Montgomery submits a 2c U. S. cancelled with the Mexican automatic cancellation of four wavy lines. E. A. Meehan sends clippings with postmark illustrated.

—"I wish to say that the returns from Mekeel's during the past season have been exceedingly good and have had all the business I could possibly take care of."—R. S. Green.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

AN AUCTION SALE, THE PLACE TO BUY.

By MAX F. BIER.

It has always been a mystery to me why there are so many collectors and dealers who have never tried buying at auction. In my eight years experience in the stamp auction business I have found that in nearly every case when a philatelist, whether he be a collector or dealer, once can be induced to start bidding on auction sales, that he becomes a regular auction buyer. The reasons are manifold. In the first place you can bid by mail, if you live hundreds of miles away from the city where the sale is held, and you have just as much chance of securing lots as the floor bidders. Secondly, you know you will not be overcharged, as the auctioneer always starts each lot on the second highest mail bid. Then the floor bidders, and the auctioneer, with his mail bids, run the price up, until the lot in question is knocked down. As an example, if you are a mail bidder and bid $2.50 on a certain lot. The next highest bid is $1.75. The auctioneer announces $1.75 bid. The floor bidders run it up to $2.10, and the auctioneer bids $2.20 for you. As no one bids higher you get the lot at $2.20, or 30c less than your original bid. In the third place you are absolutely sure that all stamps purchased at auction are genuine, as they are always passed upon by experts before being catalogued. The auction catalogues now-a-days describe lots so carefully that you know exactly what you are buying, and in case an error is made, the lot, or lots are always returnable.

No dealer, big or small, can afford to overlook the auction sale as one of his principal sources of supply. Stock cannot be secured as cheaply anywhere as at auction. The dealer with only a moderate capital can purchase a number of lots giving a large variety of good salable stamps at an outlay of only a fraction of the amount it would require to purchase a collection that would be large enough to contain the same grade stamps.

One must remember that there are hundreds of common stamps found in all of the smaller collections, and in order to get a good variety of the better grade specimens, a collection must be fairly large. Here is where the beauty of an auction sale comes in. You can go through the catalogue and simply bid on the lots that contain the stamps you need for your own trade. For instance, such lots as Congo, 29 varieties, catalogue $5.00, Panama, 32 varieties, cataloguing $6.25, etc. These stamps are all excellent sellers and could probably be purchased at one third or one quarter of catalogue. They would never be found in the average small collection however, and if it were not for the auction sale, the smaller dealer would have no chance whatever of getting hold of such stamps.

Next in order "Collections by Countries." By this title we refer to large lots of a single country or groups of countries, such as 215 varieties Nicaragua, 170 varieties Cuba, Philippines, Porto Rico, etc. Lots like these can nearly always be purchased at one-third to one-fifth of catalogue, and sometimes even less, so it can be easily seen that they yield a good profit when broken up and placed in approval books.

Many sales contain at least a few wholesale lots, and sometimes as many as 200 or 300 can be found in a single sale. Occasionally an entire sale is devoted to these alone, but this is an exception, and only occurs when a large dealer's stock is being disposed of. Wholesale lots are of interest to every dealer. In making up approval sheets it is essential to have a quantity of each stamp, so that each specimen can be replaced on the sheet as sold.

Wholesale lots can nearly always be purchased much cheaper at auction than from any wholesale dealer, and in addition, also bear in mind that many of the stamps offered in auction sales cannot be purchased from dealers at all. Consignments of desirable stamps to be sold at auction are received over here from all parts of the world, and the wholesale dealer has to compete with the retailer to obtain them. Of course some lots are too large for the average dealer, who only requires from 10 to 100 of each stamp, but if the catalogue is looked over carefully, many lots will be found that will suit. All auction firms know just about what quantities of an individual stamp, or set of stamps, the ordinary dealer requires, and they fix up the wholesale lots accordingly. Of course it must be borne in mind that the larger a lot is, the cheaper it can be bought in proportion to its value. There is always keen competition on the smaller lots, and prices realized are usually quite good. It would be rather difficult to give any idea as to what to bid, but usually the lots realize from one-quarter to one-sixth of catalog. Sometimes of course they bring less.

I have covered the auction buying field pretty thoroughly and trust this article may be the means of inducing many, who have never before tried it, to at least give it a trial. Write to the various auction firms for catalogues and send in your bids. The probabilities are that after the first purchase, you will become one of the large army of auction buyers which firmly believes that an auction sale is the place for both dealer and collector to buy.

KING GEORGE AS A PHILATELIST.

His Majesty has invited the delegates of the Philatelic Congress meeting in London to visit Windsor Castle, but they will not have the pleasure of seeing his remarkably fine collection of stamps. This collection, on the compilation of which His Majesty has been engaged for many years, has not yet been arranged for display, and it is probable that E. Denny Bacon, the royal stamp curator, will be occupied for several years more before it is ready. Mr. Bacon is also superintending the arrangement of the collection of the Prince of Wales, who, like his father, is an enthusiastic collector.

Though the King is one of the greatest enthuiasts in the country regarding stamps, it must not be thought that His Majesty is one of those who allows desire to outrun discretion. He is always willing to consider desirable additions to his store—one of the chief firms of dealers sent three hundred pounds worth of rare stamps on approval to Buckingham Palace only a few days ago—but he is gradually weeding out those which he no longer requires. For instance, last week His Majesty sent stamps to the value of eighty pounds to his dealer to be sold, and in this, as in other matters, he shows sound sense and judgment, for he knows the proper price for every stamp.

When His Majesty's collection is finally arranged it will be found to be the most complete collection of stamps of the Empire in the world.—Manchester (Eng.) Courier.

INQUIRES ABOUT STAMPS.

It was an Englishman who called attention to the legend on the Red Cross stamps that are sold with postage stamps by the mechanical vendors on the desk at the Wolcott.

"Relief Prevention," he read. "I say," he remarked to the clerk, "what's the sense in preventing relief?"

"I think," suggested the clerk, "it should be read, 'Relief, comma or dash, Prevention'."

"Then, why doesn't it? I would wager the machines lose many a tuppence ha'penny because people have to puzzle that motto out."

"I guess everybody is not so literal, or else doesn't read the motto," remarked the clerk later. "Those machines do a big business."—N. Y. Times.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents.

ALBANIA.—The Scanderbeg portrait stamps have been overprinted, "7 Mars" obliquely, and "1467 RROFTE MBRETI 1914" in a curve at the bottom, all in violet. As Prince William has been driven to the protection of the foreign warships, it is probable that the issue of stamps with his portrait will be indefinitely postponed.

AUSTRALIA.—Ewen's Weekly is informed that the large "O S" for perforating official stamps leads to a large amount of tearing. Therefore a smaller punch is to be substituted, the 2d value having already been issued with the smaller letters.

BAHAMAS.—The Colonial Journal states that the King Edward stamps will be withdrawn from circulation on the first of June.

BAVARIA.—The New England Stamp Co. has shown us the 5pf and 10pf of the new set printed tete beche. This is done so that the stamps can be conveniently bound into booklets, as was done for the Swiss booklets. The pages have an occasional blank to make the change come right. All pfennig values, from 3 to 80pf, can be bought in rolls of 500 or 1000 stamps, the extra charge being 11pf or 22pf respectively.

BRITISH GUIANA.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the 24c value in the new King George type. New stamps of 60c and 96c value have also been supplied to the Colony, the latter being on tinted paper with white back.

Adhesive.

24c lilac and green.

BRITISH SOLOMON ISLANDS.—The ½d and 1d values have been supplied, inscribed "Postage and Revenue," and plates are being prepared for the remainder of the set, according to the Colonial Journal.

EPIRUS.—Philately is hearing the echoes from the latest outbreak in the Balkans, the Epirotes having issued a series of stamps. The design shows an Epirote holding his gun ready for firing. The 10l and 25l values read "Epirus" at the top and the others, "Autonomos Epirus." These stamps have zigzag rouletting.

Adhesives.

1l orange.
5l green.
10l rose carmine.
50l brown.

GIBRALTAR. — Morocco Agencies. — The current 1d stamp of England has been surcharged for use at the Morocco Agencies in an entirely new form. "Morocco" reads up on the left and "Agencies" down on the right. The value "10 centimos" is printed in two lines at the extreme bottom.

Adhesive.

On stamps of Great Britain.
"10 centimos" on 1d scarlet.

GREAT BRITAIN.—Our English friends are showing great interest in the position of the watermarks. For instance, Ewen's Weekly lists two complete sets of the new postage due stamps, with cipher watermark to right or left as may be.

GREECE.—Ewen's Weekly quotes the Berliner Briefmarken-Zeitung as chronicling a new value lithographed. The 20l is the latest to be thus issued, the color being deep violet.

GUINEA.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the new Ceres type stamps for this Colony. The values and colors are the same as for Portugal.

HONDURAS.—Whitfield King & Co. report having found a full sheet of the 10c on 6c provisional, recently chronicled, with double surcharge.

HONG KONG.—As noted some time since, the current Hong Kong stamps are appearing on surface tinted paper, the 50c and $5 values being reported by Whitfield King & Co.

INHAMBANE.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the new stamps for this Colony in the Ceres type. The values and colors are the same as for the mother country.

LUXEMBURG.—The new series of stamps, with portrait of the Grand Duchess, Marie Adelaide, has begun to appear. The 10c, the first value received, has come to hand from Whitfield King & Co. and the New England Stamp Co. The portrait of the Grand Duchess, who is both young and pretty, is in a large upright oblong opening, surmounted by a Crown, which touches the upper frame line. At either side the words "Grand" "Duché" appear, and across the bottom, "De Luxembourg," both lines in double-lined letters. Small squares are placed in the corners above the name of the country, with "10" at the left and "C" at the right, in colorless characters. Above these squares the portrait is framed at the side by wide bands of ornamental work. The stamps are printed on wove paper, and perforated 11¼x11.

Adhesive.

10c claret.

MALTA.—The 1d value in the new King George set has come to hand from Whitfield King & Co. It is in the Grenada Type.

Adhesive.

1d carmine.

MEXICO.—Paul W. Riedell has shown us a full set of the Sonora stamps, issued by the Constitutionalists in Northern Mexico. The stamp proper is of small size, 19x23 mm., but there is a talon, 19x10 mm., below, probably for use as a fiscal stamp. Mr. Riedell calls them officials. The sign shows the statue of Justice holding the sword and scales surrounded by a circle, with "Gobierno Constitucionalista." Above the circle is a curved tablet with "Mexico," and another below has "Pesos" or "Centavos," with the value in figures in the lower corners in scrolled openings. The talon has a similar arrangement of the words "Mexico" and "Pesos" or "Centavos," but the figures of value take the place of the statue in a small circle in the centre. The stamps are unwatermarked, printed on white wove paper and perforated 12, the talon being separated from the body of the stamp by a line of rouletting.

Official Adhesives.

2c pale emerald green.
3c orange.
5c red.
10c dark green.
25c pale blue.
50c yellow.
1p purple.
5p olive gray.
10p dark brown.
50p violet.
100p blue.

NEW ZEALAND.—The Australian Philatelist states that the old 2sh blue fiscal is now printed on chalk-surfaced paper, and is being used as a postage stamp in place of the pictorial stamp of this value previously in use. It is perforated 14x14½.

NIGERIA.—The Colonial Journal says that the new stamps have been shipped. They are of the same design as the current Northern Nigeria stamps, the 3d, 4d, 1sh, 5sh and 10sh being on tinted paper with white back.

SAMOS.—Owing to a shortage of stamps, 3400 to 4000 sets of the second issue have been surcharged "Ellas" in Greek characters, the values so treated being 1l, 5l, 10l, 25l and 50l. The above is translated by Ewen's Weekly from Die Post.

Whitfield King & Co.'s New Issue Service

We are the pioneers of the New Issue Trade, this having been our specialty for over forty years. We have two separate and distinct services, one for collectors and the other for dealers who buy in wholesale quantities.

TO DEALERS ONLY. Our terms to the trade are 10% on face value or cost price if certain minimum quantities are taken, particulars of which will be sent on application. These terms include not only British Colonies but also all Foreign Countries. Trade consignments of new issues are sent out weekly.

OUR WHOLESALE LIST contains more quotations than any other and is sent free on receipt of business card.

OUR WEEKLY TRADE CIRCULAR is sent to dealers only on payment of 60c per annum to cover cost of postage; this amount may be sent in postage stamps of current issue.

TO COLLECTORS. We guarantee a thoroughly efficient and complete New Issue Service unequalled by any other, our terms being 2d in the shilling or 16⅔% on the face value.

Full explanatory circular of either Service sent on request, when applying for same please state whether you are a dealer or collector and if the former send some of your printed matter to show your bona fides.

NEW STAMPS SHAME PEACOCK'S COLOR

Postal Employes Argue Vainly Over Taupe, Maple Leaf Brown and Alice Blue.

Fashion's color creators must doff their hats to Uncle Sam.

The government's stamp printers have produced shades that would turn the peacock green with jealousy. There are five new hues on five new stamps issued yesterday and costing, respectively, 7, 9, 12, 20 and 30 cents.

T. W. Bean, cashier of the Chicago post office, and five assistants tried to name the colors. They argued for half an hour, each growing red in the face. They failed; but they agreed that the man who mixed the colors must have been a "ladies' tailor."

The 7-cent stamp, bearing a picture of George Washington, is a cross between steel gray and fashionable taupe.

The 9-cent stamp's shade would be labeled American Beauty or French red in color in the shops along Michigan avenue.

The color of the 12-cent stamp is a mixture of the popular mahogany and deep orchid shades.

Alice blue is the only name that could be given the 20-cent stamp. The 30-cent stamp's color closely resembles the new tango yellow or dead-maple-leaf brown. —Chicago Record-Herald.

OFFERINGS IN NEW ISSUES.

The gap made by the withdrawal of the firm of W. H. Peckitt from the field of new issue dealing is being rapidly filled, and our columns this week reflect the activity in this direction. The firms of Whitfield King & Co., Hugo Griebert & Co., and Bright & Son are all catering with a marked degree of success to American trade. Many American firms are also branching out in this direction.

The firm of Whitfield King & Co., Ipswich, Eng., supplies the trade at 10% over face and believes it a good business policy to make a distinction between dealer and collector. The firm charges two pence on the shilling to collectors, which is of itself a low rate in view of the service this firm is able to render. Mr. King informs us that he has almost trebled his number of retail new issue subscribers since the beginning of the year. The stamps of all foreign countries are imported, and the service is most complete and efficient.

Mr. Griebert of the firm of Hugo Griebert & Co., has sent out his initial instalment of new issues and its recipients must certainly feel that the firm has taken hold admirably of the situation. There is no question but that Mr. Griebert will be able to make good. He has ample capital and withal a splendid general stock with which to supplement the needs of his patrons.

The firm of Bright & Son has not taken large space to announce its new issue service, but week by week has conveyed the information in their advertising that they are in the game and intend to give good service in the direction of supplying new issues. The quarter page advertisement found in this number will give one an idea of the large business that this firm is doing in its manifold philatelic activities.

CULTIVATING TRADE.

By P. C. SMITH.

In cultivating trade the average dealer is at somewhat of a disadvantage from the fact that his dealings with his customers must be entirely done through the medium of the mail. A man selling goods, who can come in personal contact with his patrons immediately brings to bear his personality and a careful successful salesman sees to it that this is always of such good quality that it makes a favorable impression.

In the case of the stamp merchant his introduction to his customer is done by his letter and merchandise. If clean, neat and shows careful study it will demand and receive attention.

Recently a friend of the writer applied for membership in one of the larger Philatelic Societies and his name was published in its official organ with the result a numerous supply of approval offerings have been received. We have looked these over together and of twenty different lots only two were put up so as to demand attention. The other eighteen were dirty, prices crossed out and marked over, stamps in very poor condition, priced above catalog and other faults too numerous to mention. They were all returned as received and rightly so.

If the dealers expect these lots will attract trade they have made a very wrong calculation as it is a clear case of a poor salesman approaching a purchaser with an unattractive appearance and a poor business card. The writer has sent out many approval selections and it has always been the practice to make them as pleasing as possible and the result is that we have numerous letters in our file congratulating us on their neat looks. We recall one letter where the receiver considered our prices a little higher than some others but noted that they were so attractive that they could not help buying from them.

It has been the practice of some dealers when a remittance is sent in excess of what is due either through error or oversight to let it pass without noticing it; but by always calling your patron's attention to it you make a friend and one who will remember you as one also who is "square as a die."

This kind of advertising goes farther than any other kind and puts you down as one who is strictly honest in your dealings.

Sell what you have to offer at a reasonable profit and do not make one standard of price. For example if a stamp costs you 10% of catalog you are able and should offer it at a much less price than what costs you 30%. Some men last in the stamp business for a short time and then you hear of them no more, for this reason, that they do not apply business principle to their trading. Your customers have an idea of what the market offers and if you are going to hold them your prices must be right. If they buy a set of stamps of you today for $1.00 and a few weeks later another dealer offers them for 75c you will find they will go where they can buy to the best advantage.

Be prompt. Make your replies on or before the next day if possible. Promptness is a great factor in cultivating trade.

There are times when a little personal interest in the patron will help the dealer wonderfully.

We know of a case where a packet of stamps was given to a Y. M. C. A. Boys' stamp club with the result that the members became excellent customers and drew other trade by speaking a word to other collectors in the city. A little personal interest goes a long way in establishing permanent trade relations.

Just a few rules to follow: (1) Be prompt. (2) Make your offerings attractive, clean and inviting. (3) Be strictly honest. Don't take a cent that does not belong to you. (4) Study your customers and watch for opportunities to make them friends. (5) Keep a card index and know your patrons' needs and wants. (6) Remember while money is needful in business it is not always the chief factor towards success.

Meetings first (informal) and third (regular) Tuesdays, Room 322, Tremont Bldg., 7:30 P. M.

BOSTON, MASS., May 19, 1914.

The 314th (regular) meeting was held at the Club Room this evening with 27 members and friends present. In the absence of President Barry, Vice-President Barrett occupied the chair.

The minutes of the April meeting were read and approved. The Treasurer's report showed a balance of $314.46 on hand. The resignation of No. 360 was read and accepted. A letter from Mrs. Jesse W. Sargent was read. The names of Messrs. Frank L. Coes and Geo. R. Armstrong were presented as applicants for membership. Sr. Samuel Giberga was elected as Member No. 593. The receipt of the Year Book of the Southern Philatelic Association was acknowledged.

The Chairman announced that the guest of the evening, our Honorary Member, Mr. Charles Lathrop Pack, was unfortunately kept away by sickness, but that four volumes of his magnificent collection, including the early Uruguays and Victorias, would be on view. These proved of very great interest to those present, not only in the remarkable showing of specimens but in the great amount of research work done on them. A unanimous vote of thanks, coupled with regret for his illness and absence, was passed to Mr. Pack.

UNDOOLEY ON STAMP AUCTIONS.

By CHARLES H. FOWLE.

"Did I understand ye to say ye attinded a sthamp auction whin ye were East?" asked Finnerty.

"I did that an' siveral since," says Undooley.

"What are they like?" asked Finnerty.

"Same's any auction, to be sure; only the goods are pretty lightweight. A few pounds of sthamps will bring as much as $1,000," says Undooley.

"Is it possible?" says Finnerty.

"It's a fact," says Undooley. "I'll till ye about wan I attinded last week. Niver moind where it were, for I hav' no wish to advertise any wan sale over another, but it's enough for ye to know I wur thar. It were quite a distance to the hall, an' on the way I passed a number of me old resorts, so I dropped in now an' thin to hav' a chat an' a drop or two. Whin I got thar I found a few wild-eyed men looking over the goods, an' the auctioneer was drumming on the desk an' waiting to be told to go ahead. A few more dropped in, an' at jist 7.30 the slaughter began. The first lots were United Sthates, an' a man named 'Order' bought most of thim, though I couldn't make out where he sat an' I didn't hear him bid. Finally some of the rest of the push jined in an' I thought I would catch on, too. A set of Treasury stamps was put up an' some wan bid on thim wan dollar tin. I says 'wan fifteen' an' they raised me, an' I bid siveral times. Finally I bid wan eighty an' thin wan eighty-five. 'Ye are bidding agin yerself,' says the auctioneer. 'I couldn't bid agin a better man,' says I. 'You go on an' sell the sthamps an' I'll do the bidding. They were knocked down to me for two forty-five.

"'Stuck again,' says a man named Wisdom. 'Ye're a liar,' says I, for 'tis the first I've bought 'tween you an' me, Finn. That fellow attinds ivery sale for fear some other mon might git a bargain. Why, he nearly died 'cause wan got away from him that night."

"How's that?" says Finnerty.

"Ye see, they put up some entires. I thought I would have a try at thim, for ye git more for ye money. 'I have no bid on these,' says the auctioneer; 'a fine bunch of entires, cat. $8.50. What am I offered?'

"No one spoke at first, but pretty soon Wisdom says '15 cents.' Now, me bhoy, says I to meself, I'll git aven with ye, so I bid $2.25, an' they was knocked down to me; the poor fellow lost a bargain, 'cause I threw me money away jist to throw him, an' I think he would have gone as high as 30 cents if I had coaxed him on. He nearly fell off his chair, but after awhile got over it an' bid 10 cents on a $20 sthamp which was a bit heavily canceled.

"Pretty soon they put up a fine sthamp which cat. $30. It was passed 'round for us to squint at an' was knocked down for $7.55, but whin they tried to find it they couldn't, an' some wan remimbered that a stranger, who sat near the door, asked to see it an' went out soon after.

"Well, they sthopped the sale an' made a rule that no sthamps could be passed down to the floor unless ye deposited ye watch with the auctioneer," says Undooley.

"What time is it?" says Finnerty.

"Ah, ye sly divil, I hav' me watch yit," says Undooley.

"It's smart ye are to kape the watch and sthamps, too," says Finnerty.

"You don't mean to insinerate that I'd take a sthamp without paying for it, do ye?" says Undooley.

"Av course not; ye hav' the watch," says Finnerty. "That's proof ye didn't have the chanst."

Undooley looked hard at Finnerty for a moment and then continued, "I got a fine lot of Frinch connollys; Deadder; Port Said."

"Said what?" says Finnerty.

"Congo, Vathy, Zanzibar."

"Who's bar?" says Finnerty.

"Bargains," says Undooley, "an' I got a big thing on Iceland; also a pretty smooth thing in Greece an' a fat lot of Turkeys, a good, strong lot of Bermudas, a pretty good Chili snap, a little Mecklenburg-Schwerin."

"Ah! there was swearin' as well as staling at the auction," says Finnerty.

"Some Obock——"

"Bock's the stuff for me," says Finnerty.

"A good bunch of Sea-shells, a rather broken lot of China, a bunch of Fijis."

"Any Hottentots?" says Finnerty.

"See here, Finn, you're such a funny man, I guess you came from Funchal."

"Wrong again," says Finnerty. "Nyassa."

"If you were the nigh ass a, I suppose Balaam's was the off one, eh, Finn, me bye!" says Undooley.

"Let up," says Finnerty; "I kim over on the same ship with ye."

"Not on the same deck," says Undooley.

"Hold on, now," says Finnerty.

"Ye were in the hold," says Undooley.

"What's the steer ye are giving me now?" says Finnerty.

"Steerage," says Undooley.

"Ye're too smart for me," says Finnerty. "What else did ye git at the auction?"

"There was some văudeville," says Undooley.

"Dancing and kicking?" says Finnerty.

"Lots of kicking," says Undooley; "but it want no use, for they were sold without recourse."

"What's that mean?" says Finnerty.

"Why, ye pays for what ye don't git: that is, it's like a grab-bag; the bigger the bunch the worse ye are stuck. I bought 5,000 foreign sthamps—some damaged—for $3, for I thought the perfect wans would be worth that, an' ivery wan was somewhat damaged. Thin I got a lot of mixed Cuban rivinues for a dollar, an' the only thing mixed about thim was the fact that the torn wans were mixed in with the few which were not torn."

"Couldn't ye claim damages?" asked Finnerty.

"Not whin ye buy without recourse. The only way to do in that case is to lay for the dealer outside an' recourse to violence," says Undooley. "Thin I got a couple of essays on onion skins."

"That's a good, strong subject. Who wrote thim?" says Finnerty.

"It's a wonder that little head of yours should hold so many fool questions," says Undooley.

"Git anything else?" asked Finnerty.

"No, but wan countryman went home awful mad. He bought a lot which was catalogued a lot of U. S. entire—gave up $5 for it, because he thought it meant the entire lot of U. S. sthamps from the beginning and got a big bundle of green and red 2-cent-entires same as ye can fish out of any waste-basket. He wanted to lick the auctioneer."

"What did they do about it?" asked Finnerty.

"Made him a present of a package of 1,000 stickers, an' he went home to lick them," says Undooley.

"Was iverybody satisfied?" asked Finnerty.

"Well, I'll tell ye what," says Undooley. "I think, as a rule, iverybody is satisfied after an auction—the dealer, especially if he is the owner of a good many lots, is satisfied, because he has turned into money a good many unsalable goods; the big buyers, because each one thinks he has found in his lots a sthamp or two which is catalogued wrong and he has stuck the owner; the small buyers, because they think if they had bought more they would have got stuck worse; the bargain-hunters, because they have some very high-priced but damaged, sthamps for a mere song; the fellows who didn't get anything, because they have saved their money for So-and-So's sale, which will be so much better; the auctioneer, because he has his price and escaped with his life; the clerks, because they got away before any wan discovered the mistakes in their bills; the janitor, because he was just in time to hold up the dealer an' git his rint, an' the very walls are glad it's all over an' they can hav' a rist from 'original gum' an', 'gentlemen, this is a bargain.' But I tell ye, Finn, ye wouldn't belave there were so many men who are as honest as ye are, who come up to ye after an auction an' tell ye how they have stuck the dealer or owner of the sthamps. Why, a good, big man will take ye off into a corner an' say: 'Git on to this; here is a lot I bought for wan fifty, an' here is wan sthamp which they hav' marked 30 cents, which should be $8.50; it's No. 22b, instead of straight 22.' An' another fellow will tell ye: 'Here is a lot which they foot up $2.23 should be $12.23. I got it for 80 cents'."

"Av course they tell the dealer," says Finnerty.

"It wouldn't be safe to," says Undooley.

"Why not?" says Finnerty.

"If a man should tell a dealer after an auction that he had got something in which the mistake was against the owner, the dealer would drop dead; an' ye wouldn't hav' murder on ye soul, would ye?"

"Well, suppose the mistake is against the buyer?" asked Finnerty.

"If it wasn't but 10 cents," says Undooley, "he'd chase the dealer five blocks to git even with him."

"It's a funny world," says Finnerty. It's lucky you and I are honest."

"Ye can bet it is," says Undooley. "An' if it wasn't for corrupting yer innercent soul I'd tell ye how I stuck the dealer."

"Good night, my honest friend," says Finnerty.

"Good night, integrity," says Undooley.

THE STAMPS OF PRUSSIA.

By BERTRAM W. H. POOLE.

Prussia is a kingdom of the German Empire stretching from Russia in the east to Holland in the west, and from the Baltic Sea in the north to Bohemia and Lorraine in the south. It has an area of 134,622 square miles and a population of about forty millions. While it is essentially an agricultural country its mines are of considerable importance and its manufacturing industries are very extensive. It is also important educationally for within its borders are no less than eleven famous universities. Prussia is a constitutional and hereditary monarchy. The king alone exercises the executive; the legislative power he shares with the two houses of parliament—the House of Magnates and the Chamber of Deputies. The former numbers 310 members, and the latter 433 who are elected indirectly by the people. Prussia, in common with most other European states and kingdoms, has had an eventful history which can be traced back through many centuries. The fortune of war had added to and taken from its dominions until in the eighteenth century it suffered so many reverses that it became an easy prey to French domination. Until 1813, reduced to a shadow of its former self, it suffered numerous indignities at the hands of the French which have never been forgotten. In 1813, however, with the defeat and imprisonment of Napoleon, it commenced a new era of prosperity which has continued and expanded to the present day. By the Congress of Vienna much of its old territory was restored and many new provinces were added. From this date the people were imbued with a new spirit of nationality and began to dream of a United German Empire. The first step towards German unity was taken when Prussia united several north German States in a customs union, or Zollverein, which was shortly afterwards joined by nearly all Germany. By taking the lead in this matter the influence of Prussia was greatly increased. Frederick William IV (1840-61), during whose reign postage stamps were first issued, made Berlin a centre of learning and natural science; but he refused to grant his subjects a constitution, and held extravagant views regarding royalty. The revolutionary movements in 1848, however, caused him to modify his convictions. A national assembly was summoned to meet at Berlin on May 22nd. 1848, and the king prepared a new constitution. Simultaneously war broke out with Denmark over the Schleswig-Holstein question; and Frederick William in 1849 tried to unite the German states under the leadership of Prussia. This attempt to seize the foremost place in Germany was at once resisted by Austria, and for a time civil war seemed imminent. The year after his accession William I (1861-88) appointed Bismark his prime minister and minister of foreign affairs. The joint attack of Prussia and Austria on Denmark in 1864, and the conquest of the duchies of Schleswig and Holstein, only served to accentuate the hostility of the courts of Berlin and Vienna, and in 1866 the question of the leadership of Germany was fought out. Ever since the days of Frederick the Great that question had awaited solution, and it was settled by the victory of the Prussians at Sadowa or Königgrätz on July 3rd, 1866. All the states north of the Main formed the North German Confederation under the leadership of Prussia. But it required a foreign war to complete German unity. In 1870 the Franco-Prussian war broke out, France being alarmed at the growth of Prussia. The south German states remained true to King William; France was invaded and after the battle of Sedan Napoleon surrendered. The war brought out a strong feeling among the German states for a closer union, and on January 18th, 1871, at Versailles, King William was solemnly proclaimed German Emperor. The tendency in Germany since 1870 has been to make Prussia more powerful and it has taken a leading part in colonial expansion, and in the establishment of a powerful navy.

ITS PHILATELIC HISTORY.

Although Austria had taken the lead in introducing postage stamps into its postal service, and Bavaria was the first of the German states to issue stamps, Prussia was not far behind, and

H. F. COLMAN,
Second National Bank Bldg., WASHINGTON, D. C.

by the energy of its postal administration rapidly took the lead in postal matters throughout Germany. By a decree of King Frederick William IV, dated December 21st, 1849, new regulations for the postal service were introduced under which the rates for single letters (i. e. those weighing less than 1 loth or ½ oz.) were fixed as follows:—

Up to 10 German miles, 1 silbergroschen.
From 10 to 20 German miles, 2 silbergroschen.

Heavier letters were charged according to weight; the registration fee was fixed at 2 silbergroschen, and a commission of ½sgr was charged on packets and money orders. It was also announced that stamps would be prepared but it was not until October 30th, 1850, that a circular from the Minister of Trade and Works fixed the issue of the stamps to the public to take place on November 15th, 1850. At that time the currency consisted of the thaler (equal to about 72c) divided into thirty silbergroschen, each of which in turn consisted of twelve pfennige. The first set consisted of four values—6pf, 1, 2 and 3sgr. The 6pf stamp was largely used in payment for the charge for delivering letters. This charge was fixed at ½sgr (6pf) where there was a post office and 1sgr for other places. When letters were called for no delivery charge was made. Shortly after the issue of these stamps the German-Austrian Postal Union was formed for the interchange of correspondence between Austria and various German states. It was chiefly due to Prussia that this Union was made possible—this being the first of many progressive steps taken by the kingdom in the interests of increased postal efficiency. On May 1st, 1856, a 4pf stamp was issued for the prepayment of matter sent under wrapper. In 1857 the silbergroschen values were printed by typography instead of line-engraving, the motive for the change being that of economy. In 1858, the first design was reverted to and unwatermarked paper was introduced; in 1861, following the accession of King William I, a new series bearing the Prussian coat-of-arms appeared; and in 1866 two high values were introduced for use on heavy packets. In 1867 a set of five values in kreuzer currency was issued, these being for use in the states served by the Thurn and Taxis administration, the management of which Prussia had taken over from July 1st, 1867. On the formation of the North German Confederation on Jan. 1st, 1868, Prussia ceased to issue its individual stamps.

The First Issue.

The first set of Prussian stamps, as announced in the Official Circular of October 30th, 1850, were issued on November 15th of that year. The set consisted of four different values—6pf, 1, 2, and 3 silbergroschen—by means of which the various postal rates then availing could be easily made up. All four stamps are similar in design and show a profile portrait of King William IV, with head to right, on a ground of lines cross-hatched horizontally and vertically. The portrait is enclosed within a rectangular frame inscribed "FREIMARKE" at the top and with the value in words at the bottom. The side borders are filled with oak-leaf ornamentation, there are small crosses in the upper angles, and in the lower corners are the numerals of value. The design and necessary dies were the work of Eduard Eichens, a Berlin engraver. It appears that two designs were submitted and that the one chosen was modified to some extent before the dies were engraved. I cannot do better than quote from Mr. Ralph Wedmore's interesting article in the Stamp Lover for May, 1910, on this point, viz:—

"He (Eduard Eichens) made two silver point drawings. One showed a bust of the King, almost full face, on a shaded background, with a single-lined rectangular frame, with the inscription at foot 1 SGR. KPGA (1 Silbergroschen, Königl. Preuss. General—Post—Amt.), and the figure 1 in a triangle in each of the upper corners. The other showed a bust of the King in profile to the right, on a black ground, in a double-lined frame, with the inscriptions K POST A at the top, EIN SILB GR. at the foot and the figure 1 in each of the lower corners. These two drawings may be seen at the Post Office Museum in Berlin by anyone who visits that city. This second design was substantially approved of, and Eichens thereupon engraved it upon steel, but with the word POSTMARKE at the top and no indication of value at foot.

"I have not seen the die, which is in the Postal Museum in Berlin, but it seems highly probable that this original die was used for making the stamps issued in 1850. In Captain Ohrt's book on the stamps of Prussia the suggestion is made that an entirely new die, bearing only the head of the King and the lined background, was engraved and used for making the 6pf, 1, 2, and 3sgr stamps. Enlargements of these four stamps and of the 4pf of 1856 show very great similarity, the only notable point of difference being that on the 4pf stamp the features of the King are sharper, which makes the face look smaller. A comparison of the stamps themselves will show that the lines of shading on the 4pf stamp, although much finer, are practically identical in form and position with those on the other values. The 4pf stamp has a softer appearance, due to the fine dots between the lines of shading, which themselves are for the most part broken into dots. Another marked point of difference is that on the 4pf stamp the oak leaves are neatly drawn, whereas on the other values they are merely indicated by dashes.

"Failing positive proof to the contrary I suggest that the following method was employed. Impressions from the original die were taken on soft steel rollers, and the fine dots between the lines of shading partially removed. The roller was then hardened, and a rather faint impression taken on four soft steel blocks, one for each of the required values. The word POSTMARKE at the top was then carefully erased, and FREIMARKE engraved in its place. The border, with oak leaves, and the lines of shading, were then engraved on each of the four dies, following the faintly impressed lines of the roller impression but with bolder effect. The top of the head and forehead are outlined, whereas on the original die this was not the case, as may be seen by reference to a 4pf stamp. The figures and words of value were then added. The foregoing theory seems all the more probable since there are slight differences in the lines of the hair and the shading lines on the face in each of the values 6pf, 1, 2, and 3sgr. The differences are not of such a nature as to suggest that each stamp was independently engraved, but are such as would arise when strengthening existing lines on a die.

"Whether my theory be correct, or Captain Ohrt's statement be the true one, it is certain that dies were made from an original die for each of the number of the plate was engraved thus, "Platte No. 15". Whether more than one plate for each value was used is not known but plates now housed in the Berlin Postal Museum, are numbered as follows:—

6 pfennig, No. 7.
1 silbergroschen, No. 14
2 silbergroschen, No. 12
3 silbergroschen, No. 10

These numbers probably belong to a series referring to the plates made by Eichens, or the firm with which he worked. The only other number we know of is plate No. 13, which was used for the 1 silbergroschen.

The paper was hand made, watermarked with branches of laurel forming a wreath, and it was manufactured by Ebart Brothers of Berlin. The group of 150 watermarks was enclosed within a single-line frame broken on the four sides for the following watermarked inscription: "FREIMARKEN — DER — KOENIGL. PREUSS—POST" (Postage Stamps of the Royal Prussian Post).

The impression was on white paper for the 6 pfennige and on colored paper for the other denominations. There are fairly well marked shades of the 6pf and 3sgr values, but the other differ hardly at all.

Mr. Wedmore tells us "the stamps were printed in hand presses, the printing plates being warmed and the paper damped. The sheets of stamps printed from warmed plates were ready for gumming 24 hours later, without undergoing any special drying process. The gum consisted of two parts arabic, ¾ parts dextrine, and ¼ part animal glue, with the addition of a small quantity of white lead, and was applied by hand with a soft wide brush. The sheets were laid between boards, which had narrow strips of wood at either end to keep each layer apart until they were dry, and then placed between warmed millboards and put in a press for several hours to flatten them."

As the State Printing Office did not exist until January 1st, 1853, the early supplies of these stamps were printed under contract by a Berlin copper-plate printer whose name seems to be unknown.

The State Printing Office soon became a very important establishment and in subsequent years printed stamps for many of the German States as well as those of Prussia itself. In many cases, too, the emissions of Prussia served as a guide and pattern as to color and value for the issues of many of its neighbours. To quote from a short article in the Stamp Collectors' Magazine from the pen of Mr. Overy Taylor, "in matters postal Berlin was the capital of Germany long before she assumed that position politically, and it is to the credit of the Prussian administration that for a long period it vindicated its right to direct the postal service of the Confederation by the intelligence with which it seized on improvements and led the way in every useful innovation."

TOUSSAINT L'OUVERTURE OF HAYTI.

A Glimpse of the Career of the Great Negro General.

To know something about the men represented on postage stamps is always of interest. There is on the 2c stamp of Hayti, 1904, jubilee issue to commemorate the establishment of the Republic in 1804, a portrait of Toussaint L'Ouverture. Of him in an extract from Wendell Phillips' famous speech on the great negro general, we glean the subjoined highly pathetic passages. It must be remembered that Toussaint was fighting for the freedom of Hayti against the French under Leclerc.

Returning to the hills, he issued the only proclamation which bears his name and breathes vengeance: "My children, France comes to make us slaves. God gave us liberty; France has no right to take it away. Burn the cities, destroy the harvest, tear up the roads with cannon, poison the wells, show the white man the hell he comes to make" and he was obeyed.

It is true, the scene grows bloodier as we proceed. But, remember, the white man fitly accompanied his infamous attempt to reduce freemen to slavery with every bloody and cruel device that bitter and shameless hate could invent.

Beaten in the field, the French then issued proclamations saying, "We do not come to make you slaves; this man Toussaint tells you lies. Join us, and you shall have the rights you claim." They cheated every one of his officers, and finally he was left alone. He then sent word to Leclerc, "I will submit. I could continue the struggle for years—could prevent a single Frenchman from safely quitting your camp. But I hate bloodshed. I have fought only for the liberty of my race. Guarantee that, I will submit and come in." He took the oath to be a faithful citizen; and on the same crucifix Leclerc swore that he should be faithfully protected, and that the island should be free. As the French general glanced along the line of his splendidly equipped troops, and saw, opposite, Toussaint's ragged, ill-armed followers, he said to him, "L'Ouverture, had you continued the war, where could you have got arms?" "I would have taken yours," was the Spartan reply. But he was too dangerous to be left at large. So they summoned him to attend a council.

Of Toussaint, Hermona, the Spanish general, who knew him well, said, "He was the purest soul God ever put into a body." Of him history bears witness, "He never broke his word." Maitland was travelling in the woods to meet Toussaint, when he was met by a messenger and told that he was betrayed. He went on, and met Toussaint, who showed him two letters—one from the French general, offering him any rank if he would put Maitland in his power, and the other his reply. It was, "Sir, I have promised the Englishman that he shall go back." Let it stand, therefore, that the negro, truthful as a knight of old, was cheated by his foe.

The moment he entered the room, the officers drew their swords, and told him he was prisoner; and one young lieutenant who was present says, "He was not at all surprised, but seemed very sad." They put him on shipboard and weighed anchor for France. As the island faded from his sight, he turned to the captain, and said, "You think you have rooted up the tree of liberty, but I am only a branch; I have planted the tree so deep that all France can never root it up." Arrived in Paris, he was flung into jail, and Napoleon I sent his secretary, Caffarelli, to him, supposing he had buried large treasures. He listened awhile, then replied, "Young man, it is true I have lost treasures, but they are not such as you come to seek." He was then sent to the Castle of St. Joux, to a dungeon twelve feet by twenty, built wholly of stone, with a narrow window, high up on the side, looking out on the snows of Switzerland. In winter, ice covers the floor; in summer, it is damp and wet. In this living tomb the child of the sunny tropics was left to die. The commandant allowed him five francs a day for food and fuel. Napoleon heard of it, and reduced the sum to three. The luxurious usurper, who complained that the English Government was stingy because it allowed him only six thousand dollars a month, stooped from his throne to cut down a dollar to a half, and still Toussaint did not die quick enough. In this tomb Toussaint was buried. Finally, the commandant was told to go into Switzerland, to carry the keys of the dungeon with him, and to stay four days; when he returned, Toussaint was found starved to death.

four values in question, and that the frame with oak leaves and the inscription at top (and, of course, the values at foot) were separately engraved on each of these secondary dies, as may be proved by small differences, which are common to all stamps of each value."

The plates, made of steel, each contained 150 impressions arranged in fifteen horizontal rows of ten each. The vertical rows were then numbered 1 to 10 in the top margin, and the horizontal rows were similarly numbered 1 to 15 in the left hand margin, while in the centre of the right hand margin the Convention Proclamation—The convention of the American Philatelic Society will be held beginning Tuesday, August 11th, 1914, at Niagara Falls, New York, according to the announcement of President Coolidge. The opportunity is taken to mention casually that among the members appointed to serve on the committee on credentials are W. H. Barnum of Cleveland and C. E. Severn of Chicago; and the fact that Messrs. Barnum and Severn attended the last convention held at Niagara Falls in 1894 is an excuse for a few reminiscences of twenty years ago. Incidentally, we repeat that the committee on arrangements is one of admirable personnel with Julian Park as chairman and our old friend, H. C. Barr, as one of the members; and we forecast a brilliant season for these performers, knowing as we do that they will meet all expectations as entertainers and hosts. However, members and others may rest assured that they will be fully informed of all convention news from now until convention time.

EDITORIAL.

Those Were The Days—The 1894 convention of the American Philatelic Society at Niagara Falls was a wonderful one for W. H. Barnum and C. E. Severn; and their recollections of the occasion are indelible impressions. We have a picture of the convention group showing stalwarts such as Messrs. Tiffany, Krauth, Doeblin, Chandler, Davison and a host of others that furnishes to-day, mute testimony to the flight of time. Some of our companions of twenty years ago are dead; and others no longer are devoted to stamps at least in a public way. We reported the 1894 convention for MEEKEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS and we could almost reproduce from memory the business transactions of the convention. There were philatelic noblemen in the ascendancy in those days; and we say this with no thought of instituting any invidious comparison with any later period, of course. To mention only two, John K. Tiffany of St. Louis and C. P. Krauth of Pittsburgh who have passed away is proof of the remark. A new generation comes on the scene but there is no line of demarkation between the old and the new as wily old nature is too refined in her demonstrations for a sudden change; and she nicely holds the old and the new together by dovetailing them so as to cover up the joints.

Twenty Years After—In 1894 at the Niagara Falls convention, the usual amount of business was transacted and no doubt, the 1914 convention will be much like it but we wager it will not be so impressive to Messrs. Barnum and Severn as the one of twenty years ago. The business of this year's convention will be done with greater facility perhaps because of improved working rules but in general character, it will not differ greatly from that of twenty years ago. There will be the usual number of speakers among the delegates who will advance ideas that are old in essence but new in form; and if debate is entered into, it may not be always definite and to the point. Nevertheless as the world improves the American Philatelic Society must do likewise and we feel that in a broad sense progress may be reported fairly by the American Philatelic Society.

Different Now—At Niagara Falls in 1894, there was no entertainment provided by a committee as there will be this year. The banquet was the sole fixed festival at the 1894 convention but no attentions were shown by the local or Buffalo members as there were no local members and few in Buffalo. So, thrown on their own resources for pleasure, the delegates were careful that no dull time was experienced and the social contact was very pleasant. Publicity from the newspapers was not particularly invited but the local papers and others were generous in their treatment of the convention. This year, the social features will be systematized and somewhat elaborate, we understand, and attendance at the convention will be a joyful privilege. Above all, stamps will be conspicuous by their presence; and the motto of the philatelist, follow the stamp, should be lived up to if he would make himself and his hosts happy.

Green Old Age—In our contest to determine the oldest subscribers in years to the WEEKLY while we do not at this writing consider the question closed, yet we have sent to Mr. E. P. Morehouse, Williamstown, Massachusetts, a good stamp for his collection in accordance with our promise to felicitate our oldest reader. In clear, bold words, Mr. Morehouse writes: "On the first of June (if living) I will be 81 years of age." We congratulate Mr. Morehouse upon having attained this grand old age and we trust that Mr. Morehouse will find an interest in stamps for years to come. We are proud to claim him as a reader. If we have a subscriber older than Mr. Morehouse, our respects and a stamp await him.

Bad Business—A reader calls attention to the tendency on the part of not a few dealers that we greatly deplore. Briefly, when one sends a remittance for goods advertised one sometimes has to wait much too long for a reply. To add to the annoyance delayed orders may be only partly filled. Our informant says: "It is an old axiom in the business world that it is a good man who pays for what he gets instead of paying for what he does not get. Hence with stamp collectors, they remit in advance for the goods and the dealers make you wait before you receive either the goods or a reply." The postal card of acknowledgement should be sent immediately when the dealer knows that there will be some delay in filling the order. We sincerely trust that erring dealers will mend their ways for the interest of all concerned. As a matter of business, not to speak of any suggestion of principle, it is a ruinous policy in these days of commercial enterprise to incur the ill-will of the man with money; and offenders will surely lag behind in the race for preferment.

British Postage Due—The Christian Science Monitor, Boston, is always alert to publish news of philatelic interest and in a recent issue it reproduced a cover in its entirety bearing a copy of the new two pence postage due stamp of Great Britain, the letter having been sent without the regular stamp. The postmark shows the date of April 24th; and we notice that the color of the two pence stamp is described as "agate."

Treat It Kindly—In consequence of the receipt of complaints about the rough treatment that parcel post mail sometimes is subjected to in the mails, the department has issued a cautionary notice to mail clerks. We notice that "Parcel post mail must not be thrown down shutes, embankments, etc.," and that it "must not be thrown from cars, wagons or trucks." We might add that employees of the service should not repeatedly jump upon or beat with cudjels parcel post mail even if it does snap at them and though only in sport, the packages should not be tossed down the mountain-side or used as balls for indoor base ball.

To Err Is Human—Says a watchful contributor: "I wonder if you noticed in a recent writeup of General Coolidge in a contemporary that 'General Coolidge's collection of precancels is unequalled by few others.' Until I saw this I thought that my own collection was entitled to this unique distinction."

NIAGARA FALLS CONVENTION.

There are some members of the American Philatelic Society who have such pleasant recollections of the last Niagara Falls Convention that they need no urging to attend another at the same place; but the last meeting held there seems to the vast body of younger members to be back in the dim and hoary past, and the majority may need a word of advice in the matter. It is simply this, to those who don't know: that Niagara Falls is the finest convention spot in the country; its attractions, of course, are famous the world over and hardly need mention; it is the cheapest and most convenient summer city to reach that the entire country can offer. The happy selection of such a spot, combined with the fact that the society is now at one of the most prosperous periods of its existence, will no doubt bring together at the coming meeting a larger and more enthusiastic crowd than has ever before attended an A. P. S. Convention—and that is saying a good deal.

The dates set are August 11, 12 and 13. The headquarters will be the International hotel, situated close to the cataract's edge and convenient of access to all points of interest. Entertainment, of course, will be of the usual double nature. Further information on this point will be forthcoming in due time. The word now is, simply to make up your mind to be there—you will never regret it.

FULTON STAMP CO., 102 W. 42nd Street, NEW YORK

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT STAMPS.

By FRANK E. GOODWIN.

Author's Foreword.

Few attempts, comparatively, have been made by stamp collectors to study the Department Stamps of the United States. In hopes of stimulating an interest in these stamps the writer, in ten chapters, will present such facts as he is able to obtain before the readers of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS, with the hope that the articles may be almost as well received as "United States Specialized."

Historical.

During the twelve years following the beginning of the Civil War the "franking" privilege, by which vast amounts of personal matter were sent through the mails postage free, was costing the postoffice department great sums of money. Members of Congress, men in public affairs, government officials of high and low rank, and even some private individuals made free use of the "franking" privilege to their own private and selfish ends.

The Civil War had opened the avenue for sending letters, packages and even boxes and barrels of "stuff" through the mails without charge to the sender. This costly road was widened as years passed, and early in the Seventies an investigation by government officials led to the determination that the promiscuous "franking" of anything and everything that public officials might see fit to send at the expense of the government should cease. This investigation, lasting nearly two years, was begun early in the year 1871. In 1872 plans were perfected whereby each department of the government was to be put upon a basis of at least accounting for its own expense of mailing. The result was the printing and distribution of Department Stamps.

An act of Congress, date of March 3, 1873, authorized the use of stamps for and by the different departments of the government, and the machinery was set to work to produce the stamps which were expected to put a stop to the "franking" abuses. This act of Congress abolished the system, and even the special privilege of "franking" granted by act of Congress to the widow of the martyred president, Abraham Lincoln, was annulled.

It was no little task for the government officials to work out to the entire satisfaction of everyone the system by which it was expected to keep a strict accounting of the cost of each department for the use of the mails. Plans were made and discarded as too elaborate for the purposes in view. It had been hoped that some scheme might be devised to keep a "check" upon the various divisions of each department. This was found to be not feasible, and it was finally determined to furnish stamps to the nine departments, each in different colors, as follows:

Department of Agriculture, Department of the Interior, Navy Department, Executive, Justice, Post Office, State, Treasury and War.

The Continental Bank Note Company at this time was under contract to the Government to furnish the stamps and in collaboration with the postoffice department, designs were prepared by the engravers and printers for the various stamps.

The designs, as finally accepted, followed closely those of the general issue then current, with such changes as would make each stamp distinctive from the postal issues. The stamps were the same in size as the postage stamps, and portraits as follows were adopted:

1 cent, portrait of Franklin, after Rubricht.

2 cents, portrait of Jackson, after Powers.

3 cents, portrait of Washington, after Houdon.

6 cents, portrait of Lincoln, ofter Volk.

7 cents, portrait of Stanton, from a photograph.

10 cents, portrait of Jefferson, after Powers.

12 cents, portrait of Clay, after Hart.

15 cents, portrait of Webster, after Clevenger.

24 cents, portrait of Scott, after Coffee.

30 cents, portrait of Hamilton, after Cerrachi.

90 cents, portrait of Perry, after Wolcutt.

The colors as finally accepted and allotted to the different departments were as follows:

Agriculture—Yellow.
Executive—Carmine
Interior—Vermilion.
Justice—Mauve.
Navy—Blue.
Post Office—Black.
State—Green.
Treasury—Brown.
War—Dull Rose.

In almost every color there occur various shades, of which more will be said under the chapter head devoted to the Department under study.

At first it had been expected that the Post Office Department would be supplied with stamps having the same design as the other departments. This was found to be impractical, as the stamps would be supplied to the thousands of postmasters and it was feared that if stamps with portraits were furnished they would be confused with the regular issues, and sold to the public for postal purposes. The portraits were in each case replaced with large figures of value, inside an ornate oval design.

Although the use of Department stamps was not authorized until July 1, 1873, printing was begun as early as May 24, and distribution to the different departments was commenced soon after that date. Between May 24 and July 1, 1873, the following amounts of stamps had been distributed among the various departments, as named:

Agriculture,	135,000
Executive,	4,650
Interior,	970,475
Justice,	65,400
Navy,	160,830
Post Office,	5,510,610
State,	60,495
Treasury,	6,317,500
War,	440,500

Total number of stamps issued between May 24 and July 1, 13,665,460.

Value, by denominations, $494,974.70.

The stamps were printed mostly in sheets of 100, bearing the imprint and plate number of the Continental Bank Note Company. The exceptions to the plates of 100 were 1c, 3c and 6c Post Office, 1c, 2c and 3c Treasury, 2c War, in sheets of 200 stamps, and the dollar value of State, which were printed in sheets of 10 stamps.

When the contract for printing the stamps for the United States was taken over by the American Bank Note Co., the plates prepared by the Continental Bank Note Company were given over to them, and what Department stamps printed by the first named concern were printed from plates bearing the imprints and numbers of the Continental Bank Note Co. A single exception to this is noted. The American Bank Note Company made a single plate for printing stamps for the Post Office Department, and it was numbered 249.

The American Bank Note Company used soft, porous paper, and the stamps printed on soft paper were, it is generally understood, of American Bank Note Company's work. This statement will explain to collectors who have Department stamps, on soft paper, with Continental imprint, why such have no especial value.

Specialists will find much of interest to them aside from the catalog listings, in their studies of the Department stamps. If they follow the writer closely in this series they will have occasion to examine their stamps for several double transfers, double papers, on horizontal and vertical ribbed paper, etc.

A feature in the study of department stamps, which has been sadly neglected by collectors is the collecting of various valuable post marks. This is especially true of the War departments, in which a complete list of Army posts and Forts can be obtained, if diligent search is made.

The stamps, overprinted "Specimen" in small gothic letters, adds materially to the value of a collection. Besides the regular overprint, there are two errors to be had—one with the word spelled "Sepcimen" and the other with a small or lower-case "i" in the word.

Various features of the Department stamps, as they have come under the notice of the writer, will be described in the forthcoming chapters.

Department of Agriculture.

The stamps of the Department of Agriculture were issued in nine denominations as follows: 1c, 2c, 3c, 6c, 10c, 12c, 15c, 24c, 30c. The 7 cents and 90 cents made for most of the other departments are missing in this series.

The designs were similar to the regular issues of postage stamps in use at the time. A curved panel over the portrait bears the word "Agriculture" while in the upper left hand corner is the abbreviation "Dept. of" and in the upper right hand corner is the monogram "U. S." letters entwined. The words of value and figure of the denomination are in open design under the portrait, being very similar to the design for the regular postal issues.

The stamps were printed in shades of yellow, ranging from bright lemon yellow to deep orange yellow. Owing to the fact that experts do not agree upon any official use of shades, and many ideas are at variance as to the correct classifications, the writer will not attempt to name the shades, but will give instead the number of different shades found in each denomination. The following data is presented in brief:

Denom.	Shades.	Plates
1 cent	5	65
2 cents	4	64
3 cents	6	57
6 cents	4	72
10 cents	3	114
12 cents	4	73
15 cents	5	105
24 cents	4	145
30 cents	4	100

During the first eighteen months of the use of department stamps they were freely supplied to the department of Agriculture. But after the close of the year 1874 their use seems to have declined, or a great many were on hand, as the following statistical account of stamps furnished for two periods will prove:

Denom.	May 24, 1873 to Dec. 31, 1874	June 1, 1874 to June 1, 1884
2 cents	285,800	230,150
3 cents	416,000	435,050
6 cents	221,500	120,000
10 cents	180,700	95,265
12 cents	143,500	51,265
15 cents	141,900	54,050
30 cents	173,300	82,265

An interesting double transfer exists in the 3 cents. The one which I have seen occurs in the label of value and figure of denomination. This is shifted to the left about 1 mm. The "shift" shows plainest to the left of the figure "3" and the curves at top and bottom are quite plain.

A variety of great value is the 3 cents imperforate. This is listed by Mr. Luff, in his splendid work on United States stamps.

The stamp is found on horizontally ribbed paper. I have never seen a copy on the true double paper, but some of the soft paper specimens split readily, and may be mistaken for the double paper variety found in some of the other series.

In 1875 the stamps were overprinted "Specimen" in small gothic type. Full sets are hard to get, but the 1 cent and 2 cent so overprinted are not uncommon.

Although only two denominations are catalogued on soft paper, Mr. Luff lists four—1 cent, 2 cents, 3 cents and 6 cents.

The use of Department stamps was discontinued officially on July 5, 1884, and were replaced with official "penalty" envelopes. No individual record of the number of stamps representing the Department of Agriculture were destroyed, but it must have been considerable.

The writer would advise collecting various town dated cancellations, the specimens, and proofs on both India paper and card board.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents.

UNITED STATES.—R. W. Carlson sends us specimens of the current 2c envelopes printed from a die which is so badly worn that the inscriptions nearly run together. The lower angle of the left "2" is extended to the outer colorless oval line.

Mrs. Louise W. Kellogg has shown us a cover with the 3c green of 1870-71, which has a peculiar defect. At the left, starting from the oval frame line at a point about opposite the Adam's Apple, a double line curving downwards runs to the edge of the paper, being carried beyond the lines of the design.

BELGIUM.—The 20c value in the current set has appeared with the large head, and without the engraver's name, a copy having been shown us by Whitfield King & Co.

BULGARIA.—Mr. Schachne has shown us the new postal card on glazed cardboard.

HUNGARY.—Whitfield King & Co. report the issue of the full postage due set on the new watermarked paper. The design is unchanged.

INDIA.—The West End Philatelist states that the whole series of stamps of this country are to be redrawn, the 2½a having already been changed.

MEXICO.—A. W. Foster submits for our consideration specimens of the 2c Constitutionalist stamp in distinct shades of green. One is distinctly lighter than the other and would be termed a yellow green.

NETHERLANDS.—A new domestic reply card has just been issued, according to Mr. Schachne.

Post Card.
1½x1½c blue on tinted cardboard.

NORWAY.—Arthur Russell shows us used specimens of the 5 ore Norway commemorative stamp recently chronicled. Dewey Somdal has also shown us a used 20 ore stamp.

PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.—We have been shown a specimen of the new 4 centavo on single lined watermarked paper and are indebted to Theodore Siddall for the favor. The stamp was issued April 15 and this makes the set complete with the possible exception of the 4p which so far has not been seen outside of the post office. Mr. Siddall observes that back-door issues are not quite so frequent as in the past months.

ROUMANIA.—Mr. Schachne has received a new international reply card from this country. It bears six lines of inscription on message card, T. 3.

Post Card.
10x10b carmine rose on white.

SALVADOR.—Through the courtesy of the C. E. Hussman Stamp Co., we have been favored with the latest from Salvador. To say that the efforts of Nicaragua to create odd provisionals have been outdone is but faintly to suggest the real thing. The stamps are of large size, the outer frame line being 24x29 mm. The paper used is ordinary white wove, but in order to give tinted background to prevent counterfeiting(?) the words "correos del salvador", none of the words being capitalized, is printed vertically reading upwards seven times on each stamp. The body of the stamp is type set, with plain single rule border, the stamp being an upright oblong. The inscriptions read thus: "Correos—El Salvador — Franqueo — Oficial — Dos — 2 Centavos 2." The "Franqueo Oficial" is in an oval, the familiar form used on most of the official sets from 1896 onwards. Ordinary type marks, stars, daggers, double daggers and section marks, are printed at either end of "Correos" and the value in words, except that on 3c value type ornaments take the place of the printers' marks. The figures of value are printed at right and left of the "Franqueo Oficial" character, except on the 100c value, where they are replaced by stars, the figures being repeated twice in the next line, and omitted from the last line. To cap all, the rayed anchor and shield design is printed in the left upper corner, with the eye of the anchor turned to the left. The word "Provisional" is printed at the right reading up. There it is, tinted background, ornamental design, control marks and all. The anchor and shield and "Provisional" are in black on all values. The stamps are perforated 12.

Official Adhesives.
2c brown, black and green.
3c yellow, black and green.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—We are advised of the death of Henry A. Chapman, an old-time subscriber of the WEEKLY and a resident of Hartford, Conn. Mr. Chapman died very suddenly of heart failure, March 11. He is survived by a son, Wilfred A. Chapman, of East Hartford, in whose family he resided. Mr. Chapman is best known to stamp collectors by his very interesting publication the Perforator, which gained many friends for its editor and publisher.

—The New York Philatelic Exchange Society, which is Branch No. 3 of the National Philatelic Society, held its fourth meeting, May 25, at its new meeting place, Mozart Hall, 328 E. 86 St. The Brooklyn Stamp Society was represented by a goodly delegation.

—The latest house organ to appear is the International Stamp, issued by the International Stamp Co., Covington, O. It has four well-filled pages and gives every evidence of becoming an interesting means of communication between the company and its patrons.

—The Rochester (N. Y.) Herald on Sunday, May 24, published a page of medals and curios, the property of a Rochester citizen. We note that one of the illustrations shows the three large newspaper stamps issued in 1863. They are made life size and show up handsomely on the heavy calendared paper.

—"Ohlman's Tasteless Hinges" is the subject of a circular just at hand describing the merits of the Peerless hinge. The trade knows only one Ohlman.

IMPROVED CENTERING.

The International Stamp Co. sends us a bit of information that will be of general interest. It is taken from a letter from J. E. Ralph and reads in part as follows: "In reply I beg to state that this Bureau expects to put into regular use web printing presses that will greatly improve the centering of postage stamps, but perfect centering, having no bearing upon the security or utility will be attained only to the extent that it will not materially increase the cost of production. The designing, engraving, printing, etc., of the United States stamps is of a high order, and perfect centering, while desirable, is not essential to the proper appreciation of their artistic qualities."

St. Joseph, Mo., 5-25-14.

To the Editor:—

I note in a recent Weekly that you absolve H. C. Bouldin of Cleburne, Texas, from the charge of substituting. I believe I made that charge and it is absolutely correct.

I use a special hinge and mount in a certain regular way. It is the correct way, but not one collector I have ever seen does the same—the result is that I can tell absolutely whether a stamp has been fastened in place by someone other than myself. When I received the selection in question back from Mr. Bouldin a number of stamps had been taken out and replaced with damaged stamps (of the same var.). Now these were not mounted as I mount them, and an entirely different hinge had been used.

Further, I always mount the best stamps in stock first—in this case I had many of each variety in good condition, nor was there any damaged stamps in the stock book of the varieties in question. When I make a purchase of stamps I always select and arrange in my stock books, putting therein up to 25 copies of each variety. These are always graded—poorest copy extreme right—next—next to right, and so on until the best copy is on the left.

The result is, I always am able to KNOW whether I mounted the stamp or not, and if not I can tell almost absolutely whether it was the same stamp I had originally mounted or not. In the present case the stamps in question had been mounted by someone after mailing to Mr. Bouldin, and those returned were damaged, whereas I had none such in my books. Those stamps were substituted while the book was in the possession of Mr. Bouldin. This is an absolute fact. Whether by Mr. B. or not one cannot state, but he has never claimed that he lent the book to anyone.

IS A MENDED STAMP A FAKE?

By Percy C. Bishop.

I take it that a mended stamp, so described, is a legitimate article of commerce, but what are we to call a mended stamp upon which the word "MENDED," does not appear? If it isn't a fake, what is it?

I remember once arguing this matter with a Philatelist who had just paid half a guinea to have a 6½d Newfoundland skilfully "restored." A missing corner had been supplied, a crease neatly ironed out, and a portion of the stamp which was seriously "thinned" had been bulked up to its proper degree of obesity. Good value for half a guinea, said my friend, and I cordially agreed with him. But that wasn't the point. The point was, and is: what is the status of such a stamp when it comes out of hospital? Is it a fake? or is it a genuine stamp and a marketable commodity?

"Of course you'll stamp it 'MENDED' on the back?" said I. "Of course I shan't!" he retorted, and asked me, in turn, whether he was not entitled to do as he pleased with his own property?

I am sorry to say I had no answer ready at the moment, and so our conversation petered out, and, for aught I know to the contrary, that 6½d Newfoundland still reposes in my friend's collection.

It has always been a difficult matter to decide what a man may or may not do with his own property. The Law, which is never clear on anything, is distressingly obscure on this. You remember what passed between Nicholas Nickleby and Mr. Wackford Squeers when they were nearing Dotheboys Hall. Nicholas had expressed respectful surprise that such a place should be called a "Hall," whereupon the master of the luckless Smike retorted that there was no Act of Parliament to prevent him calling his school an island if he so desired. He was right; and the friend I have just mentioned could equally claim that there is no Act of Parliament forbidding him to have a damaged stamp skilfully "restored," or to keep that stamp in his collection without troubling to indicate in any way that it is a repaired specimen.

He would argue that he knows the stamp has been mended, and, so long as he knows, what does it matter to anyone else? That is the sort of reasoning that holds good until one has thought it over. It holds good because it appears to be based on sound common sense. Unquestionably the owner of the stamp is not legally called upon to brand his specimen "MENDED" so long as it remains in his own possession; but morally he is, because in displaying his stamps to friends he is in effect stating, and stating falsely, that he possesses a perfect specimen of the 6½d Newfoundland. That, you may say, is purely a matter between himself and his own conscience. Maybe so; but supposing he sells that stamp, or sells the collection in which it appears, without definitely stating that the stamp has been mended, repaired, restored,—call it by whatever euphemism you fancy. Is he then guilty, or not guilty, of selling a faked stamp?

Lest the reader may think that I am labouring a point which is of only trivial importance, let me observe that a mended stamp is unlike a mended object in any other department of the world of collecting. If a bit of Nankin porcelain, or a Spode dish, or a Venetian wine-glass has been mended the cracks and rivets are there for all the world to see. There is no occasion to label the article itself.

A piece of antique furniture, no matter how skilfully you may patch it and match it, is invariably known for what it is by the connoisseur. A mended stamp, on the other hand, shows no "joins" and reveals no traces of the mender's handicraft, such as one may detect with the naked eye. To such a high level of artistry has stamp repairing been raised that the unaided eye utterly fails to detect anything amiss with the "restored" specimens turned out from an up-to-date philatelic repairing shop. The matter, therefore, is one that merits the serious attention of philatelists.

Literally, of course, every mended stamp is a fake. There is no getting away from that. The dictionary on my table, Chamber's excellent "Twentieth Century Dictionary" of 1901, gives the following meaning:—

Fake.—To make up an article so as to hide its defects.

The word is given only in the form of a verb, because apparently it is only in that form that it is recognized as having made its formal entry into the language. Pedants would not speak of a "fake," but of "a faked stamp." For the sake of brevity and convenience, however, the single word is used, and is universally accepted and understood by stamp collectors.

Philologists differ as to the source of the word "fake," some tracing it to the middle Dutch facken, to catch, others to the German fegen, to furbish up. People less learned than the lexicographers are apt to connect it with the Indian "fakir," which came from the Arabic faqir, a poor man, but that idea has always been frowned down by the philologists—possibly because it is too easy!

Whatever its derivation may be, I think the meaning attributed to the word "fake" by Chambers—"to make up an article so as to hide its defects"—very accurately interprets the sense of the word as it is understood by philatelists. And this being granted, it obviously follows that every mended stamp is literally a fake. To this there can be no exceptions whatever. Every mended stamp, from the torn specimen which has been crudely patched with gummed paper in the guileless schoolboy manner, to the most intricate performance of the skilled "restorer," is most emphatically a stamp "made up so as to hide its defects," and is therefore a "faked stamp" or, shortly, a "fake."

Are there any dissentients from this proposition? If so, or if any reader desires to comment upon any of the points raised in this article, I am empowered by the Editors of Stamp Collecting to state that letters on the subject will be cordially welcomed, and, if of reasonable brevity, will be published in an early number of the journal.

Assuming for the moment that we are all agreed, then logic compels the conclusion that every collector having mended stamps in his collection is harbouring fakes, and that every collector selling a mended stamp without disclosing the fact is selling a fake, and is morally, if not legally, guilty of obtaining money by false and fraudulent pretences.

And the remedy? It is of little use to draw attention to an abuse or a grievance without suggesting a remedy. Obviously the true, indeed, the only remedy, is to do what is already being done by all reputable dealers when selling a mended stamp—namely, to impress the word "MENDED" on the back of the specimen by means of a rubber stamp, using for the purpose indelible ink.—Stamp Collecting.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BILL BLOSS, 2729 Hampden Court, Chicago, Ill.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

SOME REQUESTS OF THE READERS.

In my introduction as editor of this department, I asked the readers to give me their support, to write me about their collections and stamp "doings", to ask me for information about things they did not know, to tell me what they like, and to kick about what they do not like. I have received a number of letters, and wish that I could hear from the several hundred beginners who have not written as yet. However, I feel that it is necessary for me to supplement my appeal by adding a few requests:

Please do not submit stamps to me for examination. Refer to them by catalogue number, or describe them. I do not want the responsibility of handling other people's property.

Also, if you want a personal reply, which I am always glad to give, please enclose a 2c stamp, or self-addressed stamped envelope, for return postage. This looks small to you, but it amounts to dollars a year when all letters are taken into consideration. Unless you enclose this postage, I will infer that your letter is to be answered through the columns of the paper.

I am running this department to help the collector, and want to help him in every way I can. I intend to devote some time to the work, and will answer correspondents as soon as possible. Sometimes, however, your reply may be held up a little while for one reason or another. Replies through the paper always take two or three weeks. This week I am publishing two ideas given me by readers. I have been asked to write on the different ways of conducting approval business, keeping records of sales, and other information of like nature, and intend to cover the matter soon. Will you let me hear from you on the subject? Your ideas may be better than those now used by dealers.

SOAKING STAMPS.

When water is used to detach stamps from the envelope, great care must be exerted in many instances to keep the colors from changing or running. Many stamps will be ruined if they are not handled very carefully in this process. British Colonials, especially the chalky paper varieties, will lose their colors, and come from their bath in such poor condition that they are worthless. United States postage dues will not only blur the design and saturate the paper with the pink tint, but will cause the water to become pink, thus coloring all of the other stamps being soaked.

At best, soaking is a poor way of taking paper off of stamps. Unless the stamps are watched, the cancellations will run, spoiling the stamp, and sometimes having the same effect as the due stamps mentioned above. If it is necessary to soak the stamps, put in only a few at a time, and watch them closely. Many can be separated in less than a minute after being put into the water. A good plan is to have a pile of blotters, unprinted if possible, next to the pan in which the stamps are being soaked. Start as soon as possible to take the stamps out, and lay them face down, upon the blotter. After the blotter is covered, spread a piece of oiled paper, such as is used in the government "official seal" books, or by artists for tracing, over the stamps, to prevent the wet gum that remains upon some of the specimens from adhering to the blotter above. On this oiled paper, lay another layer of stamps, face up. Put another piece of blotting paper over the stamps, and lay them away to dry. It is advisable to put them under a weight, to prevent curling. If books are used, remember that the blotters will absorb the water, and will be damp, thus spoiling the cover of the books unless separated by a dry blotter, or paper. The blotters may be laid on a register or radiator, and will dry much quicker, but in this event, weight must be placed on the stamps to prevent curling, as a quick drying will nearly always cause this trouble. Curling, of course, makes the stamps liable to crack and crease.

Remember that stamps with rubber or hand-stamped cancellations are most liable to run, and need the most attention. Also, use care to see that the paper or piece of envelope is not covered with any substance that will tint the water. Certain South American and European envelopes are lined with a substance similar to carbon paper, which will fill a large basin with a purplish tint almost immediately. Remove this paper thoroughly, before soaking.

British Colonials are liable to have a great deal of the gum left after soaking, and will stick like fly-paper to anything they touch.

Use care in peeling the stamps from the paper. Do not be so hasty that you tear the stamps. When they are wet, they soften, and tear very easily.

British Colonials on chalky paper can be "floated" to good advantage. That is, lay the stamps on the surface of the water, face up, and use care that the water does not touch the face of the stamp in any way. This method takes longer, as the stamps must absorb the water from one side only, but insures perfect results. Try this on a few cheap ones first, though. It takes practice to remove them from the water without getting them wet.

Another way of detaching stamps, is to lay them between wet blotters, under weight. This is quite a satisfactory way, as the colors in running cannot spoil the other stamps. By using a wet blotter on the back, and a dry one on the front, the Colonials and other "fugitive color" stamps may be detached to advantage.

Where only a few stamps are involved, they may be held over a steaming kettle, and after becoming thoroughly damp, may be removed carefully from the paper. This process takes time, however, as only a few stamps can be thus steamed at a time. Also, if the steam gathers on the face of the stamps, it may cause them to run, the same as water would.

Some collectors put their stamps in an air-tight box, similar to a humidor, and put a wet sponge in the box. This dampens the stamps. It is advisable to leave them in this arrangement for four or five hours, if possible.

A certain stamp dealer, of fame here in Chicago, has solved the difficulty of removing stamps from covers in quantity. He allows his stamps to accumulate each year until spring. He then puts them in his basement and trusts to fortune, or the usual misfortune, that the river near his home will rise and flood the basement, as happens frequently at that time of the year. He once tried this method on a nice lot of Tonga stamps, and the turtles in the watermark swam away with the stamps, causing him to lose quite a piece of money. Since that time, however, he puts the Tonga stamps, and those with the fish of Newfoundland, in a minnow-bucket, and has had no more trouble. If you can find an accommodating river, and don't care how your stamps look, try this method. This is a lazy man's way, though, and the writer does not recommend it. A lazy stamp collector has nearly as hard a time as the man did who tried to take the "ice" out of "Iceland".

HOW ONE COLLECTOR GETS HIS STAMPS.

R. H. C., Philadelphia, has written me a very interesting letter, in which he tells me how he and his boy friends have obtained some of their stamps.

When the boys set out stamp hunting, they go to the apartment houses, and ask permission of the janitor to look over the waste paper for old letters. My correspondent found a copy of the 15c Philippine surcharged on U. S. on the original envelope. He then visited the tenant to whom the letter was addressed, interested her in his hobby, and through her, got a number of nice Philippines, and two of the early Mauritius stamps, on original covers. By using this same scheme with several other people, he found it possible to get quite a nice collection, and he now receives a great many stamps, some common, but many desirable ones.

FOR FILING DUPLICATES.

G. T. R., Springfield, Mass., has suggested a novel way of keeping duplicate stamps, using the envelope method. He uses "pay" envelopes, size 2½x4¼, open end, filing them on end in a box to fit. On the gummed side of the flap of each envelope, he prints the name of the country, catalogue number, and such other data as may be necessary. The flaps are left out of the envelopes, all facing the front end of the box, and the whole arrangement is treated the same as a card index system. Stamps may be inserted in their respective envelopes without removing same from the box. This is quite a saving of time where a large number of stamps are involved.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

H. R.—Danish West Indies, No. 10, differs from No. 22 in perforation. No. 10 is perforated 14x13½, or 13½, while No. 22 is perforated 12½, 13, or compound. I have also seen distinct shade differences in these stamps, but cannot say whether these different shades are each limited to the one issue, or whether the same shade occurs in both stamps. The stamps of Denmark and Danish West Indies, of this type, have many distinct shades.

Subscriber.—In using the perforation gauge, lay the stamp on the gauge in such a manner that the dots will fill exactly the space between the teeth of the perforations on the stamp.

The net price for used copies of the 50c, 75c and $1 parcel post stamps varies largely according to condition. Postally used fine conditioned copies of the 50c sell for about 25c; of the 75c, for 60c, and of the $1, for 50c or 60c. Precancelled, straight edged, and perforated initial copies sell for less. The 75c stamp is the best stamp in the whole set.

J. G. H., Caldwell, Idaho.—Articles on handling duplicates and selling and keeping track of approvals will appear in this department at an early date. The subjects are too long to go into at this time.

Reprints and re-issues are usually unused. They are not the same as counterfeits. Counterfeits may be used or unused, as cancellations can be faked. Reprints and counterfeits are not as common as supposed, and the beginner meets very few, as it does not pay to counterfeit the low priced stamps. Damaged stamps come his way oftener than the other two evils, and are, in the writer's estimation, just as undesirable as the others.

J. C. B. wishes to know if parcel post stamps used on envelopes are worth more than regular issues so used, and if they are worth more than if used on parcels.

On July 1st, 1913, the postal authorities ruled that parcel post stamps should be valid for use in the same ways as the regular series. Envelopes with parcel post stamps dated prior to that time are unique, but are not uncommon, and would probably not bring any higher price for that reason. Parcel post stamps used on envelopes are not worth any more than if used on packages, though, of course, the condition is usually better.

THE STAMPS OF PRUSSIA.

By BERTRAM W. H. POOLE.

THE SECOND ISSUE.

A Ministerial order of April 11th, 1856, reduced the tariff on printed matter, etc., sent under open wrapper to 4 pfennige and on May 1st a stamp of this denomination was placed on sale. The design is similar to that of the values of 1850 and it is evident the same original die was employed for the portrait. Mr. Wedmore tells us:—

"The dies and printing plates were produced in the same manner as before, the original die of the head of King Frederick William IV. with the word POSTMARKE being used. Roller transfers were made on a steel die, and the word POSTMARKE erased and FREIMARKE inserted in the upper label. In the Museum at Berlin this steel die may be seen bearing four impressions from the original die. On three of them the word POSTMARKE is partially erased, and the fourth is completed and was used for making the plates for this value. The figures and words denoting the value were engraved, most probably, by Schilling, who had been employed by the State since 1851 to engrave the dies of the envelope stamps. A comparison with the ½ groschen value shews considerable variation in the size of the lettering, which tends to prove that this was not the work of Eichens. It will also be observed that on this stamp the value is given as VIER PFENNINGE and not PFENNIGE as on the 6pf stamps."

There were at least two plates for this value and though these were numbered in the right hand margin, the words "PLATTE No." and the numbers for the horizontal and vertical rows were not engraved on the plates. The color varies from a dark moss green to a pale yellow green. Paper watermarked with laurel wreaths was used for this value and the stamps were issued imperforate like the series of 1850.

1856. Wmk. Laurel wreath. Imperf.
5. 4pf green, Scott's No. 1.

THE THIRD ISSUE.

The Government evidently found the steel-plate process too costly and in 1856 it was decided to change the mode of manufacture. At the same time it was decided to dispense with colored papers for the silbergroschen values and print the impressions in color instead. The public were informed of the impending change by means of an Official Notice published in December, 1856, viz:—

No. 203.—CHANGE OF STAMPS.

The stamps of 1, 2, and 3sgr, which have hitherto been printed on colored papers, will in future be printed on white paper. The design of the stamp will appear, therefore, instead of in black as hitherto, in rose-red for the 1sgr, in blue for the 2sgr, and in yellow for the 3sgr.

The Post Offices are hereby informed of this alteration, and notified that the issue of such stamps will begin with next year, and that the 1, 2, and 3sgr stamps printed in black on colored paper will remain current until the present stocks of same are entirely exhausted.

GENERAL POST OFFICE,
(Signed) SCHMUCKERT.
BERLIN, December 23rd, 1856.

From the wording of this notice it has been assumed that the stamps were issued on January 1st, 1857, but no specimens dated earlier than June appear to have been found. The design is very similar to that of the first issue and it is evident there was no official intention of changing the type. The portrait of the King was engraved on wood by Schilling, the background being solid instead of lined as before. The frame resembles the former issue and has similar inscriptions. The expression on the king's portrait differs considerably from that of the 1850 type, the sleepy appearance of the first having given place to a nervous dilletante expression in the second. The oak leaves at the sides are more clearly defined and there is a colon instead of a period after "SILBERGR:", this being, of course, the correct abbreviation for "silbergroschen."

H. F. COLMAN,
Second National Bank Bldg., WASHINGTON, D. C.

From the original boxwood die engraved by Schilling three subsidiary dies were struck and, the necessary details of value being added to these, 150 electrotypes of each were made and clamped together in fifteen horizontal rows of ten each to form the printing plates. The rows were numbered vertically and horizontally in the margins on all four sides but whether the plates bore distinctive numbers or not is unknown. The 3sgr plate was ready first and trial impressions were made in rose, blue, and yellow. As these sheets were gummed it was for a time presumed the rose and blue stamps were errors of color but we now know they were only proofs.

The stamps were printed on plain white wove paper and, as a safeguard against forgery in the absence of watermark, this received a colorless network impression from a preparation of carbonate of lead before printing. This network can be made visible by washing the stamps with a solution of hydric sulphide, or more permanently and with less danger of discoloring the paper by the fumes of sulpheretted hydrogen which Mr. Wedmore describes as "a very evil smelling compound." The gum is whiter than that previously used, but coarser and much more inclined to crack.

A die for the 4pf in this type was prepared and proofs in green are known but this value was never issued.

Reference List.

1857. No watermark. Imperf.

6. 1sgr rose, Scott's No. 6.
7. 2sgr blue, Scott's No. 7 or No. 7a.
8. 3sgr yellow, Scott's No. 8 or No. 8a.

The Fourth Issue.

In 1858 the design of the 1, 2, and 3 silbergroschen values was modified, and the new stamps began to appear in September, being placed on sale as the stocks of the former issue became exhausted in the various post offices. A 4 pfennige value of similar type was issued in 1859. The modification consisted in the alteration of the background, which was cross-hatched horizontally and vertically in a similar manner to the line-engraved stamps of the first issue. Why the change was made is somewhat of a mystery unless the authorities presumed that the cancellation hardly showed with sufficient distinctness against the solid background of the preceding series. Little is known as to the method of manufacture of these stamps but Mr. Wedmore tells us that "a comparison with the stamps of the last issue shows that an impression was taken from the same wood-block, the background then lined, and the denomination of values, both figures and words, separately engraved for each value of the series. The shape of the letters and figures differs slightly from those of the previous issue."

All four values were printed typographically from electrotyped plates composed of 150 impressions in fifteen horizontal rows of ten. The rows were numbered on the margins as in the case of the 1857 issue. They were printed on unwatermarked paper, on which the invisible network had been previously printed. There are several fairly pronounced shades of all denominations.

In May, 1860, a new printing of the 6 pfennige value was made from the original plate or plates of 1850. As these are on unwatermarked paper, however, they cannot be confused with the series of 1850. The paper for these stamps was also previously printed with the colorless network. Pale and deep shades of this value may be found.

The Fifth Issue.

King Frederick William IV died on January 2nd, 1861 and was succeeded by the Emperor William I who early decided his portrait should not figure on the postage stamps by publishing a cabinet order under date of February 17th, 1861, decreeing that for the new series of stamps the Prussian coat-of-arms should be used. Economy may have had something to do with his decision for the new types were common to both adhesives and envelopes. The issue consisted of the same values as those previously in use and there were two types —one for the pfennige values and the other for the silbergroschen denominations. The design consists of a small oval of solid color containing a Prussian eagle, with outspread wings, having on its breast a small shield on which the letters "F. R." (for Frederick Rex) are inscribed. The frames for the 4 and 6pf are octagonal while those for the other values are oval. All are inscribed "PREUSSEN" at top and with the value in words below. The method of manufacture differs from that of the preceding issues and we cannot do better than quote from Mr. Wedmore's article regarding this:—

Schilling engraved the eagle, and the single lined oval immediately surrounding it, on a small block of steel. This was then hardened and an impression taken, which latter was then impressed on two steel dies. Schilling then engraved on one of them the design of the pfennige values and on the other the design of the silbergroschen values, but with no figures or lettering. These dies were then hardened and impressions taken on soft steel dies. On these Schilling engraved the word PREUSSEN and the denomination of value. Two such dies were engraved for 5 and 6 silbergroschen but no stamps of these values were issued.

From the above mentioned dies 50 impressions of each value (except the five and six sgr.) were taken on small pieces of lead measuring about 23x20 mm., and these then arranged in five horizontal rows of ten, each value separately. From these, three electrotype plates of each value were taken, and the three plates placed together to form one plate for printing. The rows were numbered on all four sides as in the previous issue, and some of the plates, perhaps all, were lettered instead of being numbered as in the issue of 1850. At the top and bottom of each plate a "needle point" was provided, which was printed in color on the margin of the sheet. Its use will be seen in due course.

The printing in color and the "embossing" of the central design was done in one process, in fact the central design was not, properly speaking, embossed, but slightly impressed in the paper, which was damped before being put to press to make the operation easier. The sheets of stamps were first gummed and then rouletted. For the gumming the best gum arabic mixed with glycerine was used.

The rouletting was done in hand printing presses in the following manner. A frame containing vertical rows of sharp steel strips connected by small horizontal strips, all with their edges filed at regular intervals, was placed on the press. The frame was provided with a hinged lid or cover. On this cover at top and bottom were two needles, and the sheet of stamps was placed on this cover, the needles piercing the sheet at the colored "needle points" already mentioned, thus ensuring that the sheet was accurately placed over the steel rouletting lines. The cover was then lowered and the hand lever applied thus pressing the sheet on to the rouletting lines. Only one sheet was rouletted at a time, and 1000 were rouletted in the "working day" of those "good old days," which consisted of ten hours. The rouletting apparatus was supplied by one Sutter, a machine maker of Berlin.

An official Circular, dated September 19th, 1861, was issued to the post-offices notifying them of the impending new issue and instructions were given that the new stamps were not to be sold until the stocks of the old issue were entirely exhausted. Though the stamps were available for use from October 1st, 1861, none are known with an earlier date than November.

The colors chosen for the respective denominations followed those of the preceding set fairly closely with the exceptions of the 3sgr. This was printed in yellow brown to conform with the "color scheme" adopted by the German-Austrian Postal Union.

A Post-office Circular of March 6th, 1865, announced that a stamp of 3 pfennige in violet would be added to the series and this appeared on April 1st following, the design being like that of the other pfennige values. This stamp was intended for use on printed matter sent to Norway.

All six values may be found in varying shades and all are known imperforate. These latter are proofs, though postmarked specimens exist.

NORWAY COMMEMORATIVE ISSUE.

Messrs. Whitfield King & Co. kindly send us the following extract from a letter received from their correspondent at Christiania:

"The date of issue was the 10th of May; and the stamps will be in use during the year 1914, and will not be declared obsolete. The stamps are issued to celebrate, not the 100th Anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, but the 100th Anniversary of the Constitutional Law. The stamps are not printed by the State Printing Works, as there are no State Printing Works in Norway, but by the Printing Works of Norges Bank (Bank of Norway). The Deputies are not listening to the reading of the Declaration on Independence by Stadtholder Prince Christian August, there was at that time no Stadtholder in Norway! They are listening to the Deputy Chr. Magnus Falsen, reading the committee's proposal for Constitutional Law."—S. C. Fort.

AEROPLANE MAIL ROUTE.

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y., May 31.—Postmaster Potter of Chautauqua has just received formal instructions regarding an aeroplane mail route which will be conducted on Chautauqua Lake the coming season from May 30th to September 7th. Aviator Al. J. Engle who made the flights in his hydro-aeroplane from Chautauqua last summer will be in charge of the route and will carry the mail pouches in his water-and-air ship, stopping at Chautauqua, Bemus Point, Celoron and Mayville. At each of these points skids will be built at the water's edge so that the airship may land easily and it is understood that post card stands will be conveniently arranged so that the cards may be dispatched without trouble by this mail route.

The letter authorizing the service will be of interest:

Washington, D. C., May 26, 1914.
Postmaster, Chautauqua, N. Y.

An order has been issued today on aeroplane mail route No. 607,004 which reads as follows:

The postmasters at Celoron, Bemus Point, Chautauqua, and Mayville, N. Y., are authorized to exchange mails (postal cards only) by hydro-aeroplane as often as practicable from May 30 to September 7, 1914, the mails to be carried in a locked pouch by a sworn carrier without additional expense to the Department.

Number of route 607,004.

At the end of the period please report the number of pieces of mail carried from and received at your office and the name of the aviator, or the names of the aviators if more than one, performing the service.

JOSEPH STEWART,
Second Asst. Postmaster General.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—The Sunday Call, Newark, N. J., in its issues of May 17, 24 and 31 published some illustrated stamp stories, written by H. A. Henckel, the secretary of the Newark Stamp Club. They are attractive and are good publicity promoters.

—In our issue of May 30, A. A. Leve advertised some scarce U. S. in panes of one hundred, O. G. and fine. Mr. Leve has placed this collection in the hands of Percy G. Doane, 608 Tribune Bldg., N. Y. City, and feels that the advertisement as originally inserted does not make this fact quite plain.

—We have a Vol. I, No. 1 called the Eastern Collector before us. It is published at Unionville, Ct., by F. W. Bauer, Jr., and is issued quarterly. A sample copy can no doubt be obtained upon request.

—R. A. Knight of the Texas Stamp Co., noting a news gleaning in the WEEKLY of May 9, calls our attention to the fact that he would have received the letter intended for him had it been addressed properly instead of to "R. M. Knight."

—We have a bound volume of the WEEKLY for 1912 in this office awaiting its owner. When the 1912 volumes were bound someone at the bindery took the trouble to remove the name from the first page.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from J. Saulnier, Wm. L. Hamilton, Jr. (3), Herman W. Boers, F. L. Jackson, Joseph Beggs (8).

—A Pittsburgh subscriber wishes to know how many patrons of the WEEKLY are to be found in Pittsburgh. We have in that city fifty-nine subscribers.

EDITORIAL.

Triple Extra—Liberia is not so benighted, after all, and our postmaster-general wants the information widely proclaimed that a parcels post convention has just been entered into by this country and Liberia.

Advertising Postmarks—Mr. George A. Chandler of Madison, Wisconsin, who has been instrumental in bringing the Wisconsin Philatelic Society to its present position of eminence has submitted a list of Canadian advertising postmarks for 1914; and we expect Mr. Chandler to give our readers an extended account of advertising postmarks generally. He is well qualified as a director of the International Postmark Society to treat of the subject which has its fascinations for many collectors.

They Say It—Our recent remarks on the delinquency of some of the dealers in their relations with the philatelic public have evoked a response from a number of readers whose correspondence makes spicy reading. Messrs. H. F. Lamb and William C. Polk, among others, have enriched our files by their contributions dealing with the shadowy side. The wise dealers are the ones who profit by the sins of omission of their careless brethren.

Shades Of Tantalus—Says a reader: "Here is a bit of lore for your hard-luck editor. A good many years ago, I bought a three cent pink, 1861, from a dealer who said it was the stamp but later an expert pounced on it and said it was not the real thing; and I gave the stamp away to a friend as a near pink. Several years later, I saw a three cent pink advertised for two dollars or so, not in the WEEKLY, and scenting a bargain, I sent the money only to receive the same stamp I had before. Weakly, I took my medicine and kept mum. I got rid of the stamp again, this time to a society brother who wanted it for the 'paid' cancellation it bore. A month or two ago, I bid on a 'fine pink,' so it was described, in a little auction sale and secured the stamp among my purchases. It was our familiar friend. I am a timid man and again, I swallowed my chagrin,—and threw the stamp through the casement, i. e., window. Please utter an exclamation for me." Say, would it not be jokeful if old Aeolus would waft the stamp in the path of a collector who carefully rescued it so that it might continue to haunt our fated friend?

Hard Shells—At a recent meeting of the Chicago Philatelic Society, a scarce stamp competition was held limited to stamps catalogued at one dollar or under, with no reference to condition. The winning entries were: Straits Settlements, 1883, "2 cents" in black on 4 cents rose, catalogued at one dollar used or unused; and the one cent, United States 1857-60, type four, No. 42C, catalogued at one dollar used. The arguments advanced in behalf of their stamps by the owners were of interest but we shall confine ourselves to the two stamps selected by the judges. A stamp man of wide experience said of the Straits Settlements stamp that in an accumulation of stamps from that country made by him during the last five years or so there were quantities of almost all the varieties of that country but not a single copy of No. 56. While the exponent of the claims of the stamp in question had not sought for the specimen in foreign markets or even solicited it from dealers in this country on a want-list yet his conviction is that the stamp is singularly elusive. While he sees in the aggregate large and valuable lots of stamps, wholesale and retail, he says that the stamp described seems extraordinarily scarce.

A Good One—The perforated one cent, 1857-60, United States, type four, No. 42C, "with the curved labels outside the labels redrawn" which makes its appearance for the first time in the present edition of the catalogue, evidently needs some price adjustment that may be looked for, perhaps, in the coming edition. We know that the impression that the stamp is rather low in price is somewhat general and the observation has been made in print that the quotation should be advanced. Dealers have paid over catalogue for fine copies of the variety with the lines definitely redrawn; and a collector has said that he would buy copies gladly at prices topping that of the catalogue. The characteristics of this stamp make it an interesting one to study and we can readily understand that specialists would care to gather it in some quantity.

The Other Extreme—Our oldest reader, Mr. E. P. Morehouse, Williamstown, Massachusetts, aged eighty-one years, was given a stamp with the respects of the WEEKLY; and now Master Allen Harrison of New York City suggests that likewise we remember our youngest reader. He says that he is nine years old and wants to know if he gets the stamp. He does if there is no subscriber who is younger.

Tax on Marriage—Mr. T. G. Evans, Chicago, has shown us a marriage certificate dated in 1865 on which the revenue tax was paid by a five-cent agreement revenue stamp, without perforations. One would be inclined to say that the stamp itself was prima facie evidence of original imperforation for who, it could be argued, would have any philatelic designs in shearing off the "denticulations" of a stamp in 1865. The sentimentalist might go further and say that it would have been an act of sacrilege to tamper with a stamp on a document of the sacred nature of a marriage certificate. However, the collector of to-day, coldly analytical, would reject the pretensions of a single stamp, imperforate, that is known only in perforated condition and his usual demand for a pair of the stamps imperforate would be made before he would relinquish his doubts. He would cite examples of the first perforated issue with perforations carefully cut off before the stamps were used by persons who were not in sympathy with the new-fangled notions such as that adopted by the government in 1857 of perforating the stamps; and this antipathy of the reactionary here and there could be extended so as to include a later period. Again, when time was not pressing, one could amuse one's self by trimming off the perforations so as to give the stamps a "finished appearance" let us say. It is admitted though that it is rather rough to find an imperforate five cent agreement on a marriage certificate of all things and then have a chap come along and say that actually the stamp does not absolutely prove anything.

Do You Follow Him?—The following bit of cubist fiction is culled from a vaudeville contemporary: "I have the rarity; ergo, I have it not as it is only the stamps I have not that I have in mind. Do you laugh?" Etc. No, we weep. Mr. L. Paul Miller, the philatelic humorist, should attend to the roundabout scribe under notice. By-the-way, someone said that it would be a good idea for an ambitious publisher to start a funny philatelic paper. Yes, Philatelic Puck, laughed itself out in one number in 1892 or 1893.

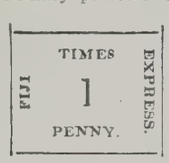
FULTON STAMP CO., 102 W. 42nd Street, NEW YORK



FIJI.

By FRED. J. MELVILLE.

Special interest attaches to today's meeting of the Royal Philatelic Society, when Mr. J. A. Tilleard, M. V. O., will display a collection of the stamps of Fiji. These stamps have always been among the favourites of the general collector, not so much on account of any attractiveness of design as for their remote and romantic island origin. The institution of a postal service in Fiji may fairly be attributed as due entirely to the enterprise of a local newspaper, the Fiji Times, started at Levuka, the old capital, in 1869. This journal had been in existence for about a year under great difficulties in the matter of circulating among the various islands, owing to the absence of a proper postal service. In October, 1870, the proprietors announced their intention to start a public postal service, under their own auspices, and this was heralded in a rhymed advertisement:

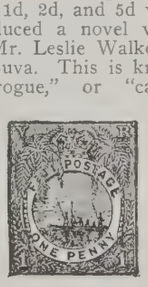
Remember, remember the 1st of November,
The day you'll have reason to bless,
For then we commence a thing quite immense,
To be called the "Fiji Times Express."

The stamps issued for the Fiji Times Express were of a simple character, being type-set and printed in the works of the newspaper. They bear the name of the service and the denomination enclosed in ordinary printers' rules, thus:

There were four denominations—1d, 3d, 6d, and 1s—another value, 9d, being added in 1871. They were all printed in black on rose-coloured paper, which paper is "quadrillé," or "laid batonné." Quadrillé paper has water-lines crossing each other, forming small squares, while laid batonné has a texture of parallel water-lines close together, crossed with water-lines some distance (½ in. in this case) apart. Genuine copies must be on one of these two kinds of rose-colored paper. The stamps are very scarce, as the current quotations from Messrs. Gibbons' catalogue show:

Quadrillé paper.	Unused.	Used.	Laid batonné paper.	Unused.	Used
1d	£10	..	1d	£1 10	..
3d	£12	£12	3d	£2 10	..
6d	£15	£15	6d	£5 0	£5
1s	£8	£7	9d	£5 0	..
			1s	£4 10	..

In 1871, as a result of the enterprise of the Express, King Cakobau promised that his Government would consider the establishment of an official postal service. A year after the commencement of the Express the Government issued its first stamps (December, 1871), and in the following year gave the proprietors of the Fiji Times notice to discontinue the receipt of inter-island correspondence. The Government stamps, engraved on wood and electrotyped in Sydney, New South Wales, bear a crown and cipher "C.R." (Cakobau Rex). The values are in pence (1d, 3d and 6d), though the currency was cents, an error which was rectified by the surcharges 2c, 6c and 12c, in 1872.



The cession of the islands to Great Britain in October, 1874, led to the overprinting of King Cakobau's stamps with the initials V. R. This was done in the office of the Polynesian Gazette, at Levuka, and there are many minor varieties. Later on the "V. R." addition was made lithographically at Sydney, and in 1878 the original engraved die had the letter "C" cut out and a "V" inserted in its place. The portrait of Queen Victoria only appeared on the 1s and 5s stamps, issued from 1881. In 1891 a new series of stamps appeared, still preserving some continuity in design with those of King Cakobau's first issue. The 1d, 2d, and 5d values, however, introduced a novel vignette, designed by Mr. Leslie Walker, the postmaster at Suva. This is known as the "native pirogue," or "canoe" type.

The canoe forging ahead towards the rising sun is an allegory of the progress of the colony, and the crown indicates the association of Fiji with the British Empire. The stamps of the 1891-1902 series were printed in Sydney, and there are many perforation varieties. From 1903 the Fijian stamps have been printed in England from the general Colonial key-plates, bearing the head of King Edward VII, and these are now in process of supersession, several of the Georgian values having already appeared.—Daily Telegraph.

A STAMP BOOKLET ITEM.

J. R. Hammerle found a 25c booklet of two-cent stamps which had between the stamps a soft crinkly paper inscribed across the middle of each sheet "Patented Sept. 20, 1904" instead of the ordinary waxed paper. Asking J. E. Ralph, director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, in regard to this matter Mr. Ralph replied that 396 books of twelve two-cent stamps each were made with this paper and delivered to the postmaster at Washington, D. C. on Dec. 20, 1912. Mr. Ralph writes:—"This was an experiment for the purpose of ascertaining whether a corrugated waxed paper could be used advantageously for interleaving stamp books."

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents.

UNITED STATES.—Herman W. Boers shows us a discovery recently made by him. He submits an unused block of four of Scott's No. 279, the 1c of 1895, with flame-like colorless spots extending upward from the right-hand seriph at the bottom of the figures of value. Traces are to be observed on the left, but not constant and plainly marked like those on the right. Similar appearances have already been noted on the 1c blue of 1890.

ARGENTINE.—The 20c and 24c values in the current set have appeared on the new watermarked paper. There were previously noted the ½c, 1c, 2c, 3c, 5c, 10c, 12c, 1p, 5p, 10p and 20p values on the same paper.

AUSTRALIA.—Ewen's Weekly has the following regarding the second issue of the King George 1d stamps, from its correspondent in Melbourne:

"The new supply of the King's Head 1d was issued here about 4 p. m. on March 19. People here take this to be an exact replica of the first as they are in similar shades and still on unwatermarked paper, and at first I thought so, too, but I happened by good fortune to have an entire sheet of the first emission by me, and comparing it with the new, I at once saw that the new sheets are about 8 mm. taller than the old. It struck me this might be due to the spacing only, but I soon ascertained it to be also in the stamps themselves, and what was more, the new sheets are about 4 mm. narrower, the effect of 'squeezed' Die being to give a distinctly oblong stamp instead of a squarish looking one. There is no difference in detail of design except that the oval containing the King's Head is slightly more compressed in the new. The sheets are of 120 stamps in twelve rows of ten. There is no restriction in the sale this time, but only a million more have been printed for all the States together, and they are being genuinely sold for postage use.

"A scarce variety has been found in this issue, a sheet turning up with no perforation along the edge of the stamps on the right side of the sheet.

"As anticipated, though this issue was not rushed for by collectors, it was soon exhausted in the ordinary course of business. There are at least three printings. In the second printing the spacing between stamps is considerably reduced as compared with the first, and the width of the printed sheet is reduced about 3 mm. In the third printing spacing between the stamps is again wide, but the Die used being narrower the width of the printed sheet is again reduced, being 4 mm. to 5mm. narrower than first printing. All the second printing so far seen are the very pale shade."

"That there are differences in spacing in the different printings is beyond doubt, and besides three printings there seems also to be three types, for I find stamps of the second print of which I have only a few all in the pale shade, whilst they have the breadth of the first print (December/13), are about ½ mm. taller and have the height of the last lot. Type 2 is the largest of the three types, but sheets are not larger as spacing between stamps is reduced.

"I cannot find any marked difference of design in the three Types except that the oval containing the Head has the sides flattened in Type 3. Also that the curved word Australia in Type 1 and Type 2 is more pronounced in the curving in Type 3, the difference being quite noticeable to the eye and probably the easiest way of detecting the Types without measuring. The inscription 'ENGRAVED AND PRINTED AT THE COMMONWEALTH TREASURY, MELBOURNE,' is about 1 mm. narrower in this last printing and the distance of it from the stamps also varies in the different printings."

King George Design.

1d carmine, perf. 11.
Issued December, 1913, unwatermarked paper, dull yellowish gum.

1st Printing, Type 1, stamps measuring 21¼ mm. by 25¾ mm. and spaced between 2¼ mm.
Issued March, 1914, unwatermarked paper, white shiny gum.

2nd Printing, Type 2, stamps measuring 21¼ mm. by 26¼ mm. and spaced between 1¾ mm.
Issued March, 1914, unwatermarked paper, white shiny gum.

3rd Printing, Type 3, stamps measuring 21 mm. by 26¼ mm. and spaced between 2⅛ mm.

A second correspondent has supplied Ewen's Weekly with a sheet of the latest issue showing double perforation between the 5th and 6th rows.

The Australian Philatelist states that the first printing really consisted of more than one million, being told that the actual number on sale was 1,200,000.

The Melbourne Argus states that the Postmaster-General has received a cablemessage to the effect that the process block from which the new King's head stamps are to be printed has been engraved in England, and will be sent immediately to Australia. He expects that about the beginning of May the new penny stamp will be in general use. The Kangaroo issue will be available only until existing stocks are exhausted.

BELGIUM.—L'Annonce Timbrologique reports having received official notice that the Sunday Coupon will be omitted on future issues of the stamps of Belgium.

CUBA.—Some of our foreign contemporaries announce that the Cuban Government contemplates the retirement of the new map stamp, and the issue of a new series with portraits of Cuban generals. This action is said to be due to the protest made to the President of the Republic by the Council of Cuban Veterans. The present series is likely to remain in use until after the Panama Exposition. A special 5c stamp is to be issued to commemorate the Centenary of the Cuban Poetess, Gertrudis Gomez de Avellaneda.

EPIRUS.—The permanent set noted in No. 1222 was preceded by a provisional set, which very appropriately had the death's head and cross bones, as the salient feature. Of these the following quantities were printed: 1l, 1500; 5l, 1700; 10l, 1500; 25l, 1000.

HONDURAS.—Allan Greeley sends us used specimens of the provisional surcharges on the current lithographed. Among them we find one not previously chronicled, the 2c rose having been surcharged "5 cent." in black, like those already mentioned.

Provisional Adhesive.

ITALY.—A new parcel post series will be issued July 1, with the following values,—5c, 10c, 25c, 50c, 1l, 2l, 3l and 4l.

JAPAN.—Tadayasu Maki writes us from Japan, to the effect that it was announced May 9 that the Government will change the paper on which the stamps are printed. The "design will be the same as last issue," but the paper will be wove, colored and "watermarked wave and fibers." There will be 13 values, 5r, 1s, 1½s, 2s, 3s, 4s, 5s, 10s, 20s, 25s, 1y, 5y and 10y. The new stamps were to be issued on the 20th of May, Mr. Maki's letter being dated May 10.

NEW AUSTRALIAN STAMPS.

It seems even yet too premature to say what the new stamps will be like, for the Postmaster-General has changed his intention so often that it looks like as if he delighted in making fools of the public. It was his original intention to have the new 6d stamp printed with the kangaroo in the centre, the tails of lyre-birds on each side, a boomerang below, and underneath that a platypus. It was, however, reported recently that he had approved of a new design of which the kookaburra will be the central figure. This latest stamp, which was illustrated in several of the local papers recently, is copied from an exhibit sent in by Mr. Blamire Young. We had thought of reproducing the illustration, but we have decided to wait until we have something reliable to go upon. We have no fault to find with the design. The main thing will be to see that the die is properly prepared. While one paper states that the 6d stamp will be printed in light blue, another has it that the colour has not been decided, but the probability is that it will be a shade of green. A Melbourne correspondent writes to the local press to the effect that the new ½d stamp will be coloured green with a black swan in the centre, and the 2½d stamp will be dark blue with a similar design to the new penny issue.

It should be borne in mind that stamps having two colours necessitate double printing, consequently increased and unnecessary expenditure.

We hope soon to be able to give our readers some definite information, but in order to do this we are afraid we shall have to wait until we have been enabled to actually buy the stamps over the counter.

The second million of the 1d King George stamps was put on sale simultaneously throughout the whole of the States on Friday, 20th March. In every respect the colours are similar to those used in the previous issue. In fact, one would think that the two millions were printed at the same time and one lot held back. Some collectors think the gum is a little whiter than before, but we are afraid this is an optical delusion.—Australian Stamp Journal.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BILL BLOSS, 2729 Hampden Court, Chicago, Ill.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

SOME THINGS THAT BOTHER THE BEGINNER.

After a person has decided to collect stamps, he is confronted with problems, which may appear greater than they really are.

In the first place, he starts out with a great deal of enthusiasm and a package of continentals. He pays 5c or 25c for the stamps, buys an album for a few cents, gets out the family glue pot and "goes to it." Italian revenues look as good to him as a Post Office Mauritius. The writer, in his opinion, thinks that the collector derives more genuine pleasure out of his stamps while he is gathering the first thousand than he does afterward. Every German, Grecian, Japanese, or French stamp, brings to his mind a strange land, with strange people. Complete sets mean nothing to him. He never heard of a peelable hinge, or a catalogue.

Later he feels the desire to get a stamp from every country. He finds another collector, more advanced than himself, and delves deeper into the subject. He learns that fish glue will spoil his stamps, and that pas partout paper is much better for them. He is taught how to use a hinge!

By means of exchange, he soon reaches his 1,000 varieties. Now his troubles are on the way. His album is too small. He finds the name of a stamp dealer somewhere, and then his learning increases in leaps and bounds. If possible, he calls on this dealer, learns that his collection is worth about thirty cents, and if he is a "quitter" he quits right there. The usual collection of the beginner does not bring the vast fortunes that stamp collections are reputed to bring.

If he is a real stamp collector, he sticks, and becomes more enthusiastic by a sight of the stamps the dealer shows him. He buys a printed album with a space for every stamp he has, every one he is liable to get, and also several hundred that he probably will never see. This feature is quite beneficial to the collector, for it tends to lure him on and on with the hope of filling in that hole in the center of the page, and completing that country. Recently, however, an album has been placed on the market which excludes the most expensive varieties, and combines both 19th and 20th century in one book. That album fills a long felt want with the beginner, and is the best printed album for him.

After buying the album, and spending many hours in placing his stamps, he decides that pas partout hinges are not as good as the kind the stamp man uses, and so buys his first stamp hinges. As he grows more experienced, he will insist on peelable hinges, even at a slight additional cost.

His next trouble, that of placing his stamps correctly, is solved by buying a catalogue. Every collector, large and small, should have a catalogue. The standard catalogue not only describes and prices practically every stamp ever issued, with the numerous minor varieties, but is an accurate list, and can be used as a handy check-list by marking off the stamps as they are secured. At an early date, the subject of making a check-list will be taken up at length. With this list, the collector can visit his dealer and avoid buying duplicates. The catalogue will answer probably eighty per cent. of the questions that bother the beginner.

Now that he has his album in shape, the next thing is to proceed to fill it up. This, of course, may be done by buying the stamps, or exchanging duplicates, or getting them through friends who have correspondence, or by stealing them from the stamp dealers. This last method is a favorite pastime with a great many collectors, and is one that is liable to put the collector where he will have much time to kill. However, this article is on the troubles of the beginner, not of the dealer.

Stamps may be bought from packets, or approvals, or from dealers' stock books, by want-list or otherwise. The packet affords a good way of buying stamps, if the maker of the packet is a thoroughly reliable dealer, and the price paid is high enough. It is advisable to buy a variety packet in preference to a quantity packet. The latter may be cheaper, but contains many duplicates, usually of a nature hard to dispose of, and practically worthless. The variety packet does not, or should not contain duplicates. It usually costs more, but is worth more. Unreliable dealers use the packet as a means of disposing of worthless junk which could not be sold any other way. Packets are sold without inspection, and the buyer many times finds that he has been "stung" with a lot of trash. A good variety packet, the larger the better, will make a fine start for a collection.

For the small collector, the approval offers the best way of buying stamps. Selections of stamps, mounted and priced are sent out by the dealers, at discounts from catalogue. The usual discount for good copies of most stamps is 50%. Some dealers allow even 75%, and of course, some do not allow as much as 50%. By selecting stamps from approvals, the collector has the opportunity of seeing just what he is buying, and picking out his copy. He buys what he wants and returns the others. His collection gets finer copies in this way, as he feels free to refuse to buy the poor copy, which he might have bought in a packet. Also, he will find a larger range of stamps offered on approval than he will in a packet. Packets are usually made up in great quantity, just alike, while approvals may be made up from small lots of stamps, and thus contain greater variety. The question of prices, and discounts cannot be gone into here, as it is practically a study in itself, and one that every collector will have to reason out for himself, more or less. Remember that every collector gets taken in on some stamps, and all stamps are not bargains. Even the most experienced dealers make mistakes, and get the short end of the deal. Do not feel discouraged when you meet your first loss.

The want list is another way of buying stamps. This consists of a list of certain stamps wanted, and ordered from a dealer. Usually the dealer sends them on approval, with privilege of return, but it is understood that the collector is willing to buy the stamps if they are in satisfactory condition at the right price. Filling want lists is an expensive way of selling stamps for the dealer, so if you do not intend to purchase the stamps, have consideration for the dealer and do not ask him to send them to you, "just to look through." Content yourself with his approvals. Stamps sent on want lists usually run higher in price, the discount usually being from 10% to 25%. This is fair, as an immense stock is necessary to permit this way of selling. Of course, when the collector has filled in a page or a set, excepting a few varieties, he is anxious to get these few also, and hence, he orders them especially.

After a collector has had a little experience, he will often find collections for sale among his friends. Good purchases are made this way, but some expensive ones are made, too. Be sure of your value before you buy.

Watermarks, perforations, paper, printing, types, grills, etc., all are troublesome to the collector until he learns to distinguish them. Gaining this knowledge is, however, a great part of the pursuit, and if the collector is of "scientific" turn of mind, he will relish investigating the stamps for these differences.

Watermarks may be detected by using a benzine cup or "watermark detector." It may be purchased for a small sum, or may be made by painting the bottom of a glass dish with black paint. By placing the stamp face down in the cup and pouring a few drops of benzine on it, the watermark may be distinguished. This process will not harm the stamp as the benzine evaporates readily. Benzine, of course, is highly inflammable, and care should be taken to keep it away from an open flame.

A STORY OF USING TALENTS.

By ARTHUR IRWIN SMITH.

"Well, just look what the mail has brought," said Charles Armstrong, coming into the room where his three sisters sat reading.

"Anything for me?" they chorused, throwing down papers and books.

"Oh, yes, one letter addressed to all of us, and a package for each—all from uncle."

First the letter was opened, and Mary read aloud:

"Dear nieces and nephew:—I am going away to India and other places abroad, and will be gone a year. In looking over my belongings preparatory to disposing of the things I did not need to take along with me, I came across my first stamp collection. Of course, I shall never quit collecting, for it will always be an interesting pursuit to me, but I am specializing on certain countries now, and do not care to keep this old collection any longer. I have put the stamps up in four packages which I am herewith sending to you. In using them remember the parable of the talents. When I return home, I will explain more fully.

Your uncle,
ERNEST ARMSTRONG."

"The dear old goose! What possible use could I make of this rubbish?" laughed Nora, opening her package.

Charlie poured out the contents of his package upon a newspaper, and ran through the stamps with all the eagerness of a boy of fifteen who had secured something he knew what he would do with. "It's pretty nice to have an uncle like that," he declared with enthusiasm.

"Well, it's certain he meant us to use them," said Grace, as she took possession of her package.

For many days after the arrival of the packages, Charlie spent all his spare time sorting out his stamps. He bought an album, a small one, of course, but he meant to add many varieties to those his uncle had sent him, by trading and exchanging as well as buying. Once he had looked through his uncle's big album, and always since then had dreamed of possessing one for himself. He hardly knew why he had never got started. He meant to make a better showing from his uncle's gift than his older sisters.

Nora and Mary were twins and sweet sixteen. School work and the frivolities incident to girlhood consumed most of their time. The packages of both still occupied their respective places assigned in the dresser drawer. Grace, who was eighteen, was going to the country to teach her first school. She packed her bundle of stamps away with the other things she meant to take with her, but as yet she had not discovered a plan to use them.

After a year had elapsed, their uncle came back from his travels, and when he arrived at their home, the four of them gathered around him eagerly to hear of the wonderful things he had seen and heard.

"Oh, I had almost forgotten to tell you about some rare specimens of stamps I ran across," he remarked, with a smile, after quite a lengthy chat. "And that reminds me that I haven't had your report on how you used those stamps I sent you."

"I bought an album, and began a collection with my package. Oh, I must show you how it has grown!" cried Charlie, rushing to find his treasures.

"You have, indeed, done well, so I have brought you a large album and a new assortment of stamps," said his uncle.

Charlie looked radiant as he thanked his uncle. How nice it would be to transfer his collection to this fine album!

"I am afraid you won't think so well of the way I used the stamps," said Mary. "Collecting did not appeal to me, and I did not have time for it, anyway; but I found a boy that had the time and the love for it, too, so I gave him the stamps. Poor little crippled James Wallace has spent many happy hours with those stamps."

"You have not failed to make use of your talent in a good way, too," praised her uncle, as he slipped on her finger a pretty gold ring.

"I have most of my stamps yet," said Grace, in her turn. "They have been used over and over, however, in many ways almost daily while I was teaching. My geography class found duplicates of many of them and decorated their written descriptions of countries with them. The history class used those containing pictures of great men to decorate their history booklets. In arithmetic classes pupils soon learned the equivalent of dollars and cents in the various countries by means of these inspiring stamps. My number work enjoyed counting the value of a pile of the common United States stamps. I certainly do appreciate your gift, and intend to keep using it."

Her uncle listened with interest, and handed her some books as her reward for using the talent in her possession.

Poor Nora sat in her chair discomfited. "I guess I buried my talent," she cried ruefully, "but I just never could think of any way to use them. Of course, Uncle, I don't deserve anything, and I'll go get the package right now and you can give them to Charlie."

"Poor child," said her uncle, as she left the room, "I don't see how I can be that hard on her." He drew a duplicate of Mary's ring from his pocket.

Nora handed him the packet rather sorrowfully. He glanced through it casually, and with a look of added interest after a moment.

"I see most of these are old issues of our own country. All of them have advanced in catalogue value since you have had them. Here, lucky little girl, is a present for you, too. I'm proud of all of you," he smiled as the supper bell rang and broke up the happy little group.

EXHIBITS OF CHARLES LATHROP PACK

AT INTERNATIONAL PHILATELIC EXHIBITION IN CASSEL, GERMANY, AUGUST, 1914.

Uruguay.—The collection is mounted on some 600 sheets in 10 Oriel Binders and is a highly specialized collection of both unused and used specimens, including many reconstructions of the plates of the early issues with demonstrations and illustrative diagrams. Especial attention is called to the progress made in the reconstruction of the plate for the 60c Diligencias 1856.

In the large numeral series of 1866, exhaustive treatment, both by comparative demonstration and by diagram, is shown, illustrating and explaining the differences between the settings for the London and Montevideo printings of all the values. Numerous examples are exhibited of the irregular combination of types proving the substitution of transfers.

The lithographed issues of August, 1881, 1882 and January-April 1884 also have been given especial study, the results being shown both by illustrative diagrams and explanatory notes. The later issues are fully represented by singles, blocks, etc., with special attention given to errors, etc., in the surcharged issues. Mention should be made of the following items:—

a. Block of four from the northwest corner of sheet of 80c, 1856, Diligencia, originally belonging to same sheet as the next.—

b. The celebrated "Ferrer" block of fifteen stamps of 80c, 1856, Diligencia.

c. Genuine postally cancelled copies of 80c and 1R 1856.

d. Complete reconstructed plates of the 80c and 1R 1856.

e. Tete-beche pair (vertically) of the 120c blue of 1858.

f. Group platings of all of the values of the 1860 thick figure issue.

g. Several examples of tete-beche pairs and blocks of the 1864 "arms" type; including an extremely rare block showing two tete-beche vertical pairs; also similar examples in the surcharged series of 1866.

h. Three copies of the "inverted centre" variety of the 25c of 1895, of which only about 25 used copies are known.

Victoria.—This is a specialized collection mounted on some 300 pages showing advanced philatelic research. Attention is called to the complete and partly complete plating of the various "Ham" printings and the "Campbell" printings of 1850-1854.

Of a special interest are the identified types found in abnormal positions on the plate, in relation to the surrounding types. These rare substituted transfers are shown and explained by notes and diagrams.

A small portion of this work was first shown at a meeting on February 19, 1914, of the Royal Philatelic Society, London, but is now exhibited for the first time at a philatelic exhibition.

The two-pence 1854, Queen on Throne, is shown in many reconstructed panes in shades and printings. Two of the panes are complete in pairs. Attention is called to the study of the substituted or replaced transfers.

The "wood-block" and "electro" series of 1854-61 have been carefully studied. The pane of the two-shillings value is shown reconstructed with the electros and wood-blocks.

A large number of early unused rarities are here, including the orange six-pence of 1860.

The "Emblems" series of 1857-60 and the succeeding electrotype issues of 1860-62, and the typographed issues of 1863-78 show careful attention to details of paper, watermark, impression and perforation; most of the rarer errors of watermark being shown. All the later issues are extensively "shaded." There is a pair of the four-pence, dull mauve (1885) in the color of the two-pence.

This collection is very complete and is extensively written up and explained.

Spain.—A comprehensive exhibit of unused and used, with special attention to shades of impression, qualities of paper, and gum.

In the early issues, unused, may be noted the following items: horizontal strip of three 5R 1850 in pale red on thick paper; horizontal pair of 6R 1850 in dull blue on thick paper; two copies of the 10R 1850; the 2R red of 1851 on thin paper; the 6c black of 1851 on thick paper; horizontal pair of 6R blue 1851 on thin paper; two copies each of

MR. LEVY GOES TO EUROPE.

In today's paper the Empire Stamp Co. of Pennsylvania makes the announcement that its manager, Julius Levy has gone to Europe, at the same time giving the names of the officers and the directors. Although the corporation has changed its name, the officers and directors are the same with the exception of Eugene Klein. All the directors are very well known in philatelic and financial circles. The new corporation extends to its clients the use of its commodious quarters in the Empire Building, and the use of their extensive philatelic library which is the best in the country.

MAP MADE FROM U. S. STAMPS.

John Fortune, a mail carrier of Atchison, Kan., has just completed making a map of the United States from postage stamps. By using stamps of various colors, he separated the original thirteen colonies, also outlining every state. The large rivers are shown with orange colored stamps. In the center of the map is a great American eagle with wings spread, the significant olive branch and bundle of arrows clutched in its talons. Above the eagle is worked out the phrase, "E pluribus unum." The Great Lakes are shown and the Canadian border is designated with Canadian stamps. The map is bordered with pictures of all the presidents, the likeness being secured from stamps of various design. In the center of the state of Virginia is a copy of the Declaration of Independence, bordered with stamps of Washington design. The stamps are all pasted upon a canvas, 5x9 feet, and each one of them has been trimmed, requiring infinite patience and work.

CURRENT CHATTER.

By ANGUS MCTAVISH.

Interviewing an American collector in the March number of the Collectors' Journal they say:—

"His first stamp collection (sic) consisted of a dozen or more bought from a Chicago dealer in 1877 for ten cents. His collection to-day, while not so extensive, is of good quality, nearly all being U. S. mint."

Bloater.

Reviewing a recently published address book, the Newark Stamp News for April says:—

"A book of this kind soon becomes incorrect through people moving, deaths, etc., for instance, we know of a case where a party has been dead for the last nine months; while not the fault of the publisher it will cause dissatisfaction to anyone who tries to write this party."

As long as it wasn't the publisher's fault, I will put up with a little dissatisfaction.

F. H. Vallancey in his April 11th Stamp Collecting column, says:—

"A few weeks ago I received a letter from a geneleman giving his name as A. W— of A—, North Wales."

But was he a perfect geneleman?

In the same publication, P. C. Bishop has an article headed—right across the page—"Of what Use is the Philatelic Congress?"

Until last year it was to provide philatelic editors with an annual feed at somebody else's expense. I don't know what the benefits will be this year, but I think there aint going to be any.

The editor of the Australian Philatelist, reviewing a new Australian stamp paper, says, of the publisher:—

"We would strongly advise him not to trust too much to printers' readers in the future, otherwise, McTavish will be on the warpath. We only hope the first number will escape his eyes."

When I learnt that the new paper was published at Booleroo Centre, I wept to think that—up to now—I haven't seen a copy. There will be a hullabaloo if somebody doesn't mail me a specimen. In the meantime I am putting an edge to my toothpick.

The following extract from a letter recently received seems to denote that the writer should have headed his communication Colney Hatch and not Port Sunlight. It relates to the editorial in last month's P.J.G.B., while the writer is possibly the dirty boy of another well known soap-makers' advertisement.

"One of the ancients made a well known statement as to the possibility of moving the whole earth with a lever, and this has since been accomplished by the Levers of Port Sunlight, who have stirred up the whole world with their renowned Sunlight Soap.

"This world-famed soap is not only capable of washing all the dirty linen of the nations, either in public or private, and of cleansing the Augean stable of party politics, but philatelists now recognise its unapproachable value for testing obliterations on postage stamps (vide the current number of your journal).

"All your readers should be presented with a twin tablet of the soap that will detect the oxidisation of white crosses on penny blacks, if not entirely successful in washing the blacks themselves to whiteness."

PHILADELPHIA STAMP COMPANY, [H
Percival Parrish, President. P. M. Wolsieffer, Gen'l Manager.
1204 CHESTNUT STREET PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Possibly my correspondent is trying to spoof P.J.G.B. readers, at any rate he seems to be very fond of soap.

Once every week the D.T. blossoms forth with a column or so of stamp chatter, usually of a very reliable and interesting nature. Occasionally, however, some would-be philatelic philistine is let loose for a few minutes, with the result that only the other day our worthy got-the-biggest-daily-circulation-of-any-1d-morning-paper announced to its readers that:—

"Philatelists will learn with interest that the labels are of four values, ½d in faience-green, 1d carmine, 2d agate-brown, and 5b bartolozzi-brown."

The same evening I enquired at the Rupert Street P.O. for a "5b. bartolozzi-brown," and they wouldn't serve me, in fact I think they thought I was asking for a sleeping draught—perhaps it sounded like it.

Interviewing their one hundred and first "Philatelist of To-day," the S.C.F. says:—

"Personally, Mr. Bing is a teetotaller, a non-smoker, and a vegetarian."

So would I be if it hadn't to be done personally.

The same publication, chronicling the new Bavarian stamps, says:—

"The Postage Stamp chronicles the 5 and 10 pfennig of the recently issued series as existing tête bêche, but gives no details of this interesting variety."

The S.C.F. is, I hope, not going to develop an abnormal thirst for knowledge.

Commercial candour from the advertisement columns of the same paper:

"Condition irreproachable. Price unapproachable."—Philatelic Journal of Great Britain.

"BETTER BUSY THAN LAZY."

In a little inn near Chichester, in England, there is a room papered with postage stamps. One who saw it says: "Ceiling, walls, doors, chairs, tables, picture-frames, every part of the room except the floor, are thickly covered, while from the ceiling hang long festoons and ropes made of bundles of stamps for which there was no other place. There are fully two million stamps pasted up, and a million more in these festoons, while great bundles, one of which holds sixty thousand stamps, hang among the heavy loops. The pictures inside the stamp-covered frames are of stamps themselves; the ceiling is ornamented with a great star; the arms of the neighboring town of Bognor are over the fireplace, and the tablecloth shows the Eiffel Tower! Queen Victoria is surprisingly lifelike in carefully chosen stamps of different colors."

TO EDITOR SEVERN.

With the Compliments of the Philatelic Journal of America.

An entirely new issue of postage stamps for the Constitucionalista Government which is in possession of the northern states of Mexico, is in the course of preparation and is expected to be ready soon.

The five centavo denomination of the series that was issued the first part of this year is entirely exhausted. The one centavo stamp is also exhausted in many post offices.

When the Constitucionalista forces took Torreon, a large number of the regular issue of Mexican postage stamps were captured.

These stamps were overprinted with a control mark representing the initials "G. C. M." in script monogram. The initials stand for "Gobierno Constitucionalista Mexico."

The stamps of the current issue of Mexico, bearing this overprint, that we have seen thus far postally used, are the

The following public notice, issued by the Postmaster General of the Constitucionalista Government, has been published in a newspaper in Hermosillo and has been sent us by one of our correspondents in that city.

Free translation from the Spanish:—

PUBLIC NOTICE TO POSTMASTERS.
Gobierno Constitucionalista
Main Post Office
Hermosillo, Sonora
Circular R. No. 14.

The stock of the five centavos postage stamp of the Constitucionalista Government having become exhausted, the Secretary of Communications and Public Works has sent to this Post Office a quantity of the stamps of the regular Mexican Union Postal Universal stamps which were captured from the Huertistas in Torreon; these postage stamps are to be used until the new issue of Constitucionalist's postage stamps now being prepared, are ready for circulation.

As, according to information in Nogales, Arizona, as well as here in Sonora, some Huertistas have a supply of these postage stamps, this Post Office has ordered, before bringing them into circulation, to have them surcharged with a monogram-stamp as it appears on the margin of the present notice, to avoid the introduction of postage stamps which would not leave any profit to the Constitucionalista Government.

For this reason all the employes of the Post Office in the State of Sonora are recommended to allow through the mails, only the correspondence prepaid with the stamps in use at present, or with those of the Union Postal Universal which bring the already mentioned over-print without forgetting that correspondence from other States must circulate even without the postage stamps, having any countermarks.

Constitution and Reforms
Hermosillo, Sonora—May 27, 1914
CORME HINOJOSA,
Postmaster General,
Constitucionalista Gov't, Mexico.

From the above official notice, it will be understood that letters mailed in states other than Sonora where the regular Mexican stamps are in use, correspondence prepaid with them will be recognized.

But in the State of Sonora, where the regular Mexican stamps are re-issued by the Constitucionalista Government, they will only be recognized for the prepayment of postage when they bear the monogram surcharge.

THE 1898 BOOKLET PANES.

By H. T. WILLCOX.

I have noticed the small article on booklet panes in your May 30th issue. Mr. Southgate has referred to the 1898 issue, stating that he believes that some of these were printed from sheets of more than 180 subjects. I can substantiate this claim for within the past week I bought six panes of this issue, all with the guide line running across the binding margin in the same way as mentioned by your correspondent, about half way between the perforations and the top of the pane.

Another interesting feature about these panes was that there were but two staple holes in each binding margin which fact proves that some of this issue of booklets were put together with but one staple instead of two staples as were used in the later issues. As all of the previous panes that I have had of this 1898 issue had four staple holes and as I took them from booklets which I could tell were of the later issues of these stamps by referring to the covers, I am inclined to think that the first books must have been made with but one staple and therefore it seems to me as if we must believe that the very first issues were printed from more than 180 subjects. These deductions may be of interest to your readers.

EDITORIAL.

Think It Over—It is about time for members of the American Philatelic Society to make calculations for attending the coming convention at Niagara Falls, New York. Plans for the entertainment of delegates are being perfected and we have received a letter from Mr. H. C. Barr, Buffalo, of the committee on arrangements, from which we take the liberty of quoting: "I was at Niagara Falls one day last week and it was my good fortune to secure an introduction to the mediators in session on the Canadian side. I spent a very pleasant hour or two conversing in Spanish, particularly with Sr. Rabasa, Huerta's personal representative, and as fine a gentleman as it has ever been my pleasure to meet. The International Hotel, the convention headquarters, is being rounded into shape rapidly for the summer season; and you will find the same clerk on the job who was there in 1894. He says that he remembers well the previous convention of stamp collectors. By-the-way, it was the glowing reports of that convention which led to my joining the society in the autumn of that year." Mr. Julian Park, the chairman of the committee on arrangements, sails for Europe this week but it is his expectation to return the day before the convention. Mr. Barr, as we have said before, is editor of that sumptuous Spanish monthly, La Hacienda, published at Buffalo.

Captured Stamps—The latest news from Mexico is rebel surcharges on the regular Mexican stamps. We have seen a cover bearing the five centavos orange surcharged in large letters in monogram, C. G. M., signifying Constitutional Government Mexico. The government stamps that were captured from the federal offices by the Constitutional forces have been made use of very enterprisingly by the captors after the sting of the stamps had been removed by the application of the surcharge.

A Curiosity—An esteemed English contemporary illustrates a three cent, 1861, U. S., with wide imperforate margins at right and left sides respectively. The three cent 1861 was printed in sheets of two hundred stamps, with two panes of one hundred specimens each, side by side. A division was made down the central margin, cutting the sheets into the post office sheets of one hundred stamps each. It sometimes happened that the perforating was done so unevenly that after the perforations were trimmed off the second side, a wide margin even showing part of the next stamp was left.

He Leads Them All—Our readers have been told that Mr. Edgar P. Morehouse, Williamstown, Massachusetts, aged 81 years, is the patriarch of our subscribers and we have now received from him, a letter of no ordinary interest. We trust that we violate no confidence in sharing the contents of Mr. Morehouse's communication with readers who will appreciate the genial tenor of it and enjoy its bright observations. At any rate, we plead justification because of the philatelic information, which when given as in this instance, at first hand, has an exceptional advantage and charm. Mr. Morehouse says in the course of his readable human document: "I thank you most sincerely for your congratulations and for the handsome gift you send me which I shall prize highly. I was born June 1st, 1833, the same day and year as the late Justice Harlan of the U. S. Supreme Court. Having outlived that good jurist several years, in my case, at least, philately has proven healthier than law; At the age of eight I lost my hearing from an attack of scarlet fever and at thirteen I was sent to school to the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb in New York City, where I remained seven years, graduating in 1853. Two years after I married and the following year went out west locating at Menasha, Wisconsin, where I became the editor and proprietor of the local paper and held the office of postmaster six years, from 1856 to 1862. Ah! what a chance I had then to stock up on the earlier U. S. stamps if I could have foreseen what collecting would be. Well, 'it might have been'—but didn't! About three-quarters of the number of the people of the town were foreign born and postage rates to the old country were high; 24 cents to Great Britain; 30 cents to Germany; 35 cents to Denmark and Switzerland and higher to other parts. Rates to France were on the quarter ounce basis and letters from that country came on very thin paper. Letters usually came unpaid while replies from this side were prepaid usually, money being more plentiful here. I had no objection to that for as my salary came from percentages of amount of collection at my office I got it 'coming and going,' so to speak."

Handling The 51's—It is something to talk about to tell of having cut the imperforates of the 1851 issue with one's own hands. Mr. Morehouse actually did sever the imperforates from one another with the convenient shears but no act of vandalism was committed as there were no philatelists then. Mr. Morehouse must dream occasionally of those glorious sheets of imperforates. He says: "When I took over the office the imperforates of 1851 were still in use and I remember using the editorial shears to divide them. I had all the denominations from one to twenty-four cents; there were no thirty and ninety cent and I doubt if they were issued. I never called for the thirty cent until the issue of 1861. When the stamps of that year were issued I was notified to order a full supply of them and to call in and redeem all the previous issues and return them to the department as these latter were to be demonetized on a certain date, the reason was given that so many postmasters in the southern states, then in rebellion refused to account for moneys in their possession or surrender the stamps still on hand; and it was decided to make the stamps valueless. I was 'fired' in 1862 for being a democrat but I had held the office eighteen months under Lincoln,—the hungry fellows after my place fought one another that length of time before one of them got it. I had the honor of having been the last democratic office-holder left in the state. Well, I have had quite a varied and active experience since and lived in different parts of the country and tried my hand at various pursuits and although an octogenarian am still in harness, being janitor to our two banks here. I have children, grandchildren and five great grand-children; and one of these last being my namesake will have my stamps, coins and curios when the last call comes to me. I collect everything in the stamp line that comes along, although lately, I have specialized in blocks of four, United States, of which I have a pretty good collection. I became a subscriber to the WEEKLY in the early '90's when it was published at St. Louis and with the exception of about three years when I was in California, I have been a regular ever since. Hope I may live to see it pass the 10,000 mark." Even so, we have not given all of Mr. Morehouse's letter which we may add is beautiful in its legibility. The WEEKLY feels indebted, indeed, to its oldest subscriber.

A-Plenty—Auction sales this month are almost as plentiful as June brides and where once the summer auction sale of stamps was something of an experiment it is now a routine proceeding. Theoretically, warm weather prices should be lower but we cannot see that the heat has melted them to any great extent.

I am starting on an extensive European trip and will visit all the important stamp centers, expecting to return in August. During my absence, my brother and assistant Joseph Klein (A. P. S. 4278) will carry on the business as usual, fill orders and answer letters addressed to me.

THE STAMPS OF PRUSSIA.

By BERTRAM W. H. POOLE.

THE SIXTH ISSUE.

The parcel post division of the Prussian Post-office dealt with parcels, money orders, and insured letters and, prior to 1866, payments in connection with these were made in cash. With a view to saving the immense amount of labor entailed by booking all these small cash items it was decided to issue stamps of the values of 10 and 30sgr and, according to an official notice of November 24th, 1866, these were not to be sold to the public but were to be affixed to the parcels, etc. by the postal clerks. These stamps were of different types and also quite distinct in design from all other Prussian stamps. The designs were drawn by Schilling and he engraved the original dies on copper. These dies may now be seen in the Berlin Postal Museum. The design for the 10 silbergroschen shows large open numerals in the centre of a transverse oval band inscribed "PREUSSEN" in the upper portion and "SILB. GR." in the lower, the intervening spaces being filled with fourteen small Prussian eagles. The oval rests on a rectangular background which has no exterior frame. The ground work consists of a repetition of the words "ZEHN SILBERGROSCHEN" in very small type. There are thirty-two rows of lettering in all and the inscription is shown three times in each row. In the large numeral "1" the word "POSTMARKE" is shown in small type and the same word appears twice in the large "O." The design for the 30 silbergroschen shows open numerals within a transverse oblong rectangular frame similarly inscribed to the 10sgr. In this value there are 10½ Prussian eagles on each side of the frame between the inscriptions. The background shows the words "DREISSIG SILBERGROSCHEN" repeated twice in each of twenty horizontal rows, while the "POSTMARKE" is engraved in each of the large numerals as in the case of the 10sgr. Mr. Wedmore describes the manner in which these two stamps were manufactured as follows:—

> The design was engraved in positive form; that is to say, an impression from the die would show the stamp reversed. From the die electrotypes were taken and arranged in ten horizontal rows of ten each. The rows were numbered in the margin on all four sides. The stamps were then printed on a special transparent paper (not goldbeater's skin), one side of which was painted over with a solution of collodium and gelatine before the printing. The stamps were printed on the side thus treated, and the gum was then applied on the same side. From the foregoing description it will be seen that the printed side of the paper was affixed to the parcel, but the paper being transparent and the stamp being positively engraved, the design was visible in its proper form on what we may call the obverse side. The stamps were rouletted in the same manner as before described, but on a new frame which made 10 roulettes in 20 centimetres. The unique method of production was the invention of a German-American, who had sold the patent to the Prussian Government some few years before these stamps were issued.

Although Prussia joined the North German Confederation on January 1st, 1868, and in common with other members of the Union ceased to issue its own distinctive stamps there was such a large stock of these 10 and 30 groschen stamps on hand that the Confederation continued to use them until the end of February, 1869.

THE SEVENTH ISSUE.

Prussia, having purchased the remaining rights of the Princes of Thurn & Taxis for the sum of three million thaler (about $2,250,000), from July 1st, 1867, was obliged to provide a series of stamps in kreutzer currency until further arrangements could be made. These stamps were also used in that part of Bavaria which was ceded to Prussia by the treaty of August 22nd, 1866, at the close of the war. Five values were issued in all—1, 2, 3, 6 and 9kr. One kreuzer was equal to 3 3/7 pfennige, and the letter rates were fixed at 3, 6 and 9 kreuzer as being the nearest equivalents to 1, 2 and 3 silbergroschen. The two lower values were used for printed matter, samples and postcards.

The design is the same for all and consists of a Prussian eagle within a hexagonal frame intercepted at the sides by a large block for the numerals of value, which form part of the solid background on which the eagle is embossed. At the top is "PREUSSEN" on an engine-turned background, and at the base is "KREUZER" on a similar ground.

For the central design of the Prussian eagle the same die was used as for the stamps of 1861-65, while the engraving of the rest of the design for the respective values was the work of Schilling. The stamps were printed in sheets of 100, in ten rows of ten, and rouletted 16. All four margins were numbered at the ends of the horizontal and vertical rows.

REMAINDERS.

The use of Prussian stamps ceased on December 31st, 1867 for, on the following day, the stamps of the North German Confederation came into use. There were considerable remainders of the issues of 1861-67 and towards the end of 1868 attempts were made to dispose of these. The late M. Moens was offered the lot comprising no less than a quarter of a million sheets of the issues of 1861-67 besides a large number of envelopes and a big stock of the obsolete stamps of Schleswig Holstein. The minimum price was to be the cost of manufacture which, in the case of the stamps, was 2½ thalers per 100 sheets. The value of the entire lot was estimated at 3,000 thalers and as no purchaser could be found at that figure the numbers were reduced, a portion of the stock being sold to a papermaker for the purpose of being reduced to pulp. The remainder were carefully tabulated and consisted, so far as the Prussian stamps were concerned, of the following:—

	1sgr 19 copies.
	2sgr 13 copies.
	3sgr 38 copies.
1856	4pf 85 copies.
	4pf 21 copies (unwatermarked paper).
1857	6pf 80 copies.
	1sgr 10 copies.
	2sgr 6 copies.
	3sgr 30 copies.
1858	4pf 88 copies.
	1sgr 79 copies.
	2sgr 64 copies.
	3sgr 61 copies.
1861	4pf, 6pf, 1, 2, 3sgr, 30,000 of each.
1865	3pf 30,000.
1867	1, 2, 3, 6, 9kr, 30,000 of each.

The 10 and 30sgr, as we have already shown, were not offered for sale, these being used up as stamps of the Confederation itself. This lot together with about 10,000 envelopes, and over 270,000 stamps of Schleswig Holstein were sold to the late Mr. Julius Goldner, of Hamburg, for 1,000 thalers (about $750). The comparatively small quantities of the 1850-58 issues were immediately acquired by M. Moens and it was not long before the balance of the stock was entirely dispersed.

UNITED STATES.—Frank M. Mason informs us that Providence, R. I., has changed its method of precancelling stamps. The familiar rubber stamp has been discarded in favor of a type printed overprint, reading, "Providence —Rhode—Island." This is in three lines of condensed Gothic type between two medium heavy rule lines.

ALBANIA.—Stamp Collecting says that a complete series of Albanian postage stamps, with portrait of Prince William of Wied, is in course of preparation at the State Printing Works at Vienna. Like the Scanderbeg series, they will be presented to the Albanian Government free of cost. Attention has just been called to an error in No. 1220. The unit of value is "qint" and not "quint" as there printed.

ARGENTINE.—Stamp Collecting reports having seen the 50c value on the new watermarked paper.

BULGARIA.—Certain offices in Bulgaria have been supplied with certain values of the current series surcharged with a large "T" in thick blue ink for use as postage due stamps. L'Echo reports having seen the 5s, 10s, 30s, and 50s of 1911 and the 15s surcharged of 1913, with this overprint.

CAYMAN ISLANDS.—The Sterling Stamp Co. sends us specimens of the 3d violet on yellow, 1sh black on green and 10sh green and carmine on green, all on paper surface tinted with white back. These were chronicled some time since.

CHILE.—The Metropolitan Philatelist reports having seen the current 20c stamp of Chile with inverted head.

CUBA.—Maury's Collectionneur reports that the 1p of 1910 has been issued in black instead of slate and black. As the map stamps are now being issued, it is possible that the Roloff stamps were printed some time ago.

GUADELOUPE.—Maury's Collectionneur is informed that all stamps of the issues prior to that of 1905-07 have been retired and will be burned.

JAPAN.—Stamp Collecting says that owing to the death of the Dowager Empress, the Coronation has been postponed, and therefore no commemorative issue will appear this year.

MEXICO.—L. J. Ragatz informs us that the Mexican Constitutionalists have surcharged some 5c stamps, Scott's No. 314, recently captured, with the letters "G. C. M." in large script type. This means "Gobierno Constitutionalista Mexico." Only a few offices have been supplied to date. Other values may be similarly surcharged shortly, as the stock of stamps of most values is very low. Mr. Ragatz has both used and unused specimens, but has not found any varieties of overprint as yet.

PHILIPPINES.—H. W. Wolseley writes that the 4p value has been issued on the single-line watermarked paper, as he received one a short time ago. As stated in No. 1223, this completes the series on the new paper.

ST. HELENA.—A letter received in Boston, recently, from the Island states that all the remainders of the King Edward stamps have been destroyed.

THE BRITISH ANNUAL CONGRESS.

The King and the Congress.—Of course the talk of the week in town has almost entirely centred upon the Congress. It is the sixth of these great gatherings of collectors, and it will be remembered by many as one of the happiest and perhaps the most signally successful of the series. In the first place this year's Congress has had the great honour of the patronage of His Majesty the King. His Majesty's interest has not rested just in nominal patronage, but has been a lively influence throughout the three days of the Congress. There was the gracious invitation to Windsor Castle, the not less gracious message to the delegates on the occasion of the official banquet, and what delighted the delegates even more than these generous tokens of recognition was th opportunity of seeing a portion of the royal collection, the "Mafeking" stamps, of which a description appears elsewhere in this issue.

The Opening Ceremony.—It was unfortunate that the Postmaster-General was unable to be present to formally open the Congress but the delegates found in Captain Norton, M. P., the Assistant Postmaster-General, a delightful speaker, who made the most of his opportunities at the opening ceremony.

A Collector in the 'Sixties.—Captain Norton alluded to the early postal arrangements of Paris and the Kingdom of Sardinia, in connection with which stamped papers were issued, and mentioned without entering upon controversy the rival claims of Hill and Chalmers to the invention of the postage stamp. Taking a very practical view of the claims he thought it mattered little which of them gave us the postage stamp, what mattered more was that the General Post Office had done so much to develop the stamp system. During his lifetime, he said, the old red penny stamp went through no fewer than 150 modifications. The Captain claimed to have been one of the earliest collectors, when a small boy at school in France in the 'sixties. He had what was then considered a very good collection, inasmuch as collecting had only just begun. He much regretted having parted with that collection for a very small number of francs, but there was some satisfaction (to the other fellows!) in the thought that some of his stamps might have gone to enrich the collections of some of the gentlemen present at the Congress. He alluded to the great increase of public interest in stamp collecting, congratulated the meeting on its objects, especially that which concerned the campaign against forgeries. In Philatelists he considered they had a large army of amateur detectives ready to assist in putting a stop to forgery. He also referred to the "Junior" motion on the agenda and said that to take the young collector in hand was most important from the educational point of view and to strengthen all the philatelic societies in the country.

The Post Office and Philatelists.—The Chairman, Mr. M. P. Castle, M.V.O., J.P., moved a vote of thanks to Captain Norton, and took the opportunity of emphasising the value of the philatelic community to the stamp issuing countries of the world. Forgery was constantly going on, not only of the old and rare stamps which collectors sought but of stamps in use at the present day. There was some reason therefore that the Post Office should bestow a friendly recognition upon philatelists. He also complimented Captain Norton's Department on the improvements in our postage stamps at present in use.

The Greatest Advantage of the Congress.—Mr. Castle, after the formal opening, delivered a short address of welcome to the delegates on behalf of the hosts, the Royal Philatelic Society. He said the greatest advantage in these Congresses was that collectors were persuaded to leave their lone furrows and become better acquainted with each other.

Humour that was Rare.—The business part of the Congress proceedings opened in rather a desultory fashion. Rarely did a speaker disturb even momentarily the stern gravity of the meetings, but one London delegate certainly took the "chill" off the afternoon meeting by referring to the sum of £15 collected for the Forgery Committee's work as "a flea-bite in the ocean." More mirth was, however, raised by a delegate nominated for the Permanent Committee assuring the Chairman, Mr. M. P. Castle, that he "should certainly not resign in his (Mr. Castle's) favour." Yet another bon mot was the dictum that "in force there is unity."

The Propriety of Press Reports.—But we could have done with a few more lapses of the tongue, or else some humorous souls with a more humorous way of putting things. There was some fun during the first morning when one of the most able and regular supporters of the Congress, Mr. F. A. Bellamy, F. R. A. S., one of the representatives of the Oxford Philatelic Society, seconded the motion (proposed by Mr. J. J. Darlow) that:—

> "No other but the officially appointed Shorthand Reporter be allowed to take down Verbatim Reports of the proceedings of the Congresses, and this motion be added to the standing Rules governing the Philatelic Congresses of Great Britain. Nevertheless nothing in this Rule shall prevent any person giving in language of his own a description of the various meetings and the happenings thereat."

Mr. Bellamy's Views.—Mr. Bellamy, I think, rather surprised the delegates by his seriousness over this matter, though at the outset he dealt with the matter in a lighter vein. It seemed evident he loved not the Press with its efforts to serve up news (and other matter) in a manner that would prove palatable to the readers of the different classes of journals. He seemed to deem it an indignity for the Congress to be mentioned in a newspaper on the same page as a "bald man and a white rabbit." He quoted some headlines (extraordinary large ones, he said) which had been used to describe Congress reports in newspapers in the past.

Some Headlines Quoted.—I fear Mr. Bellamy rather tickled than angered the Congress by his quotations of these headlines, such as which indeed is more complimentary than otherwise. Other titles quoted were "King Interested—New Stamps for the King—Stampless Age—Philatelists meet for a Council of War—Fascinating Hobby of Stamp Collecting—Romance of the Hobby—The Wonder—Sermon to Fishes—Landed at Margate—Foolish Philatelists."

"THE STAMP COLLECTORS' PARLIAMENT NOT SO WEARY AS WESTMINSTER."

What Would Mr. Pickwick Have Said?—The feeling of the meeting appeared to be that there was something more in the "verbatim" motion than met the eye, and speaker after speaker indicated that the motion as printed would not be acceptable to the meeting. The discussion was a long one, and some quite remarkable views were expounded on the Press, on Copyright, on Reporting, on the Honour of Delegates (even such as might at the same time be pressmen), and upon the Literary Construction of the Motion. It was a debate that would have delighted the soul, and inspired the pen of one of the world's most famous journalists, the late Mr. Charles Dickens, for whose report of the proceedings in the Pickwickian sense I should have been content to sacrifice even the valuable "verbatim" reports so carefully edited by the Recording Committee, also yclept "Angels" of the ilk, by some of the less reverend delegates.

In the end the Chairman formulated and moved an amendment which left it open to anybody to prepare and publish any reports they pleased, but which laid down that the Congress should only recognise the official verbatim report as prepared by the Recording Committee.

More Exciting News.—How far were the fears justified as to the anxiety of the newspaper press to give "verbatim" reports of the Congress in London? Practically no reports appeared of the first day's proceedings. The Times contained no account whatever on Thursday, the Daily Mail had six lines, and the Daily Express had a supposedly humorous little skit, which no doubt greatly tickled its author, but failed to disturb the gravity of the Delegates. The newspapers were far too busy following the more exciting, if less amusing, congresses of Suffragettes who were particularly active during those tropical days of last week.

What the Congress Did.—What did the Congress do to justify its existence as the Philatelist's Parliament? It passed the Pro-Press amendment to the supposed Anti-Press motion. It elected a Recording Committee, but left little for the two members to record save the lively debates on the rights of other parties to do any recording of their own. It received several reports, viz., those of the Permanent Committee, of the Auditors, of the Forgery and National Collection Sub-Committees. It passed practically unanimously the motion by Messrs. Hollick and Bellamy—

"That in the opinion of the Congress it is desirable that every Philatelic Society shall have a Junior Section."

Business Comes to a Sudden Ending.—That sums up the purely business transactions of the Congress. There was a motion by the Oxford Philatelic Society—

"That in view of the absence of numbers to the titles (in heavy type) in the Crawford Catalogue of Philatelic Literature, and of the labour and increasing inconvenience in quoting the journals, it is desirable that a hand-list of these titles, with consecutive numbers prefixed be prepared and printed in octavo size" (Proposed by Mr. F. A. Bellamy, seconded by Mr. W. H. Tarrant).

But, unhappily, Mr. Bellamy appears to have too deeply regretted the failure to secure the approval of the Congress to his "verbatim" report motion, and asked leave to withdraw this, which leave being granted left practically no business for the concluding session of the Congress to transact on the Friday morning.

Nearly all the Wednesday and Friday morning sessions were taken up with the discussion of the reporting of the Congress proceedings. On the Friday there was an attempt to get the Congress to rescind the "Pro-Press" resolution of Wednesday, owing to the attitude taken by the appointed Recording Committee. The revival of the discussion, none too pleasant, and little creditable to a Congress of British philatelists, was unfortunate, but no one would suggest that those gentlemen who would have desired the Congress to vote otherwise than as it did on this subject, lacked interest and concern for the welfare of Philately in general and the Congress in particular. But to us, quite apart from the strong and definite views we hold upon the desirability of allowing the fullest freedom to anybody to report the proceedings, it does seem that the matter for primary concern is not as to who may be permitted to report, but that there shall be something discussed and something achieved that will really be worth anyone's while reporting at all. Though we are no less friendly to the Congress, no less desirous of its welfare, and its prosperous and useful continuance, we felt and many of the delegates shared the feeling, that the predominant discussion at the Sixth Philatelic Congress (that concerning verbatim reports) was scarcely worth recording in any shape or form.

The Undelivered "Closing Address."—The Congress closed in a rather sorrowful way. Major Evans, who had been with us during the first two days, was to have given a closing address on the Friday. His closing addresses in the past have been rare mixtures of tragedy and comedy. They have been tragic as valedictory addresses, except to Congresses of mothers-in-law, generally are, but if we must have "closing addresses," if even such good things as Congresses must come to an end, then we could wish no more delightful parting shots than those which Major Evans is able to give. But Major Evans was unfortunately too unwell to attend, the excessive heat of these days having brought on an attack of hay fever. The news cast a cloud over the closing meeting of the Congress, but it is to be hoped that the hero of many philatelic campaigns will soon be restored to his usual health, and that he may make up for his absence on Friday last by many successive "closing addresses" to sweeten the parting of the delegates after future Congresses. —Postage Stamp.

AS SEEN IN "SMART SET."

In the March issue of this magazine is a story with a bit of philatelic flavor though it may not add very many recruits to the ranks of our hobby. We make this excerpt:—

"Kathryn Stackwood had married Phillips Brice, of the Brices of Stonedale. It was a love match; money was no object on either side. She was a charming woman, four years older than Orville; her husband weighed one hundred and twenty pounds, wore a drooping mustache and collected postage stamps. He had the best collection of Indo-China revenue issues ever brought together in the United States. A British collector, hearing of the Brice collection, had journeyed to this country in a wheel chair to see it, and had died on the way home—of a broken heart, it is said. Mr. Brice also had a Canadian stamp without perforations on the side.

Orville was well received at his sister's house. Brice took a strong fancy to him. Before the first day was over he presented his brother-in-law with a rare Bermuda stamp, with which to start a collection. "But remember to specialize," he warned Orville. "Most collectors fail in trying to cover too much ground. Don't get side-tracked. I made the mistake once of trying to collect New South Wales in addition to my Indo-China. But I saw my mistake in time."

On one occasion Mr. Brice came home in a state of pure intoxication—of a non-alcoholic kind. "What do you think of that?" he asked of Orville, laying a stamp on the table in front of him.

"Fine," said Orville. "What is it?"

"You wouldn't know at first," was the reply. "It's an Indo-China, with the gum on the wrong side. I got it from a man that didn't know its true value. It cost me only two hundred dollars."

"Bully for you," said Orville, always anxious to please."

THE A. P. S. CONVENTION BADGE.

The members of the Buffalo Collectors Club have generously offered to donate the official badges for the coming convention of the American Philatelic Society, and a handsome design with a view of Niagara Falls, worked out in copper and enamel has already been selected for this purpose. This will form a very interesting souvenir for all those who attend, and the Buffalo Club deserves to be commended for its generosity and enterprise. That this is one of the liveliest branches of the parent society is well known to all those who attended the Convention held at Buffalo in 1901, the year of the Pan-American Exposition. The fact that the Buffalo Club is in charge of the arrangements at Niagara Falls this year, is in itself, a guarantee that the various details of entertainment will be well taken care of.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BILL BLOSS, 2729 Hampden Court, Chicago, Ill.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

SOME THINGS THAT BOTHER THE BEGINNER.

Perforations are, in most cases, of little importance to the beginner, and the less attention he pays to them, the less trouble they will give him. Perforated and unperforated varieties, of course, are varieties of importance, but the mere difference in size of the holes is a matter of little consequence to the collector of limited means who is trying to collect in general. When one undertakes to "specialize" a country, it is quite permissible to collect every possible distinction. If the collector feels inclined to study perforations, however, he will find a perforation gauge and millimeter scale indispensable in his work. Every collector should have this little article, as it is inexpensive, and a great help in measuring surcharges and differences in design and size.

Paper varieties offer quite a little trouble to the beginner, and sometimes even to the experienced philatelist. An article on this subject will appear shortly, as this problem is too long to settle here.

Surcharges are sometimes troublesome to the beginner. With the aid of his catalogue and album, however, he should be able to classify these varieties readily. Many collectors limit themselves to unsurcharged stamps only. The writer, who is an enthusiastic collector of South and Central American stamps, finds a great deal of pleasure in the surcharged stamps, and in his opinion, surcharged stamps are as distinct a variety from the unsurcharged as though the design of the stamp itself were different. A collection of surcharges alone would make an exceptionally interesting study, if the collector were able to give the reasons for every over-print.

Colors and shades are confusing to all stamp collectors, advanced, medium, or novice. The fact that there seems to be no fixed chart of colors in stamp collecting is probably the cause of most of the confusion. Nearly every catalogue differs on the names for the various shades, and a stamp that is scarlet in one list may be vermilion in another, orange red in another, scarlet vermilion in yet another, and so on, down the entire line of catalogues. Also, a stamp of one country may be listed as sky blue, while a stamp of another country in exactly the same shade will be called light blue, or even peacock blue. Also, practically every printing of a stamp is of a slightly different shade, so in a large majority of stamps, in fact, in nearly every stamp, the shades are many more in number than are listed in the catalogue. The writer has twelve very distinct shades of the 2c United States 1910 issue in his collection, and knows of at least four others, and yet this stamp is listed only under one shade.

Differences of types, or designs, are puzzling to the collector, and in many instances, experience seasoned with a little imagination is necessary to detect them. Careful study is essential in detecting many of these distinctions, but as this is the foundation of stamp collecting, the collector will not regret the time devoted to the work. Practically all types and differences in designs are explained in the catalogue, though many of the explanations leave the collector as much at sea as before. A great many of these differences are interesting and rather important. Also, many are far-fetched and are of importance only to the specialist. Of course, as the catalogues are designed for both beginner and specialist, it is necessary that all varieties be included.

The process of manufacture is also responsible for some of the beginner's complications. Lithographed and engraved stamps are often very hard to tell apart. The stamps of Hungary and Uruguay offer good examples of these two methods of printing, as the same design appears both ways. Lithographed stamps are often of crude appearance, so much so, in fact, that they are often taken for counterfeits. They lack the sharp, clean cut appearance of the engraved stamps, and do not bring out the design as well. In manufacturing the stamps, the design on engraved stamps is cut into the plate, and in taking the impression, the ink collects in the cut design and causes the raised effect, more commonly noticed in engraved calling cards and bank notes. In lithographing, the design is not cut in the stone (used in place of the plate) but is applied to the smooth surface. The "white" or unprinted part of the design is drawn on the stone in a greasy substance which will not take ink. The printed portion of the design is free from this grease, and accordingly gives the impression. There being no indentation in the stone, the ink does not collect, and is accordingly perfectly smooth on the stamp. These stamps can nearly always be distinguished by feeling them. In this connection, let me urge the collector to "feel" them and handle them as little as possible. Use stamp tongs in handling your stamps. Thumb prints are all right in police records, but are decidedly out of place on stamps.

Minor varieties offer many complications, but as their name implies, they are usually of minor importance, and most collections do very well without them. They consist chiefly of differences of shade, perforations applied unofficially, "type" differences of slight variation, errors and differences of surcharge, and errors in perforation or printing (as in stamps with inverted centers). The surcharge and printing errors are usually interesting, and often very costly. The perforation errors are generally more interesting than the various perforations in major varieties. The color differences are the least important in the list.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

C. S., Guthrie, Okla.—Colombian Republic, No. 363, perf. 13 at the top only would be called a part perforate. Imperforates are stamps that have no perforations at all. These Colombians come with unusually large margins, and it is possible that this stamp has been trimmed. Part perforates and imperforates are not unusual in this country, however, so it is equally possible that your stamp is a genuine part perforate. Colombians are pretty hard sellers and do not bring much at best, so it would be hard to set a price on this. If it was in a pair, or used on cover, it would be more desirable. In short, the stamp is worth about what you can get for it, depending on how badly the buyer wants it.

The Dutch Indies stamp without the dot over the "E" would also probably be of interest only to a specialist in these stamps. It is impossible to fix a price on stamps of this nature. The only way is to ask what you consider a fair price, based on cost. I should suggest about five times catalogue.

The same remarks may apply to the Guatemala stamp with the error "Nac onales." However, this stamp is considerably commoner. In my own collection, I have two different errors of the sort, but have not picked up a normal variety.

The Trinidad ½d stamp is used for both postal and revenue purposes, and when cancelled by pen or pencil, is undoubtedly a revenue. This stamp might be of value to a revenue collector. I am no authority on foreign revenues, so can't help you very much on placing a value on a stamp of this sort.

The British Guiana stamp, type A13, while printed in one color, is no doubt printed from two plates, or by the "key plate" method, which would account for the value "one cent" being nearer the top of the label in some stamps than in others. In using this method, one plate is made for the design proper, while another is used for the value only. In this way, the entire set may be run from one plate by changing the value plate for each value. This same method is used for many of the French, British and Portuguese Colonials.

A. G., Benton Harbor, Mich.—The 2c Bank Check revenue in brown is probably a chemical changeling, and has been "oxidized." A bath in peroxide of hydrogen will bring back the orange color. These revenues, especially the orange and red ones, oxidize very frequently.

Your French Guinea stamp with word "GUINEF" is probably caused by either a broken letter "E" or an improper impression. As far as I know, no errors exist in the setting of these stamps.

Your ½d Great Britain colored blue has probably suffered the same change as mentioned above. It is claimed that sea water will cause these stamps to turn blue, so it is possible that your stamp was in a ship-wreck, or has been taking sea baths. Also, it may be oxidized, the same as the revenue.

J. P., Snohomish, Wash.—I will use your letter in an article shortly. Why not let me help you organize a local stamp club?

THE STAMPS OF PRUSSIA.

By BERTRAM W. H. POOLE.

REPRINTS.

In 1864 requests were made to the Prussian postal authorities by several European governments for specimens of all stamps that had been issued. As there were no more supplies of the first issue at the Head Post Office (the few included in the remainders were found in some of the smaller offices at a later date, presumably) the five values were reprinted in complete sheets from the original plates. Regarding these reprints Mr. Wedmore tells us:—

The reprints of the 1, 2 and 3sgr values were made on unwatermarked paper, and can therefore easily be distinguished from the originals. The colors of the papers are almost identical with those employed for the issued stamps.

The reprints of the 4pf stamps were also on unwatermarked paper. Two shades are known—a pale yellow-green and a dark blue-green. The latter is by many supposed to be a color trial of the year 1856, but the gumming, and above all the paper, resemble so closely that used for the yellow-green printing and the 1864 reprint of the 6pf stamp, that it seems more probable that the blue-green shade was printed in 1864 owing to the yellow-green being of poor appearance.

The reprint of the 6pf stamp is on similar paper to the foregoing, and can be distinguished from the 1860 printing of that stamp on unwatermarked paper by the absence of the colorless network. There is also a difference in the shade, but I am not expert enough in color definitions to describe it.

Small quantities of these reprints were supplied to private persons and to dealers at face value, and some copies of the 1 and 2sgr are known used postally.

The total quantity printed of each value was very small, and these 1864 reprints are now quite scarce.

In 1873 a number of reprints were made for Julius Goldner, of Hamburg, who paid a certain sum to the government for the benefit of the soldiers wounded in the Franco-Prussian war. The quantities of these were as follows:

4pf 500 sheets of 150 stamps = 75,000
6pf 500 sheets of 150 stamps = 75,000
1sgr 200 sheets of 150 stamps = 30,000
2sgr 200 sheets of 150 stamps = 30,000
3sgr 200 sheets of 150 stamps = 30,000

Mr. Wedmore gives interesting details of these reprints as follows:—

These reprints are all on watermarked paper which was made in the same moulds as that used for the original stamps, and the two lower values resemble very closely the genuine stamps. The paper is thicker and coarser than the originals, and the gum is thick, smooth, and "glassy" in appearance. The printing is generally smudgy, and the green of the 4pf stamp has a fresh, bright appearance. The 6pf is of a more orange shade of vermilion than is found in the originals.

The paper on which the silbergroschen values were printed is similar in texture to that employed for the lower values, and the gum is also the same. The color of the paper employed for the 1sgr is a pale wine-red. The plates were badly cleaned during the printing, and the stamps, consequently, have a dirty appearance.

The same remarks apply to the 2 and 3sgr values, except as to the color of the papers. That used for the 2sgr value has changed color, so that the stamps now usually appear to be printed on a very pale blue paper sprinkled with dark blue spots, which shew either on the face or the back of the stamp. In the case of the 3sgr reprints, which were originally on yellow paper, the color has now mostly changed to a pale grey, sometimes with yellow or pinkish spots, owing to some chemical action.

The whole of the printing was delivered to Julius Goldner, no supply being retained by the postal authorities, so that the Postal Museum officials had to purchase, in 1890, some complete sheets for the collection.

The reprints were printed from the original plates, bearing the following numbers:—6pf (No. 7); 1sgr (No. 14); 2sgr (No. 6); 3sgr (No. 3); and Official Imitations.

In addition to the reprints of the 1850-56 stamps described above so-called reprints of the 1857 issue were made in 1864 but these are nothing better than official imitations. The original electrotyped plates employed in printing the originals had long since been destroyed as also had the dies from which the electrotypes had been struck. It was necessary, therefore, to make entirely new dies. These were made from a wood-block which now reposes in the Berlin Postal Museum with other interesting relics of the Prussian post.

H. F. COLMAN,
Second National Bank Bldg., WASHINGTON, D. C.

Though an attempt was made to copy the original design as closely as possible there are many differences by which the imitations can be easily recognised. The most prominent of these is a period in place of a colon after the word "SILBERGR." The "G" of the same word has no crossbar and the "F" of "FREIMARKE" has a projecting line at the top left side.

The 3sgr is in a yellow tint very similar to that of the originals but the 1sgr and 2sgr are in shades unlike any found in the genuine stamps. The former is bright crimson and the latter a lavender-blue. The paper is white-wove and thin and the gum is thin, smooth and white like that of the reprints of the same period. These official imitations were printed from plates specially constructed and afterwards destroyed so that when an additional supply was required in 1873 they were printed direct from the wood-block, and the three subsidiary dies taken from the wood-block. Mr. Wedmore tells us that these were printed "on strips of paper measuring about 2¼ by 6½ inches. On each strip were printed the 1sgr, 3sgr, 2sgr and woodblock (without value) in the order named, and impressions were taken in carmine red, deep blue, brownish yellow and black. These are ungummed."

Forgeries.

Forgeries of the first three issues are fairly plentiful but all I have seen are so crude that they would hardly deceive the veriest tyro. Mr. Wedmore states that forgeries of the 10sgr and 30sgr are also known though I have never come across these. They are said to be a little dangerous though the eagles and lettering are very badly drawn compared with the originals. The paper is very different being thin and white instead of tough and yellowish as in the genuine stamps.

THE WASHINGTON COLLECTION.

The $100,000 collection of postage stamps that for years has been gathering dust in the archives of the postoffice department is being arranged and classified for exhibition at the National museum. J. B. Leavy, government philatelist, and T. T. Belote, head of the museum's division of history, expect to have the exhibit in permanent shape within about a year.

Officials of the museum and the postoffice department say the only collection of stamps which excels in completeness the one now being arranged is that owned by the British museum.

There are specimens of every variety and denomination of stamps ever issued by this government, as well as a collection of practically all the stamps ever used by any government since the use of postage stamps began. Included in the collection are specimens of the original British stamp of the forties, which was as large as an ordinary envelope of today, as well as the sizes issued in later years.

So far only nineteenth century issues and about $10,000 worth have been put on exhibit. A novel case, consisting of scores of sliding vertical sections, all locked with one key and absolutely air tight, contains the stamps. The idea was taken from the British museum, but the cases are a great improvement on those there employed.

Among the most valuable stamps in the collection are the Franklin carrier stamp of the forties, which brings $100 the "Type I" of 1851, whose faded square inch of paper is valued at $200, and the one cent type of the same year and like value.—Commonwealth Weekly.

THE KING'S MAFEKING EXHIBIT.

By Fred. J. Melville.

At the small private exhibition of stamps arranged in connection with the Philatelic Congress at the Baptist House His Majesty King George, who owns one of the finest private collections of stamps in the world, was the most distinguished exhibitor. King George is an enthusiast in the study of stamps of the British Empire, and the selection chosen on the present occasion was the most representative of the recent history of our own modern Imperial development. The famous siege of Mafeking which gave a new word to our language, gave us also a series of stamps of the most peculiarly historical significance. It was of these stamps that His Majesty gave so remarkable a display at the exhibition which formed part of the entertainment for the delegates at the Philatelic Congress at Southampton Row on Wednesday night.

It is only about fifteen years since this unique historical issue of stamps came into being. The present writer wrote at the time to the then Major-General Baden Powell for particulars of the stamps which had been reported to have been issued during the siege, eliciting some information of a remarkably interesting character. During the siege, in fact shortly before March 23, 1900, it was found possible to forward despatches by runners from Mafeking, both by the north and south routes, and a service was accordingly established by the military authorities. Owing to the high amounts which had to be paid to the runners it was decided to charge special rates for any private letters conveyed and the following tariff was adopted, viz.:—

Via the north 1s per ½ oz., and via the south 6d per ½ oz.

Lieutenant-Colonel Lord Edward Cecil was in charge of the post office in Mafeking during the siege and under his management the postage stamps available were surcharged or overprinted to meet the exigencies of the special service and some of the most extraordinary issues of modern times were used for the temporary local post within the town during the siege. The stamps had the overprint applied at the office of Messrs. Townshend & Sons, the publishers of the Mafeking Mail and so keen was the interest aroused in these special emissions that every stamp available had been disposed of before the relief of the town was effected.

The overprinted stamps of which the King has shown a really wonderful array, included many Cape of Good Hope stamps with the additional impression reading "MAFEKING BESIEGED" and some English stamps already overprinted "Bechuanaland Protectorate" or "British Bechuanaland" with the Mafeking imprint in addition. Some of these stamps are of a very high degree of rarity as for instance, the 1s on 6d "Bechuanaland Protectorate" of which only 240 copies were printed, and the 2s on 1s of which 570 were printed.

The following is a list of these scarce Mafeking varieties with a record of the numbers printed, which record gives a fair idea of their scarcity. The King has shown this week that of these stamps he has probably the finest collection extant.

Of all these varieties the King has copies, but in addition he has most of the minor and rarer varieties such as those which have no stop after the words "MAFEKING BESIEGED." Of these I noted the—1d on ½d Cape of Good Hope.

3d on 1d Cape of Good Hope.
6d on 3d Cape of Good Hope.
1s on 4d Cape of Good Hope.
3d on 1d Great Britain.
1d on ½d Great Britain.

In addition there were such items as double surcharges of the 1s on 4d Great Britain, and another double surcharge of the same denomination in which one of the overprints was upside-down, and the 3d on 1d Great Britain doubly surcharged.

It may be remembered that during the stamp famine which occurred during the siege of Mafeking, stamps of special design were produced by ordinary photographic plates and printed on the blue ferroprussiate paper common in photographic work. One of these designs was prepared by Dr. W. A. Hayes, and showed a photograph of Sergeant-Major Goodyear on a bicycle. The King has several copies of this curious issue in his collection.

But the most popular of the special stamps produced by this photographic process was that designed by Captain Greener, the Chief Paymaster, and these owe a good deal of their popularity to the fact that they bear a portrait of the hero of Mafeking, General Baden-Powell. The Baden-Powell stamp exists in two sizes, and of the smaller sized stamp there is an extremely rare variety. As I have said these stamps were printed in the stress of siege conditions from ordinary photographic plates printed in an ordinary photographic printing frame by exposure to the light. In printing one sheet of the stamp with the smaller sized portrait of Baden-Powell the negative was inadvertently placed film side up so that the paper bore a reversed and slightly blurred print of the design. The reversed Baden-Powell portrait stamp, printed as a result of this accidental reversion of the negative, is one of the rarest stamps in existence, only twelve such copies having been printed, that is to say, one sheet of twelve stamps.

The King has one of these extremely rare reversed prints of the Baden-Powell portrait stamps and it is, I believe, one of not more than seven copies known to collectors.

All the series of Mafeking stamps are scarce, not more than about 60 letters being sent out of the town weekly via the North route, and not more than 30 by the South route during the siege. The Kaffir runners had to pass through the enemy's lines and get either to Bulwayo or Kimberley, the letters, in many cases being sewed to the soles of their shoes, for they wore shoes if little else. A number of them were captured but a good many got through and the stamps on the letters carried by them are "adhesive" records of some of the most stirring events in the recent history of the British Empire.

There was only a small exhibition of rare stamps prepared for the edification of the delegates to the Sixth Philatelic Congress, but in addition to the King's stamps mentioned above, the other exhibits comprised the cream of the collections of the best known philatelists of Great Britain. Mr. Horsley, J.P., for instance, showed just a few of his Western Australians, but amongst them was a fine copy of the great rarity known as the "Inverted Swan," a stamp which, when it was last offered at auction fetched £400. Mr. M. P. Castle, M.V.O., the President of the Royal Philatelic Society, showed some of his rare issues of British Guiana, and Captain Bates presented a series of unique essays for Great Britain stamps prepared in 1839, a few months prior to the introduction of the adhesive postage stamp. Altogether, the comparatively small room laid out with a display of stamps represented a market value of roughly £30,000, but it was only on exhibition for a few hours on Wednesday evening, and it seems a pity that no opportunity should have been afforded to the general public of seeing these interesting selections from some of the world's greatest stamp collections.

Special interest attached to the King's collection of Mafeking stamps as it is the first publicly exhibited portion of the royal collection which has been arranged by Mr. E. D. Bacon, the new curator of the King's philatelic collections.—Postage Stamp.

EDITORIAL.

Eighty And Three—From New York City, we have received the following letter: "I congratulate Mr. Morehouse on his eighty-one years but this deponent has to take his laurels away. I am eighty-three years and three months old but as I do not enter the lists my name is not necessary. I have been a subscriber so long that I have forgotten the number of years but it is over fifteen years." Very graciously, "Old Subscriber" does not seek to detract from the fame of Mr. Morehouse and we feel a singular satisfaction in having these two octogenarians among our readers. The WEEKLY will keep them in its thoughts.

Excellent Idea—Mr. C. A. Jenkins of the Cleveland Leader writes: "The residents of Lincoln Avenue, Lakewood, a suburb of Cleveland, Ohio, will have a street celebration July 4th. One of the big features will be a distribution of toys and gifts, contributed by merchants. This would be an opportunity for some wide-awake dealers to do missionary work. Small packets or sets, accompanied by advertising matter would be appropriate. There are about sixty school children on the street and any donations received by the writer will be distributed among them. If dealers want to follow up their gifts, names and addresses will be furnished. C. A. Jenkins, 1466 Lincoln Avenue, Lakewood, Ohio." Knowing Mr. Jenkins as we do, we do not hesitate to say that any dealers who may take advantage of his suggestion will be assured of faithful and intelligent service.

Society Affairs—The annual distribution to members of ballot and proxy forms for use at the convention of the American Philatelic Society, Niagara Falls, August 11th, 1914 has been made. The secretary gives notice of a somewhat unusual condition that confronts the members in consequence of no nominations for a complete board of the nine directors. The Chicago Branch nominated the present secretary and treasurer, respectively, for another term, as these two gentlemen are regarded as Chicago's original candidates but out of deference to the Branches in the other cities that fittingly might propose their own candidates for re-election, no further action was taken. The past year in the American Philatelic Society has been one of quiet work and while we can recall no especial accomplishments of the administration, it is evident that the routine duties of the officers have been competently discharged; and it is likely that the entire board will be chosen again. Political interest seems to be almost wholly lacking this year in marked contrast to the rousing campaigns of many of the former years. As usual the editor of the WEEKLY will attend the convention and in case any of the members care to intrust him with their proxies he will be glad to receive them, with or without instructions. We want to make the coming convention a memorable one on the score of philatelic welfare work.

A Proper Step—We have received a notice that "in order to secure greater uniformity in the scale of fees charged for money orders issued on international forms and in the interest of better and cheaper service to the public, such fees on and after August 1st, 1914" will be at the rate of ten cents for orders up to ten dollars with a graduated scale to one dollar for the maximum order of one hundred dollars. While by no means all the countries of the world come within the reduction, yet many of the important countries, such as Great Britain and Ireland, Germany and France are included. The high rates on international money orders have had their effect on trade relations that are sustained by small remittances chiefly and the moderation will stimulate business generally and stamp collectors in particular will appreciate the boon.

Standard Match Company—Some time ago, Dr. Wm. H. Mitchell, Bayonne, New Jersey, sent us some interesting details of this company which is represented by one match stamp in the U. S. proprietary revenue section of the catalogue: "The Standard Match Company's factory was located in the Constable's Hook section of Bayonne, New Jersey; and it was erected and started as an adjunct of the long established sulphur refinery of T. C. and S. C. White. The late Mr. Samuel C. White occupied the somewhat strenuous position of Sunday-school teacher to the writer for a number of years and so, the writer was on intimate and confidential terms with him especially 'just before Christmas.' That the name Standard Match Company was chosen may have been due to the fact that the Standard Oil Company had only recently (at that time) established its Bayonne Plant which was a close neighbor to White. The Standard Match Company had only been running about six months when the tax on the manufacturers of matches was repealed. As soon as this news was made public the writer offered double face for the remainders on hand but the stamps had already been forwarded to Washington for redemption by the government. Even at the time very few of the firm's matches were on sale in Bayonne; and the factory fell to the Diamond Match Company who continued it but later a fire destroyed it. The writer in the discharge of his duties as a member of one of the volunteer fire department companies was saved from injury by his heavy leather helmet when several cases of matches ready for shipment slid on him from the floor above." It is evident from this readable tale that Dr. Mitchell does not confine his researches to United States locals, after all.

Pioneer Posts—We notice that Mr. T. H. Hinton read an article on The Pioneer Posts of the United States of America before the International Postal Union, April 2nd, 1914, and in a prefatory vein he speaks of "the difficulties and dangers undergone by the early settlers and pioneers of a great nation." We wish to repeat that those who are interested in these posts should obtain for reference the book, A Thrilling and Truthful History of the Pony Express: With Other Sketches and Incidents of those Stirring Times, published by Rand, McNally & Company, Chicago, 1908. The history of "blazing the westward way" by Visscher is illustrated with a stamp cut and one of an entire envelope, among the other pictures. We chance to have before us a clipping of "correspondence of the New York Times" from Great Salt Lake City, U. T., Sept. 4, 1858, which says: "We regret exceeding to learn that our great central overland mail communication between the Atlantic and Pacific through this city has been interrupted by the Indians. Last Saturday, the conductor of the California mail, due on that day, arrived in this city without his mail. It appears that on or about the 22nd of last month, as the mail party—consisting of but two men—were camping for the night on the last crossing of the Humboldt river, a large band of Indians suddenly came upon them and took possession of everything which they had, mules, harness, provisions, and more important than all, the mail. The men escaped with their lives by hiding, at the first approach of the Indians in the brush along the river, and remained concealed until their departure. They then made their way on foot to the next station where they procured animals and came on as rapidly as possible to this city." Two companies of dragoons and two of infantry were sent immediately for that portion of the route to California after the Oregon and Digger Snake Indians.

A VERA CRUZ CANCELLATION.

By HARRY E. HUBER.

Last week I got some mail from Vera Cruz, and I was much surprised to find that the old Mexican automatic canceling machine is no longer used. A new one has taken its place, of the regulation flag type so commonly used here in the States. The circle to the left of the flag is lettered around the circumference "VERA CRUZ, MEXICO." The hour and date appears in three lines—JUN 2—10 AM—1914.

On the back of the envelope appears a handstamp cancellation of the duplex type, consisting of a single lined circle lettered "VERA CRUZ, MEX. U.S.M. AG." around the circumference, with the date and hour (JUN 2—7 30 AM) in two lines in the center; and a heavily barred oval on ends enclosing a large figure "1" in a circle. The year "1914" is set between the two parts of the cancellation.

THE STAMPS OF MONTENEGRO.

By Fred J. Melville.

The earliest stamps of Nicholas, formerly Prince, now King, of the Montenegrins, are not attractive to look upon. They are crude lithographs, as crude as anything ever turned out from the Austrian Imperial Printing Works, showing a three-quarter face portrait of the Prince to the right, encircled by a garland of laurel, the whole being enclosed in a rectangular frame of solid colour, on which the inscriptions appear in uncoloured Russo-Sclavonic characters. These inscriptions comprise the value, the words "post" and "stamp," and an abbreviation of the native rendering of the name of the country, "Tsr. Gore," Tsernagore, the "Black Mountain," more familiarly known to us by the Italian style, Montenegro. The value is expressed in novtch, or novcic, which was the equivalent of the Austrian kreuzer, 100 novcica representing about 1s 8d.

These first postage stamps of the Principality of Montenegro were issued in May, 1874, at which time Nicholas I had been upon the throne fourteen years. From the first the stamps were perforated, and it is to the vagaries of the Austrian perforating machines that philatelists chiefly owe the complications which make so formidable the catalogue lists of varieties of Montenegrin stamps issued between the years 1874 and 1896. Originally the gauge of perforation was 10½ with large holes, but almost from the outset, in 1874, we get variations in the gauge, and the catalogue lists are but a condensation of the varieties possible to the specialist. During the years the first design was retained in use there were many printings, and the colours of these vary considerably, but there were only seven denominations, of each of which I give the earliest shade in the following list: 2 novcica, yellow; 3 novcica, green or yellow-green; 5 novcica, rosé-red; 7 novcica, mauve; 10 novcica, pale blue; 15 novcica, bistre; and 25 novcica, slate-lilac.

In 1893 Montenegro celebrated the fourth centenary of the introduction of printing into Tsernagore by overprinting the stamps of Prince Nicholas with a letterpress inscription in Russo-Sclavonic characters and with the dates "1493-1893." The overprinting was done at Cettinje, and the number and variety of errors in the setting of the type is scarcely a credit to the progress Montenegrin printing had made in the course of 400 years. In addition to the double and inverted overprint errors, and pairs in which one stamp has missed the overprint, there are varieties with 1494, 1495, and 14-3 in lieu of "1493," and wrong-fount letters and figures galore. The overprint was applied in black to most of the stamps, but in several cases it was in red of varying shades. Add to these complications the fact that most of the varieties may be found in at least two gauges of perforation, and it will be seen that there is a great deal for the specialist in Montenegrin stamps to collect.

The following year, 1894, saw the addition of six new denominations to the regular set of seven stamps then in use. These were the 1 novcic, grey-blue; 20 novcica, orange-brown; 30 novcica, brown-purple; 50 novcica, ultramarine; 1 florin, blue-green; and 2 florin, brown-lake, all of the same design as the first series.

In 1896 another commemoration, this time the second centenary of the founding of the Petrovic dynasty by the Vladika Danilo (1696), led to an entirely new series of stamps of a larger size, which were lithographed in Vienna. The one design common to all the denominations is a framed view of a monastery near Cettinje. The vignette being printed in a different colour from the frame, there are the usual errors, with the vignette printed upside down. The commemorative set apparently did not supersede the regular stamps, but was in use concurrently with the smaller-size stamps. The first seven denominations of these latter still in the first crude design, were issued in new colours in 1898.

The next series of stamps for Montenegro was brought about by a change of currency to hellers and krone in 1902, and the occasion was taken to introduce a new design, with a more up-to-date portrait of Prince Nicholas. There were nine values from 1 heller to 5 krone, and when in December, 1905, Prince Nicholas granted his people the Constitution the whole series was overprinted in red or black, with the letterpress including the inscription, "Constitution 1905." Of these overprints, as of the earlier ones, there are many varieties.

is a book that should be in the hands of every philatelist. It describes and illustrates:
Regular Government Issues
U. S. Envelopes
Carrier Stamps
Confederate Provisionals
The illustrations are large and clear. There are no less than 15 for the 1861 issue. The cog wheel punch, triangles and capped "2's" are finely pictured. The manner in which the five dies of the 1853 envelope is treated is alone worth the price of subscription, while the collecting of Reays and Plumptons is made as easy as rolling off a log. We don't sell this book — WE GIVE IT AWAY!

MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS
BOSTON, MASS. [eow2

From 1907 the regular postage stamps of Montenegro have been printed from recess plate, and the design of the 1907 issue, showing a full face portrait of the Prince, is an attractive one. The low values are expressed in para, but the higher ones retain the krone. The final series of the stamps with which these notes are concerned is the very handsome set issued in 1910 marking both the fiftieth anniversary of the accession of Nicholas I and his assumption of the title of King, in virtue of a resolution passed by the National Skupshtina on August 28 of that year. The series includes a pictorial life history of the new King. He is shown as he was in his student days in Paris; at the time of his wedding in 1860 along with his consort; in 1878 at the time when the independence of the country was recognized by the Powers, and there are three contemporary portraits, profile, three-quarter face, and the last from a painting depicting his Majesty riding at the head of his army.—Daily Telegraph.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents.

ARGENTINE.—John H. Frederick has shown us the current 5c and 12c stamps, overprinted "M. J. I." for official use of the Ministry of Justice and Instruction as announced in No. 1175. Further, each stamp has an official control mark made with a rubber stamp, possibly the initials or name of some official in charge.

BOLIVIA.—L. J. Ragatz reports finding Scott's No. 96, with square period after "1911," and the same stamp surcharged in blue, both with and without the square period.

COSTA RICA.—L. J. Ragatz notes Scott's No. 80 with "Habilltado" instead of "Habilitado." Yvert & Tellier chronicle several varieties of a similar nature.

GIBRALTAR.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the 5c on ½d King George of Great Britain. Type A82. The surcharge is like the issue of 1907, and not like the 10c on 1d chronicled in No. 1222.

Adhesive.

On stamps of Great Britain.
"5 centimos" on ½d green.

MEXICO.—L. J. Ragatz informs us that further values of the Federal issue have now been seen with "G.C.M." in manuscript, as noted in No. 1225. All values above 5c are reported to have been bought up by one man. The stamps used were captured at Torreon. These stamps became obsolete June 15, when the new Denver stamps were issued. Only a few offices had them, the 5c being the commonest and the 1c the hardest to get. The Denver stamps unused promise to be common enough, as they are being offered to dealers in quantities direct from Denver.

A. W. Foster of El Paso, Texas, has shown us an interesting variety of the 5c green Constitutionalist stamp. It consists of a block where the vertical rouletting has not been extended, resulting in one horizontal pair imperforate between and a second horizontal pair in which the rouletting extends only part way between the two stamps.

NICARAGUA.—As announced in No. 1210, a new series of stamps has been in preparation for this Republic, and has now been sent down from New York. Hermann Focke has shown us the first value, the 1c, used copies of which were received by him on letters in New York on June 16. The stamp shows the National Palace at Managua, is a horizontal oblong in shape, and is very handsomely engraved and printed as usual with the work of the American Bank Note Co. Mr. Focke writes as follows:

"Strange to say, the letter (with five 1c stamps) comes from the small town of Rivas near the Atlantic Coast, whereas the last mail from Managua and other towns of importance brought only provisionals. While the picture on the stamp before us represents the National Palace at Managua, the conspicuous carriage with the peculiar looking white animal hitched on to it, is just an ordinary vehicle, and not the Presidential means of locomotion, and the loiterers at the corner of the Palace are 'mere men' of Managua with no evil designs, as far as can be seen.. Still the stamp is pleasing, and it would not be difficult to guess the maker, even if the name were not printed at the foot of each stamp."

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Through the courtesy of Wm. L. Aldrich & Co., we are in receipt of definite information concerning the new issue of postage stamps for the Mexican rebel government. The set will consist of four values, 1c blue, 2c green, 3c orange, 5c lake, 10c pink, 15c magenta, 50c yellow and 1p purple. We cannot, however, furnish a description of the design at this writing.

—Members of the A. P. S. who cannot attend the convention at Niagara Falls are invited to send their proxies to Charles E. Severn of the WEEKLY, who will attend, and who will be pleased to carry out any instructions that may be given him. [tf —"Upon inquiry in the matter, am advised by my correspondent in Sonora, that the announced Transitorio Constitutionalista stamps surcharged 'Victoria de la Torreon' and date, are of a private—speculative—origin, and never authorized by either the Constitutionalist Government or the postal authorities at the place."—AUG. DIETZ.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from R. H. Mann, Wm. L. Hamilton, Jr.

—Cards have been received announcing the marriage of Eugene Klein and Miss Sara E. Conover of Philadelphia, Thursday, June 18. Mr. and Mrs. Klein will be at home after October 1 at 53 N. 62 St., Philadelphia.

—We are indebted to W. J. Stanton and August Dietz for information submitted in connection with the G. C. M. stamps chronicled by us quite fully in our last issue. It is very evident that this set of stamps will prove of historical interest.

ONCE MORE THE KOOKABURRA.

When the one penny stamp with the portrait of King George appeared, and it was reported that only a million copies had been printed, some people were nervous and seemed to fear there would not be enough to go around. Now the Australian Philatelist announces that the first printing was really 1,200,000 and that another million has just been put on sale. This looks like a poor chance for speculators.

The same journal informs us that several designs for the new issue have been approved. The two pence is to have the head of King George, the one shilling the black swan of West Australia, and the six pence is to show a Kookaburra. This sounds dangerous, and we are not altogether reassured when we are told it is a bird. Perhaps it is something like those man-eating parrots on one of the New Zealand stamps. Maybe they were not man-eaters, but they were said to be some sort of fierce bad birds, militant suffragettes perhaps. But the Monthly Journal spoiled all the nice "creeps" that we had worked up by showing us a picture of the proposed stamp. It surely is a mild-looking little dicky bird to bear such a fearsome name. It looks just like a fledging sparrow. Major Evans evidently has the same idea and recalls the story of the sparrow that lived up the water spout. As this ditty is not as well known in this country as in England, we venture to repeat it, or all that we know of it, for the benefit of our readers:

"The blooming sparrow went up the blooming spout,
And the blooming rain came and washed the blooming sparrow out;
And then the blooming sun came out and dried the blooming rain,
And then the blooming sparrow went up the spout again."

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BILL BLOSS, 2729 Hampden Court, Chicago, Ill.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

SOME GOOD AMERICAN STAMPS TO BUY

A few weeks ago I gave you some notes on good European stamps to buy and save. I now offer you a list of American stamps, which in my opinion, are the scarce values of the different series. Nearly all stamps vary in scarcity according to face value, the lowest value being the most common, and the highest being the rarest. Therefore, unless there is some special reason for mentioning certain values, I designated them as "graduated" meaning that they increase in value in proportion to the face value. These notes are based on my personal experience as a specialist in these issues, and as I have looked through several hundred thousand covers in the past two or three years, I believe I can give you authentic information.

United States—Basing my figures on the 1894-5 issues, I believe the 3c, 6c, 8c, and 15c to be the scarcest values in use at present. Of these, I believe the last two will be the best. (I am not including the new values recently issued in my estimates, for the reason that they are too recent to judge. However, I should say that the 12c will be the most common.)

Argentine—The 3c, 4c, and 6c are all desirable. The 10c ranks fair, but is commoner than the others mentioned.

Bolivia—The 8c is the only really good value in this country, aside from the high values (above 20c) which are all scarce.

Brazil—The 10, 20, and 400 reis values are the best. The 400 reis, which I believe is now obsolete, is one of the best of the series. The 700 reis is much better than the 1,000.

Canada—The ½c and 7c take the honors in this country.

British Guiana — Postally cancelled copies of all values above the 6c are so scarce that they are bound to increase in value. The 1c, 2c and 5c are common.

British Honduras—This set is graduated. The values above 10c are quite scarce postally used, however.

Canal Zone—The 8c and 10c are the two good ones in this country. Of the two, the 8c is the best. There are two or three kinds of 10c stamps in use at present, so each kind should be a good purchase.

Chile—The 3c and 12c are now obsolete, and are two good stamps to hold. 100 copies of the 12c recently brought two-thirds of catalogue at auction here, and went to a New York house, so you can judge for yourself. The 8c, 14c and 60c stamps are not turning up very fast, and will be desirable stock in the future. The 40c is used more frequently.

Colombian Republic—Of the cheaper values, the ½c is by far the scarcest. Above the 10c, all values are seldom met with. The 1c, 2c and 5c are among the most common South Americans.

Costa Rica—The 6c (now obsolete, I believe) is good. Also the 4c and 20c are worth their catalogue price, and are practically never seen in quantity.

Cuba—The 3c and 8c have a brilliant future before them. The 8c in the new colors (Olive and grey) has been much sought for here.

Curacao—This series is graduated according to the face values.

Danish West Indies—The 15, 20, 30, and 40 bit stamps are very good. The 30 bit is far scarcer than the 50 bit.

Dominican Republic—The ½c is the only value of especial merit in this republic. The other values are graduated.

Ecuador—The 2c and 3c are scarcer than the other values.

Guadeloupe—Used copies of this country are frequently met with, though the 20c stamp is sometimes troublesome to locate.

Guatemala—The 5c and 25c stamps do not make their appearance as often as the other values, even up to the peso values. The surcharged provisionals are liable to be good stock, and are desirable postally used. Also, look out for the minor varieties.

Hayti—The 3c, 7c and 8c are not being widely circulated, and will increase in value in the future.

Honduras—The recent crop of surcharges has created some good stamps. The 2c on 20c yellow is probably one of the best, and is worth from $1.50 to $2.00. These stamps are too recent to fix a value on. Of the unsurcharged, the 6c appears to be the scarcest.

Martinique—The values of this country are graduated.

Mexico—The 3c and 4c are much scarcer than many of the higher values.

Nicaragua—The 6c of all series of this country have mounted skyward, some more rapidly than others. The 6c of the 1900 series jumped up very suddenly some years ago. The 6c locomotive type is so scarce that the question whether this stamp was ever issued was not settled until after the stamp was obsolete. The recent surcharges will include some good items, both in normal and minor varieties. The 2c on 20c liberty type, and the 2c on 25c locomotive type are very good stamps. The very newest provisionals on officials are showing signs of becoming rarities, and will be mighty good things to have after they are out of issue.

Panama—The ½c, 2c, and 8c stamps are all quite good. The 2c stamp is probably the only one issued by a country with the "gold standard" (currency same as United States) that is desirable. Also, the two highest values, the 25c and 50c are very good. The writer, in all his travels, has never seen used copies of these two stamps. The unused are missing from most collections, too.

Paraguay—These stamps appear to be graduated according to face value. Paraguay stamps, especially postally used copies, do not appear as frequently as those of the other South American countries.

Peru—The 4c stamp of each of the two recent issues is a "scarce boy." These two little stamps are so good that a certain Western dealer is buying all he can secure at three-quarters of catalogue.

St. Pierre and Miquelon—These stamps are "graduated." Also, they are cancelled to order or "philatelically used" as the high-brows would say.

French Guiana—The 20c stamp is one of the scarcest of the used stamps. The unused are graduated, as are practically all unused French Colonials.

Salvador—Of the past series, the 4c and 6c values are the good ones, especially used. In the present series, the 12c stamp is slightly scarcer than the others, and the 19c stamp is the scarcest of the series, excluding the 50c and 1 colon, of course. The 19c is much better than the 29c stamp.

Surinam—The 7½c stamp is more seldom seen than many of the other values.

Uruguay—The 7c stamp in nearly all sets has proven a good stamp. Of the current series, the 5c is slightly better than some of the others, and the 20c is probably the best stamp in the set. The 20c is in fact one of the most elusive of recent issues.

Venezuela—Very few of the 15c stamps are finding their way to this country. The other values appear quite frequently, however.

We are ready to fill all want lists of King Edwards and King Georges, Mint Stamps. Special hot weather rates. Extra discount allowed during the summer months.

Our manager Mr. Julius Levy is abroad and upon his return we will offer some interesting items.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

E. H. R.—If the big dealers cannot fill your wants in Afghanistan stamps, I don't know where you can get the stamps. This country is one that is little known, and in view of the fact that this country is not popular with collectors and the stamps are "hard sellers" not much effort has been made to get them. I believe you can pick certain of the recent issues up for a little money. I do not know of any one in the country you could correspond with, and would not recommend that you write to the post office, as I doubt whether you would get a reply, or stamps for your remittance.

J. H. W., Jr.—I would suggest that you separate the stamps that stuck together in your pocket by steaming them (as described a few weeks ago). I doubt if you can get them apart without spoiling the gum, however. This question has bothered many experienced collectors, and the trouble is usually settled with the aid of a tea kettle. Soaking will separate them, but will remove the gum, as well. The wet blotter method might work.

R. H. P.—To get in touch with correspondents in the various foreign countries is quite a difficult problem. The best way is to watch the "exchange" advertisements in the various papers (the English are the best) and write to the collectors who advertise for "exchanges." Also, you might run an ad. of your own. The rates are usually very low. Successful exchanges are usually very difficult to find.

(2) Every collector I know of mounts his unused stamps the same way as the used ones. I would advise you to use a good peelable hinge, not moistened too much, in order not to damage the gum.

(3) Your postal card inquiry is a little out of my line, and I am referring it to an expert on the subject. I will publish his answer in a week or so.

(4) While the writer has seen unused due stamps advertised for sale, there is a postal ruling forbidding the sale of these stamps to the public, and anyone offering them for sale might be called to account for them. As for the penalty envelopes, I doubt if you could find a market for them, and also if the government was so inclined, it might make trouble if you offered unused envelopes of this nature for sale. The officials in this city are rather hazy on this ruling, so I cannot give you exact authority. In absence of better information, I would say "Do not take any chances." The government has habits of starting unpleasant inquiries, even if it cannot prosecute, and in spite of the fact that you obtained your supply in a legitimate fashion, you might have difficulty in making them see it that way. The amount involved is too small to risk trouble.

What are the registry package envelopes? Are they the envelopes the letters are sent in from one post office to another? I never saw any. These envelopes are not allowed to be sold or given away to the public, so I do not think it would be a good plan to offer them for sale. The friend who accommodated you evidently did not know of this ruling.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT STAMPS.

By FRANK E. GOODWIN.

The Executive Departments.

Because they are scarce and rather high in price for the average collector, the opportunity for study in the Executives is not so broad as in some of the other departments. Still, a few dollars will put together a page or two of what will prove a handsome and most interesting section of a collection and one to which the collector will turn to with pride. My word for it, the stamps will prove a good investment, as they cannot for many years keep their present quotations in the catalogues.

The stamps now under study were designed for and supplied to the Executive Department of the United States government. By this we understand that they were for the use and convenience of the President. Just how far that went seems to be somewhat vague. Was the President alone permitted to send mail through the post by affixing the stamps? Or did the permission extend to members of his personal staff—such as his private secretary, members of his family, etc.? How does it happen that two stamps exist carrying cancellations (Washington and Cleveland, O.) from two different cities that bear the same postmarked date? (September 10, 1873). Was the President in Cleveland on that date, or was someone there who was authorized to use the Executive stamp?

The Executive stamps were printed and delivered to the Executive Department between May 21 and July 1, 1873. Their use became possible on the latter date. The first delivery called for 4,650 stamps of all denominations.

The design of the stamps was distinctive. In a panel above the medallion are the words "Executive" in colorless letters. The letters "U" and "S" are in small circles in the left and right hand corners respectively. A background of vertical stripes represents the bars on the national shield.

The portraits used were:
1 cent—Franklin
2 cents—Jackson
3 cents—Washington
6 cents—Lincoln
10 cents—Jefferson

Shades are not numerous, but rather even. They follow:

1 cent—two shades, carmine and deep carmine.
2 cents—two shades, carmine and deep carmine.
3 cents—three shades, carmine, deep carmine, violet rose.
6 cents—three shades, pale carmine, carmine, deep carmine.
10 cents—three shades, pale carmine, carmine, deep carmine.

Five plates were made, one for each denomination. The numbers follow:

1 cent—number 82.
2 cents—number 75.
3 cents—number 63.
6 cents—number 76.
10 cents—number 111.

Between May 24, 1873, and December 31, 1877, there was issued the following number of Executive stamps:

1 cent—17,600.
2 cents—20,600.
3 cents—45,100.
6 cents—16,200.
10 cents—15,750.

When the use of department stamps was discontinued on July 5, 1884, there were in the hands of the manufacturers, undelivered, the following amounts:

1 cent—3,500.
2 cents—1,900.
3 cents—1,100.
6 cents—4,700.
10 cents—4,950.

These facts bring up a problem which might be of advantage to determine—why should the 6 cents Executive be the rarest and highest priced stamp of the five denominations? Fewer of the 10 cents were printed, and more existed as remainders to be destroyed. Yet we are told that the 6 cents is by far the best property of the lot for investment.

The Executive stamps were never printed by the American Bank Note Co. as stamps for use. It is certain however, that the one cent at least was printed on soft paper, and over printed "Specimen."

I know of no varieties of paper or plate existing in this stamp, as is found in most of the other departments. An interesting side line is the town and year dated cancellations which are scarce and worth seeking for.

THE POSTAGE STAMPS OF GAMBIA.

By R. E. R. DALWIGK.

The 1886-87 Issue.

WATERMARK CROWN CA.

In connection with the printing of British Colonial stamps a change was made—Crown CC being changed to Crown CA (sideways), the latter initials standing for Crown Agents. The reason for this change was two-fold. First the designation Crown Colony was not always strictly applicable to British Possessions whose stamps were printed upon this specially watermarked paper, and second because henceforth the postage stamp supplies of all British Crown Colonies would have to be ordered through the agency of the newly established office of Crown Agents for the Colonies, whose function it was to represent politically and financially in England those Colonies who did not maintain specially accredited Agents General in the British capital.

Thus in 1886 the then current series of Gambia was issued printed upon paper bearing this new watermark, from the same plates that had been previously employed. As in the later printings of the previous issue all sheets have the watermark sideways for the sake of convenience and economy. With the issue of this series the opportunity was embraced of having the ½d and 1d denominations printed in the colours prescribed by the Postal Union, and a 2½d value was added to cover the prevailing Postal Union rate.

The perforating of the stamps of this series was performed by two different comb machines, the early printings being perforated by the machine which was used for the later printings of the previous issue. The new machine employed—known as the 2nd comb—perforated the stamps in large vertical blocks without vertical divisions, and the horizontal lines of which contained twelve stamps each. Thus it comes about that sheets perforated by this machine do not show the double rows of perforation in the margins common to the work of the 1st comb machine. The effect of the 2nd comb perforation was that the top margin remained imperforate, the other three sides being cut through. Some sheets are known imperforate in the lower margin, an effect produced through the sheets being perforated from the bottom. As both machines gauged the same (14), only sheets or large blocks with margins can be assigned to their respective machines.

The method of cutting up the Crown CA paper was to guillotine the two top panes from the two lower horizontally. The half sheets were then cut twice vertically and bisected in the middle horizontally, thus making six Gambia sheets (compare diagram 2 of issue III). As in the previous issues all values are known with double embossing, in addition to which such monstrosities as "doubly embossed, one inverted" exist.

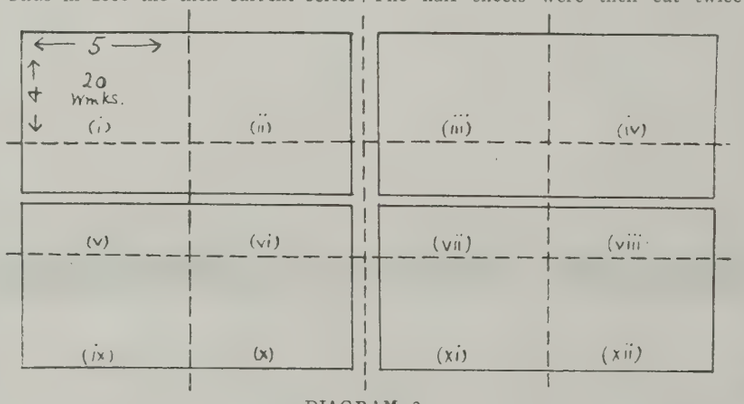

DIAGRAM 2.

There are some part double and treble perforations known, an interesting example of the latter being in the famous Tapling Collection—the ½d (blue green) showing treble perforation on the bottom row of a sheet. Imperforate copies of this issue are also known in the following shades: ½d grey-green, 1d pale crimson, 2d orange-yellow, 2½d pale ultramarine, 3d pearl-grey, 4d brown, 6d slate green, 1sh deep violet.

Sonoras

"Sonoras" are the philatelic sensation of the decade, and there is not a stamp left in the possession of the government that issued them. Can you afford to pass them up? We can make you prices now that will be impossible a short time later. Listen:
Remit $2.50 for a set of the rare second issue, 1c to 20c. Type set and press printed. Only a few sets. This set will be almost priceless. First issue is now out of sight.
Remit $2.50 for a set of the exhausted third issue, from 1c to $1.00 (face value $1.92). Supply limited, of course.
Remit 50c for a mint pair of provisionals. This is the regular Mexican stamp, used by the revolutionists, to their utter mortification, when they hadn't a stamp of any other description. Savagely surcharged "G. C. M." Rare? Well, rather.
Remit 25c for a mint pair of 10 day provisionals, used for about a week while awaiting delivery of their last large regular issue, now in use.
Remit 50c for a set of the exhausted documentaries, with talons, 1c, 2c, 5c, 10c. Interesting and rare.
Better hurry. Do it now is necessary in "Sonoras." Tomorrow is an eternity in these stamps. We are headquarters for them.

PHILATELIC WEST, SUPERIOR, NEBR.

Colour trials (perf. 12 or 11½x12) are known in several different hues, some of which were exhibited at the South Kensington Exhibition of 1886.

½d rose, rose-carmine, grey, violet, dull green, pale orange.

3d olive-green, sap-green, pale sage-green.

1sh brown maroon.

The above colour names are collected from various authorities and it is possible that some shades given may be superfluous. M. Mahé only lists the following:

½d rose (colour of 2d 1880).
½d grey (colour of 3d 1886-87).
½d violet (colour of 1sh 1886-87).
3d olive (colour of 6d 1886-87).

On the early printings of the Sixpenny value of this series the variety with the sloping name tablet occurs in the same position as in the former issues of the Colony indicating that the same plate had been employed throughout. As however this defect became more and more pronounced with each successive printing, about 1897 this plate was finally discarded and a new one with the error corrected brought into use for the printing of this value, but owing to the withdrawal of the series in the following year, stamps printed from this plate are very scarce and constitute one of the rarities of the Colony. Those printed from the new plate were in the olive-green shade only. It has been stated that the 2½d denomination, pale ultramarine was perforated with the comb machine for perforating stamps in horizontal rows of 12 without vertical division, whilst the darker shade was perforated with the comb machine with the narrow vertical division on right-hand margin.

There is a minor variety worthy of note occurring on the sheets of the ½d denomination of this series only. It consists of an unduly prolonged upright stroke to the "M" in "GAMBIA" and is found on both the second and fourth stamps in the top row of the sheet, Nos. 2 and 4. On number 2 it is the lefthand stroke that comes right down and touches the line, whilst on number 4 it is the one on the right. The "broken nose" variety occurs on stamps Nos. 1, 12 and 13.

The dots on the margins were distributed thus: three on the right hand margin and one in the middle of the left hand. A late printing of the 3d value (pearl-grey only) had three dots on the left margin whilst the top and bottom guide dots on the right margin were removed. This series of stamps has not fluctuated much in the catalogue during the last few years, but nevertheless they are now beginning to show a steady rise in value.

NEW POSTAL CARD.

1. Notice is hereby given of the issuance of a new 1-cent domestic postal card designated No. 8, to replace the No. 4 card.

DESCRIPTION.

The size of the No. 8 card is 3¼ by 5½ inches (the same as the present No. 4 card). The paper is cream in color and is printed in green ink. The subject of the stamp is a profile portrait of Thomas Jefferson looking to the left. The background of the portrait is open and is surrounded with a circular border bearing in capital letters the words "U. S. Postal Card. One Cent." This border rests upon a base containing a curved ribbon in which appears the name "Jefferson," with the numeral "1," within an ellipse on end, on either side. To the left of the stamp in a horizontal line of Gothic capitals is the inscription, "This side of card for address," within a frame of plain lines having concave corners.

2. It will not be possible to print a sufficient number of the new cards to supply all postmasters at once. Postmasters must not, therefore, make requisition until necessary to replenish stock. No postmaster can be furnished with the new No. 8 postal cards until the distributing subagency from which he is supplied receives a stock from the Department. If requisitions are filled with No. 4 cards, postmasters will understand that their subagencies have not been supplied with No. 8's. No. 4 cards should be furnished to the public while they last; the new cards to be sold, if in stock, only when purchasers express preference therefor.

3. Undamaged No. 4 cards held in stock by postmasters must not be returned to the Department. They will continue to be valid for postage indefinitely.

4. All requisitions for postal cards should be drawn on Form 3201 for one year's supply if the postmaster has storage room for that quantity. Requisitions should call for 500, 1,000, 2,000, 5,000, 10,000, or multiples of 10,000.

5. No requisition will be filled for postal cards alone unless accompanied with a satisfactory explanation as to why stamps, due stamps, stamp books and plain stamped envelopes are not included. When any variety of stamp supplies is needed, the postmaster must inventory his stock and include in the requisition all varieties likely to be needed in the ensuing three to twelve months, depending upon his storage facilities. This will avoid the necessity for frequent requisitions, and will be advantageous to the postmaster as well as to the Department. See Secs. 361 and 364, Postal Laws and Regulations, as to care of stock.

POSTAL CARDS IN SHEETS.

6. The new No. 8 postal card will be issued in sheets of 48 (4 wide by 12 long) when so desired for printing purposes. The sheet cards will be furnished in boxes of 12,000 only. To secure postal cards in sheets, the word "sheets" should be plainly written on Form 3201 opposite the item. Purchasers of cards in sheets should be advised that to be valid for postage they must be cut to regulation size—3¼ by 5½ inches.

EDITORIAL.

New Postal Card—The new postal card for domestic use with the portrait of Thomas Jefferson in green has been issued and the familiar features of McKinley on the card in common use, soon will be seen no more. The intention of the department to issue the new card has long been known; and not a few months ago, we spoke of adverse criticism on the decision to retire the picture of McKinley and of how an organization was promoted in Canton, Ohio, the home of McKinley to combat any proposal to displace the head of McKinley on the postal card.

How It Originated—Dr. Wm. H. Mitchell submits the following explanation of the phrase "Dutch Mail," which somewhat rarely now is found in print to describe a sentence or article whose meaning is hopelessly mixed. He says: "The term, 'Dutch Mail' is one that has been used in literature from time to time and its application has puzzled many. Perhaps philatelists too, for whom the word, mail, has an exciting interest have been perplexed. The hoax, for such it was, was born in the office of the Leicester Herald, England, we are told. The title, Dutch Mail, appeared as the head line to what was stated to be the Netherland news, which according to the tale, had been received too late for translation; and so, the Herald printed it in the original. Dutch scholars rushed into print with the statement that the dialect was one with which they were wholly unacquainted. Its true inwardness was discovered some time later. Sir Richard Phillips, the editor, gave the following account of how the jest was conceived: 'One evening my men and a boy overturned two or three columns of the paper in type; and we had to get ready for the coaches which at four the next morning required four or five hundred papers. After every exertion, we were short nearly a column but there stood a tempting column of 'pi' on the galleys. It struck me that the matter might be thought Dutch. I made up the column, overcame the scruples of the foreman and so away went the country edition with its philological puzzle to worry the honest agricultural readers' heads. There was plenty of time in which to set up a column of plain English for the local edition.' Thirty years after, Sir Richard met an old gentleman in Nottingham, who all this time had preserved a copy of the paper hoping that the puzzle would be explained. All this happened seventy-five years ago but yet every now and then, some writer mentions the Dutch Mail. Few know the explanation but at that we do not suppose that the term has ever been mistaken as applying to an old-time stage route."

The Latest—Here is the newest of stories based on the revelations of a Washington despatch dated June 26th, 1914. A Chicagoan received, upon request, a copy of a publication of 1,400 pages issued by the Department of Commerce, which was sent under the penalty frank of the department in question. As usual, the frank had the inscription in the upper left hand corner: Return in five days, etc. The Chicago Tribune which gives the story to the world says: Today the publication clerk "received a letter from the man, who said he had been sitting up nights in order to read the publication but had been unable to do so within the 'alloted five days.' He asked permission to keep the book three days longer, believing that he could finish it in that time." Now, they say that the man has been awarded the high trophy in the championship ignoramus contest; but even so, we applaud the man's nicety of conscience and if we knew his name and address we would reward him with a subscription to our sober sheet.

Changed About—A friend says that he has read stories innumerable in which the mortgage on the home was paid off with the proceeds derived from the sale of a wonderful find of stamps made by the dutiful son, who, thus, at the last moment saved his dear old widowed mother from cruel eviction. He rings in a variation of the hackneyed theme. He says that he has actually mortgaged his home to buy stamps; and anyway, he adds, a home without stamps is worse than stamps without a home.

Ruling Passion—The following little encounter is reported by Puck: "Mother (showing new baby)—'Isn't that a nice little brother to come by parcel post, Eddie?' Seven Year Old—'Oh, mommy did you save the stamps'?" Thus does philately triumph over eugenics. This joke is true to life; and we aver that many of us when listening to a tale of supposedly engrossing interest involving any postal carriage out of the ordinary, find our minds following the stamps that must have paid the postage.

In Competition—A letter from Mr. H. B. Phillips, San Francisco, California, which we hope to find room for in another column, has been sent to many members of the American Philatelic Society in all probability. An invitation is extended by Mr. Phillips in behalf of San Francisco to the American Philatelic Society to hold its 1915 convention there. Further, as a consequence of the wish of San Francisco to act as the convention seat, a board of vice-presidents from San Francisco is nominated in the persons of Henry C. Marcus, H. G. Smith and H. B. Phillips. We know that there is opposition to the selection of San Francisco based on its distance from the center of population but at the same time, the claims of the city for recognition are not to be ignored. It is to be said that there has existed a tacit understanding that San Francisco was to be given the convention in 1915, the year of the Pacific-Panama exhibition. The Pacific coast nominations for vice-presidents will mean a contest for three offices at least. There will be something to say on society subjects next week.

He Says Truly—From Bill Bloss there has come a communication of some length to which the attention of readers is directed elsewhere. We believe that the time is propitious for the organization of dealers into a powerful body whose mission would be admonitory as well as protective. There are abuses in the commercial field of philately on the part of the submerged tenth that the reputable dealers should alone not passively view with alarm but should take active steps to eradicate. It is not necessary to enlarge upon the manifold reasons for federation which could be successfully accomplished, however, only if the leaders among the dealers encouraged the movement. It would seem that by remembering the lessons of the failures of dealers' organizations in the past, an advantage is gained at the start; and if the big men of the stamp business will volunteer their support, the chances for a permanent association are bright. The WEEKLY will be pleased to offer its assistance in any way possible if it becomes manifest that there is a demand on the part of the dealers themselves for an organization of the kind.

AN AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF STAMP DEALERS.

DEAR MR. SEVERN:—

Several weeks ago, the question of uniting the stamp dealers of America under the form of an association, was brought up in the columns of your paper. For some time I have considered this question, and believe that it is high time that the dealers in this country did something definite in this respect. The European dealers have united under their International Society. In practically every line of business, the wide-awake concerns are seeing the advantage in working together. The paint manufacturers, tailors, brewers, grocers, advertising men, insurance companies, merchants, hardware dealers, and almost all industries have organized themselves under national associations.

A national association of stamp dealers could do a great deal to bring business to a higher plane. It could lower the percentage of fraud in connection with this business, could handle educational work, by advertising the hobby and teaching the people at large the pleasures of stamp collecting, could post the dealers on the market conditions and on events of importance, and could advise as to the market prices of stamps.

In order to accomplish this work, every dealer in America must give the movement his support. Let the idea have the kindly feeling of every dealer behind it, and the financial end of it will soon take care of itself. In order to secure the greatest possible results, it would be best to have the headquarters of the association in New York City, with branches in Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Louis, San Francisco, and such other large cities as the conditions would warrant. Also, let every dealer in towns where branches were not located, be an agent of the association, with power to carry on the work in his locality.

Let every member pledge himself to give any information of value, concerning frauds, large finds, market conditions, etc., to the Home Office of the Association, where the matters could be kept on file, and bulletins circulated among the members. Of course, it would be absolutely essential that a great many of these matters be kept confidential as to source, and the Association could act as a clearing house without disclosing identities.

In the work of preventing frauds, and this work alone is worth the organization of an Association, the practice of a collector swindling ten and twenty dealers would be absolutely wiped out. If every member would report immediately any loss he suffered, giving full information, the collection department could work on the case with a view of obtaining a collection for the dealer, and the fraud department could immediately circulate the name and facts necessary to all members, by means of the card index system. Members would file the cards as received for reference. Thus, quick action would make it practically impossible for a crook to secure stamps from more than one member of the Association. Whenever a claim was reported a "danger" card could be sent out, warning dealers to hold up any business with the party in question until the case was confirmed. When the case was investigated, a permanent card could be sent out. Whenever a case was settled to the satisfaction of all concerned, a "take-out" notice could be issued, ordering the dealers to destroy the card in their files.

In case several members were swindled it would be far easier for them to seek restitution by letting one source handle the case than by trying to collect individually. It would prove cheaper and the results would be surer.

Many of the dealers are appreciating these facts by taking advantage of an excellent collection and bulletin service of Toronto, Canada. Mr. Trowles has organized a service that is of great assistance to all subscribers, but of course, his service has not the power back of it that a large national association would have, and also, is confined to collection and fraud prevention work only.

Also, a plan could be worked out whereby the Association could investigate the references of a customer, without discolsing any information to any member but the one appying for the information, and could keep a record of this information, confidential, of course, and not at the disposal of other members. Then, in the future, if another member called for an investigation, the Association could refer to its records and give the desired information without trouble to the reference and delay to the customer and dealer. Also, collectors could refer to the Association after proving themselves reliable. This investigation work, in many cases, could be referred to some member on the ground, with the result that questionable references would be detected better. The Association could keep in touch with the several large mercantile agencies throughout the country, to aid in this work.

By means of a country-wide advertising campaign, and educational pamphlets, to be distributed through the dealers and various publications, especially those designed for the younger generation more people could be interested in stamp collectiing, thus bettering the business. Let this work be put into the hands of a good advertising man capable of handling the position.

By means of information received from correspondents and members in every section of the world, exact market conditions could be ascertained and the members kept posted of large finds, sales of remainders, and matters of a like nature. Also a general idea of the value of these wholesale lots could be fixed, thus preventing the members from paying excessive prices. This feature may appear antagonistic to the wholesaler, but this article is intended for the benefit only of every honest stamp dealer, and all dealers will appreciate this feature if they give it a little thought. While it might prevent them from making an unusually large "clean-up" on some stock of remainders, it will also prevent them from getting "cleaned up" on some of their purchases, and also, by preventing the smaller dealers from getting the bad end of the deal, will increase good feeling and further trade.

The catalogue question is one that has bothered the dealer and collector alike for many years. On the face of the matter, it is apparent that the work of fixing the standard of value on stamps should not be in the hands of a few dealers, each using his own idea, based on his holdings, as to the values of the different stamps. As the matter stands to-day, the catalogues are little better than house price lists. It would be greatly to the advantage of all, dealers and collectors alike, if a catalogue was issued by a group of dealers, and based on the actual law of supply and demand, not the holdings of one particular dealer. In other words, where the price list of one company is now used as a standard of values, the opinions of many authorities would serve to regulate the standard of values under the new catalogue.

The fact that nearly all organizations of this kind in business have proven successful, and competition in other lines is just as strong as in the stamp line, should help to impress on the dealers the necessity of taking a step of this kind.

PACIFIC COAST CLAIMS.

DEAR SIR:

The time is approaching for the 1914 Convention of the American Philatelic Society to be held at Niagara Falls, at which time the place where the Convention for 1915 shall be held, must be selected. In this connection the undersigned, representing the Pacific Coast sentiment in the matter, solicits your vote to have it held in San Francisco. It is hoped you can personally attend the Niagara Convention and participate in its pleasures and duties, but if you do not attend would ask, if it be your wish and pleasure, to instruct your proxy to vote for San Francisco for 1915; in any event do not fail to be represented at Niagara Falls.

Of course should it be held here in 1915 some of the familiar faces will be missed, which all will regret, but on the other hand there will be many new faces there assembled that have not heretofore found it convenient or possible to travel to the far east for that purpose. After more than a quarter of a century it would seem in order that the Pacific Coast should in all justice have its inning, where many earnest collectors and many high class collection are now located, and no more appropriate year can be selected than that of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition year, which of itself should be of sufficient interest to bring the majority of our membership to the Pacific Coast without the particular attraction of the Convention.

It will be remembered, this matter was brought up at the Denver Convention in 1907 where the writer presented the claim of the Pacific Coast for the convention for the year that should be later fixed as the Exposition year. To this no objection was raised at that time, nor has any adverse opinion been expressed since then, so far as has come to the knowledge of our Pacific Branch No. 3.

In order that the matter may be properly handled here it has been decided to ask that the Board of Vice Presidents be located in or near San Francisco, for the year next ensuing, and a selection of names for such Board has been made, subject to your favorable consideration.

Mr. Henry C. Marcus and Mr. H. G. Smith have consented that their names be used as candidates for recommendation as Vice Presidents and if no other or better name be presented, the undersigned will consent to join with them to make up the Board.

Mr. Marcus is a well known and high class business man of San Francisco who will be an honor to the Society as a member of the Board, and Mr. Smith is too well known to the majority of our members to need an introduction, as he served many years on the Board of Directors, while residing in the Middle West, as Treasurer.

Trusting this will meet with your favorable consideration, and hoping you will interest yourself to be represented at the coming Niagara Falls Convention, and expecting to have the pleasure of greeting you here in San Francisco in 1915, I remain

Very truly and fraternally yours,
H. B. PHILLIPS,
SAN FRANCISCO, June 15, 1914.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents.

BRITISH SOLOMON ISLANDS.—Two values of the King George series have been shown us by Whitfield King & Co. The design is that first used for the new Grenada stamps.

Adhesives.

½d green.
1d scarlet.

CANADA.—Several foreign papers have reported that Canada was to issue a series of seven stamps, July 1, to celebrate the centenary of Cartier, but nothing is yet known about it here.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC.—W. P. Brown has shown us a used 5c stamp of the flag set recently chronicled.

GREAT BRITAIN.—Offices in the Levant.—The 1sh olive bistre King George stamp of Great Britain has been surcharged "5 piastres" for use in the Levant. Whitfield King & Co. have shown us a specimen.

Adhesive.

On stamps of Great Britain.
"5 piastres" on 1sh olive bistre.

GRENADA.—From Whitfield King & Co. we have received the 1sh black on green on paper with white back.

HONDURAS.—The L. L. Albright Co. has also shown us the "5 cent" on 2c rose provisional chronicled last week.

JAPAN.—The new stamps on the paper with fibres of silk and watermarked vertical wavy lines close together have been shown us by the New England Stamp Co. The values seen are the ½s brown, 1s orange yellow, 1½s ultramarine, 2s green, 3s carmine, 4s red, 5s purple, 10s blue, 20s violet, 25s dark olive and 1y yellow green and violet brown. The designs are not changed. The paper is what is known as "granite," except it is white instead of gray.

LUXEMBURG.—Whitfield King & Co. submit three more values in the new series with portrait of the Grand Duchess Marie Adelaide. The design is the same as the 10c described in No. 1222, and the new values are fully as handsome.

Adhesives.

12½c dark green.
25c dark ultramarine.

MEXICO.—Benedict Prieth sends us the 4c and 5c values of the regular Federal issue, surcharged "G. C. M." in violet, as noted in recent numbers. The overprint is evidently done with a rubber stamp, showing the three letters intertwined as a monogram. Mr. Prieth writes: "The overprint 'G. C. M.' stands for 'Gobierno Constitucionalisto Mexicano,' I have been told, and not for 'Gobierno Constitucionalista Mexico' as reported in the WEEKLY. The new perforated 5c 'Transitorio' differs from the stamps of the preceding issue, in various details, notably the size of the lettering at bottom of stamp. I have been informed by a high Post Office official in Sonora that the 'Transitorio' stamps surcharged 'Victoria de Torreon, etc.' are a private speculation with which the Revolutionary Post Office Department has had absolutely nothing to do."

The 5c referred to above is a new printing of the lithographed "Transitorio" stamps, now being superseded by the Denver issue. It will be noted that on the stamps chronicled in No. 1222, the inscriptions read "Gobierno—Constitucionalista—Mexico."

NICARAGUA.—A. W. Dunning kindly sends us further values of the new set, the 1c of which was chronicled in No. 1226. As stated in No. 1210, two vignettes are used, the National Palace at Managua and the Cathedral of Leon. The former is to appear on the ½c, 1c, 3c, 5c, 15c and 25c, and the latter on the 2c, 4c, 6c, 10c, 20c and 50c values. The stamps are alike in shape and general appearance, but the frames differ in the details of the engraving. The ½c and 1c have the figures of value in the lower corners, while the 25c and 50c values have them at the sides. Like all the recent work of the American Bank Note Co. there is a simplicity to the design and a finish and beauty to the engraving that is in refreshing contrast to the flood of mediocre work coming from all over the world.

Adhesives.

25c orange.

The L. L. Albright Co. has shown us used specimens of the "c0.02" on 50c and "c0.02" on 2p blue official stamps previously chronicled.

H. Chitraro shows a used specimen of the 5c of 1905, American print, surcharged "Vale—10 cts" similar to that on Scott's Nos. 256 to 259. There is no period after "cts" and the type of "cts" is different from the catalogued varieties. The stamp has apparently done service in Nicaragua, though Scott does not mention it.

PHILIPPINE IDS.—Theodore Siddall informs us that the 20c stamp has appeared in orange color and is apparently printed in the same ink as the 10c U. S. now in use. The 4p stamp has appeared with the new watermark and has just been placed on sale to the public, though issued through the back door of the postoffice some time since.

SALVADOR.—A. W. Dunning has shown us the full set of typeset provisionals chronicled in No. 1223.

TURKEY.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the 1¼pi gray and red brown of the current set overprinted with a small blue star, for use on foreign mail. The 10pa, 20pa, 1pi and 2pi have already been noted with a similar overprint.

"WHITE BACKS."

By HERBERT A. WITHERS.

Now that all the British Colonial stamps printed on the provisional surface tinted paper are supplied to the various Colonies, it is possible to attempt a brief history of these interesting stamps, the advent of which created such a furore amongst collectors and dealers the world over.

Most collectors of modern British Colonial Stamps are aware that the dyed papers that have been in use for a number of years—have been coloured in the pulp stage during manufacture, so that obviously the depth of colour on the back of the stamp is precisely the same as that on the front.

The paper mill, however, that has supplied this watermarked paper for Colonial stamps has been suddenly closed down; the Crown Agents for the Colonies have consequently experienced a difficulty in obtaining similar coloured paper: the stock on hand being reserved for the printing of stamps by the recess plate printing method as it is impossible to use chalk surfaced paper for this process owing to the necessity of the paper being wetted before use.

It was, therefore, found necessary to find a temporary substitute for these coloured papers, pending a new contract with another mill, and the difficulty was surmounted by the introduction of colour in its chalky substance with which the ordinary white paper is coated before use. We thus have a paper that is coloured on the side intended for the impression of the stamp design but white on the reverse side; the difference is so marked that there is no difficulty in sub-dividing the two kinds of paper.

By a curious coincidence the colony to issue the first Georgian stamp on the coloured-through paper was also responsible for the issue of the first stamps on the surface tinted paper.

Jamaica may be said to be the colony of philatelic record and surprises. First of all the stamps printed on the "pine" watermark paper were exclusively used for this colony; then, after passing through the CC and Single CA paper periods, Jamaica was the only colony to issue Queen's Head stamps printed on the Multiple Crown and CA paper, closely followed by the introduction of the only Queen's Heads printed in accordance with the Colonial Colour Scheme.

On the 6th of March, 1912, was issued the 3d Jamaican stamp, which proved to be the first Georgian in the key-plate design, and at the beginning of April, 1913, the same denomination appeared printed on the paper which forms the basis of this article.

Undoubtedly, the first chronicle on record of the innovation of the new surface-tinted paper was the publication of a paragraph in the Jamaica Chronicle of June 23rd, 1913, from the pen of a well known Jamaica specialist, Mr. Astley Clark, who thus described the new paper from copies of the 3d value:—

"Our present threepenny stamp was put into circulation the 6th March, 1912, just over a year ago and was printed on chalky and non-chalky yellow back paper. I was therefore much surprised to find the G. P. O. selling on the 2nd April this year [1913] a 3d Georgian printed on a white back paper.

I promptly bought a pane of 60 of these stamps for my collection and then enquired of the Stamp Office if the stamp was a paper-error. The officers of that department had already noted the alterations in paper but could not say if it was intentional or not; they, however, told me that even if the white back paper was an error it would not be a rarity as all the stamps they then had in stock were printed on the same paper. I should suppose that Messrs. De La Rue ran short of the yellow back paper and used the white back to print the now current 3d on, but I do not suppose the (forced) error will be repeated. Still, if you my reader, are a live collector get some duplicates at once, as delay is always dangerous. I may say that the face colour—the brown—of this white back 3d is so different from the issue of March 6th that the very blind will notice it."

Thus was the "discovery" of the "white back" first chronicled, although Mr. Clark himself could not have realised the full significance of the innovation, which from a philatelic point of view heralded a new era in the collection of the stamps of the Georgian period.

It is somewhat surprising in these days of advanced specialism that some philatelic enthusiast in this country, by experiments with water or other means, did not arrive at the correct solution of the fact of the paper being coloured on the surface only.

I understand that if the 3d stamp on yellow surfaced paper is immersed in water for a length of time the yellow-coloured chalky surface floats off, leaving a perfect purple on white paper stamp. Collectors of used Georgians should therefore be most careful how they set about separating these stamps from their "original" paper.

Messrs. Ewen's, in their Weekly Stamp News of July 13th, 1913, state:

"We have received a consignment [of Jamaica stamps] and find two sheets of the 3d King George in a distinctly new shade.

"3d dull purple on pale lemon yellow and the marginal line single instead of double, as in previous printing."

However, this system of arriving at half the truth continued until the publication of the first number of Stamp Collecting dated the 20th September, 1913, when on certain exclusive information supplied by Messrs. Whitfield King and Co. of Ipswich the full importance of the innovation of surface tinted paper was first made public.

It was at first supposed that the use of this paper would be of a permanent nature, and collectors of Georgian and other modern stamps were advised to complete their sets of stamps printed on the original dyed through paper pending the issue of the corresponding denominations on surface-tinted paper. The quarterly issue of the Colonial Journal for January, 1914, however, published the startling announcement that the employment of the surface-tinted paper was of a provisional nature only, and further announced that the coloured papers would again be used.

This announcement caused another flutter amongst collectors of modern colonials, and philatelists who had not hitherto troubled to join "new issue" services promptly sent their subscriptions.

It was taken for granted that most of the stamps printed on the original coloured paper would be affected by the change and embrace the whole range of coloured papers employed in the production of Colonial stamps, viz., yellow, green, blue, and red papers.

But the Colonial Journal revealed the fact that only yellow and green tinted papers were to be used; the journal also gave a preliminary list of the stamps that were to be issued on the provisional paper, which is as follows:

Colony	On Yellow tinted paper	On Green tinted paper
Cayman Islands,	3d	1sh & 10sh
Ceylon,	1 & 2 Rupees	5 Rupees
Fiji,		1sh
Gold Coast,	3d & 5sh

The Colonial Journal for April last gave a further and final list of the stamps to be issued on the tinted paper and confirmed the fact that only yellow and green tinted papers were to be employed.

The same journal also reported that the last of the surface tinted paper was used for printing the 3d, 4d, 1sh, 5sh and 10sh stamps of Nigeria which exhausted the whole supply and all future printings would be made on the coloured-through paper as in the past.

Thus was terminated the printing and distribution of the most interesting series of postage stamps of modern times.

The effect of the issue of this series will be universal and tend to make stamp collecting more popular than ever, and as there is nothing very complicated in the series philatelically speaking; even the novice will realise the difference between this and the permanent issues, without having to resort to the microscope.

The problems arising out of these important changes are manifold and important. At the time of writing it appears that some of the values are obsolete. The 3d Leeward Islands will prove to be somewhat scarce and it is quite likely that there will be short supplies of other "white backs." It will necessarily take some time before any definite idea can be formed as to comparative scarcity or rarity, as the case may be.

Contrary to expectation there do not seem to be any shades worth noting. I have a copy of the 10c Straits Settlements that is paler than the normal, but the difference is insignificant.

It is very noticeable, however, that in the case of the yellow stamps the colouring matter has penetrated the paper, giving the watermark a distinct yellow outline. In other cases the gum has a thick heavy appearance and is unevenly applied, pointing to the theory that some of the surface colouring substance came into contact with the adhesive mixture.

On bringing this short article to a close, one's thoughts naturally turn to the future issues on the papers supplied under the new contract. By whatever stretch of imagination one may be tempted to create shades of yellow or green or blue or red; there is no question of the difference between the papers "coloured-through" and those showing "white backs."—Stamp Collecting.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BILL BLOSS, 2729 Hampden Court, Chicago, Ill.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

CONDITION.

The subject of condition should be the first the collector turns his attention to. Unfortunately, however, many beginners still adhere to the old practice of putting any stamp at all in their albums to "fill the space," without regarding tears, heavy cancellations, poor centering, thin spots, straight edges, or even holes. In the days when stamp collecting first became a hobby, condition was unheard of. Perhaps the collectors in that day were happier than they are now. Certainly their albums were not as beautiful to look at. The fact that a few perforations were missing, or that the stamp was torn in two and pasted together, or that a large piece was missing from one or two corners did not prevent the collector from putting the stamp in his book. In a stock of stamps, gathered by an old time dealer, and recently put on the market, a large envelope was found marked "pieces of stamps." In this envelope was an accumulation of worthless junk, consisting of stamps with large pieces torn out of them, or, in some cases, it would be better to say pieces torn out of stamps. Whether this dealer was saving these cripples with the hope of coming across the missing parts some day, the writer cannot say. At all events, the "hospital" was consigned to the fire, where it should have gone years before.

The writer learned his lesson on condition several times, and is quite sure that he knows enough to let the "bad ones" alone. On the first occasion, the collection contained the usual kind that the beginner collects. When this collection was sold, it was discounted to almost nothing on account of the poor condition. Dealers do not want poor copies of stamps. With a very few exceptions, there are enough nice copies for all collectors (though patience is often needed to find them).

The second collection the writer made up was broken up and sold at retail, with the result that all damaged copies were left unsold, and are now in the "junk-box" where they will probably remain until some "annual housecleaning" causes them to be dispensed with.

Of course, allowance must be sometimes made for condition according to the stamp. Old stamps are most often found in poor condition, for the reason that new issue services were unheard of, so the collector was satisfied to take whatever he could get; also, the passing of the stamps through various hands has helped to damage them, and again the art of manufacturing postage stamps was not as well developed, generally, as it is at the present time. Therefore, collectors often have to overlook poor centering and perforating in the early stamps.

In collecting stamps, the collector should avoid the following:

Straight edges,
Thin spots,
Heavy cancellations,
Torn or damaged and
"Off-centered."

Nothing detracts from the beauty of a collection so much as poor copies. It is impossible to make a page attractive if one or two of the stamps are smeared with a "smudge" cancellation, or have pieces missing.

"Straight edges" are perforated stamps imperforate on one or two sides. Straight edges are caused by the margin of the sheets being unperforated. Every collector is probably familiar with them. They do not occur in all stamps, and are usually found on stamps printed in large sheets and cut up, as the United States stamps, for instance. These stamps are printed in sheets of four hundred and are cut in quarters along the guide lines, making sheets of one hundred. (The higher values are printed in sheets of two hundred only.) The stamps receiving the cut are the straight edged ones.

"Thin spots" on stamps are almost as undesirable as tears. However, thin spots are usually on the back of the stamp, and so do not detract from the appearance of the stamp. They are considered a defect, however, and collector will do well to avoid buying stamps that have been "skinned." One way to avoid making thin spots is to use first class peelable hinges, and attach just as little of the hinge to the stamps as possible. Frequent hinging of a stamp will result in making it thin in spots, so do not remount your stamps any more than is necessary. Also, never try to take the hinge off the back of a stamp until it is dry. If you make an error in mounting the stamp, better wait a few minutes than spoil the stamp.

"Heavy cancellations" and "smudge" cancellations always look ugly on a stamp page. Don't buy a stamp that has been treated to a paint brush cancellation. Wait until you can get one cancelled lightly. A lightly cancelled used copy may be thought just as beautiful as an unused, and many times, the cancellation adds interest. Heavy cancellations seem to be the order of the day in some countries, but sooner or later you will come across a nice copy. Wait.

Torn and damaged stamps speak for themselves. If you can't find a whole stamp, remember that an empty space looks better than one filled with an eyesore.

"Off-centered" stamps are stamps that have not been perforated properly, causing the stamp to appear one-sided. The collector who is really particular about his stamps insists that the designs be in the very center of the stamp. At any event, do not if possible put a stamp in your book if the perforations cut much into the design. Many of the auction dealers describe "off-centered" stamps as being centered a "jot West", for example. The writer has found that a "jot" varies considerably, and if the stamp centers even a jot in any direction, it is better to wait until you come across one that is centered as it should be, with even margins on all sides.

In summing up this "condition lesson," let the collector remember one rule, and follow it: Insist on fine condition, and do not put any stamp in your book that does not come up to your standard of condition. You would not buy a painting that had a piece cut out of it, nor a suit of clothes with paint on it. Then, why buy stamps that are not in good condition? If your dealer can't supply you with fine conditioned stamps, (and many cannot, apparently) trade with a dealer who can. Of course, you will seldom find fine conditioned stamps at 75% discount, but when you consider that damaged stamps are practically worthless, while fine copies are increasing in value, you will see that it pays to get the best.

The question of gum on unused stamps should come up under the subject of condition. However, this requirement seems to be passing to the rear in philately. Where a few years ago a stamp would be heavily discounted if it was not O. G. (original gum), today, it will bring quite a fair price, though, of course, not as much as a copy with full original gum. Try to get copies with gum when you buy unused, but at the same time, do not pass up bargains because they have not this feature. In the opinion of the writer, the back of a stamp is just about as important as the can in which sardines come. It is all right in its place, and indispensable, but not the chief feature of interest.

POOLE'S "STAMP COLLECTOR'S GUIDE."

(This is a sample chapter from Poole's splendid book of which there are no less than thirty-two chapters dealing with all the intricacies of stamp collecting. Remit 25c to this office and have a book sent you.)

CHAPTER XXIII.—Registered Letter Stamps.

A special class of stamps issued in connection with the postal system are labels issued for use on Registered letters or parcels. In most civilised countries a registration system is in force under which one can, by paying an addition charge, be assured of a relatively safer conveyance and delivery of a letter and, in case of its loss, compensation can usually be secured. But though registration forms an important part in the postal service of so many countries in but few places have special labels been issued to denote that the registration fee has been paid. Many arguments have been held as to the standing of these labels and it has been asserted that they have no status as postage stamps but are only receipts given by the post office to show that the registration charge has been paid. But in some cases there is no doubt that part of the sum indicated by the registration stamp indicates the postal charge as well. In any case they are a small and somewhat unimportant class of labels. The continent of Europe does not provide a single registration stamp; Afghanistan is the only Asiatic country issuing them; in Africa we find Liberia is the only country that has ever troubled to issue these special labels; in America most of the varieties come from the various departments of Colombia, though the United States, Canada, Salvador and Venezuela have also issued them. Australia, New South Wales, Queensland, and Victoria issued these labels many years ago and these are perhaps the most interesting and valuable of all registered letter stamps. As a rule these stamps are easy to distinguish for they bear some word or inscription indicating their special use. Those of Afghanistan can only be identified by comparison with the catalogue illustrations. On the United States label the word is "REGISTRY," on the Canadian and Australian stamps it is "REGISTERED" while on other stamps the following equivalents for the English word are shown:—

A.—(An abbreviation for "Anotacion.") This letter is shown on some of the stamps of Colombia.

Anotacion.—This word means "Registered" and is shown on some of the labels issued in Colombia.

Certificado.—This is another form for "Registered" or, more accurately, "Certified," and appears on the stamps of Salvador and Venezuela.

R.—(An abbreviation for "Registro.") This letter is prominently shown on some of the stamps of Antioquia, Bolivar, Colombia, Cundinamarca, Panama and Tumaco.

R.—(An abbreviation for "Registered.") Shown upon the registration stamps of Liberia.

Recomendada.—This word means literally, "Recommended," in the sense that the letter is recommended for special care during its journey through the post. It is shown on one of the registration labels of Colombia.

Registro.—This word, meaning "Registered," is shown upon some of the stamps of Antioquia and Cundinamarca.

Rejistro.—Another form for "Registered" used on some of the Registration stamps of Colombia.

THE POSTAGE STAMPS OF SAXONY.

By BERTRAM W. H. POOLE.

Saxony is a kingdom of Germany, being fifth in area and third in population among the states of the empire. It is surrounded by Bohemia, Silesia, Prussian Saxony, and the minor Saxon States and has a total area of 5,787 square miles. The population grows fast and had nearly quadrupled in the period 1815-1900. At the present time it has nearly reached the five million mark and is the most densely peopled country in Europe. The River Elbe divides the kingdom into two almost equal parts, both hilly and both well watered. The predominating geographical feature of the western half is the Erzgebirge (2,500 feet) separating it from Bohemia; of the eastern half, offsets of the Riesengebirge, and the sandstone formation, above Dresden, known as the Saxon Switzerland. Agriculture is highly developed though most of the farms are small. Saxony's chief interests are, however, manufacturing and mining. Coal, iron, cobalt, tin, copper, lead and silver are all found, the latter having been mined at Freiberg since the 12th century.

The people are in part of Slav descent, but Germanised. Amongst them are between 50,000 and 60,000 Wends (pure Slavs). Education stands at a high level, the university at Leipzig, for instance, being one of the most important educational centres of the empire. The capital is Dresden, while the three largest towns are Dresden, Leipzig and Chemnitz. Saxony is a constitutional, hereditary monarchy, with a parliament of two chambers. It sends four members to the Imperial Council and twenty-three representatives to the Reichstag.

The name of Saxony formerly designated a very large tract in north Germany, extending from the Weser to the frontiers of Poland. At the peace of 1495 the Emperor Maximilian I, divided Germany into two circles, of which the extensive tract of country hitherto called Saxony formed three, viz:—Westphalia, Lower Saxony and Upper Saxony. The last of these comprised the electorates of Braddenburg and Saxony, the duchy of Pomerania, and several small principalities. The kingdom of Saxony was formed out of the electorate of the same name. The duchy of Saxony, to which the electorial dignity and the office of hereditary marshall of the empire were attached, was, however, no part of the ancient German duchy of that name (which was composed of Lauenberg and a tract on the other side of the Elbe), but a Wend or Vandal province, which Albert the Bear, margrave of Salzwedel, of the house of Ascania, had conquered and left to his son Bernhard. This Bernhard received from the Emperor Frederick Barbarossa the dignity of Duke of Saxony, to which were attached a part of Engern and Westphalia, extending from the Weser, which separated it from Eastphalia, westward to the Rhine. But Bernhard not being powerful enough to maintain his rights, most of the Saxon allodial proprietors became immediate estates of the empire by which the duchy was dissolved, and its name transferred to the country inherited by Bernhard from his father, to which from that time the ducal dignity was attached. The house of Ascania becoming extinct on the death of Albert III (1422), the Emperor Sigismund invested Frederick the Warlike, margarve of Meissen, with the electoral title and the duchy of Saxony. He was succeeded in the electoral dominions by his son, Frederick the Mild, who reigned from 1428 to 1464. On his death his dominions were divided between his two sons, Albert and Ernest, who were the founders of the Albertine and Ernestine lines, the former of which still reigns in the kingdom of Saxony, and the latter is divided into four branches of Saxe-Altenburg, Coburg-Gotha, Meiningen and Weimar.

In the war with France (1793) Saxony furnished only a small contingent and took no decided part; but in 1806 the elector sent all his troops to support the king of Prussia. The ruin of the Prussian power at the battle of Jena enabled Napoleon to gain the Saxons to his cause. Prussian Poland was added to the dominions of Saxony under the title of the grand-duchy of Warsaw, and the title of elector was changed to that of king. After the overthrow of Napoleon at Leipzig (1813), the king was for a time a prisoner in the hands of the allies, and the Congress of Vienna deprived him of more than half his dominions, or a territory of 7,880 square miles, which was handed over to Prussia. Saxony took the side of Austria in the Seven Weeks' War (1866) shared in the defeat of Sadowa and was compelled to join the North German Confederation. In 1871 Saxony became a member of the new German empire.

Its Philatelic History.

The German-Austrian Postal Union was formed on April 6th, 1850, and as Saxony at once decided to join it was necessary to take measures for providing postage stamps. The kingdom of Bavaria had issued stamps in the previous year and the Government of Saxony therefore applied to that kingdom for information. In response to this appeal the Bavarians sent copies of all their acts and decrees relating to the issue of stamps, together with specimens of the postage stamps which had been issued. As the question of deciding upon an entire issue required some deliberation, it was determined to make a start by providing a stamp of small value for prepaying the rate of postage on journals and printed matter. This stamp was the now famous 3 pfennige red the design of which, it will be noticed, is a palpable copy of the 1 kreuzer Bavaria. On June 22d, 1850, a notice appeared stating that from July 1st following, articles under wrapper destined for any place within the circuit of the royal post of Saxony or for Austria, Prussia, Bavaria, the Mecklenburgs, Anhalt - Schwarzburg, Waldeck, or Hamburg, must be prepaid with stamps of three pfennige for every loth (about ½ oz.) in weight, and that the post-office had prepared such stamps, the sale of which would commence on June 29th, though they were not to be used until July 1st. For the definite issue of August 1st, 1851, more elaborate designs were selected. Various methods of production were considered and numerous essays were submitted by J. B. Hirschfeld, who printed the 3pf red. Hirschfeld could, apparently, only produce stamps by the typographic process and while this was considered suitable enough for the lowest value, used for printed matter, it was hardly considered good enough for the higher denominations. Consequently Hirschfeld only obtained the contract for printing the 3 pfennig stamps, in a design showing the Arms of the kingdom, while the contract for manufacturing the higher values was awarded to C. C. Meinhold & Sons, of Dresden, a firm well-known for the production of engravings by the glyphographic process. There were four values in all—½, 1, 2, and 3 neugroschen—showing a profile portrait of Frederic Augustus II. King Frederic died on August 9, 1854, and was succeeded by his brother John. Steps were at once taken to provide new stamps and though these were ready by the end of the year they were not issued until June 1st, 1855. The numismatic rule of setting the profile of a reigning sovereign the reverse way to that in which it was placed on the coins etc., of his predecessor was followed. With the exception of the portrait the design was altered as little as possible; the values were the same and the same colors were used. No change was made in the 3pf value, as it bore the coat-of-arms, and this denomination continued to be printed by Hirschfeld. It was found desirable to have higher values than 3ngr for use on letters sent beyond the confines of the German-Austrian postal union and on April 24th, 1856, 5 and 10ngr stamps were issued. In design these were similar to the lower values but they were printed in color on white paper instead of in black on colored papers as was the case with all previously issued neugroschen stamps.

In March, 1861, the head of the Prussian Post-office called attention to the confusion that was created by so many states of the German-Austrian Postal Union using stamps of corresponding values in different colors, and suggested that all stamps of similar value, whether expressed in schilling, grote, groschen, or kreuzer, should be printed in the same color, and that the same rule should be applied to the stamped envelopes, which should have the stamp in the right upper angle, and the adhesives placed in the same position; and he advised new issues to be made to carry out these suggestions. These proposals met with general approval, and Saxony immediately prepared for a new issue. Various firms were invited to submit designs, but only four did so and the contract was eventually awarded to Giesecke and Devrient, of Leipzig. The new stamps had the arms of Saxony in colorless embossing in the centre, and they are certainly inferior in appearance to their predecessors. With this issue perforation was introduced for the first time. The values were the same as before except that the 10 neugroschen was dropped. The demand for this value was found to be exceedingly small and at the time the new series appeared, July 1st, 1863, quite a large proportion of the original supply of the 10ngr of 1856 still remained on hand. Saxony, as we have already shown, was compelled to join the North German Confederation and on the appearance of the Confederation stamps on January 1st, 1868, its separate stamps were suppressed.

The currency of Saxony was the thaler, worth about 72c, which was divided into 30 neugroschen. One neugroschen was equivalent in value to a silbergroschen, but was divided into ten instead of twelve pfennige.

The First Issue.

Among all the stamps issued by the various German States none is more popular than the first stamp issued in Saxony—the 3 pfennige red. It is not a very handsome stamp, or even one of original design, but it is merely a somewhat crude copy of the 1kr stamp issued by Bavaria in 1849, as we have already pointed out. This particular stamp seems always to have been in demand from the earliest days of stamp collecting, the real reason of its popularity being that it was one of the most difficult stamps to obtain as well as one of the first used in the German Empire. This stamp was produced in a hurry and did not receive the careful consideration accorded to the other postage stamps issued by Saxony in the following year. The reason for its hurried manufacture lies in the fact that it was intended for use on newspapers and printed matter which, under the newly formed postal Convention between Austria and various German States, had to be prepaid. If not prepaid, the packages were charged full letter rate. Not only had these packages to be prepaid but the Saxon Government insisted that stamps must be used and payment in cash was not allowed. The design consists of a large open "3" covered with a mazework pattern on a ground composed of fragments of wavy lines within a frame 18½ mm. square. The frame is about 3¼ mm. wide and is inscribed "SACHSEN" at top, "FRANCO" at base, "DREI" at left, and "PFEN-NIGE" at right. In each of the angles is a small ornament with a star-like centre.

The stamps were manufactured at the printing establishment of J. B. Hirschfeld, a printer and lithographer of Leipzig. The original die was engraved in relief on metal and from this moulds were taken in plaster, or some similar material, from which Arnold, the stereotyper in Hirschfeld's works, took casts in type-metal. The stamps are not all of equal size the variations being due to unequal shrinkage of the plaster moulds in drying. It is also probable, as Mr. Westoby points out, that Arnold, to save time, used some of his to produce moulds for others.

It is probable only twenty moulds were made for the stamps were printed in sheets of twenty in four horizontal rows of five. It has been suggested that there was another plate used for some of the later printings but no satisfactory proof of this has been produced. Lines of printer's rule were placed between the casts and in referring to these Mr. Westoby says they ran "vertically down the sheet uninterruptedly; but the horizontal lines were broken and did not touch the vertical lines." Unless, however, a second plate was used, or a resetting of the casts made, this statement must be inaccurate for in a superb mint block of four illustrated in a German paper some little time ago the horizontal lines are distinctly continuous and it is the vertical ones which are broken. The stamps were printed on ordinary white wove paper and they are, of course, not perforated. The gum is of a distinctly yellow hue.

The first lot of stamps consisting of 120,000 (6,000 sheets) was delivered by the end of June and the public's appreciation of them may be gauged from the fact that only 19,000 remained by the 20th of August. Two days later another supply of 60,000 was delivered. Both these lots were ordered orally but after that it was decreed that future orders must be made in writing from the office of the Main Postal Treasury. Six further lots were ordered and delivered as follows:—

Altogether, therefore, 500,000 of these stamps were printed and delivered. One sheet of twenty stamps was sent to the Finance Ministry at Dresden as a sample, 463,058 stamps were sold, and the remaining 36,922 were burnt on December 10th, 1851. In the early nineties the sheet sent to the Treasury was apparently cut up and the stamps sold singly at a dollar or so apiece.

That this stamp was only intended as a temporary issue is shown by a remark contained in the official notification of June 22nd, 1850, viz:—"This form is, however, only provisional, and will be altered when postage stamps for correspondence (letters) are introduced." This stamp was replaced by the 3pf green label, in the Arms type, on August 1st, 1851, and it was then decreed that no more of the red stamps were to be sold at the post-offices. At the same time the public were informed they could use any of the red stamps they possessed but that under no circumstances would they be exchanged for the new green ones. Writing in the Monthly Journal for December, 1900, Mr. G. B. Duerst says: "This is the reason why the 3 pfennig, red, is so rare with the lozenge obliteration, which was only introduced in March, 1852. The usual postmark is the name and date stamp, but the earliest obliteration was in pen and ink."

The stamp exists in a number of shades, doubtless owing to the many printings, but according to the catalogue quotations there is little to choose between them in point of rarity.

The stamp is rare and its scarcity is accounted for by the fact that the vast majority of the 463,058 stamps sold were used on newspaper packages and were destroyed in the removal of the wrapper.

Unused this stamp has always been considered scarcer than used but owing to the larger demand for used specimens of recent years there is now little to choose between used and unused so far as market value is concerned. We believe the largest block known in mint condition, with original gum, is a block of four from the right lower corner of a sheet. An entire sheet is, or was, in existence, however. This was described in the Monthly Journal in 1896 as follows:—"Mr. Castle secured, for a sum of about $1500.00, an unsevered and unused sheet of 20 Saxony 3pf red. This is believed to be the only sheet known, and is the one formerly in the Friedl Museum of Vienna. Mr. Friedl got it from a Castle in Saxony, where it was found pasted on a fire-screen and varnished over! Naturally it is not in the most brilliant condition, but it is a unique piece, and well worth the price paid."

This 3pf stamp is one that has consistently shown an appreciation in value and of recent years it has jumped upwards in price at an astonishing rate. In 1864 it was worth about 35c in used condition; in 1884 it was quoted 75c; in 1894 its value had increased to $22, in 1908 it stood at $37; while at the present time Scott has it quoted at a modest $70, Gibbons at $120, while fine copies have approached the $150 mark at auction abroad. There is a suspicion in some quarters that some one is attempting a corner in this stamp—a not impossible proceeding in view of the limited number available—and should such a "corner" be successful there is no knowing to what price this variety may yet be forced.

Few stamps have been so extensively counterfeited as this 3 pfennige, one writer alone admitting the possession of no less than twenty-five different counterfeits. Mr. Westoby mentions several points which should be of value in detecting counterfeits, viz.:—

In the ornament in the corners, which is in the shape of a quatrefoil, the interior design is in the shape of a four-rayed star, or rather a round uncolored centre to a St. Andrew's Cross. In the left upper corner ornament there is a curved line opposite to each extremity of the cross. This curved line is wanting opposite the left upper extremity of the cross in all the other corner ornaments, and also opposite the upper right extremity of the cross in the right upper ornament, and this right extremity is long, while the left one is very short, as also is the upper right one in the right lower ornament. In the inscriptions the S and A in SACHSEN almost join, as also do the R and E in DREI. There is a break in the inner line of the frame opposite the I of DREI. These are the principal tests given by Messrs. Collin and Calman, and in their catalogue enlarged engravings are given of the corner ornaments. In the genuine stamps there is a full stop after FRANCO which, curiously enough, is absent in most of the imitations."

TEMPORARY SUSPENSION.

Owing to a serious eye trouble with which the editor of the Philatelic Journal of America has been afflicted, he tells us that he has been unable to read a stamp paper for the past ten weeks.

His physicians forbid desk work and as it was not anticipated that intermission would be long, no immediate provision was made for the editorial work of the Journal as Mr. C. H. Mekeel expected to be able to resume it very shortly.

The May and June numbers of the Journal were not issued, and on July 1st the publishers announced that owing to the break they would suspend publication until Fall.

Two numbers will be issued, probably bearing the dates of November and December, to complete Volume 24—ten numbers of this volume having been issued.

With the issue of January, 1915, Volume 25 will be started and the Journal will be issued regularly thereafter.

EDITORIAL.

Tolerance—The following order regarding the use of the distinctive ten cent registration stamps, the issue of which was discontinued some time ago, has been sent from Washington, under date of July 1st, 1914: "Postmasters are informed that while registry stamps should not be accepted in payment of postage at the post office of mailing, ordinary mail of all classes inadvertently dispatched from the office of mailing with registry stamps affixed representing the full amount of postage, shall upon reaching the post office of address, be delivered to the addressee without additional charge."

Interruption—Sometime ago, the editor, Mr. P. McG. Mann, of our weekly contemporary was forced to leave his desk because of eye strain and a trip to Europe was taken in order to secure the rest of the ocean voyage. Mr. Mann returned recently with his sight much improved. Now we have been informed by Mr. Charles H. Mekeel that in consequence of trouble with his eyes which has not yielded to treatment as yet, he has been compelled to abandon all intention of issuing any numbers of his magazine, the Philatelic Journal of America during the summer. Later in this year, Mr. Mekeel intends to issue two numbers of his journal, in order to complete the present volume and thereby be in à position to start the new year with a new volume. We sympathize with our confrere in the publishing field, knowing how irksome he must find it to have his activities so sharply curbed and we sincerely trust that the long rest that is imperative will restore the former strength of Mr. Mekeel's eyes. While we deplore the temporary suspension of this superb monthly, yet we are cheered by the promise of the future that it will appear in improved form, even.

Strands—The appearance of the new shilling St. Vincent in different color may indicate that there is something in the report that the retirement of the green on black shillings of the colonial issues is impending because the cancellation marks do not show plainly enough on the present stamps. The new Mexico constitutional issue is called the permanent one and we trust that it will remain unchanged long enough to give collectors a chance to catch up on the provisionals. A reader has asked George W. Linn to send him a sample of the "Sonora Dope" that he has been advertising. E. F. R. writes: "I note in a recent auction sale ad: Unused 1869, 10c orange, perfection, without gum (!!)." If the stamp had gum, the auctioneer would probably get out an extra.

Our Youngest Subscriber — Our "youngest subscriber" contest has furnished a pleasant diversion; and we now make an announcement of the awards in this contest which has been entered into so earnestly by many readers. Master Thomas Eliot Weil of Bellingham, Washington, writes: "I am 7 and will be eight the 23rd of June. Am I entitled to the stamp offered to the youngest subscriber? I have 2000 stamps counting my envelopes and post cards. I learned to read this year and can read the WEEKLY. My brother Frank is 5½. Very truly yours." We wish we could have written so well at eight as our correspondent, who carefully numbers the three pages of his letter, written on one side of the paper. From the father of this Master Weil, we have received the following confirmation: "My older boy now visiting in Portland, Oregon, wrote relative to the stamp to be given the youngest subscriber to the WEEKLY. He was eight years old June 23rd, 1914, but the subscription is in the name of his younger brother, Frank Tuttle Weil, five and a half years old. Frank has an Imperial Album and 800 varieties hinged." So, the regular prize goes to Frank Tuttle Weil, Bellingham, Washington, aetat. five years,—and his big brother will get a stamp, too. We shall now ask our youngest subscriber, 5 years old, to shake hands with our oldest, age 83 years.

Constancy Is a Jewel—From Miss Amy L. Swift, Whitman, Massachusetts, the most entertaining philatelic writer of her sex, we have received the following interesting communication: "Now that you have distributed nice juicy plums to your oldest and youngest subscribers, why not pass out another to the most constant one, that is, the one whose subscription has run steadily without any break whatever for the longest period. I will start the contest by stating that mine has run continuously since 1893 but should need to look over files in order to decide in what month it began. The fifty cents a year was quite a tax in the beginning but the paternal pocket was never closed to the small girl and so the subscription never lapsed. Now the WEEKLY has come to be as much of a habit with me as is the cigar to the average masculine but a much less harmful 'habit,' you understand." Verily, Miss Swift may sign herself, "Constant Reader," and we are certain that among our feminine readers at least, she takes precedence.

San Francisco's Wish—In the letter that Mr. H. B. Phillips has prepared asking for favorable consideration of San Francisco as the seat of the 1915 convention of the American Philatelic Society, it is mentioned that there has been a tacit agreement of some years' standing that San Francisco was to be awarded the convention the year of the Pacific-Panama festival. The claim is a valid one and a promise was made by certain of the prominent members that San Francisco deserved the honor on that occasion. In a sense, San Francisco has always been a candidate for the convention but realizing that it was too remote from the center of population of the American Philatelic Society, it instituted no aggressive measures to secure the meeting, in ordinary years. The slate-makers, in fact, had San Francisco picked for the 1915 convention; and it was planned that the late Henry J. Crocker would be made president that year. The death of Mr. Crocker disorganized the project. It is true that the agreement of those members in favor of San Francisco was made when the convention of 1915 seemed so far in the distance that it did not seem to be an affair that concerned them personally but nevertheless there appears to be no good reason on that score to repudiate the implied obligation.

A Point at Issue—The objection that might be raised that many of the familiar faces at conventions would be missing at San Francisco because of its distance from the east is very plausibly met in Mr. Phillips' letter by the contention that new ones would be seen in their places. Nothing is said of the distractions of the Exhibition as a factor in weakening the degree of attention on the convention but it could be argued as an off-set that the Exhibition would be instrumental in attracting a larger attendance than in usual years. We know that there will be a contest on the selection of the next convention place even though no city other than San Francisco has been publicly advanced; and it would be well for those who are not to attend the coming Niagara Falls convention to instruct their proxy holders on their choice. At the present writing the alternative with many members would have to be "not San Francisco," in the absence of any competitor nominated up to this time.

INSURED AND C. O. D. MAIL FOR THE CANAL ZONE.

Arrangements have been made with the postal administration of the Canal Zone which permit the mailing of fourth-class parcels as C. O. D. to money-order offices in the Zone on and after July 1, 1914. Parcels addressed to these offices may, therefore, be accepted as C. O. D. on and after that date, under the conditions and provisions stated in Section 489, Postal Laws and Regulations. The notice on page 104, Article 168, of the July, 1913, Postal Guide, is hereby amended accordingly.

Under the conditions of the agreement the Department will also be enabled to pay limited indemnity on account of the loss or rifling of insured or C. O. D. parcels mailed to post offices in the Canal Zone, irrespective of where the loss or rifling occurs in the postal service of the United States or of the Canal Zone. Insured and C. O. D. parcels mailed to the Canal Zone on and after July 1, 1914, will secure the benefit of this arrangement. The notice on page 102, Article 151, of the July, 1913, Postal Guide, which stated the restriction heretofore existing in the payment of indemnity for lost insured mail addressed to the Zone, is amended accordingly.

POSTMARKS.

By G. A. CHANDLER.

Postmark collecting as an intensive, extensive, and specialized hobby is a comparatively recent recruit in the collecting world. Altho it has been existing for the past fifteen or twenty years in a quiet way, it is only during the past two or three that it has been brought before the public, and even now there is a large share of the collecting public who knows little or nothing about this most fascinating form of collection. Not only do few know anything about postmarks, but those few who do know (unless they be adherents themselves) usually treat the hobby with ridicule and put it to scorn as mere children's nonsense.

There is no good reason why postmark collecting should be frowned upon; it is as scientific as stamp collecting, is just as "legitimate" inasmuch as its specimens are officially authorized, provides just as much enjoyment as any other form of collection, and is no more childish. In addition to these features it has one advantage which places it in a preeminent position, namely, its extreme cheapness. Not only may thousands of specimens be obtained by collectors merely for the trouble of asking for them but additional thousands may be obtained at a cost so low as to cover only the labor of cutting.

For the collector who likes original research, postmarks afford a fruitful field. Little or no work has been done on them, information is easily obtained, and a great deal of research material can be procured for almost nothing. Compare this situation with that now obtaining in philately; practically all the fields open to the "common" collector have been worked, and some of them reworked—what few remain are generally impossible from financial or other standpoints.

Postmark collecting, then, should unflinchingly recommend itself to men of collecting bent who cannot afford to put the money into a stamp collection that such a collection now demands, and to men who like to explore new fields. The hobby is exceedingly interesting, fascinating and recreational, beside being scientific and instructive; these features recommend it to all classes of collectors.

Before explaining the details of the hobby it might be well to define a few terms. A postmark, literally speaking, is any mark applied by the postal authorities to any piece of mail transported, and includes not only our common cancellations, but all sorts of rubber stamps and paper labels. However, in connection with the hobby only such marks that serve to cancel or indicate the office of origin or receipt are considered as "postmarks." Ordinarily a postmark is the cancellation appearing in the upper right hand corner of the envelope, cancelling the stamp.

Postmarks are divided roughly into two general classes according to their method of application, handstamps and machines. The handstamps are applied, as the name indicates, by hand, either with a tool resembling an ordinary rubber stamp or with a hammer-like instrument. The machine cancellations are applied by electric, foot-power, or hand-power machines; these machines differ greatly in type, being made by different manufacturers and leased to the Government.

A handstamp consists of two parts, the label and the obliterator. The label contains the necessary information prescribed by law and is usually enclosed within a circle; the obliterator consists of any convenient device to cancel the stamp, usually a series of concentric rings, a series of short horizontal lines, or an oval bearing a number. Label and obliterator are intimately joined, the stamp being cancelled and the required information stamped simultaneously. Formerly, and even to a certain extent today, two operations were necessary to completely postmark a letter, the label and obliterator (usually a piece of cork at the end of a stick) being separate stamps.

Machine postmarks also consist of label and obliterator, the label usually resembling that of the handstamp in its general characteristics. Certain machine labels, however, are arranged in straight lines without any enclosing line. The obliterators made by the different companies (who supply the dies for their types of machine) differ greatly in character, but they nearly all agree in having as a "motif" a series of lines arranged to form an imaginary rectangle about 2½ inches long by about one inch wide, acting as a very effective cancellation to as many as three stamps arranged horizontally adjoining each other. The lines may take different forms; long horizontal, short vertical, curved or waved, resembling a flag, slanting, etc., with variations and combinations. Frequently a number or a letter, or both, appear between the lines; these characters indicate the particular machine which made the cancellation. Each die is numbered by the manufacturers, the same number being given to many dies, but not to more than one in the same office. These die numbers run up to twenty-five in the city of Chicago. The letters C, D, R, and T have no particular significance at the present time, altho originally they were intended to show different classes of mail; Collected, Dropped, Received and Transient. The purpose of the numbering is to give a check on the work of the machine or of the clerk who is operating it, making it easy to locate errors or poor work. A clear impression showing office of origin, date, and time of mailing is required by law.

Many machine postmarks contain additional interesting information in the obliterator; some show that the letter was postmarked at a branch post office or station while others give notice of some exhibition, fair, congress, or other important event. These latter type of postmarks are called advertising or publicity postmarks and are highly prized and eagerly collected by postmark enthusiasts. In the United States only an event of national importance for which Congress has made an appropriation is permitted to advertise with postmarks, but in Canada and some other countries almost any fair or exhibition is privileged to advertise on all outgoing letters, provided it furnishes its own die. Advertising postmarks will be exhaustively treated in a future article.

A collection of postmarks may be mounted and preserved in the way most satisfactory to its owner, but there is really only one method which can be recommended to careful collectors. The "one best" way is to cut all specimens to an exact size and file them away in a card index file such as those used in business offices and libraries. By common consent postmark collectors have agreed that a definite and regular size for specimens be adopted, primarily to facilitate satisfactory exchange. It will be readily appreciated that the specimens in any one collection must all be of the same size, and so all specimens must be of the same size to permit exchange. The size determined upon was a rectangle two inches wide by four inches long, accommodating the postmark horizontally. This size is not entirely arbitrary, for it had been discovered that there were very few postmarks which could not be kept in their entirety on a piece of the cover cut to this size, and that it was generally a convenient size with which to work.

To make a collection look neat (not particularly for the eye of the visitor) it is positively necessary to have each specimen cut neatly and exactly to just the proper size, two by four inches, no smaller and no larger. Anyone who has seen a collection in which this requirement was not observed will certainly appreciate this advice. To get each postmark exactly to size is an impossible task when a pair of scissors or shears is used, making it advisable to employ a photographic cutting board. The postmarks may then be readily cut from the entire cover, making each edge smooth and perpendicular to its adjoining edges. In cutting from covers roughly (for stock, sale, or exchange) care should be taken to leave plenty of margin for trimming to proper size; it costs no more to cut half an inch larger all around, 2½x4½, and it certainly saves the ultimate owner considerable disappointment and several naughty words.

A few collectors mount their collections in albums of one sort or another, but such methods are generally far from satisfactory. In the first place, even with the loose leaf type of book, little semblance of alphabetical order can be maintained, for new varieties and dies for which no place has been left are constantly flowing in. It is very necessary for a postmark collection to be kept in strict alphabetical order, either as a whole or separately by classes, for if it were not, specimens would be duplicated or entirely omitted time and again. The card index system is open to the objection that specimens cannot be very conveniently exhibited to visitors, but this minor disadvantage is easily overbalanced by the features of its great flexibility and convenience of filing and preserving.

Postmarks (even old ones), existing as they do in such great quantities, are not of any great pecuniary value as a general rule, although there are certain rare items which frequently bring good prices. A lot of fairly good material cut to the proper size ought to bring anywhere from fifteen to twenty-five cents per hundred varieties. Selected lots run a little higher; large mixed lots bring from fifty to eighty cents per thousand specimens. Special items, such as advertisings, navals, old ones, etc., range in price from fifty cents per hundred to five cents apiece. These low prices obtain because the hobby is still young and the values are not generally appreciated, but as soon as postmarks grow in favor and importance the prices for good items will rise enough to make a postmark business profitable.

A great many collectors of postmarks are fortunately situated in positions where they are able to pick up thousands of specimens merely for the trouble of performing the actual labor. Thus they amass large collections and have quantities of desirable duplicates to exchange; a collection obtained in this way is a great pleasure indeed, and certainly a very economical one. Large mail order houses or manufacturing concerns which deal directly with their customers are always fertile sources for postmarks, providing, of course, that access can be obtained to the waste paper before it is disposed of. Permission to sort over the envelopes (which, by the way, are usually kept separate from the rest of the waste paper) may usually be easily obtained if application is made in the right way to the proper authority. The State Capitol has been found by several collectors to be a fine place for postmarks from local towns; large office buildings are also good places to visit.

The field of postmark collecting is exceedingly broad, many more times so than that of stamp collecting. Postmarks date back to before the time when stamps were first issued, and since their meagre beginning they have grown until practically every town of any size anywhere in the world now produces them in quantity every day. There are over sixty thousand post offices in this country alone, and many of these have as many as half a dozen different forms of cancellation in daily use. These facts should not, however, discourage collectors from "taking the plunge" for one can specialize in postmarks the same as in stamps. In fact specialism is advised; instead of starting the new collector out with a general collection, as in philately, we prefer to start him with the nucleus of a specialized collection. Then when he has acquired experience, he can branch out to suit himself. A beginner usually starts to collect the postmarks of his own state, branching out later to include those of adjoining or interesting states. Other collectors specialize in machines or in handstamps, or in advertising, Railway Post Office, Warship, Sea Office, aerial, or other special cancellations. There are many prominent philatelists who collect some of these classes of postmarks but who do not realize that they are postmark collectors; also perhaps they might not care to admit it, postmark collecting being such a childish and silly hobby.

This new hobby is now being fostered in America by the International Postmark Society, an alert organization of some fifty members, with offices in Denver. This Society, through its officers, directorate, and committees, has succeeded in bringing postmark collecting up to its present high standard, and if their progress during the coming season is as great as that during the past, the collecting fraternity will surely have something new to talk and write about.

Postmark collecting, then, to sum up its advantages, is a clean, refined, interesting, educational, scientific, recreational, and inexpensive hobby, deserving of the attention of every collector.

UNITED STATES.—A correspondent sends us a wrapper from Georgetown, Texas, with a 1c paid permit stamp. This was used in the building and endowment campaign of the Southwestern University, located in that town.

BAVARIA.—Louis G. Barrett sends us the following regarding his discovery of the two dies of the 1911, or "Prince Regent" issue of Bavaria:

In the 1911 issue of Bavaria there are two distinct dies of most of the values from 3pf to 80pf and probably for all of them although Mr. Barrett has not found the 3pf in Die B or the 60pf in Die A.

The two dies may be described as to their common features as follows:—

a. In the label at top containing the date "12 MÆRZ 1911", the "2" of "12" has a short base.
b. The middle stroke of the diphthong Æ is very short, sometimes almost missing.
c. The tail of the "9" of "1911" is very thin and is only curved slightly to the left.
d. All the 1's show but slight traces of serifs at top.
e. In the lower label the "N" of "BAYERN" has no serif at top of left stroke.
f. In the values from 30pf to 80pf inclusive the impression measures exactly 20x25 mm.

Die B.

a. The "2" of "12" in upper label has a longer base and top of the numeral is much heavier.
b. The entire word "MÆRZ" is much more heavily drawn, and the middle stroke of the diphthong Æ is as long as the top and bottom strokes.
c. The tail of the "9" in "1911" is heavy and curves further to the left, being more rounded than in Die A.
d. The 1's all have distinct and conspicuous serifs at top.
e. The "N" of "BAYERN" in lower label has a serif at top of left stroke.
f. The values from 30pf to 80pf inclusive are a ½ mm. smaller in both dimensions than in Die A: namely 19½x24½, a difference easily seen and very noticeable in blocks.

In addition to these general differences, there are others peculiar to certain values; thus in the 5pf the tail of the "5" is thin and points downwards in Die A, whereas in Die B it is heavier and points horizontally to the left.

On the 20pf, Die A, the base of the "2" of "20" is thin and terminates at the right end in an upturned serif; in Die B of this value, the base is nearly twice as heavy as in Die A, and there is practically no serif at right end.

On the 30pf, Die A, the top stroke of the "3" is 2 mm. long; in Die B, it is only 1½ mm. long.

On the 50pf Die A, the tail of the "5" stops below the vertical stroke of the numeral, while on Die B it extends much further to the left, reaching to within ½ mm. of left frame line.

Mr. Barrett adds: "These differences have nothing in common with the 'broken' and 'missing-letter' varieties of Die A, so much sought after by foreign collectors, and to the best of my knowledge the above information in regard to there being two distinct Dies has escaped previous mention, either here or abroad. In addition, there are many distinct shades for each value, some of which may be distinctive of certain printings; for instance in the 20pf, I have copies of Die A in a rather milky blue and also a rich Prussian blue, while the only copy of the value in Die B I possess, is in a gray-blue shade."

GREECE.—Whitfield King & Co. show us the 20l type of 1911, lithographed.

JAMAICA.—The Sterling Stamp Co. has shown us the 4d on white backed paper.

Adhesive.

4d carmine and black on yellow tinted.

JAPAN.—We are indebted to the Scott Stamp & Coin Co. for specimens of the new stamps on granite watermarked paper. The 5y and 10y values must be added to the list given last week.

LUXEMBURG.—The Sterling Stamp Co. has shown us the four values of the new Grand Duchess stamps, recently chronicled.

Even's Weekly quotes Die Post as predicting an early change in the 10c value as the color does not conform to the rules of the Universal Postal Union. The first printing of this value was 250,000 copies.

MALTA.—The Sterling Stamp Co. has shown us the 6d and 2sh values in the new set. The 6d is in the Grenada type and the 2sh in the Nyasaland type.

Adhesives.

6d lilac and mauve.
2sh blue and lilac on blue.

MEXICO.—The Sterling Stamp Co. has shown us the new series of Constitutionalist stamps printed in Denver. As these have been offered to dealers direct from Denver, and in many cases the advertising circular was accompanied by sample sets, they are no longer a rarity. The manner of their distribution to the trade raises a grave question as to their status. Even the Seebecks were not available until after the prescribed year had expired, and the stamps were no longer good for postage. It would be interesting to see the terms of the contract between the Constitutionalist agents and the printers. "Little question for today:" Do the profits of the sale of stamps benefit Carranza's war chest? As a matter of record, we list the stamps, though they have no standing in the International mails, except by courtesy, or rather by the tolerance of post officials on this side of the line.

Adhesives.

Constitutionalist Provisionals.
1c light blue.
2c yellow green.
3c orange.
5c carmine.
10c carmine.
15c violet.

Hermann Focke adds to the list of provisional overprints on the Federal stamps of Mexico for the benefit of the Constitutionalists: He sends "a pair of the 5c yellow of the Centenarian set of 1910, surcharged in violet in two lines 'Gobierno Consitucionalista' for use by the Constitutionalist authorities in Northern Mexico, or in this instance, of the City of Monterey. As may be expected, the maker of the rubber stamp used for this surcharge had his trouble with the word designating the name of the Government, and so he omitted the first 't' in Constitucionalista, making the surcharge read as above.

I understand that for each town occupied by the victorious bandits there is a different rubber-stamp surcharge, which in itself, I trust, will help to keep the stamps out of future catalogues, as happened with the many Ecuadorian surcharges of several years ago."

NICARAGUA.—Hermann Focke submits a cover bearing specimens of the new ½c, 1c and 25c, as previously chronicled. He writes: On the same cover you will note a pair of the provisional ½c de Córdoba in red on the 3ctvs brown, Liberty, with surcharges inverted which appeared (one sheet of 100 copies only) at the Managua Post Office in March. Now that no further Cordoba provisionals are likely to appear—at least, for some time—it might be worth the while to give a full list of the entire issue, as known:

Liberty Set, Surcharge in Black.

  a error VALB for VALE.
  b Vale or parts of the word omitted.
1c on 3c brown.
1c on 4c claret.
1c on 50c ultramarine.
1c on 5p black.
2c on 4c claret.
2c on 20c brick red.
2c on 25c yellow green & black.
2c on 35c brown & green.
  a error 9131 for 1913.
2c on 50c ultramarine.
2c on 2p dark green.
  a error VALB.
  b VALE in part or entirely omitted.
3c on 6c bistre.

Engine Set, Black Surcharge.

1c on 4c wine red.
1c on 6c chocolate brown.
1c on 20c indigo.
1c on 25c green & black.
2c on 1c yellow green.
2c on 25c green & black.
5c on 35c brown and black.
5c on 50c olive green.
6c on 1p yellow.
10c on 2p brown.
1p on 5p blue green.

Liberty Set.

½c on 3c carmine surcharge.
  a surcharge inverted.
½c on 15c violet, red surcharge.
½c on 15c carmine surcharge.

Engine Set.

½c on 15c on 35c brown & green, black surcharge.
1c on 15c on 35c brown & green, black surcharge.

1c on 25c.
1c on 35c.
  a error 0,10 instead of 0,01.
1c on 50c (this is an error, of which only 100 copies are known to exist).
1c on 1p.
2c on 20c.
2c on 50c.
2c on 2p.
5c on 5p.
5c on 1p surcharge in red, exists on one sheet of 100.

The three errors mentioned, of which only 100 copies exist, were all secured by one philatelist at Managua, who disposes of them at 200 times their face value, and should hardly be regarded as actually issued though they have been used for postage.

The 2c on 20c Oficial is no doubt very rare, and I have seen only two copies of the stamp.

The 2c on 25c green and black engine is also very rare, and is generally regarded an error, the stamp having been intended for surcharge of 1c de Cordoba.

Of the first issue only the 1c on 3c Liberty is scarce, the 2c on 20c Liberty, which at first did not often come on the mails, having become quite common later on, and still comes in strips of 5 on many letters requiring the double rate.

The error "VALE" missing in part or entirely has really been made to order, by letting a piece of paper or other obstacle "slip in" at the top of the first stamp of the sheet, where this error is found.

The error "0,10" for "0,01" on the 35c Oficial is very rare, as it was corrected immediately, and I have seen entire sheets, without it.

The three "medio (½) centavo" provisionals of the second issue are not at all common in used condition, as most of these were exported in sheets unused to dealers, in fact, were bought here fully six months before they came in on the mails. Mr. Focke abstains from minor varieties, such as defective and various-sized letters and numerals, as these belong into a specialized collection of Nicaragua.

is a book that should be in the hands of every philatelist. It describes and illustrates:

Regular Government Issues
U. S. Envelopes
Carrier Stamps
Confederate Provisionals

The illustrations are large and clear. There are no less than 15 for the 1861 issue. The cog wheel punch, triangles and capped "2's" are finely pictured. The manner in which the five dies of the 1853 envelope is treated is alone worth the price of subscription, while the collecting of Reays and Plymptons is made as easy as rolling off a log. We don't sell this book — WE GIVE IT AWAY!

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—The Hussman Stamp Co. informs us that the advertised account of Gearhart Frantz has been taken care of by Mr. Frantz and the same is withdrawn.

—The New York Times of Sunday, June 28, contained an article by L. A. Beebe with the title "No Valuable Stamps Go to Waste in New York."

—Henry Ades Fowler's first auction sale was an unqualified success and it introduced an important factor in the ranks of philatelic auctioneers. Mr. Fowler's second sale will be held under novel surroundings as will be seen when the details are announced later. Mr. Fowler's knowledge of stamps finds scope in the compilation of his catalogues. In passing, it is to be said that Mr. Fowler's new office is a handsomely appointed one.

—The convention of the United States Revenue Society will be held at Niagara Falls and W. G. Saxton, president, has appointed J. C. Hoffstetter of Eric, Pa., chairman of the Committee on Arrangements.

—The marriage of Miss Selma Regenstein to Edward M. Rosenthal, our old friend and boon companion, took place at the home of the bride's mother in Chicago, on the evening of July 2nd. For over twenty years, we have anxiously watched over our protege to see that he did not stray from the path of philatelic rectitude and now with a smile that covers an aching heart, we turn him over to worthier hands.

—Among the prizes in the philatelic grab-bag at the last meeting of the Chicago Philatelic Society was an advertising lead pencil very generously contributed by the WEEKLY. No wonder that our envious contemporaries despair at matching this stupendous stroke of enterprise.

—We have seen the Vera Cruz postmark, "Jun. 15, 9 A. M., 1914," with the U. S. flag cancellation covering the Mexican stamps paying the postage to this country. Thus does our post office make the enemy salute the flag.

—Frank E. Goodwin of St. Louis, was a recent visitor to Chicago where he rotated among the stamp folk in quest of the key to unlock certain mysteries concerning the stamps of our native land.

—Warren H. Colson called on the editor recently to taunt him over the fact that he (Mr. Colson) was about to make his fifth or sixth trip to Europe. We have to stay at home all summer to chase the elusive sub.

THE Y ¼ OF THE SPANISH WEST INDIES.

By L. Hanciau.

Let us now endeavour to solve that very arduous question of the meaning and value of the overprint "Y ¼."

That sixth vowel of the alphabet was termed in ancient times the Pythagorean letter, because the disciples of Pythagoras employed it to demonstrate the moral inclinations of human life. Infancy was indicated by the foot of the letter, the roads of virtue and vice by the two branches. It seems unnecessary for us to pursue our inquiries in either of these directions.

In algebra this letter represents an unknown quantity, but this unknown does not appear to be of any use to us. In the trade the letter "Y" announces fixed prices, but this again cannot be the meaning we want. Finally it has been suggested that graceful fancy turned the letter "I" into a "Y."

We feel that the Post Office Department must have had other reasons than these, but what were they? This problem has often been discussed, but never absolutely solved; it has even furnished a subject for numerous articles, sometimes of an entertaining nature. Let us see what they say.

One writer suggested that the letter "Y" was a conventional sign, meaning real, but we are in a position to affirm that it is nothing of the kind. All the official documents that we have consulted, and they are many, show with surprising unanimity that the letter "R" was the abbreviation for real: a fiscal stamp of the value of 2 pesos, for inland passports, which has been shown us, bears this letter "Y." (punctuated) above a Roman numeral "II." It is evident that the "Y" cannot signify real when it occurs upon a postage stamp and peso upon a fiscal. Therefore this theory will not do.

"Y," in Spanish, means "and." That, in our opinion, is the true interpretation that should have been given to this letter; for, as the stamp, which had the value of two reales, has not got the indication of value crossed out, the surcharge should be regarded as an addition to that value, which would thus become "2 reales and ¼." But the official documents that we have read entirely contradict this, and show that the value of the stamp was "¼ real," leaving our letter "Y" still unexplained.

According to others, the letter "Y" was the initial of "Ysabella." written thus because the name was spelt indifferently with "I" or "Y," and because by reverting to the ancient spelling the possibility was obviated of a letter "I" being mistaken for a figure "1," which would have made the surcharge appear to be "1¼," and so have caused a difficulty.

On re-examining the three or four hundred decrees that have passed through our hands, we have found some evidence, very little it is true, to show that the "Y" certainly was still employed in the place of the "I." The following are the only two instances that we have discovered:—

First, a letter from the Director-General of Posts, Narciso de Torre Marin, addressed to the Governor, dated September 26, 1855, and ending thus, as we have already noted (page 335, Vol. XIX)—"Al Excelentisimo Sr. Capitan General Subdelagado General del ramo de Correos de esta Ysla."

And this other, of the 13th November, 1855, signed—"José de la Concha," commencing "Excmo Sr.—He dado los ordenas oportunas a la yntendancia general."

The employment of the letter "Y" for "I," in 1855, is thus fully proved. But why should it have been printed on the stamps? Because it was to Queen Ysabella that Havana was indebted for the establishment of a local post, has been put forward as a reason. It seems a very ingenious idea; but did Queen Isabella ever know anything about a post having been inaugurated at Havana on the occasion of her birthday? It is at least permissible to doubt it. To begin with, the initiative was due to the Director-General of Posts, who laid his proposal before the Governor on the 19th of April, 1855, and owing to the indifference of the said Governor, the following November arrived before anything was done. It is quite possible that the opportunity may have been taken, when so favourable an occasion arose, to give the credit of the innovation to their much-loved Queen; but we have an idea, though we may be mistaken, that the establishment of Posts was the last thing that Her Majesty was troubling about.

We do not believe that it ever entered the head of the Director-General of Posts to put the initial of "Isabella" on the stamps for the local post. If it were the case, we might also assign the same origin to the initial printed on the Fiscal stamp for passports, which we referred to above, and this would place Her Majesty in a singular position; it would commemorate the fact that the Queen, in her infinite wisdom, had been graciously pleased to consent to the imposition of a new tax upon her faithful Cubans, already crippled and overwhelmed with benefits of the same nature!

Another version would have it that the "Y" should be translated as "Ynterino," that is interim or provisional. But if that were so, the provisional nature of the stamp might have been far more plainly indicated by the letter "P," which would have been preferable in every way to an incomprehensible "Y." But this word "provisional," to what did it apply? To the stamp? It was in use from 1855 to 1862, and therefore was not provisional at all. Was it the rate that was thus termed? This was so little "provisional" that it remained the same down to 1898, if we are rightly informed.

It would be equally reasonable to suggest that the "Y" stood for "Ydeal," in reference to the "very low rate" of postage, mentioned in the Postal Notice of the 15th November, 1855.

What we regard as a more serious interpretation of the letter "Y" is that which makes it the initial of "Ynterior," although that interpretation will not stand close examination:—

Firstly, it is a rule that an initial should be punctuated;

Secondly, without punctuation the letter "y" means "and";

Thirdly, admitting the ancient spelling, we would ask whether the word "ynterior" applies to the town or to the island;

Fourthly, "y" might stand for "ysla" quite as well as for "ynterior," and as the rates were not the same, it seems to us that the authorities would not have attempted to create confusion between them;

Fifthly, why should the ancient spelling have been adopted for use upon the stamps, and never in the official documents, even in those in which the surcharge "Y ¼" was mentioned? Surely that was, if ever, the time to write "ynterior";

Sixthly, if it was absolutely necessary to indicate to the public the use to be made of the ¼ real stamp by means of the letter "Y," we cannot understand why the official documents say nothing about it, and why this overprinting with the letter was not extended to other values;

Seventhly, instead of a letter "Y," would it not have been simpler to make use of the letters "IN," which could not have raised any question?

All things considered, we do not believe that this famous letter "Y" was of any significance at all, and that it was placed there without any object, or any meaning; and we are completely in agreement with the late Sr. Maureno when he wrote to Le Timbre-Poste, on the 25th October, 1876, as follows:—

"Nothing was published about the surcharge upon the stamps, that is to say about the 'Y ¼.' It was a private step taken by the Government, which did not concern the public, except in so far as the stamps were employed for the value indicated of ¼ real fuerte.

"I was at Havana during that period (May, 1855, to April, 1862); I saw those stamps used and I used them myself. I can therefore say like St. Thomas, 'I have seen and touched.'

"They were sold at the rate of four for one real fuerte; they only served for the franking of local correspondence in Havana.

"Those of 1857 were still in use when I left the island in April, 1862."

Other correspondents from Cuba, whom we have questioned, know no more than Sr. Maureno, and could only give us their personal opinion on the subject, which was to the effect that, at the time of the use of those stamps no one troubled about the letter "Y" and no one knows now what it meant.

We have only now to relate what we have learned from fresh research. A lucky chance has told us all that there is to be told; mere chance, which so often guides us in the right direction, attracted our attention to the manner in which the date was given on certain decrees. After the word "Havana" and before the name of the month was inserted a "y." For what reason we cannot say, as we have never seen this use of the letter in any of the three or four hundred decrees of Spain that we have examined, although written, of course, in the same language. Having communicated what we had discovered to various persons, natives of Spain or others to whom the language is familiar, they were only able to confirm the opinion that we had formed, namely that the use of this letter in certain cases is entirely local, conventional, and official, as we shall see by the examples quoted below; and finally, that in the case in question this letter "Y" would have, we are told, no signification in Spanish. It was, however, pointed out to us that the letter "y" might well be in these instances the abbreviation of the word "ynterior," indicating that the decree was dated in the interior or town of Havana. But unfortunately this mysterious letter "y" is always in small type in these decrees, and is never punctuated as an abbreviation should always be. We set aside for the moment these discrepancies, which are always to be noted when the "y" is employed, and it seems to us most improbable that any one could or would have dated the decrees at "Havana, town," the seat of government having never been anywhere else than at Havana itself, never in the country or in any of the suburbs, each of which had a name of its own. For this very reason all the decrees are dated at Havana, which could admit of no question as to their place of origin. This suggestion, therefore, seems to us altogether inadmissible.

Returning to our discovery. This is how the Director-General, Narciso de Torre Marin, dates his decree of the 15th November, 1855:—

"Habana y Noviembre 15 de 1855."

Other similar officials did the same:—

"Habana y Enero 21 de 1856," signed "Concha,"

"Habana y Setiembre 19 de 1858," signed "Carlos Blake."

"Habana y Febrero 15 de 1887," signed "Marques de Gaviria."

We could give plenty of other examples, but these show plainly enough, by the various dates and signatures, that there was a consistent use of this letter. But what did it mean? Nothing, in our opinion, for there was no object in it, and it is always as inexplicable as upon the stamps. It was a fancy, of apparently a purely Cuban origin.

We therefore feel justified in closing this discussion, and troubling ourselves no more about this mysterious letter, which has so greatly puzzled and which perhaps will continue to puzzle everybody; and when used in positions in which it has no apparent meaning, we can only say "Why?" — Gibbons Monthly Journal.

A REQUEST TO MY CORRESPONDENTS.

I am no longer able to resist "the call of the wild" and so accordingly, I have greased up my reel, caught some worms, and am hot on the trail of the festive bass. By the time this request meets your eyes, I will be in the heart of the North Woods tempting the finny tribe to approach my hook. Also, the almanac promises some fine moon-light evenings, so I will be far too busy to tend to any stamp business.

Before leaving the city, I will attend to all private replies received to July 1st, but will be obliged to let all replies to be answered through this paper await my return. I will attend to these, and matters received during my absence, in time for the issue of August 1st.

When I tell you that I intend to devote the rainy days to studying up information to hand you, I think you will excuse my temporary absence from my "job." I hope so many of your readers will write while I am away that it will take me three days to catch up.

Bill Bloss.

THE POSTAGE STAMPS OF SAXONY.

By BERTRAM W. H. POOLE.

THE SECOND ISSUE.

Whilst the first Saxon stamp had been designed and issued without much care or fuss, many and deep were the deliberations before the permanent issue was decided upon. Various methods of production were examined and considered; wood engraving was objected to, and line engraving was considered too expensive. Numerous essays were submitted by Hirschfeld and others and those of Hirschfeld met with approval. Before, however, he received the order the firm of C. C. Meinhold and Sons, of Dresden, a firm well known for the production of engravings by the glyphographic process, made a proposal which was accepted by the authorities. Hirschfeld's design for the neu-groschen values was, therefore, handed to the Meinholds and the only order Hirschfeld received was that for printing the 3 pfennige stamps. The 3pf value was again intended for printed matter but it now represented the rate within the entire German-Austrian Postal Union—this was the main reason for the change of design for this denomination. The ½ neugroschen was intended for local letters; the 1ngr for letters sent less than 10 miles within the Postal Union; the 2ngr for letters between 10 and 20 miles; and the 3ngr for letters beyond 20 miles.

The design for the 3 pfennige shows the Arms of Saxony on a shield surmounted by a crown within an oval of solid color. On a scroll at top is "SACHSEN" and on a similar scroll at base is "Drei Pfennige." Numerals of value, within small circles, are shown at the sides and the spaces are filled with scroll ornamentation. The whole is enclosed within a narrow rectangular frame. This stamp was printed in sheets of 120, the plate being composed of casts taken in type-metal from the original die. The stamps were placed so closely together that specimens with good margins are very difficult to obtain. The neugroschen values are all alike in design and show a profile portrait of King Frederic Augustus II, with head to right, on a solid colored ground within an oval. The inscriptions are similar to those of the 3pf except that the lower one is "Neu-Grosch.", separated by the numeral of value. Numerals are also placed at the sides and all four values were printed in sheets of 120. The early supplies of all values were delivered by the printers in strips of ten for some reason or other. Usually the sheets were sub-divided horizontally, but in some cases the strips were cut vertically.

The 3 pfennige exists in two distinct shades—blue or dark green and yellow green. The colors of the papers for the various neu-groschen values also show some variation and in dealing with this matter I cannot do better than quote from an excellent article in the Philatelic Journal of Great Britain, written by Mr. D. C. Gary in December, 1908:—

The ½ neu-groschen may be found on paper varying from almost white to bluish grey, the bluish shades being the scarcer. The paper of the 1 neu-groschen is sometimes deep and sometimes quite pale rose; that of the 3 neu-groschen varies from very deep to quite pale yellow; while the 2 neu-groschen appears printed on pale blue and very dark blue paper. Some of the shades of the ½, 1, and 3 neu-groschen may be due to fading, although, considering the large numbers of printings which took place a variation in the colour of the papers used is not surprising. The change of the 2 neu-groschen from pale to very dark blue, however, was certainly not accidental, but was due to definite instructions given to the printers by the postal authorities in 1852.

The reason for this order was that a postmaster had complained to the head office that if the 2 neu-groschen stamps (printed in pale blue) were much exposed to the light they faded into approximately the color of the ½ neu-groschen. By the adoption of the dark blue paper any mistakes arising from such a cause were entirely obviated. These stamps were all put on sale on 29th July, and were to frank letters from 1st August, 1851. The quantities printed of each value of this set were as follows:—

groschen, 5,100,000; 1 neu-groschen, 5,700,000; 2 neu-groschen, light blue, 700,000; 2 neu-groschen dark blue, 1,500,000; and 3 neu-groschen, 2,350,000. There were twenty-four printings of the 3 pfennige; seventeen of the ½ and 1 neu-groschen, and sixteen of the 2 and 3 neu-groschen.

By far the rarest stamp of Saxony is, of course, the ½ neu-groschen printed in error on the pale blue paper of the 2 neu-groschen. The existence of this error seems to have been quite unknown until Dr. Kloss published his "History of the Stamps of the Kingdom of Saxony" in 1883 or 1884. According to Dr. Kloss "On August 22nd, 1851, the Post-office at Leipzig informed the G. P. O. at Dresden, that they had found a quantity of stamps among the 2ngr blue which had, instead of '2 Neugroschen,' the inscription '½ neugroschen' although printed in the correct color of the 2ngr stamps, viz., blue. On referring to the printers' statement it was found that only 120 stamps were printed in this color by mistake, 63 of these were sold over the counter before the mistake was found out, the remaining 57 were returned to the G. P. O. at Dresden." There is little doubt that the 63 stamps which were sold to the public, were sold as 2ngr stamps, whose color they bore, and they were used as such.

It appears the Post-office sold the errors singly and in strips of ten and when they discovered the mistake the purchasers were written to and asked to return the stamps as any letters franked with them might possibly be treated as unpaid by other offices. When Dr. Kloss made his notes public the hunt for the errors began and some of the firms written to by the Leipzig post-office in 1851 were hunted out. This resulted in the discovery of one of the letters written by the Post-office with an unused strip of ten of the errors pinned to it. Due to the forgetfulness of a clerk this letter was never returned to the postal authorities! Herr Blauhuth, of Leipzig, secured this strip, and for ten years these were the only copies known. The owner first sold a pair, inlcuding the one spoiled by the pin-holes, for $37.50, while his last copy realised $300. The 57 errors which were returned to Dresden should have been destroyed but, in 1891, 24 of the stamps were found in an envelope pinned to an old document relating to the former postal accounts in the Department of Finance, Dresden. What became of the other 33 is a mystery which will probably never be solved—most likely they were destroyed as was originally intended. These errors were included in a set of so-called "essays" put on the market by the Saxon Government at 75c each. The history of the error had been forgotten by the officials but not by collectors and consequently the sets sold like the proverbial hot cakes. Most of these 24 errors were single copies but in the lot was one strip of five and one block of four, the latter eventually passing into the famous Mann collection. But though this error is one of the great rarities unused it is even scarcer used. There is a pair in the Tapling collection, another pair in a German collection, and a few single copies are known.

THE THIRD ISSUE.

The death of King Frederic Augustus II on August 9th, 1854, and accession of his brother John, made a change in the portrait stamps necessary. As the 3 pfennige value bore the Arms of the kingdom it was not deemed necessary to make any change in these and they continued to be printed by Hirschfeld. The other values of ½, 1, 2 and 3 neu-groschen were manufactured by Meinhold and Sons. Little alteration was made in the framework but in the centre the portrait of King John superseded that of his predecessor. The profile is shown to the left instead of to the right as on the 1851 stamps. The new stamps were all ready by the end of 1854 but they were not placed on sale until about August, 1855. The stamps were printed in black on colored papers as before, but a change was made in the size of the plates which now consisted of 100 instead of 120 subjects. In 1856, 5 and 10 neu-groschen stamps were added to the set as it was found desirable to have some higher values for use on letters sent beyond the confines of the German-Austrian Postal Union. These two stamps were printed in color on white paper like the 3pf denomination. More than one plate was used for some of the values and some of these show variations in the size and shape of the numerals in the small ovals at the sides. These differences are particularly noticeable in the ½ and 1 neu-groschen. How many plates were used altogether is not known but when Messrs. Meinhold and Sons lost the printing contract in 1863 they sent to the Dresden Post-office the original dies of the six values, together with four reliefs and five printing plates of the ½ngr, two reliefs and five printing plates of the 1ngr, two reliefs and three printing plates of each of the 2ngr and 5ngr, and one relief and two printing plates of the 10ngr. The plates of the 3ngr do not appear to have been sent at that time and no official record of their receipt at a later date has been found.

Shades are numerous and again I cannot do better than quote Mr. Gray on this subject, viz:—

All the stamps of this set vary considerably in shade, as is only to be expected in the case of a long-lived series. The following are the principal variations:—

½ neu-groschen, black on pearl grey, grey, lilac grey, jet-black on grey.
1 neu-gr, deep rose, rose, pale rose.
2 " blue, deep blue, greenish blue.
3 " deep yellow, yellow, pale yellow.
5 " pale red, russet brown, red brown, vermilion.
10 " blue, deep blue.

Some of the shades of the ½ neu-groschen are much scarcer than others; the greenish blue shade of the 2 neu-groschen is scarce used, though common unused, and the russet brown 5 neu-groschen is very scarce. Apparently this color was used by mistake, and though some of the stamps printed in this shade were issued, the printer was compelled to supply others instead, printed in the proper color, and the balance of the russet-brown stamps were destroyed by the postal authorities. (There were 100,000 of these errors, of which 62,200 were sold according to Mr. Westoby though, as will be seen below, Mr. Gray puts the number at 4,000 more).

The 5 neu-groschen is found on thick and on thin paper and is also known double printed (an uncatalogued variety). For the first printing of the 10 neu-groschen stamps thinner paper was used than for the two later printings. The quantities printed of these stamps were as follows:—

½	neu-groschen,		17,705,000
2	"	"	5,980,000
3	"	"	7,880,000
5	"	" (vermilion and pale red),	200,000
5	"	" russet brown,	66,200
5	"	" (red brown),	823,800
10	"	"	250,000

There were twenty-four printings of the ½, 1, 2 and 3 neu-groschen stamps, one of the russet brown 5 neu-groschen and three of the 10 neu-groschen. The number of printings of the other shades of the 5 neu-groschen seems not to be ascertainable.

THE FOURTH ISSUE.

In March, 1861, the Prussian postal administration drew the attention of the other members of the German-Austrian Postal Union to the confusion which existed owing to the lack of uniformity in the colors adopted for stamps of corresponding values in the various States. It was suggested that all stamps of similar value, whether that value was expressed in schilling, grote, groschen or kreuzer, should be printed in the same color. These proposals met with general approval, as we have already shown in considering the stamps of other States, and Saxony began preparations for a new issue. It had been decided to change the color of the 3ngr and 5ngr stamps to black on brown and black on yellow respectively, when the appearance of the new Prussian stamps caused Saxony to reconsider its plans. The new Prussian stamps, conforming to the new color scheme, were all printed in color on white paper and the Saxon postal authorities, upon investigating the matter, decided to adopt the same principle and retire the colored papers in favor of stamps printed in color on white. Designs for the new series were invited from engravers but only four firms competed—Hirschfeld, Meinhold and Sons, and Blockman and Son, of Dresden, and Giesecke and Devrient of Leipzig. The contract was awarded to the last named firm and the taille-douce process was abandoned for the cheaper method of typography. The design consisted of the Arms of Saxony in colorless embossing within an upright oval engine-turned band with a scalloped outer edge. On the upper part of the band the name "SACHSEN" is shown, on the lower portion is the denomination and in the sides and below the Arms are oval discs containing the numerals of value. These are in color on a plain ground at the sides and in white on a ground of solid color below the Arms. The 3 pfennige and ½ neu-groschen values differ from the others in being enclosed within a rectangular frame in which the numerals of value are again shown in each of the spandrels.

Percival Parrish, President. P. M. Wolsieffer, Gen'l Manager.
1204 CHESTNUT STREET PHILADELPHIA, PA.

The advent of the new issue was notified by a circular issued from Leipzig on June 19th, 1863, and the stamps were placed on sale on July 1st following. The denominations were the same as before except that the 10 neu-groschen was omitted, owing to the small use made of that value. The stamps were printed in sheets of 100 and perforation was introduced for the first time, the gauge being 13. There are pronounced shades of all values and though Scott gives but two for each denomination (three for the 5ngr). Gibbons lists two for the 3 pfennige, three each for the ½, 1, 2, and 3 neu-groschen, and five for the 5 neu-groschen. Specialists extend the list still further, especially in the case of the two lowest values.

In 1867 complaints were made of the varying colors of the 5 neu-groschen, and the contractors printed some in a reddish lilac shade in which there would be fewer variations. These stamps were objected to, however, as resembling the 1ngr too closely and they were not put on sale. Finally a greyish shade of lilac was adopted. Mr. D. C. Gray tells us that the quantities printed and number of printings were as follows:—"There were fifteen printings of the 5 neu-groschen, sixteen of the 2 neu-groschen, and seventeen of each of the remaining values. The quantities printed of these stamps were as follows:—3 pfennige, 10,850,000; ½ neu-groschen, 17,100,000; 1 neu-groschen, 15,175,000; 2 neu-groschen, 4,870,000; 3 neu-groschen, 5,870,000; 5 neu-groschen, 950,000; 5 neu-groschen (grey, and grey-lilac shades), 250,000."

The 1 neu-groschen is known imperforate vertically, and the 3pf, ½, 1 and 2 neu-groschen are known entirely imperforate.

The post office of Saxony was included in the post office system of the North German Confederation on January 1st, 1868, and the distinctive stamps were consequently withdrawn.

REMAINDERS.

At the time Saxony joined the North German Confederation there were large remainders of some of the values of the 1863 issues and smaller lots of all values of 1856 and the 3pf of 1851. The Government made no attempt to dispose of these in one parcel, as was done by other German States, but offered the earlier issues at so much per stamp and the 1863 issue at a few marks per 500 stamps. No information seems to have been published as to the numbers available but as late as 1890 all but the 10ngr were obtainable at very low figures, though the 10ngr was quoted at 15 marks. In 1899 the prices were advanced and the stamps were then offered as follows:—

3pf of 1851, 15 marks
1ngr of 1856, 1 "
2ngr of 1856, 2 "
5ngr of 1856, 10 "

None of the ½ and 10 neu-groschen were then available and the only value of the 1863 series offered was the ½ngr which was quoted at 6 marks per 500 stamps.

CLEAN BILL OF HEALTH.

TO THE EDITOR:—

I note in your issue for June 27th a paragraph signed by Mr. Aug. Dietz as follows: "Upon inquiry in the matter am advised by my correspondent in Sonora, that the announced Transitorio Constitutionalista stamps surcharged 'Victoria de la Torreon' and date are of a private, speculative origin, and never authorized by either the Constitutionalist Government or the postal authorities at the place."

Now, sir, I think before publication of such a "positive" statement a little reliable evidence should be adduced. I believe I am the only dealer who has offered these provisionals in the WEEKLY and I strongly protest against the absolutely ridiculous statements made by Mr. Dietz. It is purely and simply a case of "sour grapes" because Mr. Dietz and his "well-informed" correspondent were not fortunate enough to obtain any of the provisionals.

To start with the stamps were never issued at Torreon and they were assuredly issued by the postmaster with the sanction and authorization of the chief of the Constitutionalists at Juarez. Carranza went through this town on April 4th, two days after his big victory at Torreon, and the day was not only observed as a fête day but these special stamps were issued to commemorate the victory. But for the fact that an American collector happened to call at the Juarez post office that day the provisionals might never have been heard of. Most of those sold were used by Mexicans on letters and cards sent to other parts of Sonora and these will probably never turn up.

The value of Mr. Dietz's information may be judged by a statement he made to me in a recent letter regarding the "G. C. M" stamps viz:—"Have you any of the Federal Mexican stamps overprinted with a script monogram G. C. M —captured by Villa's forces at Torreon?"

Considering there have been and probably still are large supplies of the Federal stamps in all the Constitutionalist post-offices the use of the overprinted ones is hardly a "capture". The rebels have had to use Federal stamps all along for foreign mail and those now surcharged are simply a temporary issue owing to a shortage of the low values of the regular rebel set in certain towns. I have not yet seen those with the Torreon cancellation and find none have been seen at Juarez and other nearby places yet.

The "CUBS" have come and gone, and Heinne Z—only got one hit, and that was in the ribs by a pitched ball, and that is how he got on first where he stayed. Heinne said he would rather stay on first than steal second, as stealing is a crime in Iowa. I offer some stamps that are cheaper to buy than steal.

—G. F. Rapkin, London, has informed us that he enjoyed his visit to the United States; and we are sure that we can say that he made many friends here. Mr. Rapkin says that William Brown, of Salisbury, England, has bought back his business which he disposed of some time ago and is still in the ranks of dealers.

—A number of inquiries have been received asking as to the whereabouts of Parnassus Penflip, et al. We do not know but if this paragraph should meet their eyes we ask that they address us at once, if they would learn of something greatly to their advantage.

—Hugh C. Barr of Buffalo is not contemplating a trip to Europe just at present; he is spending his vacation arranging for the entertainment of the delegates to the Niagara Falls convention. The doctor will order the aforesaid trip after it is all over, no doubt.

—The convention of the Southern Philatelic Association will be held at Indianapolis on September 8th, 1914. We predict a pleasant time for all who go to hear our old friend, C. W. Kissinger preside, ably abetted by the energetic Mr. Webb.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from Wm. L. Hamilton, Jr.; Edw. J. Meehan.

EDITORIAL.

Ninety And Seven—We have received a letter that has made a profound impression on us and we know that readers will be greatly interested in the following communication from Dr. Jesse C. Green of West Chester, Pennsylvania, dated July 4th, 1914: "Respected Friend:—I have read with much interest the record of E. P. Morehouse and think it quite remarkable for such a young man. When I was just about his age I was in full dental practice, held treasurerships and other official positions and had been one of the longest in service as a government observer; and started to ride a bicycle. Most of these positions I have held up to this year, including the saddle of the bicycle. I expect to enter my ninety-eighth year just before next Christmas. I have been a collector approximately for forty years but I have not been a subscriber to the WEEKLY so long as that, of course. You might call E. P. Morehouse one of your young patrons and then send the stamp to me as the elderly collector. I enclose an article from the Philadelphia Ledger of March 16, 1914. Very truly thine, Jesse C. Green." An article that appeared in the Public Ledger of March 16, 1914, has the headings: "Dr. Green Active in His 97th Year.—West Chester's 'Grand Old Man,' Still Rides Bicycle and Does Dental Work after Many Busy Years." A picture of Dr. Green accompanies the text. We learn that Dr. Green was born in West Chester County, Pa., December 13th, 1817, one of his paternal ancestors having emigrated to America from England in 1686 and settled in Delaware County, Pa. In 1842, Doctor Green "then a teacher in the schools of Chester County (and one of the first under the common school law of the state), started to study dentistry." Doctor Green is interested not only in stamps but also coins and books. He has a penchant for almanacs and possesses some that are dated so early as 1505; and from 1740 to the present he has an unbroken line. Interested in astronomy, Dr. Green in 1838 began to take observations of the weather and in 1855, he became an observer for the Smithsonian Institute; and he still makes three observations of the weather daily. For sixty-six years, Doctor Green has been an active member of the First West Chester Fire Company and recently, he was nominated for his 67th term as treasurer of the company. At the age of seventy-nine years, Doctor Green learned to ride a bicycle and "already has worn out two bicycles." The Public Ledger closes its account: "He still enjoys living and his physical condition and mental strength to-day are such that he expects several more years of activity. No one has ever heard him use a harsh word. His nature is kindly in the extreme and his pleasant and winsome smile is always in evidence." Dr. Green is an inspiration to us as we contemplate the record of his wonderful career, so full of beneficient activities, we are animated by a spirit of veneration. Philately is proud to claim Doctor Green as a friend.

The Torreon Stamps—The note in the News Gleanings of the issue of June 27th, attacking the philatelic validity of the Torreon celebration stamps issued by the Mexican constitutionalists has occasioned the well-known "storm of protest." Our columns elsewhere bear testimony to the alacrity and emphasis with which the derogation has been refuted. Mr. A. W. Foster, El Paso, Texas, was so kind as to send us the following official notice: "We the undersigned do solemnly swear that the postage stamps surcharged 'Victoria de Torreón 2 Abril 1914' and sold by this post office on April 4th was by agreement of the Minister of Communications of the Constitutionalist Gobernment, Senor Ingeniero Ignacio Bonillas and the Post Office Inspector in the State of Chihuahua of the same Gobernment, Senor Eusebio Garcia Martinez who was in this city at that time. (Signed) Pauciano Cota, Postmaster, C. Juárez, July 2nd, 1914. Humberto Vargas, First Official, (Post Master Assistant)." The seal of the Administration de Correos, Cuidad Juárez, Chih., is impressed on this document, which we have copied from the original. Mr. Foster says that this letter from the Postmaster of Juarez speaks for itself. Judging from the fact that Carranza and many members of his staff were in Juarez at the time, it would have been a serious undertaking for the postmaster to have surcharged the stamps without authorization; and we believe finally that the postmaster and his clerk would not have attached their names to the document if their position was not a sound one.

And So Forth—In another column, Mr. Linn tells how it happened in all probability that an erroneous report, in effect, reached Mr. Dietz' ears; and if the explanation is a proper one, the circumstances were such that our correspondent had a basis for his report. Of course, it would be highly desirable if we were in a position to verify every item that was published but we are not; and so it is our policy to present information when it is submitted in good faith, as we believe, by those who seem to be in a position to speak with some authority. Mistakes do occur but usually there is some explanation to show that they were natural ones; and full correction is made so soon as possible.

Society Chat—Chicago Branch, Number One, American Philatelic Society, has endorsed San Francisco, as the place of the 1915 convention; and also, the directors for the ensuing year as nominated by the Detroit Branch. P. M. Wolsieffer was recommended to the board of directors for reappointment as Sales Superintendent. We understand that San Francisco will have a representative at the Niagara convention who will present an engrossed invitation on behalf of his city. So far as we have heard, no other city has formally entered the lists against San Francisco. To those who have informed us that H. G. Smith, one of the San Francisco nominees for Vice-President is no longer a member of the society, it is to be said that Mr. Smith rejoined the society some time ago and in consequence is eligible for office.

It Exists—Up to 1905, the catalogue listed the five-cent red brown, 1862, with a sub-variety, No. 75a, in brick red, at fifteen dollars used. This brick red was a striking stamp; and though it was seen only occasionally, it always made an impression. We believe that the stamp was displaced from the catalogue on the score that the red brown sometimes shaded into the brick red. We have just seen a cover bearing two fine copies of the 1862 brick red, 1862, in full color, bearing the New York postmark, Nov. 8, 1862, the letter having been addressed to Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Good—The summer season has no terrors for the ardent philatelists of Schenectady, New York, and if they organize the Schenectady Stamp Society, we are sure the lilting, alliterative name will be on many a collector's tongue before long. The following call has been issued: A meeting for the organization of a Stamp Collectors' Club in Schenectady will be held Tuesday evening, July 21st, 8 P. M., at the residence of W. B. Gibson, 404 Brandywine Avenue, Schenectady, New York. All collectors in the vicinity of Albany, Troy and Schenectady are respectfully invited to attend. The organizers are Paul W. Reidell, Wm. B. Gibson and H. R. Stiles, who will be pleased to answer all inquiries directed to them.

Severe Loss—Elsewhere is a newspaper account of the disastrous fire that destroyed Cortright Hall, near St. Louis, the home of Mr. C. H. Mekeel. The destruction of the mansion was complete and we fear that many philatelic effects were lost in the flames. Mr. Mekeel has our sympathy on his misfortune and we trust that in good time he will rally from the effects of the visitation.

The 1914-15 catalogues will have many sensational advances. British colonials in particular have been priced at figures nearer their value.

I can submit some very fine selections of these stamps including many of the high values. For months I have urged the purchase of the stamps of Papua and those who have taken my advice will be more than pleased when they see the new quotations. I still recommend their purchase and offer a very fine assortment in superb condition. Many fine blocks. Also varieties of watermark, paper and perforation. O. S. varieties in blocks and single.

THEN AGAIN.

Dear Mr. Severn:—

I don't just happen to be able to place "Bill Bloss" from his nom du guerre, but I'm pretty sure he has a long head and is suffering from an aggravated attack of evanescent correspondents and uncollectible accounts. Anyhow his text is a good one, only someone ought to come out in the open and say what a "dealer" is, and why it should be a society or association of "dealers" to the exclusion of others. Bill didn't say it should be, but let's start with this.

Suppose Bill says a "dealer" is a guy that makes his bread dealing in stamps. Well and good; but is he? I can name a dozen amateurs whose turnover, purchases and sales yearly show a deal more capital than dozens of "dealers," and who are just as interested in catching crooks, and collecting from forgetful creditors. The B. P. S. has a half dozen of this stamp, fully that. Then there are the professionals that have no place of business beyond the hat hook in the hall. There are some few of them, and they are the ones that save the lives of a lot of us when it comes to the ability to deliver the goods, and combine the delivery with a fair price and quality.

Every man's mail will find him, you say? Truly, but while the postman may get the mail to some "dealers" you would have a hard time finding them if you're making collections on foot.

Again is Bill or any other guy capable or able to differentiate between the real "dealer" and the beginner that is sending out his first penny approvals? The "ads" all look alike in the WEEKLY. I believe Bill is all right in his mind, but off in his deductions. Other lines found long ago that the "Association" as a collecting bureau and information source did not work out to the end it ought to. It resulted in the big fellow getting the service and the little fellow paying most of the bills, because volume of demand assured service to correspond and the little fellow's single letter gets lost in the shuffle. Some such "Associations" have turned out to be a bully good job for the fellow that started the thing, or the man that pulled the Secretarial position, and all the other members have annually "coughed" up to keep the thing alive, with no other great results.

Mind, I don't say Bill is hunting a job.

Then these things work out other ways, even if the Interstate Commerce Commission don't nail them for infractions of law.

The big fellows want a black list, and have it. If they want a thing they get it. The black list works two ways, and if a man is sharp he can protect himself and keep custom by telling his fellow members a man is N. G. and continuing to sell him on the quiet. (This has been done). The big user of the bureau wants a detailed report of the situation of some guy in Squaw Holler, N. M. and he whines about it till someone goes in person, and while the report is on the way, the titman of the litter asks for a report on some "reglar" in N. Y. C. and gets one that is of the vintage of '73 and about as valuable as a handful of Seebecks.

It works out bully. Moreover the big fellow sort of sees to it that the Secretary and his minions take care of him, and if they don't, the annual gets packed and the big ones hire a man that can see holes in a ladder.

No, Mr. Severn, Bill is wrong. What the stamp trade wants is a domestic agency. He quotes Trowles, Toronto, service. Good. Get Trowles to start a branch or branches in the States. Almost every trading branch of business has an agency. The Typo for the printers, the Iron & Steel Board of Trade for the hardware men, and so on through to the end where loom up Bradstreet's and Dun's, to say nothing of their corresponding branches abroad. Let the stamp trade assure some wide-awake agency that they mean business, and there will be little difficulty in getting a reliable collection service, that will answer every call.

As for the foreshadowed milennium as regards prices and the accumulation of news &c, it sounds too good to be true. It is. "In my saner moments," as friend wife says, I am a member of the largest organization in the country, whose end and aim is to help its members to similar information. Does it do it? No, not so that it is noticeable. Why? Well it's a long story, but the real reason is that it is too much work for the overpaid and underworked officials, and they devote their job to the much more satisfactory work of keeping the majority of proxies and the majority of the directors conned into believing that they are the only ones that can run the thing.

Tell Bill that if he will show me a Board of Trade, or a Chamber of Horrors, (excuse me, Commerce) or a Manufacturers' Association, or a trade association of any kind that really works, I'll buy him a new hat. A "reglar" one.

It is "agin" nature. To do real business, a concern must be a business one, and its help (I wrote HELP) must hold their job by the amount of goods they really deliver, and not by the favoritism of a clique, or by fooling a majority of the smaller members. It must be free from graft, free from self interest in the line it reports on, free from the ownership of the trade interested. A dealer should be a subscriber only, and all should be treated alike. It can't be done unless these things are included in the scheme.

And it ought not to try to publish a catalog. That is the business of the people that have something to sell. What good is it anyhow? Every dealer is looking for the one that quotes the highest prices, and he uses it in his own way.

And it's up to you and me, Bill, to keep our eyes open and make the killing at the "psychological" moment. Even if your association was in a real thing do you suppose it could prevent the wise ones from making a "clean-up" about once in so often? Nix. The clean-ups would come oftener, and the list would be reduced from several, to the ones in the governing ring.

Remember, Bill, a "gentlemen's agreement" always turns out to have some guy in the bunch that can't be called a "gentleman," no matter how you write it, and he will be the one to profit.

"BUYER."

LET US ALL GO.

MANSION BURNED.

Cortright Hall, Home of C. H. Mekeel on Natural Bridge Road, a Show Place.

Cortright Hall, the home of Charles H. Mekeel on Natural Bridge road, four miles west of Suburban Garden, St. Louis County, was destroyed by fire at 7 o'clock last night, while Mekeel and his son, Charles, Jr., watched the flames, powerless to fight them because of lack of water supply. The loss is $35,000.

The home contained twenty-three rooms. It was built of brick and was three stories high, and the peculiar style of architecture made it one of the show places of St. Louis County. It was built about nine years ago, and there was little insurance.

Yesterday afternoon Mekeel's son burned rubbish in the furnace. He then went out on the lawn in front of the house and joined his father in reading the paners, the other members of the family being away.

Flames bursting from the windows on the east side of the house gave the first intimation to Mekeel and his son that the building was on fire. Realizing that to call a St. Louis fire company would have been futile, since there is no water supply, they could do nothing but watch the home burn.—St. Louis Republic, July 6.

LINN SPEAKS.

DEAR MR. SEVERN:—

I just noticed clipping by Aug. Dietz in the WEEKLY regarding Torreon being of private-speculative-origin.

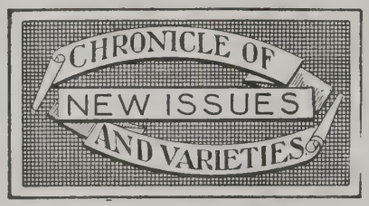
I of course don't know for sure, but believe Mr. Dietz' informant was a gentleman who heard about them and spoke to the Postmaster at Nogales. The postmaster told him when any changes were made or new stamps issued that all offices were notified. Not receiving such a notice at the Nogales office, the P. M. concluded there "wasn't any such animal" officially. However, the fact remains that the stamps were issued and used and are really O. K. But on the whole they come nearer to being a speculative issue than any stamps yet issued by the Rebels. I don't believe there was the least idea, or intention on the part of the postal officials to issue a speculative set, and they are not in the true sense speculative, because the government issuing them have none to sell at any price and the issue was small, only supposedly enough for the day's sale.

Alongside of some of our album beauties these stamps are virginal.

While writing, I might say a word about the other Sonoras. The first white issue is rare. The commonness of the used stamps is about in the following order: 1c, 2c, 3 or 5c (the three cent seems to be as scarce as the 5c used, altho not yet so recognized, because so many unused 3c are offered), 5c thin figure, 10c, 5c black roulette. Of the green seal issues, the scarcest used is the 10c, then the 1c, 3c, 2c, 5c. This is without regard to paper varieties. The violet brown shade and MARO error are dear at $3.50 when the first 5c is priced beside it at $5.00. Figuring first 5c white at $5.00 I would say $2.00 was a good price for the MARO error; but figuring the first 5c at its value compared with other stamps of equal rarity and the first 5c is easily a $10.00 to $15.00 stamp.

For a person wishing to plate these stamps, the "Maro" error is worth no more than any other of the stamps in the sheet. Therefore if the Maro error is worth $3.50 then the others are worth $3.50!

The Ejercito issues were used about as follows: 1, 2, 5, 10c without Talon. 5c with Talon. I have not yet seen any other forms of these stamps which I consider legitimately used. However, I have seen 1, 2, 5c without Talon but with District Revenue overprint used legitimately. Of the 1914 issue, the values from 10c up should be very good property in used copies.



At present, various postmasters in Sonora are offering to stick anything on an envelope and cancel it; however such fakes are easily told as they are usually addressed to another town and not backstamped. A St. Louis party has flooded the market with a Manilla envelope with printed address of Joseph I. Cohn, Cananea, Sonora. These envelopes were mostly used with the Ejercito 1, 2, 5c stamps with Talon attached. All look like made to order affairs as envelopes were sold sealed and unopened.

Taken as a whole, the type set Sonoras are as clean and free from taint as any set of stamps ever issued.

Yours very truly,
GEO. W. LINN,
Columbus, Ohio.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents.

UNITED STATES.—C. M. Breder shows us a current envelope, with the stamp printed from the worst worn die yet seen. All colorless inscriptions and dies are greatly enlarged.

ARGENTINE.—Ewen's Weekly reports the 2c and 5c of the current set on watermarked paper.

CANADA.—Various items have been going around the philatelic press regarding the early issue of a set of stamps by Canada to commemorate the Centenary of Cartier. The date first announced was July 1, but that day has come and gone without bringing to light the new stamps. We are now able to quote a semi-official statement from Ottawa to the effect that the matter had been considered, but nothing definite done. This was of recent date, since July 1, in fact.

DENMARK.—Mr. Schachne reports the new international letter card, with the King's profile to right.

Letter Card.
10 ore red and black on gray; perf. I.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC.—Forest A. Black asks for information regarding a ship cancellation reading "U. S. S. Wheeling—San Domingo—City, D. R." and dated May 26.

GIBRALTAR.—Morocco Agencies.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us another surcharge for use in the Morocco Agencies, the 5sh stamps of Great Britain having surcharge "Morocco—Agencies" in two lines at the top, and "6 pesetas" at the bottom, both being in black.

Adhesive.
On stamps of Great Britain.
"6 pesetas" on 5sh carmine lake.

Attention is called to the fact that the item under Gibraltar in No. 1226 belongs to the Morocco Agencies.

HAYTI.—H. E. Boetzon sends a used specimen of the current 5c with an overprint reading Gl. O. Z.—7 Feb 1914," enclosed in rectangular rule form. The initials stand for Gen. Oreste Zamor, the new president of the Republic. Mr. Focke also reports the same series of surcharges.

HUNGARY.—Three new entires have just been issued, according to Mr. Schachne.

Post Card.
10f red on dark buff, with dividing line.
Letter Cards.
6f light olive green on blue; perf. III.
10f brick red on greenish gray; perf. III.

ITALY.—Ewen's Weekly says that the parcel post stamps recently announced, will be double, each stamp being separated into two parts by perforation. The left hand part has to be stuck on the certificate of posting, and collectors will not be able to obtain this part in used condition, as these forms are destroyed by the postal authorities. The right part has to be stuck on the receipt. If collectors wish to have the two parts attached they must secure them unused.

MEXICO.—The Constitutionalists are making philatelic history very fast these days. Hermann Focke sends us a budget illustrating this clearly. The rubber stamp noted last week has been corrected and now reads "Constitucionalista." This comes on a cover from Monterey and appears to be a new setting as well as corrected. Mr. Focke takes issue with Mr. Prieth on the Spanish terminations. He writes:

"With due respect to Mr. Prieth I wish to state that there is no such word as "ConstitucionalistO," all Spanish adjectives, made of a substantive with an additional end syllable 'ista,' not being subject to the gender of the noun.—Thus we have in Mexico the Porfirista (adherent of Porfirio Daiz), Huertista, Carrancista, Villista, all 'more or less able bodied men,' in spite of the feminine ending of the word, and I am inclined to think that the three letters 'G. C. M.' on the Mexican stamp stand for 'Gobierno Constitucionalista Mexico' or may be 'Mexicano.'"

Collectors of Revenue stamps may be interested to know that the U. S. authorities at Vera Cruz have surcharged the Mexican Revenue stamps of the 1913-1914 series with "Gov. U. S. A."—vertically over the stamp proper and the talon. Mr. Focke sends us specimens of the 5c, 25c and 50c thus surcharged and reports having seen all values up to 1 peso thus surcharged. He also reports having seen some values with "Vera Cruz" in addition to the "Gov. U. S. A." but these seem to be rare. Mr. Focke also submits a cover with both Federal and Constitutionalist stamps, this being necessary as the letter passed through territory controlled by both parties.

The International Stamp Co. submits specimens of the new Constitutionalist stamps, with the statement from a correspondent that they were "the first to actually leave Mexico." Forest A. Black reports several interesting covers with ship cancellations. They are the regular ship cancellations and where the short bars are is "Vera Cruz—Mexico," in two lines. Mr. Black has the "U. S. S. Florida" (Apr. 19) "U. S. S. Minnesota," (Apr. 13 and Apr. 28). The above are all Vera Cruz, Mexico. He also has another, "U. S. S. Vermont" (May 16) but on which the name of the town is not legible.

Benedict Prieth reports having seen a cover from Sonora franked with five of the lowest values of the new set.

NICARAGUA.—The York Stamp Co. has also shown us the new ½c stamp.

NORWAY.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the latest addition to the postage due stamps of Norway, the 15 ore value having been issued for the first time. The design is unchanged.

Postage Due Adhesive.
15 ore red brown.

ORCHA.—As long ago as 1900 says Scott's Circular, a set of four stamps, purporting to come from this native Indian state, was placed on the market. They were well executed and were obtainable with or without perforations, and a few varieties part perforate. Most of them were marketed in sheets neatly cancelled, which was probably intended as a guarantee of their bona fides. Subsequently it developed that there was nothing official about the issue, but that it was a private speculation on the part of a traveling salesman. Then the stamps were quietly dropped from catalogues and collections. Recently two stamps, purporting to represent postal issues of Orcha, have appeared. The design is rather a crude reproduction of the 1900 issue and is nearly funny enough to be called a caricature. We naturally wonder if the new stamps have more authority back of them than the former lot. At any rate we can say in their favor that they are printed in bright colors, and the little sheets of eight are "real cute."

SIAM.—The permanent set of postal cards, reported in a recent issue, has been superseded by a series of surcharged cards, as reported by Mr. Schachne.

Post Cards.
2s black, brown and red on white.
5s black, red and red on white.
5x5s black, red and red on white.

URUGUAY.—The 2c, 4c and 10c postage due stamps have been issued in lithographed form, according to Lemaire's Journal. These stamps are a little larger than the 1902 issue and perforated 11½. The 1c is to be suppressed.

NOTES ON THE STAMPS OF SWEDEN.

By BARON E. G. E. LEIJONHUFVUD.

The little labels to pay postage, in which we are all so interested, came into use fifteen years later in Sweden than in England. Yet there is this peculiarity, that the first idea of "something stamped" came from a member of the Swedish Diet, Count Treffenberg, who as early as March, 1823, made a proposal to use STAMPED PAPER as payment of postage. After having had the matter referred to a committee, in which Treffenberg explained and defended his proposal, it was finally defeated with arguments that to the present-day generation would seem extremely ridiculous. We all know of Rowland Hill's proposals in his pamphlet Post Office Reform. After various ups and downs Hill's ideas were accepted by the Government, and in January, 1840, the new postal regulations were issued. The most remarkable change was the way in which postage was to be paid. The "Queen's Heads" came into the world, and a new chapter in its history had actually commenced.

Brazil, Switzerland, the United States, Russia, France and other countries soon adopted the new system, but the first Swedish stamps were not issued until 1855. It took three years to get the Bill through the Diet, the lawmakers of the day being afraid of the increased cost, and the proposal was several times defeated. In March, 1855, the Diet finally decided to change the scale of payments for postage and in connection to accept payment in the shape of stamps to be affixed to the letter. Count Sparre got the first contract to print the stamps, and the Government paper factory at Tumba supplied the rather rough, handmade (wove) paper which was used.

According to Mr. Holmberg's statement in Sveriges Frankotecken, the first stamps were delivered in sheets of 200 for each value. It consisted of 807 sheets of the 3sk Bco., 3242 sheets of the 4sk Bco., 501 sheets of the 6sk Bco., 1032 sheets of the 8sk Bco., and 250 sheets of the 24sk Bco.

ISSUE 1855-8.

All the Swedish stamps have been typographed on wove paper with the exception of the King Oscar stamps, the 5kr, blue, and the new current stamps of King Gustaf, which are line-engraved. The paper varies very much in the first issue, but with the exception of the 3sk Bco. there are two distinct kinds of paper, THIN and THICK. In the case of the 3sk green, the documents in Stockholm prove conclusively that only one kind of paper was used and that the whole issue of this value was printed during 1855. Of the other values there are many printings after that year. Mr. Holmberg states that the entire issue of the 3sk Bco. was 315,000 stamps, of the 4sk 6,984,900 stamps, of the 6sk 266,900 stamps, of the 8sk 798,800 stamps, and of the 24sk 231,800. When the coinage of the country was changed in 1858, quantities of the sk. Bco. stamps were burnt in connection with the issue of the second or öre issue. There were two burnings: we have documents of the first one proving that the following quantities were burnt in June, 1858:—

3sk Bco,	134,500
4sk Bco,	188,325
6sk Bco,	23,600
8sk Bco,	5,200
24sk Bco,	37,850

Later on in the same year the second burning took place, but we have no information of how the different values were disposed of, except that the total face value of the second burning amounted to 69,367 Rdr. Rmt., or nearly to the same amount as the first burning. The 3sk Bco had FOUR different printings, the last one being 29th of December, 1855, and ALL on thin paper.

The 4sk had sixteen different printings, the last in 1858. The 6sk had six printings, the last in 1857. The 8sk had nine printings, the last in 1857, and the 24sk Bco had the same number of printings at the same dates as the 8sk. The 3sk Bco exists in two or three slightly different shades, besides the famous er-edition of the sk Bco stamps is the 24sk, but a greater number of these remained in circulation as compared to the 6 and 3sk, and are consequently not so difficult to acquire as the latter.

SECOND ISSUE, 1858-72. VALUE IN ORE.

The design is the same as for the sk Bco, but the plates are new. The shield is narrower than on the Bancos, the crowns in the shield are also narrower, and the two top ones are placed further apart. The crown above the shield differs considerably in the two issues; the orb on the Bco stamps is larger and partially hidden by the loops of the crown, and both the orb and the cross are shaded. In the 1858 issue the orb is quite visible and smaller.

The shading of the 5 öre varies from pale green to yellow-green, dark green, and even grey-green. The 9 öre has also a number of different shades from brown-violet to pale violet. Even pinkish violet occurs, but may be the result of acid in the gum or some exposure. Grey ones have not been found. The 12 öre occurs in all sorts of shades, and specimens have been found imperforate on one or two sides. The ultramarine colour is probably the finest and rarest. One sheet of this issue was printed on both sides, and there are three copies known to have been preserved; they are all unused and are probably among the rarest stamps of Sweden. The 24 öre exists in many different shades, and an error in the type occurs pretty frequently in the word "ORE," where we find "ORF" instead. Of the 30 öre we find four distinct shades and some differences in the figure "3." This stamp is known imperforate. The 50 öre red, has also several shades, and shows the same type-errors as in the two lower values. The local stamp 3 öre, brown, was originally meant for use in the larger towns where local post of an official nature had been arranged, but as the plates did not get ready in time the post officials borrowed the plates of a private black local stamp. It was printed in one or two shades of brown, and although it was without value, a postal circular fixed its value at 3 öre, and it could be used for any kind of postal purposes: it was consequently a PROVISIONAL stamp, and the first issue occurred in December, 1861. It was not issued after December, 1862, when the new 3 öre stamp was ready. The design of the new 3 öre—the Lion type—is perhaps the most artistic of all the Swedish stamps. It was issued for a period of ten years. Specimens occur printed on both sides, the back always showing part of two or more designs. They are exceedingly rare. A very similar design in values of 17 and 20 öre appeared 1866. The 17 öre is found in various shades from violet to grey. No grey ones are poststamped before 1870, which would appear to show that only the last printing contained the rarer colour. The 20 öre "Lion" varies from brick-red to brown-red; the latter is the least common. Imperforate specimens are known. The second issue, or the "Shield" issue, ceased when the Post Office handed the contract to Jacob Bagge in 1872. The new issue is the so-called "Figure" issue from 1872-7.

The black local stamp was a private stamp started in Stockholm as early as 1848. It was used until 1884, and when the postal authorities took over this service its originator was granted a small pension until his death. It had, however, never the same postal standing as the brown 3 öre local, and could only be used in Stockholm. The reprint, on the other hand, was a Government reprint and had full postal use. It was sent to all the postal authorities abroad, among other specimens of reprints, and was called "1 skilling Bco" (after July, 1858, "3 öre"). It was printed on the postal paper from Tumba factory. The colour varies from black to grey-black, but it is not possible to say which was the first print, as the used copies are all poststamped with a star, or in Stockholm with a stamp without date or year, only "Stockholm" and the number of delivery, for instance, "5 TUR" being the fifth delivery. We have specimens both on thin and thick paper. The ones printed in 1856 were on thin paper.

REPRINTS.

Foreign post offices continued to make requests for specimens of the first Swedish stamps long after the time when they were current. As there were no sk Bco left (only 9 öres and the brown locals) in the post-office stock, the Postmaster-General decided to have some reprints made. New plates were made out of the old dies (the original ones having been lost), and the first printing commenced in March, 1868. Every frame had nine stamp-plates arranged in three lines. The second reprint took place in October, 1868, and not in 1871, as has been the customary belief. An order was now given that at no time must the reprints kept in the post office in Stockholm get below five hundred pieces of each value. At the commencement of 1871 there were only two values below this figure, viz. the two local stamps, and 900 of these were immediately ordered and printed. The demand for the 3sk Bco was so great that already in July, 1871, a second printing of that value became necessary. It was delivered in August of the same year, and was the only sk Bco reprint in 1871.

We know very little about the last reprint of 1885. But not only were the Bancos reprinted, but also the entire "Shield" issue, the Lion types, and the two local stamps, as well as the 1 riksdaler. By this time a new perforating machine was in use, and the 1885 reprints are perforated 13. About the same time an official in the post office made use of the plates to print a few sheets of each value on another paper thinner and more shiny than the regular paper. The postal authorities made no difference between this print and their own, nor does there seem to have been any inquiry as to its appearance. This particular "private" reprint is extremely rare, though all the 1885 reprints are scarce, the post offices not being permitted to sell them to private persons. We find from Mr. Holmberg's investigation that the 3sk Bco has been reprinted four times (twice in 1868, once in 1871, and once in 1885); the black local an equal number of times; all the other values of the 1sk Bco series have been reprinted three times (twice in 1868 and once in 1885). The local brown has been reprinted twice (in 1871 and 1885), and the rest (the "öres" and "riksdaler") once in 1885. The differences between reprints and originals are in some cases very slight. In the 1868 reprint of the black local there is an error in the plate, causing a white spot on the right side of the oval frame of the little balls; as a rule the reprints of the 4, 8 and even 24sk Bco are very difficult to distinguish from the originals. The 3sk and 6sk are in a different colour, although the grey-brown 6sk may cause the most experienced some trouble. The 1885 reprints are easy to distinguish because of the changed perforation; the colours are also much brighter, the paper whiter, and the general appearance fresher. The 17 öre reprint was only printed in grey.

EARLY ISSUES OF COSTA RICA.

By Fred. J. Melville.

The earliest stamps of Costa Rica, the most progressive of the five States of Central America, have a place in every general collection, and are among the first stamps upon which the young collector sets his heart to acquire. They were issued in 1863, but it is by no means certain that these perforated stamps were not preceded by an imperforate issue in the same design about December 1862. Of the circumstances attending their original issue collectors know nothing, no decree or official notice having been handed down to present-day students, but that the country's interest in postal reform was aroused about this period is clear from its sending a representative to the sparsely attended Postal Conference in Paris in 1863.

The curious design is responsible for the interest which these stamps had for the early philatelists. It represents not one "painted ship upon a painted ocean" but two ships on two oceans, separated by an isthmus, the land being chiefly represented by the three volcanoes, Turrialba, Irazu, and Poas. Above are five stars representing the provinces of San Jose, Alajuela, Cartago, Guanacaste, and Limon; the "surround" is an ornate form of shield. The stamps were recess-plate printed by the American Bank Note Company of New York, and two of the denominations are catalogued imperforate under the date December, 1862. Of the issue and use of these imperforates substantial evidence is still lacking. If issued thus for use in 1862 it would seem more probable that the colour of the half-real, imperforate, would be deep blue, not blue as in the catalogue, as the early copies of the perforated stamps were deep blue, the printings in the lighter shade coming later. Used copies are known of both the half-real and two reales imperforate, but it may be questioned whether they were issued in that state, as the stamps of 1863 were perforated by a single-line machine, the vagaries of which would allow for the removal of the perforations. In the absence of imperforate pairs collectors must be cautious of the imperforate issue.

The stamps with the perforation gauging twelve (a measure generally used by the American Bank Note Company) are listed in five denominations and several shades. The half-real is in deep blue, and in blue, but the deep blue came first, and the blue followed within a short time. The other values are the two reales red, four reales green, and one peso orange. The omission of a one-real stamp appears to have suggested to an early faker that a stamp of this denomination would be acceptable to collectors, for the one-real brown stamp formerly listed is undoubtedly a bogus one; it had no genuine existence.

No one need question that these first stamps of Costa Rica served a bona-fide postal purpose. There were stamp collectors at that period; indeed, the vogue of the hobby was at its height in those days, both in Paris and London; but these four stamps served for the State's postal requirements during a period of eighteen years, and in 1881-82, when the decimal currency was adopted by Costa Rica, the ½-real was still continued in use, the stamps of the old design being surcharged with the values in the new currency in bright red. The new values, all surcharged on the ½-real, were 1 centavo (in two types), 2 centavos, and 5 centavos. The issue of the 5 centavos is questioned on the ground of the absence of any early chronicle of the stamp in the philatelic journals and catalogues of the period. That the stamp was prepared for issue there is little doubt, and (although not priced in the used state in the current catalogues) used copies are known. It would be of considerable interest to students to find a used copy of this stamp on an original envelope or letter.

In 1882 Costa Rica joined the Universal Postal Union, and to provide for the new postage rates then called for, three of the old denominations were surcharged with new values, along with the initials "U.P.U." These are the

5 centavos in red on ½-real, blue,
10 centavos in black on 2 reales, red,
20 centavos in red on 4 reales, green.

These surcharges are comparatively scarce, being in use for a very short period, and but little is known concerning them. It may be pointed out that there are deceptive forgeries of these "U.P.U." surcharges.

In 1883 a new issue was designed and engraved by the same printers, and limited to five values—1 centavo green, 2c carmine, 5c violet, 10c orange, and 40c blue. These bore the portrait of General Prospero Fernandez (1834-1885), who had been elected President for four years in 1882, and died before the completion of his term of office. Fernandez took part in both the campaigns against the American journalist-adventurer William Walker and his filibustering expeditions, and was active in the revolution against President Jiminez, of Costa Rica, in 1870, becoming commander-in-chief of the Costa Rican forces under President Guardia.—Daily Telegraph.

HOW JAMIE EARNED HIS MONEY.

By Arthur Irwin Smith.

Mr. Dircut was a wise father. He did not think it best to give his boys their spending money. However, to encourage them he offered to double their earnings through the vacation months. Each boy had something in view to buy with their money provided they were lucky enough to make any. Jamie especially wanted a stamp album. Gerald wanted a camera just as badly, but neither had found any way to make even a dime.

They were out on the verandah early in the afternoon when Jamie carelessly picked up a newspaper. He glanced over the advertisement columns, then whistled suddenly. "Wanted—all kinds of cancelled stamps at highest prices. Apply X, this office," he read aloud.

"It couldn't amount to much," laughed Gerald. "I hardly think it would be worth fooling with."

"Well, when the big chances do not come, it is always worth while trying the little ones," said his mother wisely.

"Yes, and I'm going to try," declared Jamie. "Perhaps I can make enough with what father adds to it to start me a nice stamp collection of my own, besides I can keep some of the stamps I find for myself."

"Humph!" said Gerald. "I can't see why you care for stamp collecting. I'm going over to Green's field to play ball this afternoon. You going?"

"Not this afternoon, for I'm going to start at once to hunt up stamps to sell to that man," returned Jamie.

"Better go," insisted Gerald. "All the boys will be there."

"Another time for me," Jamie said as he went inside.

He went to a plunder room, and raked through every old package of letters he could find. He found some wrappings of old bundles thrown in with some newspapers. Soon he had a hundred or more United States stamps of various kinds.

Next day he went down town and got permission from the merchants to look through their wastebaskets. In this way he added many more to his pile of stamps.

A few days afterward he went out into the country to visit a great aunt. He did not forget his business of collecting, and asked her if she had any stamps.

"Do you want to write a letter?" she asked.

"Oh, no, I just wanted cancelled stamps," and he showed her the advertisement.

"Up in the attic there are piles and piles of letters. Get the scissors and go up there and help yourself. You can have them all regardless of what they may be worth," said his kind old aunt.

"Oh, thank you," he cried, as he hurried away to find a box and the scissors.

Soon he was so busy up in the old dusty attic that he lost all sense of the passage of time. There were United States stamps, Confederate stamps, and a few foreign ones. He had no idea as to their value, but he found them interesting all the same.

When he went home he visited the stores again, then put all that he had found together and the pile was so large he thought it time he should find the advertiser. It was not long after he had gotten the address from the newspaper office, until he stood before Mr. Brant, who, as it happened, lived on the same street as himself.

The buyer of stamps was a kindly, bespectacled person of middle age, who quickly and dexterously ran through Jamie's aggregation. He soon started to count up the value of the little piles, and Jamie began to feel disappointed.

"Whew!" cried Mr. Brant. "What have you here?" He held one which he had evidently overlooked in his sorting them out. It was a Confederate stamp his aunt had given him.

Jamie did not answer.

"You are lucky, son," said the honest collector. "I can pay you five dollars for this one."

"And only two dollars for the others?" Jamie cried in amazement.

So Jamie carried home seven dollars to show to his astonished brother and parents.

"And now I owe you seven dollars?" said his father, handing him that amount. "Well, I do not mind paying it to you, for a boy that can make money from cancelled stamps will be a success."

COVERED WITH STAMPS.

There has been on exhibition in the window of a Market street store in San Francisco for the past week an original cover that is a curio in itself. The owner claims that it was the first letter ever carried through the Panama Canal in due course of mail. It was posted in the Canal Zone and addressed to San Francisco. The cover is a large size manila envelope.

Not content with affixing four 2 cent Canal Zone stamps and a 5 cent stamp to the letter, the sender stuck on 27 stamps of eight other countries as follows:

Salvador—1, 2, 5, 12 and 17 centavos.
Mexico—2 and 5 centavos.
Nicaragua—1 on 35, 2 on 1, and 50 official.
Panama—One-half centavo.
Honduras—1, 2, two 5s, 6, 10 and 20 centavos.
Philippine Islands—2c documentary.
Costa Rica—Three of 1 colon.
Guatemala—5, 6 and 10 centavos.

It cost the sender about two dollars to send the letter and the owner holds it at $2.50 for anyone who appreciates a philatelic curiosity enuf to pay that price.

THE POSTAGE STAMPS OF GAMBIA.

By R. E. R. DALWIGK.

The 1898 Issue.

The "Postage—Postage" Design.

In 1898 a new series of stamps was issued for use in the Colony. The reason for the change is not very clear but was probably due to motives of economy. Its appearance was heralded by the following notification which appeared in the "Government Gazette" of the Colony, Government Notice.

"Withdrawal of present issue of Gambia Postage Stamps." "On the 1st May, 1898, the present issue, if not previously exhausted, of all denominations of Postage Stamps in the Gambia that are then in the hands of the Government will be destroyed and a complete new set of stamps will then be put in circulation."

"Administrator's Office, Bathurst, Gambia. 31st January, 1898."

The date of issue of this series is frequently given as January, 1898, but in face of the foregoing official announcement this would appear to be incorrect.

Probably on account of a falling off in the demand for these stamps by philatelists, the printing of the handsome embossed stamps from separate plates was found to be too great a strain on the Colony's resources, and possibly owing also to representations on the part of the Crown Agents as to the great saving effected by the employment of the general Colonial key-plate design for the production of their stamps, the new series was printed from the cheaper and decidedly less effective Postage—Postage design, used by Messrs. De La Rue & Co. in the printing of the postal emissions of a large number of British Colonies.

Under this arrangement the Head of Queen Victoria and the framework design is first printed from a general plate which is the property of the Crown Agents and is employed indiscriminately for the printing of the stamps of any desired Colony. This is known as the key-plate or head plate. The name of the Colony and the value are then inserted at a second operation from a new plate, the property of the Colony, known as the duty plate, usually in a different colour from the major portion of the design.

The stamps in question were printed from Plate 2 of these general key-plates in sheets of 120, arranged in two panes of 60, side by side. Each pane was surrounded by a continuous coloured line in the same colour as the body of the stamp, and bore the plate number "2" in all four corners, whilst the margins themselves were watermarked with the inscription "CROWN AGENTS FOR THE COLONIES." The ½d, 1d and 3d values of this series are also known printed from plate "3", but of the 3d only a very small number of sheets were printed from this plate, and copies with the marginal plate number "3" attached are extremely difficult to find.

The 1d printed from plate "3" is in a much deeper shade than the same stamp of plate "2"; the ½d varies very little if any; whilst in some cases of the 3d both the mauve and ultramarine colours are somewhat deeper.

On the stamps of this issue the watermark Crown over CA is upright, the sheets being of the regulation size to fit the plates. The stamps were perforated 14 in all cases, and have white gum.

VII. Save for the substitution of the profile of the new sovereign and the introduction of a diminutive crown into the upper part of the design, the stamps differ but little from the previous issue. They were produced from a combination of key and duty plates in the manner already described and were printed in sheets of identical size, with the same marginal lines and inscriptions, but the plate number "1" instead of "2" and "3." Like the 1898 issue they were inscribed with the word "POSTAGE" on either side of the frame indicating that they were not available for fiscal purposes, as indeed were none of the postal issues of the Colony. Four totally unnecessary high values were included in this series of the denominations of 1sh 6d, 2sh, 2sh 6d, and 3sh, respectively.

Previous to the year 1902 Gambia enjoyed the distinction of being the only British West African possession that had issued no postage stamp of a higher face value than 1sh, and it can be safely asserted that until that time the Colony had not issued any stamp for which there was not an absolutely urgent and perfectly legitimate demand. With the appearance, however, of the King's Head series of stamps, the Gambia postal officials, instead of endeavouring to maintain their proud record seem to have taken it into their heads to speculate and to make up for lost time immediately plunged into a series of postage stamp speculations such as have been unrivalled since the days of the notorious Ceylon surcharges. They added four high value stamps to an otherwise perfectly legitimate and bona fide series, rising by sixpenny stages from 1sh to 3sh. Despite the fact that these stamps served no useful purpose for actual postage there was a pretty brisk demand for them at first by stamp dealers and collectors, as the values issued were somewhat of a Colonial novelty, and their exact nature was not at first suspected or proved. The stamps were perforated 14 and watermarked with a Crown and CA, the watermark being so arranged as to show one complete watermark device upon the centre of each stamp, and such watermarks are now classed "Single CA", as opposed to the later "Multiple CA."

The first value to be placed on sale was the 1d which made its appearance on March 13th, 1902, and was followed by the ½d and 3d on April 19th; the 2d, 2½d, 4d, 6d, 1sh and 2sh on June 14th. It was not, however, until the 6th April, 1905, that the remaining values of 1sh 6d, 2sh 6d, and 3sh were added to the series and of these a total of only 6,000 copies each are said to have been printed, the same number was also printed of the 2sh value. As regards the other values of this issue the quantities printed are not known, but we have it on good authority that of the 1sh denomination 5776 were printed. This series of stamps has risen in value considerably, considering that it is a twentieth century issue, the reason being that they were so quickly superseded by the Multiple CA watermark. The 1sh and 2sh denominations are scarce.

II. THE MULTIPLE CA SERIES. 1904-06.

During August 1904, the first stamp printed on "Multiple CA" paper made its appearance in the shape of the 1d carmine. The other values appeared on this new paper as the stock of "Single CA's" became exhausted in the Colony, with the exception of the 1sh 6d, 2sh 6d and 3sh denominations which never appeared on multiple paper. Stamps on Multiple CA paper show portions of two or three watermark devices instead of only one.

The size of the sheets, perforation, marginal lines and plate numbers are as before, but there are no marginal inscriptions. The curious value craze did not die out with 1sh 6d, 2sh 6d and 3sh denominations as in 1906, three new stamps were added to the series: 5d, 7½d and 10d and were regarded as being of the same nature as the high value Single CA's. There is, however, some small argument which—to a certain extent—explains the "necessity" of these three values. We quote from Mr. D. B. Armstrong's "Twentieth Century Colonials" in Gibbons' Stamp Weekly:

"It cannot be denied, however, that they had their uses, as at the time of their issue they would prepay letters to foreign countries weighing respectively, 1½, 2 and 4 oz., though since the increase in weight that may be sent for 2½d they have lost much of their utility. They could also be used in connection with the posting of packages of commercial papers, the rate on which is 2½d per 10 oz. All the same a judicious amalgamation of the existing values of the series would have answered the purpose just as well. But in a hot country like Gambia they are naturally anxious to avoid as much unnecessary trouble either mental or physical as possible, and it may be after all that the stamps were issued out of convenience to the public."

Furthermore, it has been argued in favour of these values that the fees for insured parcels were:

5d for compensation to £12.
7½d for compensation to £24.
and 10d up to £36.
—Post Office Ordinance, No.6,[1897].

These stamps are printed in singly-fugitive ink and intended for postal purposes only, they have not appeared on chalky-surfaced paper.

The Provisionals of 1906.

The following appeared on May 26, 1906 in Ewen's Weekly Stamp News from its Bathurst correspondent, who wrote on April 30th:

"The surcharged penny and halfpenny postage stamps on 3sh and 2sh 6d denominations, respectively, were issued on the 10th instant, and withdrawn on the 23rd April. The issue was necessary owing to a delay in receipt of a requisition for stamps sent to England on the 9th February, and by the abnormal sales, from some unknown reason, of the usual penny and halfpenny stamps during February and March.

"A very small issue was made pending the arrival of the mail on the 24th, by which the indent above mentioned was received. The total issue was 4,500 penny and 3,780 halfpenny."

At the time much was written in the philatelic press under headings such as "The Gambia Scandal," and the provisionals were denounced in the most scathing manner. As the officials were left with large quantities of these stamps on their hands they resorted to a very favourite device of the speculatively inclined Colonial postmaster and converted practically the whole of them into provisionals of the face value of a halfpenny and one penny, respectively, whilst by judicious manipulation it was so arranged between the post office and various members of the European community of the Colony that the whole, or nearly the whole, of the total number of provisionals issued should be held locally, and that dealers and stamp collectors, applying for stocks should be made to pay good round figures for supplies. This presents one of the most glaring instances of postage stamp manipulation on the part of Colonial postmasters that has ever been known, and at the time of its occurrence there was considerable agitation here at home for an official Colonial Office inquiry into the whole circumstances of the case, which was eventually undertaken at the instance of Lord Crewe, when the Governor of Gambia's printed report contained the following:

"The Governor of the colony states that as the supply of the ½d and 1d stamps had been exhausted before the arrival of a new supply which had been ordered, no [regular] stamps of these denominations were available from the 2nd to the 10th April, letters requiring such postage being stamped "Postage Paid." The surcharged stamps were on sale from the 10th to the 24th of April, the date on which the new supply became available. A surplus was left over which was destroyed with proper precautions."

It is, however, certain that out of the "necessity" a large speculation was made by certain individuals in Gambia—but such is the case with practically all provisionals issued nowadays.

Both values were surcharged locally at Bathurst, and issued on April 10th, 1906. Of the 2sh 6d, 4500 copies were overprinted HALF PENNY in large sans-serifs in two lines in black, with two thick black bars beneath cancelling the original value, and 3600 of the 3sh with the words ONE PENNY in small Roman capitals in one line also in black across the centre of the stamp, but without any bar obliterating the original value of the stamp.

The "Half Penny" on 2sh 6d was surcharged in complete sheets of 120 at four operations, a block of thirty stamps being overprinted at each operation, but the "One Penny" on 3sh was split up into panes before being placed in the press, the overprinting of the entire sheet taking two operations.

Of the ½d on 2sh 6d there exist two more or less important varieties, the first in which the space between the words of the surcharge and the bars obliterating the original value measures 5 mm. (rows 1, 2 and 5) instead of 4 mm. (rows 3 and 4) only; and the second, which occurs as Nos. 7 and 37 on each pane with a broken E like an F making the word read PFNNY. There are also other varieties consisting of dropped letters, and variations in the thickness of the cancelling bars, which, however, present little interest.

The only known variety of importance occurring on the sheets of the One Penny on 3sh is that of a double surcharge, which is extremely scarce.

On the arrival of a fresh supply of ½d and 1d stamps in the permanent design from England, these provisionals were, on April 23rd, 1906, withdrawn from issue, and in the following October the few remaining on hand were officially destroyed.

In the Governor's report it was stated that the surplus "was destroyed with proper precautions"—this was on October 16, 1906. Considering that at least 2000 of the ½d and 3000 of the 1d would appear to have been postally used, the so-called surplus cannot have meant more than a few odd specimens.

Dealers were, for the most part, refused supplies by the postal authorities, but subsequently obtained supplies from local speculators at large premiums.

(ii) ONE PENNY on 3sh carmine and green on yellow. .....
Varieties: (i) a Space between letters and bars is 5 mm.

d Broken E in PENNY (PFNNY).
e Thick bars.
f Slightly thinner bars.
(ii) a Double surcharge.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—"M. Lopez," Hollenden Hotel, Cleveland, Ohio, sent a postal card to the Marks Stamp Company, asking for a selection from South American countries, and gave several banks, the Y. M. C. A., and a detective agency as references. One of the references, the Lake Shore Bank, said that it was "unable to locate the account of M. Lopez," while the Cleveland Trust Company, a second reference, said that it did not appear to have ever had any business relations with Mr. Lopez.

—The National Philatelic Society whose annual convention is to be held in Boston, July 27th, 28th and 29th, is advertising that fact with a label that comes in sheets of twelve, with two stamps tete beche. The central design is the society's motto in green. The N. P. S. has grown rapidly and is succeeding in cutting out a niche for itself.

—"If you are going to give a prize to your saddest subscriber, send it to me," writes a lugubrious reader. "An approval book of British Colonials, lying on my desk near an open window was swept through it by a sudden gust of wind and I watched it from my window on the fourteenth floor sail away in the darkness and rain," he adds.

EDITORIAL.

Not A Certainty—There have been reports in the stamp papers for some time past of an impending new celebratory set for Canada on the occasion of the centenary of Cartier; and it has been announced in print that the stamps were to be issued on July 15th, 1914. From a clipping sent by our old correspondent, Mr. W. R. Adams, of Toronto, from the Telegram of his city, the investigations of one of the paper's own reporters are given. We learn that although suggestions and ideas for designs have been received by the postmaster general, there has been no governmental order on the subject of the stamps. The question of the issue of the special stamps is still under consideration and "it is understood that the Postmaster-General has expressed himself personally as favorably disposed toward the project but it is denied by the officials that he has taken any official steps." The designs that have been suggested for the Cartier commemorative stamps are said to be: 1 cent, King and Queen; 2 cent, Cartier Monument; 5 cent, Birthplace of Cartier; 7 cent, Prince of Wales; 10 cent, Opening of Victoria Bridge by Cartier; 20 cent, Train Passing Through Grain Field and 50 cent, Cartier Coat-of-Arms. The Telegram's man adds that the report that the bilingual postal card "has been or is to be withdrawn, as rumored," is denied emphatically; and it is asserted that the card with inscription in French, as well as in English, is to be continued in service.

Laid Out—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Journal comments on the mentioning by us of a one cent of the 1857 issue, United States, "on close diagonally laid paper." We have always referred to discoveries of alleged laid paper in United States stamps with reserve, even though we know that the one cent laid and the three cent laid of the 1861 issue do exist as catalogued. Our esteemed contemporary proceeds to explain how laid paper may be manufactured surreptitiously, as it were; and though this ingenious plan has been told of heretofore in connection with "laid" varieties, we doubt whether it has ever been presented before so crisply and convincingly: "An adhesive stamp on diagonally laid paper is surely an impossibility. Its appearance may well be due to long and close attachment to an envelope of strongly laid, or ribbed, paper, in which the lines ran diagonally as is usually the case in envelopes. We tried some experiments in this way a few years back, and succeeded in producing some United States stamps which had the appearance of being laid, especially when looked at along the surface, and we knew they were genuine because we had laid them ourselves."

Barbados Prohibition—From Mr. S. H. M. Agens we have received the information: "Perhaps it will be interesting to your readers to know that a postcard with stamps illustrated thereon is prohibited in the mails of Barbados and that if the sender attempts to use it, the post office authorities will return it to him in an enclosure. This course of procedure is new to me and your readers may wish to be informed of it." Mr. Agens sends us the card that was returned to his correspondent at Barbados with "Prohibited" written across the face, under a "returned letter" official covering. The postal card in question is one of the familiar "made in Germany" type depicting with no mean workmanship, in colors approximately true to those of the original stamps, twenty stamps of Barbados, including three of the first Brittania type. Several countries are known to have forbidden the circulation of these stamp cards in their mails as in the case of Barbados.

A New Wrinkle—We have received mail matter recently that bore the printed label: "Please Cancel Lightly. These stamps are destined for the album of a stamp enthusiast, therefore please treat them with consideration." These pasters are for letters and packages that are prepaid with stamps that are calculated to appeal to the recipient and not for mail with ordinary stamps. The originator of the label must be credited with enterprise; and it is fair to assume that in the aggregate the use of the request will be attended with benefit. From our knowledge of human nature though, we do not hesitate to affirm that here and there a postmaster or clerk will give the stamps an extra whack or two through sheer perversity.

From Venezuela—We have received the ten centimos of a new Venezuelan set, engraved, with central design of Simon Bolivar. We mention this fact merely to remark that the portrait of the Liberator is so faithful that the head which is but five millimeters from chin to crown is identified at once as that of Bolivar who is represented from slightly below the belt upwards, in standing position on the stamp.

Bon Voyage—On July 18th, Mr. J. M. Bartels was booked to sail for Europe on the Imperator. He will spend some weeks in Germany as the representative of the United States on the Jury at the Cassel Exhibition which will attract the eyes of philatelic Europe during August and which, from all indications, will be the mecca of many a philatelic traveler. It was two years ago that the honor was bestowed on Mr. Bartels that he is now about to discharge. Recently, we described in our columns the exhibit that Mr. Charles Lathrop Pack was to make; and Dr. J. Brace Chittenden will show the early issues of Austria, specialized while Mr. John A. Klemann will exhibit his marvelous collection of Confederates which has been remounted and amplified since the time of the New York Exhibition. Mr. Bartels will exhibit his special collection of Danish West Indies, hors concours, or not for competition. From the reports in the continental stamp papers it is seen that an elaborate program of festivities at Cassel has been arranged. Mr. Bartels intends to return to New York about October first by way of Brussels, Paris and London and during his absence his business will be continued uninterruptedly by four competent assistants.

Philatelic Prospect—From Mr. Frederic C. DePuy, Rochester, we have received a newspaper clipping telling of a convention at Christiania, Norway, attended by delegates from the United States, Russia, Norway, "and other northern European countries," for the purpose of formulating a plan of government for the desolate area of "the world's one country without a flag—the Spitzbergen Islands, commonly called No Man's Land." There are rich deposits of coal in the islands lying north of Norway on the edge of the Arctic Circle, even if there is no plant life and little if any animal life there, which lure miners for the three open months of the year; and so it is incumbent upon civilization to organize this floating community during its working hours, at least. We trust that the commissioners will succeed in establishing law and order "in this remote corner of creation;" and besides Spitzbergen would be a sounding name to add to the album's roster. There was once a fictitious stamp for Franz Joseph Land, discovered by the Austrian Polar Expedition in 1873-74 but this label of islands northeast of Spitzbergen is the nearest Spitzbergen has got to a stamp issue. We have understood that the Spitzbergen Islands, although without permanent inhabitants, was a dependency of Russia.

The 1914-15 catalogues will have many sensational advances. British colonials in particular have been priced at figures nearer their value.

I can submit some very fine selections of these stamps including many of the high values. For months I have urged the purchase of the stamps of Papua and those who have taken my advice will be more than pleased when they see the new quotations. I still recommend their purchase and offer a very fine assortment in superb condition. Many fine blocks. Also varieties of watermark, paper and perforation. O. S. varieties in blocks and single.

AMERICAN PHILATELIC SOCIETY.

As the time approaches for the annual convention of the American Philatelic Society, to be held at Niagara Falls, August 11, 12, and 13, the committee in charge urges every philatelist in this broad land to attend. If you are not a member, do not let that fact stop you. There is still time to send in your application. One who has never attended a convention of our great National Society has little idea of the vast amount of pleasure that such an outing affords; the opportunity to meet others interested in your same hobby, some of whom you may have known by correspondence for years and the chance to buy, sell and trade stamps. A regular Stamp Bourse and Auction Sale are among this year's features.

On the side there will be entertainment galore; trips around the points of interest, automobile rides for the ladies; in fact, something all the time. Those who have attended previous A. P. S. conventions do not need to be told of the good times that are in store for them.

The real true "dyed-in-the-wool" stamp collector who plans his summer vacation to include Niagara Falls, Aug. 11, 12, and 13 will have many a pleasant memory to look back upon.—H. C. BARR.

AS WE READ IT.

Postage stamps that are carried in a pocketbook frequently stick together. When this happens lay them on a smooth surface and pass a hot iron over them. This will separate the stamps without destroying the gum.—Newark Evening Star.

PHYLLIS AS A PHILATELIST.

By ARTHUR IRWIN SMITH.

I was displaying my collection for the first time to Phyllis. She glanced carelessly through the magnificent array, as I considered it, of early United States issues, then looked out the window for a minute in a reverie.

"Did you know George was dead?" she asked, irrelevantly.

I opened my mouth in surprise. Several of our friends were named George. "George—who?" I gasped.

"George Washington, silly," she giggled.

"Well," I compromised, "what do you think of my stamps?"

"They're tacky," she declared, turning on slowly.

A page of cheap Cubans came to view. "Oh, look at the little baby kings," she cried. I had seen her go into raptures over little "baby dogs," and "baby kittens," and even "baby chickens," but I wasn't expecting my stamps to make such a hit.

"They don't amount to much," I told her.

"I think they are cute," she insisted, in a tone that must have made Alphonso's heart flutter, even in far-away Spain. "Tell me about them."

So I related what I knew of the young king's history, told of a few of the naughty things he had done, and showed his likeness as portrayed on the later stamps of Spain.

And now every time I get out my album Phyllis must sit at my elbow and see the "baby kings." Which all goes to show that if you want to interest a woman, you must find something that is of interest to her.

and a used copy of 1433 and also 1,600, Die B; a good lot of colonials and foreign; in fact a sale interesting to every collector for he ought to find something that he needs to fill up a blank space in his album.

A purchaser at my last sale wrote: "Your consignment was the first I have received this year that looked as if the auctioneer really sold me the stamps at the 'next highest bid,' for generally I only received stamps at 5c under the amount of my bid." Enough said!

On exhibition as follows: Detroit, Mich., at Hotel Tuller, August 7th; Toronto, Canada, at Walker House, August 8th; at my office, August 3rd to 6th, and at the Falls from August 10th to time of sale.

Come to the Falls and have a good time with your brother collectors, but if you cannot come, send your bid, and above all else do not forget your proxy, which send to some member to vote for you. If you have no one else in mind I will be glad to represent you, and will follow instructions if any are given. [S

A WORD IN FAVOR.

Dear Mr. Severn:—

I was much interested in reading the article in your issue of July 4th, by Bill Bloss, relative to a Dealers' Association. From the matters that have come under my observation since becoming a member of the Board of Vice Presidents of the American Philatelic Society, I wish to state emphatically that there is at least one good reason for the existence of such an Association, and mention of this will be made in the Board's report at the Convention to be held at Niagara Falls next month. I refer to the matter of "Frauds." Three-fourths of the work of the Board is along this line and is really such work as should be handled by a Dealers' Association, and to their mutual advantage. Not all of the parties complained of are members of the A. P. S., but the complaints are usually from parties who are, and the Board is expected to render some service. The time and attention the Board gives to settling complaints could easily be used to better advantage in furthering the interests of the Society.

I am of the opinion that all dealers who entered into such an Association, would, in the course of a few years save many times the cost of maintaining such an Association from this one feature alone.

The catalogue publishing feature of it, I doubt if it would meet with any better success than the present publishers, who I have no doubt are doing their best to please everybody concerned.

Sincerely yours,
ALVIN GOOD,
Cleveland, Ohio.

MUSKOGEE HAS ONE.

In the midst of a series of special postmarks emanating from our northern neighbor, Canada, the United States comes out with a new advertising cancellation. The new label is from Muskogee, Oklahoma, and reads—SIXTH ANNUAL CONVENTION/SOUTHERN COMMERCIAL CONGRESS/MUSKOGEE, OKLAHOMA./NOVEMBER 11-13, 1914.—in four lines, surrounded by a waved line designed 57 mm. long by 18 mm. high. This interesting cancellation was totally unpredicted and unexpected, though a proposed one from Wichita, Kansas, to advertise the 1914 Dry Farming Congress was predicted long ago. This latter mark has not yet appeared, but definite information regarding it is expected soon.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents.

UNITED STATES.—Greater latitude is evidently to be given to postmasters in this country regarding postmarks to advertise special events, as has been done in Canada for some time. Frank B. Eldredge sends us a specimen from Baltimore, reading "National Star—Spangled Banner — Centennial — Baltimore Sep. 1914."

DENMARK.—The New England Stamp Co. has shown us the 1, 2 and 3 ore stamps, Scott's Type A10, on paper watermarked multiple crosses.

EAST AFRICA AND UGANDA.—Whitfield King & Co. report having seen the 25c and 75c values of the King George set on paper with white back.

FIJI ISLANDS.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the remaining values of the King George set. They also inform us that the £1 King George stamp has just been issued in the colony, though catalogued nearly a year ago.

4d black and red on yellow.
5d lilac and olive green.
6d lilac and mauve.

MEXICO.—Hermann Focke has shown us another provisional revenue stamp from Vera Cruz, a very roughly printed and cheap-looking creation, but which appears to have some international standing. Mr. Focke writes: "Since we started to chronicle United States revenue stamps for use in Vera Cruz, Mexico, we may add the latest creation, an actual 'bi-national' revenue stamp issued for that occupied locality. I enclose the 10c value, on which appears the head of the Mexican national hero, Benito Juarez, with letters 'U S A' above and 'Mexico' below, with years of issue at either side of the latter, and value at top of stamp the colour of which is dark red-brown. The stamp is rouletted, but I have not seen the usual 'talon' as is customary with Mexican Bill stamps, to be affixed to the duplicate of a draft."

NIGERIA.—The New England Stamp Co. has shown us the new set from this Colony, the design being the De La Rue key plates like the Northern Nigeria King George stamps. As noted some time since, the last of the white-backed paper was used in printing these stamps. Whitfield King & Co. also reports this set.

TRINIDAD & TOBAGO.—The ½d of 1913 has been overprinted "Official," according to Champion's Bulletin.

VENEZUELA.—Hermann Focke sends us a specimen of what appears to be the first of a new series of stamps. It is evidently engraved and printed by the American Bank Note Co., though the imprint does not appear on the single stamps. The portrait is of Simon Bolivar, standing, face turned three-quarters to the right, half length, with right hand thrust into the breast of his coat. The figure is much smaller than in other series. "E. E. U. U. de Venezuela" appears in a curved line above the portrait, with "Correos" at either side, reading up on the left and down on the right. The value in figures appears in the lower corners, with "Centimos" between, and perforated 14.

ROCHESTER'S LIVE POST OFFICE.

Few of the hundreds of persons who daily step to a stamp-window in a post-office or branch to purchase one of the little winged messengers that carry their messages wherever they desire, has any idea how enormous is the government's business in stamps or how much labor is involved in the care of them. When it is remembered that there are 100 stamps on a sheet not so large as a dictionary cover in length and breadth, and that there is practically no "depth" to the stamp, it is easy to believe that at times the value of stamps carried in the fireproof vaults and safe in Cashier John A. Graham's office in the Federal building here, sometimes runs into millions of dollars.

The stamps come in various packages and amounts; there are bundles of 50,000 of the two-cent denomination, occupying not much more space than a large book; then there are bundles with equal quantities of ones and twos, and bundles of the old parcel-post stamps, coming forty-five on a sheet, and of the newer Panama exposition stamps, coming seventy in a sheet. Not all the stamps come in sheets, but some are provided perforated, either side by side in coils of 1,000 or end to end, in coils of 500 to be used in various types of mailing machine.

Stamp collectors freely intrude on the cashier's time and attention. They are in search of special issues such as the Panama exposition set, or the new 7, 9, 12, 20 and 30-cent denominations. The stamps selected for them must be perfectly "centered," that is cut so that just exactly the same amount of border is showing on one side as the other, the shade must be just correct, and in some cases they must be accompanied by the serial number, which is printed once or twice on the white margin of each sheet of stamps.

The office here is without any of the new twenty-cent light-blue stickers, but plenty of the other four new denominations, made necessary by the growth of the parcel-post business. The twelve-cent is especially useful for registered mail, which requires a ten-cent fee in addition to the two-cent letter postage. This stamp is maroon. The seven-cent is black, the nine-cent, pink, the thirty-cent, vermilion. All bear Franklin's head in profile, except the seven, which has Washington's head in profile. The stamps are the same shape as the old stamps, seven-eighths of an inch by nearly three-quarters of an inch.

Parcel-post stamps still may be used on all classes of mail, but their issue has been stopped. The supplies on hand will be used up, but no new requisitions will be made, the other kinds being used for the parcel-post work. The office here still has a substantial number, something like 100,000 of the twos; 45,000 threes; 65,000 fives, 25,000 fifteens, and a like number of twenties, and about 3,000 seventy-fives. Of the Panama series, the office here has the ones, twos, fives and tens available for use, when asked for.

In the fifteen years of Mr. Graham's service as cashier, he has never discovered a shortage of a single stamp in the number received.—Rochester Post Express.

PROBABLY CENTERED LEFT.

The popular and urbane cashier of the post-office announces the receipt of a fine stock of postage stamps of novel design in maroon and vermilion. They will be sold at the lowest possible price compatible with superior workmanship and satisfactory service.—Newspaper.

THE POSTAGE STAMPS OF SCHLESWIG-HOLSTEIN.

By BERTRAM W. H. POOLE.

Of all the stamps issued by what we now call the German States none are more complicated than those issued by the dual duchies of Schleswig and Holstein and yet, on the other hand, none delineate the chequered history of a troublous period more clearly. The catalogues generally divide the stamps into three groups—the issues for Schleswig and Holstein, issues for Schleswig only, and issues for Holstein only. But though this rough and ready classification has some advantages it is far from being accurate and a collection of the stamps arranged by catalogue obviously fails to show the proper sequence of historical events.

Although the stamps themselves are simple and straightforward in the main it is fortunate that they have been extensively written up so that it is now possible to examine them from a historical point of view. While most of the articles available for reference have appeared in German periodicals an excellent one from the pen of Mr. G. B. Duerst will be found in the Philatelic Journal of Great Britain for 1898 and from this I have drawn largely for much of the following information. Much valuable material has also been gleaned from an exhaustive study of the two first stamps, written by the veteran Mons. L. Hanciau, and which appeared in the Monthly Journal in the later months of 1906.

The former duchies of Schleswig and Holstein, united with Lauenburg, now form a province of Prussia, just south of Denmark. The total area of the province is 7,273 square miles and it has a population of about one and a half millions, most of the inhabitants being of Low German stock.

At the dawn of history the duchies were inhabited by the Cimri, who were succeeded by the Angles, Jutes and Friscians; but the greater part of the Angles crossed over to England and their place was taken by the Danes. Then for a period of more than a thousand years Schleswig-Holstein, and Lauenburg, which politically belonged to them, were a continual bone of contention between Denmark and Germany. They were continually changing hands, now belonging to Denmark with the King of that country as their Duke, then being ruled by a German prince, or sometimes independent. To give even a brief resumé of all the happenings during this lengthy period of unrest would occupy far too much space but I think it will be interesting to record the most important events as outlined by Mr. Duerst, viz.:—

The first church built on Danish ground was erected at Schleswig in 850, the country evidently then belonging to Denmark. In 934, however it was ceded to Germany, and Henry I established it as a separate dependency under the name of "Danish Mark." The Emperor, Conrad II, gave the country back to Denmark in 1025. The Wendish tribes revolted and founded in 1066 a mighty empire under Kroko. This empire comprised Mecklenburg, Holstein, Schleswig, Lauenburg, Storman and Dithmarschen. The Emperor, Lothair, appointed, about the year 1230 or 1231, Duke Adolphus of Schauenburg, Duke of Holstein, whereas Schleswig was left with Denmark, and Lauenburg was given to Henry of Badewide. In 1459, Adolphus VIII, Duke of Schleswig and Holstein, died and his uncle, King Christian I of Denmark, (the first ruler of the Oldenburg line), was elected Duke of Schleswig and Holstein on the 5th of March, 1470. One of the principal clauses in the act of succession was "that these two countries should be undivided forever" (ewich tosammende ungedeelt). About the year 1500, however, King John divided the countries again, and his brother, Frederic, received Tondern, Hadersleben, Tyle, Steinburg, Trittow, Oldenburg, Plön and Kiel, whereas King John retained Flensburg, Sonderburg, Norburg, Hanrove, Rendsburg, Haseldorf, Apenrade and Segeberg, i. e. the northern portion. By the treaty of Roeskilde, in February, 1865, Schleswig and Holstein were declared to be independent of Denmark. This treaty, however, was never carried out, and the two duchies were sometimes united with Denmark, and sometimes independent, and under the rule of their own dukes. In 1720 England and France confirmed the conquest of Schleswig by the Danes, while Holstein was considered as belonging to the German Empire under the sovereignty of their own dukes. At the end of the Napoleonic troubles both duchies were left with Denmark, although it had been decided that only Schleswig should belong to Denmark. On the southern gate of Rendsburg there is to be found the inscription "Eidora Romani Terminus Imperii" meaning that the river Eider is to be the frontier of the Roman Empre, and the decision of dividing the two duchies was based on it. In 1846, the question arose whether Schleswig and Holstein should belong to Denmark or not, and when the Danish Congress petitioned the King to proclaim that Denmark, Schleswig, Holstein and Lauenburg should be one united monarchy, the German population of the three latter provinces appealed to the German people and expressed the wish to be free from Denmark, and to become independent duchies affiliated with Germany. An insurrection broke out in 1848, but was subdued by the Danes in 1851, and it was not until 1864 that the German Congress asked Prussia and Austria to interfere. The consequence of this step was the war of 1864, which ended by Denmark ceding Schleswig, Holstein and Lauenburg to the victors. These, however, could not agree altogether, sometimes the two duchies were governed by both, sometimes Schleswig by Prussia, and Holstein by Austria. The war of 1866 between Austria and Prussia left the three duchies with Prussia.

The currency in Schleswig and Holstein was the mark courant, of Hamburg, which was divided into 16 schillinge and had a value of about 28c. In Lauenburg the currency was that of Mecklenburg, in which 48 schillinge were the equivalent of a thaler of three marks, or 72c in United States money. The Danish money was also used, in which 96 skilling were equal to a rigsbankdaler, worth about 54c. Four skilling Danish were, therefore, equivalent to 1¼ schillinge of Schleswig-Holstein and 1½ schillinge of Lauenburg.

The illustrations are large and clear. There are no less than 15 for the 1861 issue. The cog wheel punch, triangles and capped "2's" are finely pictured. The manner in which the five dies of the 1853 envelope is treated is alone worth the price of subscription, while the collecting of Reays and Plymptons is made as easy as rolling off a log. were those of the Provisional Government which appeared in 1850 and the last series appeared in 1866. Although, therefore, the philatelic history occupies the comparatively short period of sixteen years so many were the changes of government, as related in the foregoing historical sketch, that the stamps should really be considered in eight separate periods as follows:—

A. Schleswig-Holstein. (Provisional Government; seat of government at Rendsburg) Nov. 15th, 1850-Feb. 1st, 1851.

B. Schleswig-Holstein. (Danish Government). Feb. 1st, 1851-March 1st, 1864.

C. Schleswig. (Governed by Commissioners appointed by Prussia and Austria; seat of government at Flensburg). Feb. 20th, 1864-January 24th, 1865.

D. Holstein. (Governed by Commissioners appointed by Prussia and Austria; seat of government at Kiel). March 1st, 1864-Jan. 24th, 1865.

E. Schleswig and Holstein. (Governed by Prussia and Austria combined; seat of government at Flensburg). Jan. 24th, 1865-October 31st, 1865.

F. Schleswig. (Governed by Prussia). Nov. 1st, 1865-Nov. 1st, 1866.

G. Holstein. (Governed by Austria). Nov. 1st, 1865-Nov. 1st, 1866.

H. Schleswig and Holstein united with Prussia. Nov. 1st, 1866.

Period A. Provisional Government of Schleswig-Holstein.

In 1848, the duchies of Schleswig and Holstein revolted from the rule of Denmark and it was only after a struggle lasting for three years that Frederic VII was able to quell the insurrection. In spite of the constant warfare the revolutionary government, the seat of which was established successively at Rendsburg, Schleswig, and Kiel, found time to consider the issuing of postage stamps. In 1849, the Director of Posts was sent to Germany and Belgium to study postal matters in those countries and find out how a postal system could be best adapted to fit the needs of Schleswig-Holstein. The information he obtained was of a sufficiently satisfactory nature to induce the Department of Finance to propose a law for the introduction of postage stamps. This scheme was unanimously accepted by the National Assembly on March 26th, 1850 and on April 3rd, following, a law was passed in which the chief provisions were as follows:—

Article 1.—The Department of Finance is authorised to have manufactured stamps or "Postschillinge," by the affixing of which upon letters the latter may be franked, in accordance with the directions laid down in the tariff of postal charges. These stamps are to bear the Arms of Schleswig-Holstein.

Article 2.—Whoever shall

(1) With fraudulent intent manufacture "Postschillinge" or forge them, and employ the forged "Postschillinge" for the franking of letters, or cause it to be done by others;

(2) In collusion with the author of the fraud, or with his assistance employ, or cause to be employed by others, such "Postschillinge" for the franking of letters, shall be punished with imprisonment with hard labor, not exceeding five years.

Whoever shall knowingly employ, or cause to be employed by others, for the franking of letters, imitations or falsifications of the "Postschillinge" without collusion with the author of the fraud or his aid, will incur a penalty of imprisonment with hard labor for one year.

The above law made no mention of the actual values or the colors of the stamps it was proposed to issue but in the Postal Gazette for November 9th, 1850, the public were informed of the forthcoming issue as follows:—

Notice of the introduction of the Stamps for franking letters styled "Postschillinge."

In execution of the law relating to the introduction of stamps for the franking of letters, etc., dated April 2nd, 1850, Art. 1, the following instructions are brought to the knowledge of the general public and ordained for the compliance of the postal officials:—

(1) From the 15th November of this year there will be placed on sale at the postoffices stamps for the franking of letters "Postschillinge." These stamps will bear the Arms of Schleswig-Holstein, the inscription POSTSCHILLING, and, on a white ground, the letters S and H, and numerals denoting the values represented by stamps in schilling of the currency of Schleswig-Holstein.

The franking stamps of the value of 1 schilling are blue
2 schilling are red

and are pierced lengthwise by a blue silk thread, and are provided with gum on the reverse side, for the purpose of attaching them.

(2) Only letters (not the packets and envelopes which belong to the transport post) may be franked by means of stamps. The franking is effected by affixing as many "Postschillinge" as amount to the charge under the tariff on the address side of the letter, in the left upper corner, by means of moistening the gum which will be found on the back of the stamps. Letters franked in this way may be deposited in the letter boxes, as may also unfranked letters; registered letters should in future, as heretofore, be handed in at the Postoffice window. In order to render the postal tariff more accessible to all, the lists of charges are posted up at the side of the window and of the letter boxes, and copies are also for sale at all post-offices at 1 schilling.

(3) In the case of letters which have not been sufficiently franked by senders, the stamps which are affixed to them will not be taken into consideration, but the total charge must then be paid by the receivers. If more than the required charge according to the tariff, is paid by the stamps affixed, the sender will suffer the loss. When a stamp has been used once it loses its value.

(4) None but the postal officials and the persons duly authorised by the higher postal authorities may sell the franking stamps.

NOTES ON THE STAMPS OF SWEDEN.

By Baron E. G. E. Leijonhufvud.

Issue in Figures, 1872-7.

Special dies were engraved for each of the values of this issue, and there are consequently as many types as there are values. They were also printed in sheets of two hundred in each complete or double sheet. This issue shows a number of type errors and differences caused by the wear of the plates. The most common is one to four dots in front of the word "Frimarke" or after "Ore." A part of the plate has evidently been damaged and a new piece put in; in filing off the screws some unevenness has been left, which is the cause of the dots. The shading of some of the figures is caused by worn plates. Originally the plate had only the outline of the white figures, but as the plates became worn the cut-out bottom of the figures has touched both the colour and the paper. The paper was still the same, and the watermark similar with the exception of the lines in the edging, which are absent. The perforation is still 14. There are 3, 5, 6, 12, 20, 24, 30, 50 öres and 1 riksdaler. They have all several shades, the most marked being the wellknown 6 öre, grey. The 12 öre is seen printed from plates so worn that the circular line which surrounds the centre part has nearly vanished and the figures have become very thick. In this issue the word for twenty is spelt differently to what it was in the two first issues; it is spelt "Tjugu," instead of, as formerly, "Tjugo." The 30 öre is now spelt "Tretio" instead of "Trettio." The 50 öre has two distinct shades. The 1 riksdaler is printed in two colours, and each sheet had consequently to pass through the press twice. The middle part with the three crowns is frequently out of position. The 4 öre, grey, appears in 1877. The type of the figure "4" is different from any other, and as it was only printed twice there are not many shades.

Second Series of "Figure" Stamps, 1877-86.

The principal difference between this and the first is the perforation, which now is 13. The errors in the type which we have commented on in the first issue occur again in this. The colours in the 20 and 24 öre are frequently so changed as to cause surprise; and many official documents exist referring to the supposed falsification of these stamps. The truth is, however, that the gum and the quality of the colour (lead colour was used) are to blame for these changes. The 3 öre has several shades, and is known imperforate, the 4, 5 and 6 have only darker and lighter shades of grey, green and violet. This issue has no grey 6 öres, but imperforate specimens are known.

The well-known and quite authentic error 20/30 occurs in this issue; the mistake has probably taken place in the following way: one of the plates has been damaged, and when replacing it with a good one the frame of the 30 öre (the plates were in sections) came to be inserted by mistake. When comparing the frames of the 20 öre and the 30 öre, we can distinctly see that this is the way the mistake has occurred, as every detail of the 30 öre plate corresponds with the frame of the error. According to Mr. Holmberg there were 6,000 sheets printed with one error in each sheet, of which printing 182 sheets became useless and were destroyed, leaving 5,818 good sheets. This print was delivered on December 19th, 1879, but was not sent out to the various post offices until January, 1880. The error was discovered in February, 1880, when 1,582 sheets had been sent out. The Postmaster-General immediately ordered all the sheets to be sent back, but we do not know how many were kept contrary to order and sold to collectors. On March 31, 1880, 4,848 errors were burnt, leaving 970 out in circulation. There is no way of ascertaining how many of these remain in existence. A great number had been used on postal orders, and as the Government found the stamps had become valuable it sold a parcel of such orders, from which the majority of these stamps now in collections no doubt originate.

The 1 riksdaler was printed only once, 1877. The change in coinage took place in 1873, but the 1 riksdaler remained in use until 1879. When the change from riksdaler to 1 krona took place the centre of the 1 krona stamp was probably produced by altering the engraving, but using the same plates as were used for the centre of the 1 riksdaler. The frame is, however, a new production, and the two frame-lines are closer together than in the riksdaler; the stars in the ring are smaller and occupy different positions; finally, the loops in the "S" in "Sverige" are closer than in any of the other values. The shading was at first like the riksdaler shading, but later printings show both a different brown and blue colour.

10 Ore, Red, 1885-6.

This stamp, which is the first to have the head of the reigning king, was issued in connection with the reduction in postage which had been decided upon in November, 1884. It is typographed and has a very pale carmine colour. There was a lot of trouble with the printing of these stamps, and after a number of complaints had been made as regards the paper, a thin kind was tried, which, however, proved worse than the previous ones. When gumming and perforating this print, nearly the whole issue became useless and had to be destroyed; consequently very few of the thin ones came into circulation. There are stamps on bluish paper and stamps printed on a kind of cream paper.

The Series with Posthorn on Back, 1886-1900.

This series has all the values of the previous one except the 12 and 24 öres. To this came a new value, 2 öre, for inland wrappers. The posthorn was to help the Postal Authorities to check off the stamps, and was put into practice when the printing firm also commenced to supply the paper. Formerly the Post Office supplied the paper and the contractor had to pay the full value of a lost sheet. The paper was now prepared at a private paper factory "Klippan," and the small posthorns were printed on the back of the sheet in such a way as to ensure one horn on each stamp. The edging has eight larger posthorns, three on each side. There is very little to say about the different shades of the various values. They exist, but are not very marked, with the exception of the 50 öre, red. From 1891 this stamp shows a very deep carmine, so powerful that the design is visible on the back of the stamp.

Of the 10 öre, several were let into circulation imperforate. The one "krona," light brown and blue, continued to be issued with the posthorn long after the rest of the series had been replaced by new stamps. This was only caused by a desire to make use of the paper in stock. The 2 öre, yellow, was printed from the 24 öre plates after the centre had been taken away and a new centre made from a copper-engraved die with the new value inserted. The differences we notice in the figure are caused by the lack of care when producing the die, and the spots before "Sverige" and after "Ore" are caused by unsuccessful efforts to "doctor" part of a defective plate. We have also specimens where the outer centre ring is broken and which was caused by careless soldering of the new middle piece to the old frames. Two printings were made of this stamp in 1891 and 1892. The first print has a number of sheets with a slightly darker colour.

In 1889 the Postal Authorities decided to use up the large stock of the old 12 and 24 öre stamps in their possession and to surcharge them in a dark colour "Tio öre" and a design to hide the old value. They were surcharged in blue and the entire print was made on stamps of perforation 13. The 10/12 was issued in numbers about ten times as numerous as the 10/24 (correct figures 1,957,000, 204,400); the 10/24 has two different shades like the original issue.

A new design was brought out, 1892, for all the lower values (2, 3, and 4 öre), and a new value, the 1 öre, was added. They were printed on the same kind of paper as the line-engraved stamps issued the year before. The frame is the same for each value. For the 1 öre and 3 öre the first printing was done at the same time, as the brown colour permitted this. The second colour was printed in afterwards. Inverted watermarks are known in all the four values. Of the 1 öre, brown and blue, there are a few imperforate sheets known to have got into circulation. The 2 öre has several shades on account of the great many printings. I have seen no imperforate 2 öres. The 3 öre varies very slightly in shade. This value was considered unnecessary already, 1896, and the printing stopped. When, however, the 15 öre stamp was issued shortly afterwards and together with the 3 öre could be used for international postal orders (maximum 25fr), the printing of these stamps commenced again in 1897 and continued until 1903. The 8 öre had by this time made its appearance and could with the 10 öre serve the same purpose.

4 öre, carmine and blue, was the first of the new "Figure" stamps to be issued. At first the colour was a clear carmine, but after 1895 the stamps were printed with the same aniline carmine which penetrated the paper (as in the 50 öre, posthorn, 1891, and the 50 and 10 öre Official of 1892) and made the stamp look blurred. The blue has various shades, and the stamp is known imperforate, though very few copies came into circulation.

Line-engraved Stamps, 1891.

Of these stamps, the finest as regards workmanship of the Swedish stamps, the 5 and 20 öres were the first to be issued, then came the 10 öre, and after that the rest of the series. They were printed in sheets of 200 in each, and the watermark was a Crown in each stamp and the words "KUNGLIGA POSTVERKET" in large letters on each side of the frame. Inverted watermarks are found in all values except the 1 krona. The first print was very dark green, then came a short period of printing with worn plates which made the stamps pale green. The latest print became blue-green. They were issued in 1896, and caused some trouble by being mistaken for 20 öre, blue, when seen by artificial light. This caused an order to print the 5 öres in yellow-green, and they appeared early in 1897. Two or three sheets of the dark-green ones got into circulation imperforate by a genuine mistake in 1893, and are rare stamps. One of the most interesting genuine errors occurs among these 5 öres. When preparing to print the 30 öre, brown, in 1891, a proof printing of the colour was made before the previously printed 5 öre plates had been removed. The stamps printed thus became 5 öres in brown colour. By mistake one of these sheets later on came into the pile of 30 öres awaiting gumming and perforation, and the control clerk did not notice the mistake. With every new issue the first stamps ready are sent to the foreign post offices, and it was the officials in Berlin who noticed the error and sent word about it to Stockholm; it was then found on investigation that many similar errors had been sent to different general post offices. These would not part with the errors, and the Post Office in Berlin asked for two more copies, which were sent. There are now seven copies left in Stockholm, and they are most jealously guarded. One single copy came into private hands through a very high official in the post office, but this fact was not disclosed until after his death. His copy came into Professor Lindstrom's possession; only a few days ago I received information that I can have it for a large sum. The 10 öre, carmine, was at first dark, later on it appeared in lighter shades. Imperforate 10 öres have twice been sent out by mistake; it is supposed that 300 sheets of 100 stamps in each came out. A few of these imperforate 5 öres and 10 öres passed through the post and were poststamped in the ordinary way. They are not now allowed to be used for postage because of the unofficial letting out of some sheets of nearly all the King Oscar values in 1897. The 20 öre, blue, has several shades. The imperforate unofficial sheets that came out were from one of the latest printings. The 30 öre was issued 1891, and has a few variations in shade. The 50 öre was first printed in dark-grey colour, afterwards it appears in grey-lilac and blue-grey. As it was difficult to distinguish it from the 20 öre, blue, by artificial light, it was later altered to grey-brown. The 5 öre of 1906-7 did not at first turn out very yellow-green, but having once appeared in that shade it has kept its colour without much variation; the previously referred to unofficial imperforation is not rare in pairs or even small blocks, but there are not many complete sheets or large blocks. The 15 öre is brown and red-brown. Only a very few imperforate came out, probably only one sheet of 100. The 25 öre, orange, shows barely any differences in shading. The one sheet imperforate that was smuggled out has made even a pair of this stamp rare. Of the 8 öre there are three distinct shades, the latest print being red-violet. The sheet of 100 stamps in my collection are the only ones that were let out imperforate.

The 1 krona King Oscar shows different shades in the carmine, but the grey colour is without any marked shades. It occurs imperforate, but is rare. The 5 kronor stamp was issued 1903, and being of the same size as the Official stamps, there was only room for fifty in each sheet. The watermark is the usual Crown, only two of them standing on end, one above the other, and no inverted watermarks have been found. The 50 öre, brown-grey, previously referred to, came into circulation 1904; we find two shades, brown-grey and green-grey.—London Philatelist.

THE POSTAGE STAMPS OF SCHLESWIG-HOLSTEIN.

By BERTRAM W. H. POOLE.

Period A—Continued.

On the same day a further official notice was published for the instruction of postal officials and this is by no means uninteresting. Article 1 states that the stamps are printed "80 upon a quarto sheet" and that the post-offices must never be without a stock of stamps sufficient to last for fifteen days. It is also expressly stipulated that each office is responsible for the amount of stamps in its possession. Article 3 states that the post-offices must take care that the letters are sufficiently franked, see that the stamps are genuine and have not been used before. After this careful examination the officials were instructed to obliterate the stamps (the word schwarzen, "blacken," is used). Article 4 relates to the providing of each office with a distinctive numbered cancelling stamp. These numbers ran from 1 to 42.

The set, as will be seen from the foregoing official documents, consisted of but two denominations—1 and 2 schilling. Both are alike in design and show the Arms of the duchies of Schleswig and Holstein together in a shield, impressed in plain relief, within an oval which covers the body of a double headed eagle with wings outspread. The eagle is in color and rests upon a horizontally lined ground within a rectangular frame. In the upper corners are small uncolored ovals containing the letters "S" and "H" respectively (these of course being the initial letters of the names of the two duchies), while corresponding ovals in the lower angles contain the numerals of value. Above the central oval is "POST" and below is "SCHILLING" these inscriptions extending over the eagle and being in large uncolored capitals. The Arms of Schleswig described in the orthodox heraldic manner are "Or, two lions passant, or Beopardy, azure," while those of Holstein are "Gules, a triangular escutcheon argent, coupé gules, supported at each side by three half leaves of holly argent, and accompanied by three Passion nails of the same, placed at even distances so that their points appear to pierce the angles of the escutcheon."

The dies were engraved on steel by M. Claudius, of Altona, and the stamps were printed at the works of Messrs. H. W. Köbner and L. Kuhl, of that city, in color on white wove paper, the Arms in the centre being in relief.

The stamps were printed in sheets of eighty, in ten rows of eight, upon "Dickenson" paper with a blue thread running vertically through each stamp. Owing to imperfect feeding of the paper in the printing press the silk thread does not always appear in the centre of the stamps as was intended, but may frequently be found at one of the sides. This paper was obtained from the same manufacturers that supplied similar paper for the Bavarian stamps.

A variety of the 2sch is recorded with a dot after the numeral "2" in the right lower corner but what its position was in the sheet I am unable to say. A die and plate for a 3 schilling stamp was also prepared but this was never used.

The dies were finished by M. Claudius and the blocks necessary for the printing plates were ready by October 20th, 1850. As a precaution against counterfeiting somewhat elaborate methods were used in manufacturing these stamps and on this point I cannot do better than quote from the excellent description provided by M. Rosenkranz viz:—

The stamps were separated from one another by a space of 1 mm., and were produced by three successive processes.

The sheet first received an impression from a plate of 80 cliches of an underprint, of an Eagle in light blue or light red according to the value. This Eagle was engraved on steel, and from the original die two lots of eighty clichés were prepared and arranged together in the form in which the stamps would appear on the sheets, thus making up two plates, one for the blue stamps and one for the red, or 160 clichés in all.

The second die contained the design of the stamp, and as the same Eagle appears again upon this, the Eagle was transferred to a steel die in such a way that the impression from the second plate should fit accurately upon that of the first. This die was etched, and upon it were engraved the lines of the background and the inscriptions 'POST' and 'SCHILLING,' while the four small ovals in the corners were left blank. Then 160 clichés were produced from this steel die and were made up into plates of eighty, and finally there were engraved upon each cliché the letters 'S' and 'H' in the upper ovals and the figures '1' or '2' in the lower. There are thus eighty different types of each of the two values. These additions were made by means of punches, which impressed the outlines of the letters and figures into the comparatively soft metal of the clichés, and the surrounding parts of the ovals were then cut away, for the differences are recognizable but exceedingly minute. I have never seen an entire sheet, but I have examined some fairly large blocks of stamps which enable me to affirm that this engraving was not done upon a few clichés made from the original die, and then the remaining clichés produced by reduplicating these matrices, but that the engraving was done separately upon each of the eighty.

Although excellent register was kept in the printing, close examination shows that here and there the colour of the first printing appears at one side or the other of the central oval.

The third printing produced the embossed Arms in the oval in the center. The Coat of Arms was engraved in relief on a slightly convex steel die, and from this eighty brass clichés were struck, which were burnished and then arranged in a plate for the embossing. The steel die in relief was made somewhat convex as otherwise the central design would not impress itself sufficiently clearly in the brass clichés. All the stamps, both 1 and 2 schilling, were embossed with the same plate. The Arms are not always set exactly in the middle of the oval; at times they are too much to the right or left. Even in the case of unsevered copies the position of the Arms within the oval is not always the same; it must therefore be supposed that when the brass clichés were soldered together, sufficient care was not taken in their exact arrangement.

The printers were under contract to furnish two millions of stamps in all and these were supplied in four consignments as follows:—

Nov. 1, 1850—80,000	1sch,	40,000	2sch
Nov. 25, 1850—20,000	1sch,	20,000	2sch
Dec. 24, 1850—100,000	1sch,	100,000	2sch
Feb. 14, 1851—1,100,000	1sch,	540,000	2sch

Altogether, therefore, 1,300,000 of the 1 schilling blue were printed and 700,000 of the 2 schilling rose. The cost of the dies, matrices, and other materials required was 1,000 marks (about $290), while the charge for printing, pressing, gumming and packing was 10sch per 1,000 which amounted to 1,250 marks or about $360.00.

Although so many stamps were printed, a comparatively small number were sold and of these not all seem to have been used. According to the official records stamps to a total face value of 1,599 marks 2 schilling were sold and 8,701 letters were franked with the stamps. This accounts for the greater rarity of these stamps in used condition.

Period B—Danish Government.

Although the Provisional Government passed a law amending the postal rates under which new stamps of the value of 1/10sch would be necessary, before these could be issued the insurrection was suppressed by the Danes. The Provisional Government was dissolved on February 1st, 1851, and a law was passed on April 18th following according to which Danish postage stamps were to be used in the duchies. The revolutionary stamps were, however, permitted to be used until the end of August when the large remainders were sent to Copenhagen, together with the dies, plates and all postal documents. No special stamps were used during this period of Danish rule.

Period C—Schleswig; Governed by Commissioners appointed by Austria and Prussia.

Schleswig and Holstein being regarded as belonging to the German Confederation, the Congress of Frankfurt in 1863 authorised Austria and Prussia as the two principal German powers to force Denmark to evacuate the two duchies. Denmark refused to be coerced and the war of 1864 resulted. Denmark was badly defeated and the two duchies thus fell into the hands of the victors. The allied forces of Austria and Prussia occupied Flensburg on February 7th, 1864, and no time was lost in superseding the Danish postage stamps. A notice was published from Flensburg on March 14th, 1864, announcing the issue of a 4sch stamp for Schleswig, viz:—

To replace the postage stamps inscribed in the Danish language hitherto employed in the Duchy of Schleswig, new postage stamps with the inscription "HERZOGTHUM SCHLESWIG" (Duchy of Schleswig) will be put into circulation. The post offices in the Duchy of Schleswig will at first sell only stamps of the value of 4 schillinge printed in rose on white paper.

Shortly afterwards this notice was followed by another announcing the issue of the 1¼sch stamps on the following April 1st. The reason for the issue of the two stamps is that the first of them was in Danish currency, and was objected to on that account. The new one in Hamburg currency was at once ordered to take its place; but not being ready in time the 4sch stamp was issued and continued in use for only sixteen days. This value is consequently much the scarcer used.

Both stamps were manufactured at the State Printing Works in Berlin, and are similar to each other in design. This shows the numerals of value in large figures on an upright oval ground of solid color. This is enclosed within an engine turned oval band inscribed "HERZOGTH. SCHLESWIG" at top, and "SCHILLINGE" (for the 4sch) or "SCHILLING" (for the 1¼sch) at the base. The stamps were embossed in color on white wove paper and were printed in sheets of 100 arranged in ten rows of ten.

For some unexplained reason Gibbons' catalogue gives 1865 as the date of issue of these two stamps.

AUCTION SALE AT CONVENTION.

A decided innovation at the coming convention of the American Philatelic Society at Niagara Falls will be the holding of an Auction Sale, not a small informal sale but one of the regular city kind with a printed catalogue and a licensed auctioneer. This will give members from the smaller towns an opportunity to see just how such a sale is conducted and should prove not only extremely attractive, but also an educational feature. The time for holding the sale has been arranged so that it will not conflict in any way with the Society's sessions, and the enterprising western dealer who has the matter in charge, can be depended upon to make this feature a great success.

The Stamp Bourse which was inaugurated as a part of the convention program a few years ago will also have prominence this summer and share honors with the Auction Sale insofar as the buying and selling of stamps is concerned.—H. C. Barr.

A BRIEF EXPLANATION OF THE STAMPS OF THE REBEL OR CONSTITUCIONAL GOVERNMENT OF MEXICO AND THE STATE OF SONORA.

By GEORGE WARD LINN.

A great many collectors do not understand the various issues of postage stamps which have been used by the rebels in Mexico. I am giving below a simplified list of all varieties known to me. By listing only the marked minor varieties this list will be of considerable assistance to the average collector.

The first issues of type set stamps which are called Sonoras were issued by the State of Sonora, Mexico, at the time it seceded from Mexico and set up and declared itself independent from Mexico, (just as the southern states did in this country prior to the civil war).

The Ejercito Issue was issued for revenue use only but the supply of postage stamps having become exhausted, these stamps were sold at the post offices in strips of ten stamps with the talons removed, for postal use. The same stamps with talons on were sold at the revenue offices and it is only natural that some people through ignorance would use stamps which were bought for revenue use on their correspondence as stamps for both purposes were alike. Also note that the Ejercito (Army) issue was issued by the Constitucionalist Army for the purpose of raising money; the army also issued its own money in the form of script. At this period the government was almost entirely military and this explains the reason for these stamps.

As the constitucionalists succeeded in their battles with the Federals their territory became larger and they soon controlled much more than the state of Sonora and therefore needed stamps other than state stamps and the quantity needed was much greater than the local printer could handle and it was found necessary to secure them elsewhere. Then we have the Transitorio issue which bears the word Mexico, showing as we have read in the newspapers for some time, that the rebels claimed the country.

The battle of Torreon was on April 2, and on April the 4th, Carranza and his chiefs met at Juarez for a big celebration and fete day and the current Transitorio issue was overprinted and sold on this one day only and only at Juarez. There should be no doubt as to the legitimacy of this issue.

About this time, I heard and noticed that the current 5c Transitorio was becoming exhausted, and it was on account of this shortage that they issued the 5c perforated Transitorio, a supply of which had been sent them some time previously as samples.

At the battle of Torreon a quantity of the Federal Mexican Stamps of all values had been captured and were being sold for use on international mail but owing to the shortage in the Transitorio set then in use, it was found necessary to use these stamps for local postage and because of the fact that there were known to be Huerta sympathizers in various parts of the rebel territory and that they had supplies of the federal stamps, these stamps were marked with a rubber stamp with the letters GCM interlaced in a monogram.

For some time prior to this, a new set had been announced and looked for and it has just made its appearance. The set of revenues which appeared sometime ago was mistaken by some people for the new postage stamps, but they were not sold for postage purposes, although I have seen copies of the 5c which were used on cover and are not made to order.

Taken as a whole these stamps are all clean and free from any speculative taint and deserve the attention of collectors as much as any stamps ever issued.

Every collector has at one time or another wished to plate a sheet. Here we all have the opportunity and it does not require any guesswork.

SIMPLIFIED CHECK LIST.

Sonora and Constitucional Mexico.

So many collectors have written me requesting a simplified list of Sonoras that I feel that I am supplying a want in preparing the list which is given below.

In this list I am paying no attention to the plating of the various stamps and am only listing distinct minor varieties. No attention is paid to the varieties which are only distinguishable by the paper or by plating and careful comparison with similar stamps.

To those who want a representative collection of these stamps this list will serve as an accurate guide and even at that there are a few of the stamps listed below which are real rarities.

It is my intention to write an exhaustive list of these stamps and publish in book form. However, it is yet too early to do this as new varieties of considerable interest are appearing or are being found in the early issues almost every week.

There are but three different types of the Sonora issues.

Type I. With heavy, thick figure of value.

Type II. With medium, wide, roman type figure of value.

Type III. With thin gothic figure of value.

All of these types are also in the values with the green seal added.

22. 2c purple.
23. 5c brown.
25. 20c green.

Note—The values in this set run to 1 peso, but it is doubtful if any above the 20c were legitimately, postally used. The 5c value was used extensively with the talon. The other values are known used with the talon also all values are known used with the talon and without, and having the district revenue overprint. Collectors should be very careful in buying this issue as many copies on cover are doubtful as regards their having been properly used.

MONTEREY ISSUE.

CORREO CONSTITUCIONALISTA ISSUE.

Description—This is what is called the Denver issue. From the way the revenues printed in Denver came on the market it would be advisable to hold off buying this issue until the printer sells out his stock.

EDITORIAL.

The Permanent Set—Elsewhere we print an account of the preparation and issue of the permanent set of the Constitucional stamps at Denver that has been submitted by Mr. Turner, "our correspondent on the spot." We have known Mr. Turner favorably for some time and we place reliance on his words. The explanations given by him will clarify the atmosphere of the doubt that has been hovering over these stamps and will allow collectors to understand some circumstances that have proved puzzling to them.

Official Authorization—From the Economist Stamp Company, New York City, we have received a copy of the official notice authorizing the preparation of the G. C. M. surcharges on the regular issue of Mexico, together with a translation of it. The clipping bears an impression of the overprint which has been applied to the stamps. We shall not give the English version of the notice here as it is incorporated in one of Mr. Linn's articles elsewhere in our columns.

Express Cancellation—We have seen an interesting cover that was received in Chicago and which bore the five centavos federal Mexican stamp with the cancellation in an oval "Compana De Express, S. A. —guagitas, Coah., Mex." At the left of the Mexican stamp and partly covering up the express cancellation is a two cent current United States, postmarked "Eagle Pass, Texas, March 2, 1913." The express company delivered the letter to Eagle Pass where it was franked with a U. S. stamp for carriage to Chicago as when the envelope was in the hands of the express company, it was "out of the mails."

A Welcome Work—We have received a copy of the bound book, "All About Postage Stamps," by Fred. J. Melville, (President of the Junior Philatelic Society) and published by the J. B. Lippincott Company, Philadelphia at $1.50 net. There are thirty-two plates in this book of about 260 pages, tastefully bound in cloth, gold and white on maroon, with a copy of the ideal postage stamp of the International Stamp Exhibition actually pasted on a tablet in recess on the cover. We shall review the work in the new issue of the WEEKLY.

No Prize Offered—"If you care to offer a prize for the best solution to this problem of philatelic conduct, you have my permission to do so," writes a generous soul. "I visited a neighbor collector one evening recently and looked over his loose duplicates, among other things and was about to leave when he interrupted my pretty speech of thanks for his entertainment by saying somewhat coldly that it was odd but that he found that a certain Cayman, a country in which I am especially interested, by the way, had mysteriously disappeared. I was much nettled by his tone and burst forth with the assertion that under no possibility could I have his stamp. If he meant to accuse me of taking the stamp said I in high dudgeon, well and good; and suddenly I threw a bill on the table and departed from the amazed and speechless one-time friend but stranger now. When I got home I found the Cayman between the folds of the French cuff of my shirt. Now I am in a quandary. Shall I swallow my chagrin and open up communications with my whilom friend or consider the incident closed? I suppose that if I returned the stamp, my bill would be sent me." The course of action would all depend upon the value of stamp and the denomination of the bill, we should say.

Our Sympathy—We have received the following letter from Mrs. Amparo A. de Mora, 2538 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.: "I have the sad duty to inform you that Raphael Mora, the 'cheerful philatelist' whose letter and photograph appeared in your paper in the month of November, 1913, passed away on June 9th after a lingering illness. If it is not asking too much, I would appreciate your conveying this information to other stamp collector readers of your paper who so kindly sent him stamps at the time of his appeal to you. To the last, he took the greatest interest in his collection and handled it with loving care and appreciation." We published last November the picture of Raphael Mora as that of a "shut-in" who found that stamp collecting softened his affliction. At the same time, we printed a letter from Mr. Mora that reflected so heroic a soul and unselfish a spirit in the face of protracted and complete invalidism that we were impressed deeply; and in commenting on the circumstances at the time, we called Mr. Mora, the "cheerful philatelist." Many of our readers responded liberally to our suggestion that Mr. Mora be remembered "before Christmas;" and they may feel that they have lightened the burdens of a fellow man and have brought joy to one who knew how to suffer.

Roller Grilles—An old-time stamp handler of New York City, Mr. Hugo Kuenstler, has shown us sketches of roller grilles on the three, ten and twelve cent of 1870, from the Collectors' Ledger of June, 1888. He says that he found the stamps showing the grilles in question in a large lot of United States stamps about 1886. The ten cent has the grille covering over three-quarters of the stamp vertically while the three cent stamp is half covered by the points. The twelve cent has several rows of the indentations extending in from the entire length of the right edge of the stamp. In recent years the roller grilles have attracted attention from the specialist and they are probably in demand by the several collectors who, we understand, are making studies of the United States grilles.

Turned to Advertising Advantage—A reader has shown us an envelope bearing at right a half-tone of the four dollar Wells Fargo and Company Pony Express local, with the explanatory text: "The kind of stamp that Wells Fargo used to issue—Pony Express, 1859-60. Used on letters and packages in the days of the early west. Now valued highly by collectors." The further announcement is made on the face of the envelope: "This envelope contains 12 (2 sets) of the Express Poster Stamps recently issued by Wells Fargo and Company Express. They were designed exclusively for the occasion by well known artists. The collecting of Poster stamps and their general circulation on the backs of letters and express packages has already become an extensive enthusiasm in Europe." Etc. The labels, six in number, are on one sheet and show the successive modes of express transportation, beginning with the clipper ship of 1854. The Pony Express, 1859, was termed the "most romantic" way but even in 1852, there were over a thousand stage coaches in the company's service. Today, the company "operates over 70,000 miles of railroad lines." Surely, many roads lead to philately.

An Old Way-Bill—Mr. E. P. Morehouse, Williamstown, Mass., writes: "While overhauling a lot of old papers, I came across a few way bills for letters sent when I was postmaster and send you one of them.....The way bills were used by all post offices in my time and were discontinued when prepayment of postage by stamps was made compulsory." This way-bill is for "letters from Menasha, Wis.," and bears the printed name of Mr. Morehouse as postmaster. Under the "Paid Here" columns are columns showing payment "by stamps" and "in money."

The 1914-15 catalogues will have many sensational advances. British colonials in particular have been priced at figures nearer their value.

I can submit some very fine selections of these stamps including many of the high values. For months I have urged the purchase of the stamps of Papua and those who have taken my advice will be more than pleased when they see the new quotations. I still recommend their purchase and offer a very fine assortment in superb condition. Many fine blocks. Also varieties of watermark, paper and perforation. O. S. varieties in blocks and single.

STORY OF THE PERMANENT SET.

To THE EDITOR:

In the last, or July 11th, issue of the WEEKLY, in Mr. Kidder's New Issues' column, I note The Sterling Stamp Co., of Boston, are accredited with sending you a set of the new straight postage stamps recently issued by the Constitucionalista Government of Mexico. The comment which follows seems ultra-caustic and more in the nature of ridicule and discredit than a fair and impartial mention of a new and strictly legal issue. While I will not be drawn into any controversy, nor discuss it further after this communication, still the following facts exist. They should, I believe, be given publicity equal to your drastic comment, after which publication, I believe these Constitucionalista stamps will be given a status as unassailable as the virtue of Caesar's wife.

Notorious counterfeits of the Sonora issues made necessary a characteristic type of stamp less easy for the unscrupulous to imitate and after a conference of the Constitucionalista government chiefs an agreement was reached to produce a new issue. In northern Mexico no firm of engravers and printers existed who could do the character of work required, and it was, of course, out of the question to have the work done in Mexico City or any other Federal territory. A contract was awarded a small but reputable firm on this side of the border, who discovered their limitations on undertaking the work. On their recommendation, a noteworthy firm of engravers and printers in Denver was induced to take over the contract on a strictly commercial basis. A confidential Agent of the Constitucionalista government, who will hereinafter be referred to as the Agent, came on to Denver to supervise and direct the work, which he did very closely and most efficiently.

Suggested ideas for designs were incorporated into one characteristic design which was forwarded to Constitucionalista headquarters, was accepted and returned with instructions to proceed with the work, giving the number of each denomination required and the colors. The same design was used throughout the set, which consisted of 1, 2, 3, 5, 10, 15 and 50 centavo and 1 peso denominations, the different denominations being patched in as transfers were made from the engraving on the lithographer's stone to the zinc sheets for printing by the off-set process. Each large sheet contained 400 stamps and was subsequently cut in two, making sheets of 200 stamps in rows of 10 from top to bottom. In the design was a secret mark consisting of "Y-B," the initials of Ygnacios Bonilla, Constitucionalista Director of Posts.

As to the contract with the printers, which you state you would like to see, permit me to say that I happen to know it was peculiarly exacting and covered every possible contingency. It bore the personal signatures of generals Venustiano Carranza, Francisco Villa and those of several lesser chiefs and secretaries of departments of the Constitucionalista government. It was in every way a legal agreement for a new and regular issue of postage stamps by and for that government, stating the number of each and the color, the cost, method and place of delivery and the time such delivery should be made. Only my long personal acquaintance with a member of the Denver firm enables me to know this and permitted me to see the work on the stamps as it progressed. I could not have taken so unwarrantable a liberty as to openly ask for some of these stamps, though I did intimate that I would like to send some to the WEEKLY for mention. Though the Constitucionalista agent promised to consider it, he eventually though most courteously declined to permit it. Many Denver collectors were refused permission to see them and one who asked to photograph the stamps was told it could under no circumstances be permitted.

The Constitucionalista Agent was at hand during all of the work all of which was locked up at night and opened in his presence each morning. In making the transfers from the stone just enough transfer paper was counted out and accounted for when the transfers were made. When ready for the press run a certain number of gummed sheets were delivered the pressman, previously counted. All sheets, perfect and spoiled were accounted for after each run, imperfect ones being destroyed by the Agent. Furthermore, he saw the press-register, which showed the number of impressions, before and after each run, and knew exactly how many of each sheet or denomination had been printed.

On delivery to the bindery where the perforating was done, all sheets spoiled by bad perforations were accounted for and likewise destroyed in his presence. Each night all unfinished and finished work was locked up in boxes with combination padlocks. The Agent knew exactly what was put in each box and that it was there next morning when opened in his presence. I saw all of this personally, and it must be agreed that every precaution was employed both for his protection as well as the printers.

When the work was completed and ready for shipment, the sheets of stamps were again counted and packed in specially made heavy cardboard cartons each of which held 500 sheets. When these were sealed in the Agent's presence a printed paster was put on top of each box denoting in the Spanish language the number of sheets each box contained. These boxes or cartons were then put in specially built hardwood boxes or shipping cases which were wired, put under heavy insurance and shipped by express to El Paso. One of the cases contained the designs, lithographing stone and off-set press sheets used in printing. At El Paso the shipment was met by representatives of the Constitucionalista Post Office and Treasury departments and taken across the International Bridge to Juarez from which point and Chihuahua distribution was made to post offices. As the Constitucionalistas extended their operations south and gained new territory, further distribution was made, and I am informed several post offices were supplied from Monterey in the state of Nuevo Leon.

It must be considered that with railroad facilities almost obliterated, distribution was slowly made, much of it being overland by guarded pack trains. But little correspondence has come across the border at this time and naturally few of these stamps have been seen canceled. As to your statement that they have no standing in the international mails; neither, I believe, have the much sought Sonoras nor any other issues of the Constitucionalista government. Neither the Constitucionalista nor the Huerta, or present Mexican Federal governments have been recognized formally by this government; consequently the Constitucionalista stamps pay postage to the border from which postage must be paid by U. S. stamps to destination, although I believe no question has been raised as to the validity of Mexican Federal Government stamps.

Present indications are that the Carranzista or Constitucionalista government will soon control all of Mexico and will be internationally recognized. In this case there will be no question as to the validity of this issue and the demonetization of stamps, currency and coinage of the former government.

As to my connection with such of these stamps as have been offered for sale, there is really no mystery whatever. As I have before stated, my railroad connection makes necessary frequent trips to Texas over our own lines which terminate at Galveston, including trips over other lines which frequently take me to El Paso and Laredo. I have been fortunate enough to be able to purchase small quantities of these stamps and to arrange with connections in Sonora and Chihuahua for further supplies. It was a case of seizing the opportune moment and having definite information at hand; and if I am able to make a small, but legitimate profit, certainly no further explanations are necessary. So firmly am I convinced of the desirability of this issue that I have reinvested in further supplies. I should not undertake it again, however, considering the small return for the effort made.

This should certainly disprove all doubt and question as to the legality of this issue of postage stamps. Their sale does not "benefit Carranza's war-chest" any more than the sale of present United States stamps benefits Uncle Sam's war-chest. Thanking you in advance for publication of this letter, I am,

Very truly yours,
ROBERT A. TURNER,
Advertising Agent.

SHORT-PAID LETTERS FOR AUSTRALIA AND OTHER BRITISH COLONIES.

The Department continues to receive reports that many letters prepaid only two cents are mailed in the United States addressed to Australia, New Zealand, Bahamas, Jamaica and other British Colonies to which the Postal Union rate applies.

The only destinations to which the two cent letter rate applies are Canada, Cuba, Mexico, the Republic of Panama, Newfoundland, the Canal Zone, Germany (by direct steamers only), England, Scotland, Wales and Ireland, and the city of Shanghai, China. To all other places the rate is five cents for the first ounce or fraction of an ounce and three cents for each additional ounce or fraction of an ounce, which must be fully prepaid or the letters become liable on delivery to a charge of double the amount of the deficient postage.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents.

BRITISH GUIANA.—Whitfield King & Co. send us the 48c value in the new set, a bi-colored stamp of handsome appearance.

Adhesive.

48c black and brown violet.

DAHOMEY.—This Colony has been furnished with a new series of postage due stamps, the design and colors being the same as noted for French Guinea and Mauritania, in No. 1216, with the name of the Colony changed.

Postage Due Adhesives.

5c green.
10c carmine.
15c gray.
20c brown.
30c blue.
50c black.
1fr violet.

FRENCH INDIA.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us two values in the new series of stamps for this colony, with particulars as to the colors of the remainder of the stamps. The 3c is a large upright oblong, showing the three-headed Buddha on the sacred swan, with the cobra at the lower right, in a pillared frame. "RF" appears in a tablet in the upper left corner, and the value at the right, with "Postes" between. A large tablet at the bottom bears the inscription, "Etablissements—Francais—dans L'Inde." The other value shown us, the 45c, is of the same size, 35x21 mm., is an Eastern scene, with palm trees and two famous temples in the background. The value, "RF" and "Postes" appear at the left, with "Etablissements Francais" above and "dans L'Inde" below the picture. The frame is unusually wide, which makes the picture small for the size of the stamp. The paper is unwatermarked and the stamps perforated 14x13½. We give the complete list, though unable to give any designs except those noted above. All centres are in black.

Adhesives.

1c gray and black.
2c purple and black.
3c brown and black.
4c orange and black.
5c green and black.
10c carmine and black.
15c violet and black.
20c vermilion and black.
25c blue and black.
30c ultramarine and black.
35c brown and black.
40c vermilion and black.
45c green and black.
50c carmine and black.
75c blue and black.
1fr yellow and black.
2fr violet and black.
5fr blue and black.

GIBRALTAR.—Morocco Agencies.—The New England Stamp Co. has shown us the "6" pesetas" on 5sh carmine lake, chronicled in No. 1229, with a distinct double impression of the surcharge, one being an Albino.

JAPAN.—Offices in China.—We are informed by Whitfield King & Co. that the 1s, 25s and 1y stamps on the new watermarked granite paper have been seen overprinted as usual for use in China.

MEXICO.—Hermann Focke has shown us the 5c, 25c and 1p values in the United States—Mexico series of revenue stamps in use at Vera Cruz. All have talons and are wretchedly printed.

International Revenues.

5c dark blue.
10c dark red brown.
25c yellow green.
1p dark green.

In addition to the above Mr. Focke reports having seen the 1c, 2c and 10c values of the 1910 regular issue, overprinted "Gobierno—Constitutionalista," all with and without the error, first "T" in "Constitutionalista" omitted.

W. J. Stanton sends the following letter, which casts an interesting side light on some recent philatelic history in Mexico, and was written at Hermosillo, the Constitutionalist capitol, under date of June 4.

"As you may know, when the rebels took Torreon they found at the post office federal centennial stamps, in all, a lot of more or less $2,500 Mex silver. As the post offices in the state of Sonora were out of the following values 1, 2, 3, and 4 centavo constitutionalist stamps, the whole lot was sent here, are to be used until the new constitutionalist postal stamps are delivered, which is expected will be on or about June 15. Of that lot I bought all that came of the values of 10, 15, 20, 50 and $1."

He also stated that these G C M surcharges were to be used only in the state of Sonora. Mr. Stanton adds: "From this it will be seen that none of the values above the 5 centavo were offered to the public, and the sale of these values has the appearance of a speculation with the assistance of some one in authority. The 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 centavo values were sent to several offices to supply a deficiency in those values and are free from speculative taint. The supply lasted but a few days, and from some 12 or 15 correspondents I was able to get but 10 of the 4 centavo value and none of the 3 centavo. The few offices receiving the G C M surcharges received the 1, 2 and 5 values. As yet no higher values have been surcharged with a lower value, and the patrons using the local and state service are compelled to pay 5 centavos as no lower values are available."

Mr. Stanton also sends specimens of the different printings of the 5c "Transitorio" stamps, and specimens have also been received from A. W. Foster and others.

The following from the July number of Scott's Circular will be of interest:

The Constitucionalists are turning out new issues at a merry pace. We are not inclined to think any effort is being made to fill an empty treasury by tempting stamp collectors with new things because the total value of several recent issues has been so small as to be almost insignificant. At the same time it is to be regretted that some satisfactory design cannot be selected and a sufficient stock obtained to make further changes unnecessary. The first of the recent issues followed the fall of Torreon. The small stock of the Federal issue found there was overprinted "G C M" (Gobierno Constitucionalista de Mexico), the control stamp used on the Constitucionalist paper money in Monogram. This is hand-stamped in violet or magenta, the two colors apparently being used as convenient and not restricted to certain values. We have seen copies of the 1c, 3c, 4c and 5c with the hand-stamp in green. This series includes stamps of 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 10, 15, 20, 50c and 1 peso. About half these stamps were only issued in small quantities.

Following this came the stamps illustrated above, with the inscription "Correo Constitucionalista." This issue was printed in Denver and included the 8 values, as previously chronicled.

Last of all is an issue of a solitary stamp, a redrawing of the 5c of the third issue. Though the general appearance of the two stamps is the same, they differ slightly throughout the design in the lettering, the ornaments, the ruled backgrounds, the outlining of the figure "5" etc. The most notable difference is in the words "CINCO CENTAVOS," which measure 14x2 mm. in the first type and 16x2½ mm. in the later one. We understand that a firm in Columbus, Ohio, were requested by the Constitucionalists authorities to submit a bid on stamps. They prepared the design and submitted a quantity of the stamps as samples. For some reason, shortage probably, these samples have now been put into use.

NICARAGUA.—H. Chitraro has shown us the Cordoba provisional "Un Cent" on 4c in a pronounced lake, instead of the usual brown violet. As there were quite a number of this shade in a large lot of these stamps, Mr. Chitraro hardly thinks it could be due to soaking, as both shades were found in the lot.

PANAMA.—L'Echo reports having seen the current 5c surcharged, No hay.—Vale 2c—Colon—26/5/14." This indicates a temporary shortage of 2c stamps of the regular type. Scott's Circular reports a similar surcharge on the 2½c of the 1909 issue which had done postal duty.

SWITZERLAND.—Whitfield King & Co. send us the long promised series of artistic stamps which has at last appeared. There are two designs, the centime values being of small size and having a striking portrait of William Tell, "Helvetia" runs across the bottom of the stamp in large capitals, and the figures of value appear in the upper right corner. The paper is buff, like many of the 1911 issue of Bavaria, but with the usual silk threads found in Swiss stamps. In fact the lower values very strongly suggest the Bavarian issue referred to. For the franc values, white paper is used, but still with silk threads. These are of large size, 35x20 mm., and have beautiful views of Alpine mountain scenery. That on the 3fr shows a view of Brunnen and the Mythens, the 5fr Grutli and the Uri Alps, and the 10fr a figure of Helvetia, with a general view of the higher peaks of the Alps as a background. The arms of Switzerland appear prominently on all the franc values. These designs were selected from nine drawings submitted by the artist, E. Grasset of Paris. The dies were engraved on copper by M. J. Sprenger for the 3fr and 10fr and by M. A. Burkhard. Both are well-known designers and engravers at Bienne, the latter being master of engraving at the Technicum. All are handsomely printed on paper watermarked large crosses, and cleanly perforated 12. The new series ought to be popular with collectors.

Adhesives.

10c red on buff.
12c brown on buff.
15c purple on buff.
3fr blue green.
5fr deep ultramarine.
10fr violet.

TRINIDAD & TOBAGO.—Whitfield King & Co. report that the official stamps are now overprinted with tall, thin type instead of small block letters as formerly.

UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA.—The Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly is informed that the ½d and 1d stamps of the current issue are to be had in rolls, imperforate at the sides. The rolls are sold at £5 0sh 3d for the 1d and £2 10sh 3d for the ½d.

VENEZUELA.—Hermann Focke informs us that the 25c stamp was one of a series of three stamps for postal purposes. There is also a set of the same design, but inscribed "Instruccion," with values running from 5c to 20b.

Adhesives.

5c green.
10c red.
25c deep ultramarine.

SONORA DOPE.

GEORGE W. LINN.

The most interesting stamp of the day in the Mexican muddle is the current Federal Mexican set with the letters G C M in a monogram rubber stamped on the various values from 1c to 1 Peso.

An enterprising Mexican at Hermosillo writes me: "I bought the whole stock that came of the high values, 10c, 15c, 20c, 50c and $1.00. You will see by that, that no one except myself, can sell complete sets. The Post Office sold me those values as they had a good stock of the same values, but in Constitucionalist stamps." The same person says "only one sheet of 5c was surcharged in red and one in green and I bought the whole lot."

This party is an enterprising fabricator for I have seen and own some of his "cornered" stamps on covers and the latest "dope" is to go easy on paying him the price of $6.50 per set for there are a few drifting loose from certain places and it looks as tho they might get a little more plentiful.

This same party says that the face value of the stamps overprinted was $3000 Mex. As a portion of these were overprinted with a different overprint and used at Monterey it is easy to figure that they will not be any too common.

I have seen a sheet of the 1c overprinted in which there is a single stamp without the overprint. On another sheet I saw three overprints on two stamps in a pair. On the 4c and 5c values I have seen the overprint placed sideways.

Below is a copy of the official circular to Postmasters regarding the GCM overprint.

"NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.

Constitucional Government, General Post Office, Hermosillo, Sonora, Circular R. No. 14.

Since the supply of five cent stamps of the Constitucionalist Government is rapidly decreasing, the Secretary of Communication and Public Affairs has sent to this office a regular number of stamps of the Universal Postal Union that were taken from the Huertistas in Torreon, which will be used while a new issue of Constitucionalist stamps is finished.

There is some information that in Nogales, Arizona, and in some other towns of that State, there are many of these stamps in the possession of Huertistas, and this office has decided before ordering the circulation of said stamps, to put a monogram on said stamps, as shown in the margin of this circular, in order to avoid the introduction of stamps that would bring no profit to the Government.

Hence, it is hereby ordered to all employees of this department in the State not to allow the circulation of any correspondence unless it carries the stamps now in use or those with the monogram, without forgetting that the mail from the other states must circulate even if the stamp does not have the monogram.

Constitution and Reforms.

HERMOSILLO, SONORA, May 27th, 1914.

The Post Master General, Cosme Hinojosa to Postmaster in ....."

The last paragraph of the notice tells us that federal Mexicans are still good in other states of Mexico and that the GCM come only from Sonora.

The latest—The supply of 5c stamps evidently having given out in some towns we have received two covers with diagonally split 10c values used for 5c. A letter just received from a correspondent confirms the use of these splits. What next?

GREAT BRITAIN PHILATELIC CONGRESSES AND THEIR PUBLICATIONS.

WILLIAM R. RICKETTS, F. R. P. S. L.

The Sixth Philatelic Congress of Great Britain which was held in London on the 20th to 22nd of May last calls especial attention to the Literature that has been published in connection with these Congresses.

The Congresses have been held at and under the auspices of the Philatelic Societies as follows:

1st, Manchester, Manchester Junior Philatelic Society, 18th to 20th Feb., 1909.
2nd, London, Hertz Philatelic Society, 27th to 29th April, 1910.
3rd, Birmingham, Birmingham Philatelic Society, 7th to 9th June, 1911.
4th, Margate, Isle of Thanet Philatelic Society, 1st to 3rd May, 1912.
5th, Edinburgh, Scottish Philatelic Society, Junior Philatelic Society of Scotland, and Dundee and District Philatelic Society, 23rd to 26th April, 1913.
6th, London, Royal Philatelic Society, 20th to 22nd May, 1914.

Publications of the Permanent Philatelic Congress Committee:

1. Report of the Fifth Philatelic Congress of Great Britain, held at Edinburgh, 1913. Verbatim and Full Record. Edited by the Recorders (F. A. Bellamy and J. J. Darlow). 68 pp. May, 1913. Price 2s 7½d or 65 cents.
2. A History of the First Four Philatelic Congresses of Great Britain, held at Manchester, London, Birmingham, and Margate, in 1909-1912. Compiled on behalf of the Permanent Philatelic Congress Committee by the Recorders (F. A. Bellamy and J. J. Darlow). 144 pp. May, 1914. Price 1s 3d or 31 cents.
3. Glossary of Philatelic Terms. Edited by the Sub-Committee appointed by the Second and Third Congresses. Published on behalf of the Congress by Messrs. Stanley Gibbons & Co., Ltd. Price 4d, or 8 cents.
4. Report of the Sixth Philatelic Congress of Great Britain, held at London, 1914. Verbatim and Full Record. Edited by the Recorders (F. A. Bellamy and J. J. Darlow).. 112 pp., June, 1914. Price 2s 8d, or 56 cents.

Copies of Nos. 1, 2 and 4 can be obtained from Mr. F. Reichenheim, 29 Holland Villas Road, Kensington, London. W.—No. 3 from Messrs. Stanley Gibbons & Co., Ltd., 391 Strand, London, Eng.

These reports are very valuable to all Philatelic Societies, also to those collectors who have formed a library; and considering the small price at which they are for sale and the limited edition published, the early two works should have been exhausted long ago. Nos. 1, 2 and 4 being reports, contain discussions of much interest such as: Formation of a National Society by P. C. Bishop; Collectors' Catalogue by L. W. Fulcher; The Manufacture of Stamps by J. D. Heath; Manufacture and Sale of Forged Stamps by Major E. B. Evans; Colour Question by H. L. Hayman, etc. In No. 3 we have the best and most concise glossary that has yet appeared.

Besides these four publications the Permanent Committee has issued an Annual Report for the last three years, and at the time each Congress was held, a "Programme and Rules" appeared, and also at the First and Fifth, a "Catalogue of a Stamp Exhibition" that was held in connection therewith.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Hugh C. Barr writes: "All indications point to a large attendance at the A. P. S. Convention at Niagara Falls this summer and no doubt 1914 will go down into history with a record gathering. The central location as far as the Society's membership is concerned, will help to swell the numbers and large delegations are expected from Chicago, New York, Cleveland, Detroit and Buffalo, to say nothing of those who will come from other cities in Ohio, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Indiana and New York State, etc., Canadian collectors will also be in evidence in numbers."

—G. A. Chandler reports: "Another unheralded advertising postmark has recently been issued. It hails from Baltimore, Maryland, and may be briefly described as resembling closely the cancellation used by Toledo and Cleveland about this time a year ago. The label is inscribed NATIONAL STAR—SPANGLED BANNER—CENTENNIAL—BALTIMORE SEP. 1914 in four lines, occupying the left half of a waved line device 57 mm. long by 18 mm. high. No die varieties are immediately apparent, although more than one machine is undoubtedly being used. This special cancellation takes the place of the proposed two cent commemorative stamp."

—President Coolidge writes: "It is earnestly requested that all members of the A. P. S. who go to the convention at Niagara Falls, N. Y., Aug. 11th-13th, who possess the Official A. P. Society lapel button or pin should wear it from the time they start from home, so that their confrères who meet them on the train or on arrival in the city of Niagara Falls may readily recognize them. If any members have not got the lapel A. P. S. button or pin, they can obtain the sterling silver gilt ones by sending $1.00 to the manufacturers, Messrs. Bailey, Banks and Biddle Co., Chestnut St. Philadelphia—show your Colors."

—Julian Park, Buffalo, sends us a card from Luxemburg where he finds much to interest one even though he does not discover any indications of philately in the Grand Duchy.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from Wm. L. Hamilton, Jr., F. L. Jackson.

COLUMBIAN STAMP CO., Arlington, Mass.

ONE-ARMED WILSON.

By Arthur Irwin Smith.

He was a hard nut. Five men had fallen in front of his big forty-four, and one would judge from his sharp eye and grizzled face that he would not mind shooting one or two more. The moon-shiners dreaded One-armed Wilson worse than a rattlesnake. It takes that kind of man to make a good revenue officer.

Being short an arm didn't bother him any when it came to a scrap with the mountaineers; the time he missed it most was when he was puttering around with his stamp album. For Wilson was an ardent collector and had found many rare Confederates and local issues back there in the hills.

In October he thought he had rounded up everything in Johnson county; still, as a matter of duty, he began a rambling tour up Old Smoky way. As he came to where the rough road crosses Dripple Creek, he saw ahead of him a one-horse wagon driven by a lone girl. The horse was drinking from the clear, rocky stream and the girl sat erect in the spring seat, looking at him indifferently.

"How-de-do," he said, pleasantly, as he stopped on the lower side to water his own mount.

The wagon was covered with a big tarpaulin. He gingerly lifted one corner. A two-gallon jug reared its neck invitingly. The girl semingly had not noticed his movement.

"What are you taking to town today?" asked Wilson, in a friendly tone.

"Buttermilk," said the girl. Her horse had finished drinking, "Giddap."

"I'd like to have a drink of it," suggested Wilson.

"It's all sold, already."

"Just let me have a half-cupful," he insisted. "It will never be missed."

"Sorry, but I can't," was the reply.

The words were hardly spoken until Wilson had knocked off the neck of a jug with the butt of his revolver. The mellow scent of corn whiskey greeted his nostrils. Across the spring seat the girl lay prone, sobbing bitterly.

Wilson frowned, tossed the jug into the bushes, and cleared his throat harshly. This was something a little out of his usual line. He could shoot at a man without turning a hair, but it was something different to contend with a weeping girl.

Somehow his voice was unusually gruff. "You'd better take me to your home," he said, presently.

The girl sat erect and wiped the tears from her blue eyes. "I won't," she observed, decidedly.

"Oh, come now," insisted Wilson, with a half-smile. "There's no use to be stubborn. Sooner or later I'll find out who made the stuff, no matter what you do. I ain't asking you to give anybody away, at all."

"George'd shoot you as soon as he saw you coming," replied the girl, looking at him with calculating eyes.

"I'll risk that. Come, turn around, and show me the way."

"I won't," snapped the girl, clucking at the horse. "Giddap, Dexter."

"All right," answered Wilson, "I'll just have to arrest you right here."

The girl drew in the horse, and again began to cry. "My poor old daddy," she sobbed. "He's not long for this world, anyway, and now all this trouble has come. Oh, I wish I was dead!"

"Maybe there will not be any trouble," Wilson interjected, as the girl stopped her lamentations for lack of breath, "if you'll be nice and tell me who your father is, and who George is, and where you live."

"I guess I'll have to take—take you there," she replied, still with a catch in her voice. She turned and drove slowly back, while Wilson's horse followed with his nose just over the end-gate of the wagon.

In and out the tortuous curves of the rough mountain road they traveled in silence, resting the horses now and then at the top of the steep grades. Sometimes the girl stepped out to lighten the load, and drove old Dexter from the ground.

Wilson thought to himself that she was a game young lady. "But the old man is villainous, I'll bet; and brother George, or sweetheart George—whichever it is—will probably want to fight." He shook his head dejectedly, not from fear of this George, but because such a girl should be mixed up in the affair.

Wilson did not wait for the girl to dismount, but halloed brusquely. A man stepped from the door, his sunken eyes gleaming unnaturally from his sallow, unshaven face. He coughed before speaking.

"Can you tell me something about this stuff?" demanded Wilson, pointing at the loaded wagon.

"I guess I'll have to," he replied hoarsely, hardly above a whisper, "if you are One-armed Wilson."

"That's me."

"I made it," said the man, his voice rising fiercely. "My daughter was taking it to a friend's house to store it. It's mine, and it is all there is between us and starvation. I don't mind—but—little—Nora." His hand shook where it lay on the gate

"Get down, Mr. Wilson," he continued. "We won't be unfriendly. It is not in me to fight—now."

"What is your name?"

"John Edwards."

Wilson's eyes opened wide. "Not John Edwards, the philatelic writer of the late nineties,—the author of 'Minor Varieties of Confederate Locals'?"

"The same," smiled Edwards, wanly.

Wilson's surprise and his respect for the celebrated philatelist who had sinned against the government probably because it was the only thing between him and starvation was evident; but it was his duty to proceed.

"I'm sorry, Mr. Edwards, but you admit that this whiskey was illegally made, and that you own a still. The whiskey and the still must be destroyed and the law-breakers brought to justice."

"Before you take me to jail," pleaded Edwards, "won't you let me provide some way for Nora to live, until—"

"You shall not go to jail!" stormed Nora. She had dropped Dexter's hitch-rein over a fence-post, and now stepped up close to Wilson, shaking her clenched fist in his face. "I made every drop of it, and I can prove it. Daddy hasn't been able to work a bit this year. Now take me to jail, you old—" words failing her, she again broke into tears.

"Hold up your hands," commanded a voice from the rear. Wilson wheeled, glanced into the business end of a shot-gun, and obeyed as well as he could. Evidently George had arrived on the scene.

Nora slipped around and got Wilson's revolver. The big, country lad lowered his gun, and Wilson let his uplifted arm come down.

"What's the racket, here?" queried George of Nora.

Briefly she outlined the happenings of the morning. George grunted. "You'd better leave," he said to Wilson, "and forget it."

"Now, look here, friend," said Wilson, "I've got to do my duty, and if I can't do it this time I'll have to come back with enough men to do it later. Now let's settle down and talk business. Are you this girl's sweetheart?"

"I am," responded George, decidedly.

"Well, you go get the preacher while Nora fixes me up a bite of dinner. We will talk over everything with the preacher and maybe we can fix up this without trouble. You can keep my gun," he added, as an afterthought.

"Go, George," said Nora, as he hesitated.

"Well," began Wilson, as soon as George was out of sight, "how much money would that load of booze bring you? There are eight two-gallon jugs by my count."

"About twenty-five dollars, I guess," answered Edwards.

"And the still?"

"Nothing. We never want to use it again—after this time."

"Now, look here, Mr. Edwards, I've got you people dead to rights, but I'll concede a lot. If you and George and Nora will sign an agreement never to violate the law any more, I will not prosecute. You must let me destroy the evidence, however."

"Go ahead," agreed Edwards, despairingly.

Wilson took the jugs out one by one and broke them against each other. The yard was full of trickling whiskey. Then Edwards pointed the way to the still, and in thirty minutes, that, too, was a total wreck.

By that time Nora announced dinner and Wilson went in and partook of a frugal meal of cornbread and bacon, canned fruits, and real buttermilk. After dinner they drew up the agreement and Edwards signed it with the beautiful signature that had graced many a sparkling monograph in his earlier days of philatelic study.

In the conversation that followed Wilson learned enough of Edwards' private life to make his admiration for the personality of the man equal to that he already felt for him as a student and author. It seemed that Edwards was formally Professor of Modern Languages at the State University; but about five years before had resigned on account of ill health and had come to the mountains. His savings soon went and he tried to eke out a miserable existence by light farming.

In the present season, Nora, who had changed from a slim-shanked lass of thirteen into a beautiful young lady of the mountains during the intervening five years, took things into her own hands. Hardly realizing the seriousness of the offense, with her sweetheart's assistance she had done some successful distilling. George was the son of a well-to-do farmer in the valley, and in spite of his lack of respect for the law Edwards seemed to think highly of him.

Wilson had become so deeply interested in the discoveries he had made that he had hardly noticed the passage of time. At last he remembered that it was about time for George's return. "Here," he said,, drawing out a big leather wallet and extracting five five-dollar bills, "is the value of your stuff."

Again Edward's voice failed him, and he could only whisper his thanks. Nora looked on in wide-eyed wonder. Wilson gruffly changed the subject.

When George saw the broken jugs on the ground, he ripped out an oath in spite of the preacher's presence. Rushing into the cabin, he grabbed Wilson by the throat. "You dog," he growled, shaking him soundly, " you just wanted to get me out of the way so you could break up that stuff, did you? I'll fix you, you —"

"Stop, George, stop," interceded Nora. With the preacher's assistance he was quieted.

Nora whispered a few words. Instantly his anger faded and he turned shamefacedly to Wilson. "Excuse me," he said, blurting out the only words of apology he could remember.

"On one condition," Wilson replied, rubbing his throat ruefully, "and that is that you marry this girl immediately. That is what I wanted the preacher for. She needs somebody besides a sickly dad to look after her—not meaning, however, that she can't handle things herself in an emergency."

So the ceremony was said there in the cabin hallway, and Wilson, crabbed old bachelor that he was, looked on with a queer lump in his throat. Edwards cried and Wilson hastily said a terse goodbye.

As the sun fell behind the western side of Old Smoky, One-Armed Wilson, with glistening eyes, retraced the tortuous path down the rocky mountain side, cursing steadily and joyfully under his breath at every step.

THE POSTAGE STAMPS OF SCHLESWIG-HOLSTEIN.

By BERTRAM W. H. POOLE.

Period D—Holstein; Governed by Commissioners appointed by Prussia and Austria.

FIRST ISSUE.

On February 18th, 1864, the following notice was issued from Kiel by the joint Commissioners of Austria and Prussia relating to the issue of new stamps:—

From the first of the following month new stamps can be obtained at all post offices in the Duchies of Holstein and Lauenburg. These new stamps will be printed like those in use at present in blue, and of the value of 1¼sch courant or 4sch Danish currency.

From the same date Danish stamps cannot be used any longer for the franking of letters in both Duchies. All post offices are hereby instructed to forward to headquarters at the beginning of next month all such stamps they may have in stock.

All persons having such stamps in their possession and wishing to exchange same for new stamps, must apply to the post offices before the first of next month.

The design of the new stamps obviously owes its inspiration to the 1853 design for Denmark. In the center is a circular uncolored space containing the value "1¼ SCHILLING CRT." in three lines. This is enclosed within a square frame having posthorns in each of the four corners. In the frame are the letters "HRZGL" at the left; "POST" at the top; and "FRM" at the right. This is an abbreviation for "Herzogliche Post Freimarke" meaning "Ducal Postage Stamp." At the bottom of the frame is "4 S. R. M." i. e. "4 Skilling Reichs Münze" (4 skilling Reichs Mark or Danish currency). The spandrels are filled with wavy lines.

The stamps were lithographed by Köbner and Co., of Altona, in sheets of 100 in ten rows of ten. Before printing, the paper was covered with an underprint of wavy lines, of a grayish color, in metallic oxide which only becomes visible by chemical action. The fumes of sulpheretted hydrogen will cause the under-print to show. In the upper margin the inscription "HERZOGLICHE POST FREIMARKEN" appears in the wavy lines and in the central portion of each stamp a capital "P" was also left clear of the under-print. There are three types of this stamp, printed from different stones, which appeared in the order in which they are described, viz:—

Type I.—The wavy lines in the spandrels are close together; the lettering is small and there are periods after the letters at the sides; and "SCHILLING" is in large type.

Type II.—The wavy lines in the spandrels are coarser and farther apart; the lettering is larger and there are periods after the letters at the sides; and the word "SCHILLING" is in small type.

Type III.—The wavy lines in the spandrels are similar to those of Type II; the lettering is still larger and thicker and there are no periods after the letters at the sides; and "SCHILLING" has no dots above the two letters "I."

The stamps were printed on white wove paper and they were issued in imperforate condition, though both types I and III are known rouletted. As the rouletting was, however, entirely unofficial the philatelic interest of these varieties is slight.

Reference List.

March 1864. Imperforate.

PORTUGUESE COLONIES

We have just bought a very fine lot of these interesting stamps especially complete in full sets of Republica Surcharges. These stamps are advancing in value and even at this early day many varieties are hard to find at all.

The early cry of "Speculation" arising from the ashes of the defunct S. S. S. S. did not deter the wise ones from getting in early, but many that put too much dependence on what they read are now trying to fill empty spaces. A want list, or an approval—which?

If your name is not on our Mailing List WE BOTH LOSE.

stamps would have to be altered and instead of being inscribed with an equivalent value in Danish currency they would have the value denoted according to the currency of Lauenburg. To give a little more time to get rid of the stock in hand of the former issue, the stamps of the new issue were not placed in circulation until about the end of May, 1864.

The design is somewhat similar to that of the preceding issue, but the numerals of value in the center are much larger and double-lined. Also, instead of being confined within a circle the value is in a square frame with "SCHILLING CRT." in an upturned curve below and with small ornaments in each of the angles. In the right hand side of the frame the lettering, indicating Freimarken, now consists of "F R M R K," thus balancing the five letters on the opposite side. At the base the inscription reads "1½ S L M"—(Schilling Lauenburg Münze), that is "schilling of Lauenburg currency." The underprint, consisting of a pattern of diagonal lines, is in pink and, as in the previous stamps, the letter "P" shows in the centre of each stamp clear of the underprint. The stamps, like the former issue, were lithographed in sheets of 100 by Köbner and Co., of Altona. They are rouletted in line about 8. In payment of postage to foreign countries this stamp is considered the equivalent of 1 silbergroschen, although the silbergroschen was really worth 1⅓ schilling.

The local rate at Altona and Kiel was ¾ schilling and as no stamp of this value was provided for the use of the public an official edict was published on November 22nd, 1864, permitting the 1¼sch stamp to be cut into halves, diagonally, and each portion then served for the prepayment of the local rate. These bi-sected stamps are, therefore, quite legitimate provisionals. They were allowed to be used for a period of about four months until an official notice (dated March 31st, 1865) stated their further use would not be permitted.

Period E—Schleswig and Holstein: Governed by Prussia and Austria Combined.

In the year 1865, prior to the Convention of Gastein, stamps were issued under the authority of Austria and Prussia for the whole territory comprised in the duchies. One of the chief reasons for this step was that of finance, considerable economy being effected by having one instead of two postal administrations. At the same time the head office was removed to Flensburg, this place being considered the most centrally situated.

The first stamp to appear bore the facial value of ½ schilling. This stamp, like those previously issued for Schleswig, was manufactured at the State Printing Works, in Berlin. The design is similar to the Schleswig stamps of 1864 but with the upper inscription altered to "SCHLESWIG HOLSTEIN" and the lower one to "SCHILLING." The stamps were printed in sheets of 100, in ten rows of ten, upon white wove paper, and were rouletted in line about 11½. This value was intended for local letters and superseded the split stamps which had been allowed to be used previously. It was issued on February 22nd, 1865.

On June 1st, following, another value of similar design but of the value of 1¼ schilling was issued.

The 1¼sch, not being the exact equivalent of 1 silbergroschen, a decree was published on August 5th, 1865, authorizing the issue of 1⅓sch stamps—the exact value of a silbergroschen. It was stated, at the same time, that for the future this value must be affixed to all letters addresed to places within the German-Austrian Postal Union. This stamp differs a little from the two preceding values for the whole of the value is now denoted in the center, viz:—1⅓ SCHILLING (=1sgr). This occupies three lines and in the lower part of the inscribed band a star takes the place of the word "SCHILLING."

On the 30th of June, 1865, the duchies concluded a convention with Denmark fixing the rate on single letters to that country at 2 schilling. This led to the issue of another stamp, similar in design to the ½sch, but with a large numeral "2" in the center.

In September, 1865, another addition to the set was made—a 4sch stamp being issued as representing the 3 silbergroschen rate within the German Austrian Postal Union. This is similar in design to the 1⅓sch and shows the value in schilling and its equivalent in silbergroschen in the central oval.

Period F—Schleswig Governed by Prussia.

Shortly after the issue of the 4sch of the last series disagreements arose between Prussia and Austria. These were patched up and resulted in the Convention of Gastein by the terms of which Schleswig was awarded to Prussia, while Austria received Holstein and Lauenburg. The natural result was that separate series for the two duchies were again required. It was also intended to issue special stamps for Lauenburg but this fell through as

GEORGE W. LINN CO., Columbus, Ohio.

Prussia purchased this territory from Austria for $1,411,250 and amalgamated it with Schleswig.

The new stamps for Schleswig were issued on November 1st, 1865, the denominations being exactly the same as those previously in use. The designs were similar to those of the Schleswig-Holstein issue of 1865 but with the upper inscription altered to "HERZOGTH. SCHLESWIG."

These stamps, like those of the preceding series, were manufactured at the State Printing Works in Berlin. They were printed in sheets of 100 on white wove paper, and were rouletted 11½.

The 1¼sch varies considerably in color being found in numerous shades of lilac, mauve and purple, and also in an almost pure grey.

Reference List.

Nov. 1st, 1865. Rouletted 11½.

12. ½sch green, Scott's No. 8.
13. 1¼sch lilac, Scott's No. 10 or 10a.
14. 1⅓sch rose, Scott's No. 11.
15. 2sch ultramarine, Scott's No. 12.
16. 4sch greybrown, Scott's No. 14.

Period G—Holstein: Governed by Austria.

FIRST ISSUE.

Co-incident with the issue of separate stamps for Schleswig a separate series was also issued for Holstein. An official notice, dated from Kiel, October 5th, 1865, informed the public that the series heretofore in common use in both duchies would be replaced by a new series on November 1st following and that thereafter only the new stamps would be accepted for postal service within the Duchy of Holstein.

The values in the new set corresponded with those previously in use and were also similar to those in the series provided for Schleswig. The five values fall into two types: the ½, 1¼ and 2sch being of one design and the 1⅓ and 4sch of another.

In the first of these the numerals of values are shown in the center on an oval of solid color while the inscriptions on the surrounding frame are in white letters on a colored ground. These inscriptions are "HERZOGTH. HOLSTEIN" in the upper part, and "SCHILLING" in the lower, small stars separating them from each other.

The design for the 1⅓ and 4sch is exactly like that employed in the previous series for the combined use of the duchies, the value in the center having its equivalent value shown in silbergroschen.

The dies were engraved by M. Claudius and the stamps were printed in sheets of 100 by Messrs. Köbner & Co. of Altona. They were printed on white wove paper and were rouletted 8. The stamps were embossed but the relief is very poor and much inferior to the stamps of similar type printed by the State Printing Works, Berlin.

Reference List.

Nov. 1st, 1865. Rouletted 8.

17. ½sch pale green, Scott's No. 19.
18. 1¼sch pale mauve, Scott's No. 20.
19. 1⅓sch carmine, Scott's No. 23.
20. 2sch pale blue, Scott's No. 21.
21. 4sch bistre, Scott's No. 25.

SECOND ISSUE.

The design of the stamps with inscriptions in white on color did not meet with the approval of the authorities though they accepted them. When, however, new supplies of the 1¼ and 2 schilling were required in March and August, 1866, respectively, the opportunity was taken of changing the design. In this second issue, therefore, the inscriptions are in color on an engine turned band. These values were not embossed, though, like the similar values of the first issue, they were printed by Messrs. Köbner and Co. The stamps were printed in sheets of 100 on white wove paper and though normally rouletted 8 both values may be found rouletted 7.

Reference List.

1866. Typographed. Rouletted 8.

22. 1¼sch mauve, Scott's No. 22.
23. 2sch blue, Scott's No. 24.

Period H. Schleswig and Holstein United with Prussia.

The division of the duchies between Austria and Prussia did not entirely allay the difficulties between the two and after a time strained relations ensued and ultimately war resulted. The war was of short duration and by the Treaty of Prague, of August 23rd, 1866, Prussia had control of both duchies. No special stamps were issued, however. For a time each duchy used its own special stamps as described above, and then, on November 5th, 1866, a circular was issued from the postal department notifying that the stamps of both duchies could be used indiscriminately. The remaining stocks of the joint issue for the two duchies (as described under Period E) were also put into circulation again. When formal incorporation with Prussia was completed on December 24th, 1866, the stamps of that State were likewise available for use anywhere within the duchies so that from that time, until the stamps of the North German Confederation were issued on January 1st, 1868, the inhabitants of Schleswig and Holstein had ample choice as to the kind of stamps they might use.

REMAINDERS.

When the special stamps were superseded by the general issue for the North German Confederation a small stock of most values of the series for Schleswig and Holstein as well as of the issue for the combined use of both duchies remained and these were later acquired by M. Moens. The quantities of the several varieties were as follows:

Schleswig, 1864 Issue.

1¼ schilling 173.
4 schilling 21,000.

Schleswig-Holstein, 1865 Issue.

½, 1¼, 1⅓, 2 and 4 schilling, 20,000 of each.

COMMUNICATION.

(We do not hold ourselves responsible for the views expressed by our readers. Our columns are always open for communications of general interest.—Ed.)

DEAR MR. EDITOR:

I would say in reply to the accusation made by some of the Indianapolis members of the S P. A. to the effect that I did not put a nomination made for the office of Secretary-Treasurer on the Ballot,—that said nomination was made in a letter dated July 4th, written by E. T. Wallis, mailed July 6th and received by me July 8th after the ballots had been approved by the Board of Trustees, printed, and folded ready to be put into envelopes to be mailed on July 9th. According to the Constitution, ballots must be approved by the Board of Trustees, who reside in Wichita, Kans., and must be mailed sixty days before convention date. On account of lack of time, it is readily apparent that the nomination could not be placed on the ballot unless I were to violate the constitution by mailing the ballots at a later date and thus making the entire election illegal. Further, E. T. Wallis was informed by me on June 13, 1914, that nominations would close on June 20th and consequently his nomination received July 8th was out of order. A call for nominations was made in the West which appeared in May, 1914.

Looking always to the best interests of the S. P. A., I do not wish to be drawn into a controversy because of the article signed "Members of Indianapolis Branch"; but with the consideration of the above reply to one of their statements, the rest of the article can be judged at its true value

During the last two years I have secured over 155 new members for the S. P. A. When I became Secretary of the S. P. A. two years ago, it had less than 295 members; today, we have over 600. Do not these two statements show that I have the best interests of the S. P. A. at heart?

Very truly yours,
C. V. WEBB.

EDITORIAL.

War—The gravity of the European situation at this time of writing makes a profound impression on all classes but none will be affected more deeply than philatelists. The intensity of interest engendered by the grim revelations of the past week or two has an angle for the stamp collector of which the general public is in ignorance. The philatelic mind takes into consideration the probabilities of changes in the philatelic map and in thought it tries to anticipate the philatelic developments. However, this interest is not so acute as formerly when stamp issues were few and far between, comparatively speaking, and novelties were a cause for wide rejoicing; and when, in fact, acording to a French playwright, about 1865, philatelists were under the fell suspicion of wishing to foment war between nations so that they could revel in new stamp issues. To-day, irony of that kind is without point.

Peace—Now let us close our ears to the reverberations of the cannon and meditate upon the blessings of peace. Several correspondents and the newspapers tell us, under date of July 29th, that this year of grace, 1914, will be celebrated by the issue of two special stamps in commemoration of the centenary of peace between the United States and Great Britain. The designs which have been approved by Postmaster-General Burleson are described as follows: "The stamps of 2 and 5 cent denominations will be ready for issue early in Autumn. The words, 'Peace: 1814-1914,' will be on each. The two-cent stamp will have on it a hemisphere, with a female figure on the left, holding an American flag; and on the right, a figure bearing a British flag, the two clasping hands across the hemisphere. On the five-cent stamp will be a winged figure typifying the spirit of peace, and with a dove of peace flying before it." Who will say in view of present conditions in Europe that a century of peace is not an ample and worthy pretext for a jubilee issue. We shall welcome the stamps which typify a sentiment that many feel. We are sure that the philatelic criticisms that meet unnecessary issues as a rule will be wholly favorable on the occasion of these stamps.

One Hundred Years—This special issue in commemoration of the ending of the war of 1812 is called the Treaty of Ghent stamps by the Washington Post of July 29th, the clipping from which is sent by Mr. E. A. Colson. The treaty of Ghent which was ratified on December 24th, 1814, by Great Britain and the United States at the Belgian city terminated the war of 1812, even though the battle of New Orleans was fought some time later, or January 8th, 1815. The decision of the authorities to issue the peace stamps was made suddenly, we understand, and the preliminary period in which the advisability of a special issue was discussed was a short one. Whether Great Britain will undertake any reciprocal measure with a stamp issue, we cannot say, but we are pleased that this country has taken the initiative.

Collecting Labels—Resuming the subject of labels from last week, we present a letter from Mr. Edgar S. Bissinger, San Francisco: "Enclosed kindly find a page from the August number of the Motion Picture Magazine which proves how 'philately' is becoming popular. The labels may be of some interest to philatelists as mere novelties." The page announcement is headed, "Free 'Postage' Stamps,"—and they are likenesses in miniature of favorite movie players. From a clipping that is incorporated in this advertisement we take the following perfervid statement: "A collection of these stamps will soon be of undoubted cash value, as new designs are constantly being made and the first will in time become very scarce. All those who have collected postage stamps know that some series which are no longer used bring fabulous prices, as high as a thousand dollars having often been paid for an old, canceled postage stamp by some enthusiastic collector who needed it to complete his collection and who had neglected to secure it in the days when it could have been had for the asking." Heigh-ho.

Swan Still Lives—From Mr. T. H. Nicolle, Sydney, New South Wales, a copy of the Sydney Sun has come showing an engraving of the new shilling stamp of the commonwealth, the design of which has been approved by the postmaster-general. The central design is that of the swan of Western Australia, so familiar and pleasing to philatelists, surrounded by artistic entableture bearing the necessary inscriptions. We read: "The new stamp will be printed in sepia tint, this being considered the most distinctive color."

Canada's New Revenues—From Mr. W. R. Adams, our Toronto correspondent, we have received the important information that Canada will issue revenue stamps to pay customs on certain articles and that they will be acceptable on periodicals, catalogues and similar matter. We read: "At the last session of parliament, in connection with the budget, the necessary authority was given, and the regulations with respect to their use are now being prepared by the department. The stamps will be available for the payment of duty on periodicals, catalogues and other articles enumerated in item 178 of the tariff."

Mozart Celebration—From a clipping in a St. Louis paper, which has been sent to us by Mr. W. E. Brooks, Appleton City, Missouri, we learn: "In commemoration of the inauguration of the Mozart house at Salzburg, on August 12th, the Imperial Postal authorities have decided to establish a special post-office which provides for an obliterating post stamp to be used on this day only. The Mozart administration is issuing a festival postcard designed by Jules Diez (Munich) with an impressed 5 or 10 heller postage stamp, which is dispatched on receipt of 30 and 40 pfennigs, respectively, by the festival postoffice with the 'one-day' stamp of same."

All on Covers—A well known Chicago reader has shown us the following novelties: Mexico, 1910 issue, 5 and 10c, each surcharged diagonally in purple in two lines, reading upward, "Foreign Service," enclosed in frame; also, the overprint inverted on the 5 centavos. Nicaragua, surcharge in black, error, vale 0.12 on 50c, official; and our surcharge in red on five pesos official stamp, vale 0.05."

Many Promises—We have received a number of promises to attend the American Philatelic Society convention, "railroads permitting." Reference is made to the impending strike on roads west of Chicago. We regret that the faces of a few of the oldtimers will be missed at Niagara Falls but there will be new ones there that we shall be glad to see. Come what may, a fair attendance is assured at the 1914 convention.

Who Can Help Him?—"To the Editor:—I have been trying to secure some information relative to the stamps of St. Vincent which were supposed to have been overprinted "Cayman Islands"—but no one seems to know where the story originated.

It does seem strange that stamps of St. Vincent should have been selected to receive this overprinting, when the Cayman Islands are a Dependency of Jamaica.

Have any readers of the WEEKLY knowledge of what values of St. Vincent were so treated, and of what issue?

Melville's 6d booklet on "Cayman Islands" says that the Commissioner refused to sanction the issue of these overprinted St. Vincent stamps.

I shall be very pleased to hear from anyone having information concerning these stamps.

The 1914-15 catalogues will have many sensational advances. British colonials in particular have been priced at figures nearer their value.

I can submit some very fine selections of these stamps including many of the high values. For months I have urged the purchase of the stamps of Papua and those who have taken my advice will be more than pleased when they see the new quotations. I still recommend their purchase and offer a very fine assortment in superb condition. Many fine blocks. Also varieties of watermark, paper and perforation. O. S. varieties in blocks and single.

OUR STATE REVENUE STAMPS.

By FRANK L. APPLEGATE.

Classification II. Adhesive Documentary Stamp.

CALIFORNIA.

Among the adhesive documentary state revenues those of California hold first place. Not only were they the first to be issued, but the peculiar conditions under which they were brought into use, the great range of values and the multiplicity of varieties all add to their interest.

California was admitted as a state into the Union in 1850, less than two years after the discovery of gold which turned the eyes of the whole world and the feet of thousands in her direction. Gold was plentiful; manufactured articles and food stuffs high priced in comparison. It is hard in these days to realize the enormous prices that prevailed at that time in the new state. A native son with whom I became acquainted some time ago told me that his father received $550 per month for driving a stage in those early days, and all he had to do was to "handle the ribbons," too. It is said that when the first legislature was to be elected it was almost impossible to get candidates to run, although the pay was set at sixteen dollars a day and sixteen dollars for each twenty miles traveled, both to and from San Jose, then the capitol.

Early in 1857, so the story goes, the State Treasurer notified the Governor that unless something was done at once to replenish the treasury, salary warrants could not be honored. The Governor then laid the matter before the legislature which lost no time in passing "An Act to provide Revenue from a Tax on Inland and Foreign Bills," etc., (Art. 3,089, Laws of California, 1857.)

The act was passed on April 29, 1857, and was to become effective on July 1 of the same year. The Governor, Secretary of State and State Treasurer were named as Commissioners of Stamp Duties and were directed to "Cause to be engraved or typographed a separate die for each distinct duty," and to advertise for proposals for having the stamps printed; the contractor to be under $50,000 bonds.

The actual responsibility of issuing the stamps was delegated to an officer known as the State Controller who was directed "To cause each stamp to be countersigned with his initials before issuing same to the County Treasurer." The importance of the various surcharges on California revenues thus appears. They are the initials of the various succeeding State Controllers. G. W. Whitman was the first of these and his initials appear on all stamps issued up to Sept. 1, 1858, a period of fourteen months.

The stamps were placed on sale in San Francisco, July 3, 1857—just three days late. The dies were engraved by Messrs. Painter and Company, and A. L. Bancroft & Co. had the contract for printing the stamps. Both firms were local ones, the former being the leading wood engravers of their time and the latter a leading printing firm. Stamps were printed and issued covering the following schedule under the law.

Attorney-at-Law: Stamps to be placed on the license of attorneys when admitted to practice of law in the state. Tax $10.00.

Passage Ticket: Stamps to be placed on all railroad and steamship tickets. First Class, $6.00; Second Class, $4.00, and Steerage, $2.00.

Bill of Exchange: No distinction seems to have been made between foreign and domestic exchange.

Insurance: This is not life insurance as has been claimed, but is insurance on shipments of gold and commodities. The insurance rate was one half the exchange rate as note by the following schedule, but insurance stamps of the denominations of 20, 30, 40 and 50c are known rated the same as the exchange stamps.

All of the stamps of the 1857 issue were the same size and of the same design, consisting of a circular band of color about two millimeters wide and 26mm in diameter inscribed in colorless Roman capital letters. CALIFORNIA above and STATE TAX below with a diamond shaped dot and two dashes at sides separating the inscriptions. The band is bordered both inside and out by a colored circular line. In the center is a colored tablet giving the amount taxed and the denomination in case of the insurance and exchange stamps in colorless figures; the class and rate on the passage ticket stamps and TEN DOLLARS on the Attorney-at-Law stamps. "Exchange," "Insurance" and "Passenger" appear on the respective stamps in solid block capitals in the blank space above the value tablet. In the exchange stamps the space below the tablet is occupied by either FIRST, SECOND, or THIRD.

The safe delivery of drafts must have been considered very precarious, as stamps for three separate copies of each bill were provided for in this way. These were sold in sets, probably so printed on the sheet, and the three stamps furnished for the price of one. That three copies of each draft were always sent is doubtful, as the "Thirds" are very scarce and the "Seconds" much more so than the "Firsts." On the Attorney-at-Law stamps the word ATTORNEY appears above, and AT LAW below the tablet, in colored Roman capitals.

The issue of 1857 was printed in blue and presumably all values in the schedules were so printed, but they have by no means all been found. Most of them are rare. Thin white wove paper was used for the most part, but the exchange stamps have been found up to the $1.40 denomination on a slightly heavier blue, vertically laid paper. On the white paper they have been found up to the $38.00 denomination, Walter Morley of England having the only copy of the latter value I have heard of. I have seen Seconds up to $20.00, and Thirds up to $14.00.

The passenger stamps have never been found in blue, and but one copy of the Att'y-at-law has been found in that color. Some years ago G. W. Hackett of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express, San Francisco happened onto an old box of papers which had not been opened since 1866. On a document issued by the Supreme Court of California, Nov. 9, 1858, admitting Geo. W. Tyler to the practice of law was one of these blue Att'y-at-law stamps.—(MEKEEL'S WEEKLY of June 6, 1908)

All of the blue stamps have the initials of G. W. Whitman, either in red, blue or black, the black being the scarcest of the three.

It was soon realized that the law as adopted in 1857 did not tax direct shipments of gold—the principal export, from the state; thus overlooking a very important source of revenue. On April 26, 1858, an amendment passed the legislature correcting this omission. Gold and silver coin bullion or dust shipped out of the state was subject to a tax of 30 cents for any amount below $100.00 and one-fifth of one per cent. for sums above $100.00, shipments to other points within the United States excepted. The Bill of Lading stamps were issued to cover this schedule.

A new insurance schedule was also adopted at this time. On cargoes insured for nine months to one year, the rate was one-half that of the bill of lading rate, insurance to cover six months to nine months three-fourths of the yearly rate; three months to six months one-half the yearly rate, and three months or less, one-fourth the yearly rate. The new law went immediately into effect and the commissioners lost no time in having new dies made. The law did not specify the denominations to be used so this had to be decided by the commissioners. Mr. E. W. Smith of San Francisco to whose most excellent article in the WEEKLY of March 21, 1903, I am indebted for much of the foregoing information says that the following schedule was decided on for the bill of lading stamps.

$100 or less	30 cents
$200	40 cents
$500	$1.00
$1000	2.00
$2000	4.00
$5000	10.00
$10000	20.00
$20000	40.00
$50000	100.00
$100000	200.00

50, 60 cent, $3 and $300 values have been catalogued by Moens, Adenaw and others, but there seems to be no warrant for the belief in their existence. All values in the above schedule are known with the exception of the $300, which Mr. Smith himself now considers a myth. Mr. Adenaw, who owns the leading collection in the country, has the $400—just one copy, I believe.

The following schedule is that of the new insurance stamps as far as known. The reader can easily calculate the values required to fill the blanks and make the list complete. Stamps may have been issued for all of them, but the values required to fill the blanks have never been found. This supposition seems more probable since the discovery a few years ago by Mr. Smith (after the publication of the article referred to) of two new values then

50,000	..	..	..	..
100,000	..	..	..	..
200,000	..	..	..	..

Mr. Smith tells me that he never saw any of the 9 month values except the 15 cent from which I conclude that the 25 cent which has been variously catalogued has either been done so in error or if the stamp really exists it was printed in error. In either case the value is wrong as 37½ cents would be the correct rate.

The designs of the Bill of Lading and new insurance stamps are similar to the issue of 1857, but larger being 33 mm. in diameter. The same inscriptions occupy the outer circles with value tablet in the center as before, BILL OF LADING or INSURANCE above, 3 Mo., 6 Mo., 9 Mo., or 12 Mo. appear below the tablet on the insurance stamps and FIRST, SECOND, THIRD or FOURTH on the bill of lading stamps. Unlike the exchange stamps the bill of lading stamps are almost as common in "seconds," "thirds" and "fourths" as in "first," though none of them can be said to be very common. All four varieties were printed on the same sheet and issued in sets the same as the exchange stamps.

The series of 1858 were printed in red as were also from now on the various stamps first printed in 1857 in blue. Red ranging from deep rose, through carmine to dull scarlet and vermilion. The paper used was both thin bluish and thin white, almost pelure, most of the stamps being found on both kinds of paper except the bill of lading which I believe have never been found on the white paper. All of them are found with the G. W. W. surcharge in blue, except the atty.-at-law and Passenger, which have not so far been found printed in red with this surcharge.

Three months after this law went into effect, on Sept. 1, 1858, G. W. Whitman was succeeded as controller by A. R. Melony, who then supplied his initials in surcharge to all lots of stamps before sending them out. This surcharge is in two types, in one of which the cross bar of the A is plainer than in the other. In both types the initials are surrounded by a double circle, about 28 mm. in diameter. It is generally found in blue, but a few stamps have been found surcharged in black. The bill of lading, large insurance and passenger stamps only have been found with Mr. Melony's initials. As none of the exchange, small insurance or atty.-at-law stamps have been found thus surcharged, it is to be presumed that Mr. Whitman left a sufficient quantity on hand already supplied with his initials to last through the succeeding term of one year.

On Sept. 7, 1859, Mr. Melony was succeeded by Samuel H. Brooks, whose initials have been found on the bill of lading, Exchange and Insurance stamps of both kinds on both thin white and thin bluish paper, as well as on the 8c and 20c exchange and the 40, 50, 70c and $1.00, $1.50 and $2.00 Small Insurance on yellowish white laid paper.

On May 9, 1861, the Bill of Lading and Insurance taxes of 1858 were abolished and the stamps withdrawn after being used a little less than three years. As they all received three sets of surcharges, G. W. W., A. R. M., and S. H. B., none of the varieties are common.

As to the respective use of the large and the small insurance stamps there is considerable obscurity. Mr. Smith says he has seen both the large stamps and the small blue ones on marine policies used during 1858, and concludes that the 3, 6, 9 and 12 mo. stamps were used on policies running for these lengths of time, and the blue ones for policies running for a longer term. Two 3 mo. stamps have been found on 6 mo. policies, making up the full 6 mo. rate. Considerable latitude was evidently allowed in their use. The small stamps were used exclusively after the large ones were discontinued, on fire as well as marine insurance policies.

Up to the time of Mr. Brooks but one die was used for the frames of all the small stamps. Now a new one appeared in which the words of the frame are in much larger letters. The band on which the words are engraved is also about one-half millemeter wider. The central tablet as well as the words above and below are also larger while the total diameter of the stamp remains the same as before. The $4.00, $10.00 and $20.00 First, Second and Third exchange are all found in this variety.

While the bulk of the small insurance stamps are now found in their proper rating, some of the 20, 30, 40 and 50 cent still appear rating same as the exchange schedule and two varieties plainly rated in error. These are the 20 cent for $150 to $300, and the 30 cent $200 to $250.

On Nov. 20, 1861, Jas. S. Gillen succeeded to the office of controller which he only held for six weeks, and was succeeded, Jan. 6, 1862, by Geo. R. Warren who held the office for almost two years. No stamps have been found with Gillen's initials but the G. R. W. surcharge is found on the exchange, small insurance, attorney-at-law and passenger stamps in three types, one in round heavy monogram type in single circle, one in plain slant script in single circle and one same in double circle. Some of the exchange, passenger and small insurance stamps as well as all the attorney-at-law so far discovered still appear on the thin bluish paper, while the bulk of this issue are printed on thin white and also on a new paper, a heavier white wove. The round type surcharged was evidently used first as almost all with this surcharge are on thin paper while the bulk with the other type surcharge are on the heavier paper.

While I have seen most values of the exchange set up to the $6.00 denomination, on thin bluish, script surcharge, and up to the $3 thin white, monogram surcharge, I only know positively of the higher values up to $175.00, which is the highest exchange stamp known, on white paper both thin and medium, script surcharge. The highest insurance value known with this or any other surcharge is the $19.00, and this has the G. R. W. surcharge, but which type and paper I am not sure.

About this time certain other changes were made in the designs of the exchange and passenger stamps. The words "Exchange" and "Passenger" also "First," and "Second," now appear in outline or open letters on some of the stamps. These have generally been considered as forming a new issue, but the fact is that the lower values up to $10.00 First and Second only, were so changed and these were used concurrently with the solid letter varieties. In fact both varieties are to be found on the same sheet as is proven by unsevered pairs showing both types in Mr. Adinaw's collection. Other changes are also to be noted. In the original type, or solid letter stamps there is never a period after the word "tax." There is a period on all denominations both First and Second up to and including the $10.00 in the open letter type, except the $1.00 and $2.00, also both First and Second, while these two values as well as the 20, 30, 60 cent, $3.00, $4.00 and $6.00 appear also without the period in both First and Second.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents.

AUSTRALIA.—Paul W. Riedell calls attention to shades in the Kangaroo stamps. He has shown us the 3d in olive green instead of olive bistre; 4d in yellow instead of orange and 6d blue instead of ultramarine. The Monthly Journal says: "The die for the new 2d stamp of the Australian Commonwealth in the adopted Swan design has already been cut by Mr. Harrison, the Commonwealth bank-note engraver, and work on those of the 6d and 1s is proceeding. Dies for the new ½d, 1d, 2½d, 3d, 4d, and 5d stamps have been engraved in London by Perkins, Bacon and Co., these stamps being typographed, instead of recess printed, and all bearing the King's head."

BECHUANALAND.—The Colonial Journal states that the following United Kingdom postage stamps, King George design, overprinted "Bechuanaland Protectorate" have been supplied: ½d, 1d, 2d, 2½d, 3d, 4d, 6d, 1sh, 2sh 6d, 5sh. The old stock of Queen Victoria issues will be withdrawn and destroyed as soon as the new stamps are received in the Protectorate.

BOLIVIA.—The Berliner Briefmarken-Zeitung reports a new series in copperplate print:

1c green; ruins of Tiahuanacu.
2c red; Temple of Tiahuanacu.
5c olive-brown; ruins of Tiahuanacu.
10c violet; Indian sailing-boat on Lake Titicaca.
20c chrome-yellow; rowing-boat on Lake Titicaca.
1 boliviano, carmine; picture of one of their Gods.

BOSNIA.—Mr. Schachne reports the receipt of a new military postal card.

Official Post Card.

No value, black on dark rose.

CAYMAN ISLANDS.—According to the Colonial Journal, this Colony has been supplied with the 2½d and 5s values in the King George design.

FRENCH MOROCCO.—Maury's Collectionneur has the following reference to the new postage stamps for Morocco:

"We have already informed our readers of the projected stamps for Morocco. Now we are able in a measure to supply details of the subject. As we have stated, the preparation of the designs has been intrusted to the eminent artist, M. de la Negiere, to whom we are indebted for some of the most successful of our Colonial stamps. This time apart from the artistic value of the designs, they bear the stamp of originality such as is seldom presented, and could not be improved upon. For the first time recourse has been had to the line-engraved process, which causes the American issues to have the reputation of being the finest known; in addition the printing will be done in France.

"There will be six different types representing monuments and views of the six chief towns in Morocco; it was thought that the reproduction of Moorish scenes and types would be distasteful to the Moslem population of that country. The frames, very original, have been designed by Mons. de la Negiere on the spot, after architectural motifs of the curious local style. The stamps will bear simply the word 'Maroc' in French and the indication of the value in figures. The Arabic inscriptions will signify 'El Barid el Maghribi' (Moorish Post) and form one group for the smaller size and two for those of the larger form."

is a book that should be in the hands of every philatelist. It describes and illustrates:

Regular Government Issues
U. S. Envelopes
Carrier Stamps
Confederate Provisionals

The illustrations are large and clear. There are no less than 15 for the 1861 issue. The cog wheel punch, triangles and capped "2's" are finely pictured. The manner in which the five dies of the 1853 envelope is treated is alone worth the price of subscription, while the collecting of Reays and Plymptons is made as easy as rolling off a log. INDIA.—Chamba.—Whitfield King & Co. send us the 2a King George stamp, overprinted "Chamba—State" and "Service" in two distinct types. In one the name of the state is near the bottom of the stamp with "Service" in the same type at the top. The other shows "Chamba—State" at the top in the usual form, but with "Service" in a square Gothic letter at the bottom, like the regular India "Service" stamps of 1911.

Our correspondents are informed that the 3p, ½a, 1a, 2a, 8a and 1r overprinted on the Indian Service stamps, with the word "SERVICE" at the foot, are a provisional issue, and that of the values above 1a only a few sheets were printed. The 2a and 4a have been issued overprinted on the Indian ordinary stamps with the word "SERVICE" at the top, same as in previous issues. The postmaster also informs us that no more Georgian stamps, either ordinary or Service, above 4a will be supplied to stamp collectors until next year.

Addressees Not to Be Urged Against Their Will to Accept Delivery. Postmasters Not Required to Act as Agents to Sell Undelivered Goods.

Reports received indicate that parcels are sometimes sent C. O. D. to people who have not ordered goods, evidently for the purpose of effecting a sale in this way or to make collections. Addressees of C. O. D. parcels should understand that it is their privilege to refuse to accept delivery of parcels which they have not ordered or made arrangements to have sent. Postmasters should not urge addressees in such cases to accept delivery, but should explain to them that the packages may be accepted and paid for, or refused, as the addressees may elect. If delivery is refused, the sender should be promptly notified as directed by Section 637, Postal Laws and Regulations.

It is also reported that in response to notices dispatched to senders as directed by Section 637, postmasters frequently receive communications asking them virtually to act as agents of the senders of insured and C. O. D. parcels in further attempting to coerce the addressees to accept delivery or to effect a sale of the contents of the parcels to other persons. Postmasters should understand that they are not expected or permitted to act in the manner herein referred to, in their official capacity, otherwise than is required and allowed by the Postal Laws and Regulations and instructions emanating from the Department.

OUR BOOK REVIEW.

"All About Postage Stamps"—By Fred. J. Melville, President of the Junior Philatelic Society, is all that the name implies as it covers the subject as completely as it is possible to do so in a volume of its size, 255 pages. The popular Mr. Melville not only has written a work that will serve as a text-book or guide for the beginner and as a vehicle for the information and entertainment of the confirmed collector as well but also one that will appeal invitingly to the non-philatelic masses. The book is divided into four parts. In Part I, the principles of philately are discussed under the following heads: The Grammar of Philately—The Classification of Stamps—The Principles of Collecting and Accessories. Part II treats in an exhaustive manner, The Designs of Stamps. Part III is devoted wholly to "Collecting" while Part IV, "Propaganda," has the divisions, Who Collect Stamps, Philatelic Societies and Exhibitions and Philatelic Literature. The important feature of illustrations has been handled admirably and the many splendid plates give the book a value both to the philatelist and the public that cannot be over-estimated on the score of practicability to say nothing of artistic effect. We believe that "All About Postage Stamps," which is written in the characteristically readable style of Mr. Melville, the first of the popular writers on philately, will call strongly to the outsiders and too, so engagingly that the element of recruiting may be said to be in the work. We are sure that our good words for this book will be repeated by all who secure it as an addition to the shelves of their library. J. B. Lippincott Company, Philadelphia, Pa., publishers; price $1.50. In a preceding issue we spoke of the novel treatment in a philatelic sense of the cover of the book.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Hugh M. Clark, the main-spring of the Scott Stamp & Coin Company, writes us from Newfoundland that he will be on hand at the Niagara Falls convention.

—Our managing editor, Willard O. Wylie, has written us from Hammerfest, Norway, which he says is a "cute little town of 2,700." Let us see,—we have nearly three times as many subscribers as there are people in Hammerfest, which is said to be the prototype of Knoxville in this country. The "joke" is not our own.

—J. L. A. Couture, Quebec, applied for some of the specials advertised by the Postage Stamp Company of San Francisco, saying that he would "remit upon receipt." He gave as references the Bank of Montreal, "our firm," (Couture, Huard & Cie) and "my personal bankers." He wanted the stamps rushed to him but the Postage Stamp Company is not stampeded by the sight of an elaborate letter-head; and it is well, as the Bank of Montreal wrote: "Referring to your inquiry of the 7th instant, Mr. J. L. A. Couture is unknown to us."

—From C. H. Mekeel we have received the following particulars about the fire that recently destroyed his residence: "Although a good many of my stamps were in the bungalow that was on our place because that building contained a fire-proof vault where I kept reserves, the loss in my office was considerable and many current records were destroyed. While there was a nominal insurance on the building, there was none on the contents and the net loss will be in excess of $25,000, which was a rather disastrous half-hour performance."

Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from W. R. Adams, George Kump (2), E. A. Colson, Herman W. Boers (4), F. G. Jensen, O. D. Challans, Victor Loly (2), and Lionel T. Scott.

CUSTOMS DECLARATIONS MUST ACCOMPANY PARCEL POST PACKAGES FOR NEWFOUNDLAND.

Although cautionary notices and instructions concerning the preparation of parcel post packages for foreign countries have been issued from time to time, and, under date of Feb. 16, 1914, a special notice relative to parcel post packages for Newfoundland, complaints continue to reach the Department on account of the receipt at the United States Exchange Offices, unaccompanied by customs declarations, of many parcel post packages originating in various parts of the United States addressed for delivery in Newfoundland.

All postmasters are directed, therefore, to adopt such additional corrective measures at their offices as may be necessary to prevent the acceptance for mailing of parcel post packages for Newfoundland or any other foreign country unless all details in connection with the preparation of such packages have been fully complied with. See Section 124 on page 144 of the Postal Guide, for July, 1914, and notice on page 3 of the Postal Guide for March, 1914.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BILL BLOSS, 2729 Hampden Court, Chicago, Ill.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

H. S. Y.—There are advantages in collecting either used or unused stamps. This is a question that every collector has to decide for himself. Personally, I collect either kind, limiting certain countries to one or the other, as I choose. Many stamps are obtainable used whereas they are high priced unused; and vice versa, so I would not limit myself to either kind. Unused, as a rule, are cleaner appearing, but used, on the other hand, are often more interesting because they have seen service.

2—There is a law in the U. S. forbidding the reproduction of stamps or paper money, hence it is impossible to illustrate the catalogues.

3—The 1875 Special Printings are not catalogued used for the reason that they are so very scarce in that condition that, like many other rarities, it is impossible to fix a used price on them.

4—It is hard to tell whether "precancels will ever command a premium." Some probably will bring unusual prices because of this condition.

5—It is quite certain that the Sonoras will be catalogued.

6—Please state this question more clearly. Do you mean an album?

W. C.—The "Spitzbergen" stamp you illustrate is a label issued by some private individual, and has no value.

H. L.—I believe the Hayti stamp in question should be No. 137. This is evidently an error in the catalogue. The stamp is not at all rare. The type A28 was issued in 1910-11 (No. 159).

2—The Peru stamp is No. 162. All values of this set differ.

3—Canadian Bill stamps are revenues and would be listed in any revenue catalogue.

4—The A. P. S. dues are 15c per month, and $1.00 extra the first year to pay for one share of stock. If interested further, I will be glad to send you information and membership blank.

5—A stamp exhibit is being planned for the San Francisco Fair in 1915. Further information will no doubt appear before long.

G. G. H.—The New York Stock transfer stamps are revenues issued by the State of New York, and accordingly are not listed in Scott's. I have never followed them myself, so cannot give you the information you desire.

F. G.—The letters "W. W." on the margin of your parcel post stamp are the initials of the workman who handled the plate. These letters appear on practically all values of this set and the regular sets, and do not add to the value of the stamps.

K. R.—The matter of a stamp club will be brought up in detail very shortly.

2—It is too soon to place a value on the new U. S. stamps in quantity. I would not pay more than a few cents, though, if I were you. The 12c will no doubt be the commonest, while the 7c and 9c will be scarcer.

F. Y.—The inscription on the Gabon stamps was changed from "Congo Francais Gabon" to "Afrique Equatorial" for the reason that the Government decided to use the district name instead of the local name.

2—The "O. B." surcharges on the Philippine stamps signify that the stamps are for "official business." It is claimed that these surcharges are applied after the stamps have left the post office, so they are merely control marks.

THE USE AND MAKING OF A CHECK LIST.

Whenever a stamp collector's stamps accumulate in such quantity that he can no longer remember what he has and what he needs, he finds it necessary to make some sort of a list which can be carried with him conveniently. Probably the most satisfactory list for the general collector can be made from a catalogue, and this form of list is probably the one most frequently used. The writer has gone into this subject thoroughly, with the result that he has designed a code for marking his catalogue which enables him not only to tell what stamps he has, but the actual condition of these stamps, whether used or unused, single, pair or block (and size). This system may be carried out to include any defects, centering, etc., cancelled to order, without gum, etc. This system of marking will be explained a little later.

For the benefit of the general collector, let me state that I have tried out other schemes and have come to the conclusion that using the catalogue is the only practical one. I have listed the stamps I had in a pocket note book, by catalogue number, and found that I did not have sufficient description to be of use. In the same way, I attempted at one time to list the stamps I had not, thinking it to be an easy matter to check them off as I secured them. Before going through the letter A, I gave up in despair. Hence, I worked out my catalogue code. The collector will find his check list of service when he "goes visiting" or attends his stamp club meeting, or wants to refer to his collection without going through his albums. It is far easier to carry around a catalogue than it is an album, saves much abuse to the latter, and the custom of trusting to memory instead of confirming purchases by a check list is responsible for the buying of many duplicates by mistake.

In marking off the catalogue I use the following code:

Mark a horizontal line in black ink before the used price to denote a used copy of a stamp.

Mark a horizontal line in red ink before the unused price to denote an unused copy of a stamp.

Mark a horizontal line in red ink before the used price to denote a stamp "cancelled to order."

Mark two short lines before the price to denote a pair, three for a strip, and four for a block of four. In connection with this marking, V may be used for vertical pairs or strips, and H for horizontal. Figures may also be used for large blocks, as —6—for a block of six.

Underline the price if a stamp has a serious defect, or one worth noting for replacing.

Place a dot under the unused price if stamp is without gum.

Place a dot after the price if stamp is poorly centered.

Place a vertical line after the price in addition to other marking for a straight edge copy.

Paste or write a copy of your code in your catalogue for reference. By following this system out, you will soon find that you can tell at a glance just what stamps you have, and in what kind of shape they are.

For the specialist or collector who limits himself to a few countries, a good scheme is to make a list of the stamps lacking in his collection, with catalogue number, year, value, color, price of copy wanted (whether used or unused) and other descriptions, as necessary, leaving a blank space after the catalogue value for the price paid and other remarks. As a stamp is obtained, check it off on this list. By making duplicate or triplicate copies of the list, it is possible to send them to the dealers when ordering stamps, requesting that the list be returned in good order.

In making up my collection, I have had occasion to keep a record of expenses and the financial side of the hobby, for insurance, and other reasons. In doing this, I use a card system, with standard 3x5 cards. The cards, index and box may be purchased for a trifle over 50c at almost any stationery store.

I keep a record of the cost, quantity, and catalogue value of the used; cost, quantity, face value and catalogue value of the unused, and total of both. In addition to the ten columns required as above I find it possible to note the catalogue number of the stamp, if only one is added at a time, and remarks as to source, etc., on the card. I use a card for each country, and in addition, keep a total card. I number and date each card, commencing with number one in every country, and file the card first alphabetically then numerically as filled. In making an entry, I add the total number of stamps of each country at a time, and keep the total amounts footed up. In this way I can look up any country, see the exact value, costs and face value, and as new catalogues appear, can revise my accounts and see where I have made money and where I have lost it, thus enabling me to profit by experience in the future. At the same time this actual knowledge of expenses acts as a check valve when I am tempted to spend more than I ought to on stamps. Buying stamps is one of the easiest possible ways to spend money beyond one's means, and having the actual expenses for, say, the last three months, will sometimes make one think twice before making a heavy purchase that might be regretted later. Principally, however, as my stock and collection is insured against burglary, I find it necessary to keep an account of actual values, for settlement in case of loss. Probably I go into this matter deeper than the ordinary collector would.

Translation of an article appearing in La Verdad of La Paz, Bolivia, under date of June 16th, 1914.

REIMPRESSION OF STAMPS.

A petition has been presented to the Ministry of Government by Mr. Benjamin Chabaneix, asking supreme authority to reprint for his account the postal issues of stamps of the years 1868 to 1871, in the proportion of 2,500 of each value, offering, in exchange, to present to the Government a collection of the same from the year 1868 to 1914, to be sent to the Californian Exposition.

The Supreme Government, considering that the authorizing of this permission would carry with it authority for falsifying postal stamps which have been withdrawn from circulation, favouring those who deal in stamps and form collections of great value, and in accordance with the report presented by the President of the Central Executive Committee of the Panama-Pacific Exposition has refused the said petition.

THE GUM'S THE THING.

Eph Higgins, our accommodating P. M., says this muggy hot spell of weather we've been having for the past few days is playing thunderashion with all the stamps he has on hand being as they have all became gummed up and stuck together as it were.

Eph says he spent the hole of one afternoon, recently, trying to separate these stamps from one another but it seemd that the more he monkeyed with em the stucker up they become and so he give it up in disgust.

Owing to the fackt that these stamps is stuck together in sich a fashion as described above Eph has decided to have a stamp sale at reduced rates of stuck-up stamps. Until further notis 3 2-cent stamps will be sold by Eph to whoever desires stamps for the insignificant sum of 5 cts. Buy your stamps now while they're stuck together and save money. —"BUNGVILLE BUGLE" in Buffalo Times.

OUR STATE REVENUE STAMPS.

By FRANK L. APPLEGATE.

There are still further peculiarities in the dies of the 30, 40 and 60 cent stamps with open letters. In the 30 cent "no period." First only the word TAX is spelled TAN. The 40 cent First with period comes in two dies one normal, the other with an extra white line inside of the normal white line around the top and left sides of the value tablet. The 60 cent Second with period also comes in one other type in addition to the normal one. This is replete in extra white lines, one more than the normal on each side of the circular back. There is one outside and one inside of the inscriptions CALIFORNIA and STATE TAX, also an extra one around the value tablet similar to that on the 40 cent, but running clear around. These are very marked peculiarities in the engraving, and are in no wise double strikes or anything of that kind.

All three values of the Passenger set are also found with the open letters, but not the insurance or power-of-attorney stamps. This exhausts the die varieties of the circular California revenues.

On December 5, 1863, G. R. Warren was succeeded by George Oulton, who held the office for four years. His initials appear in two slightly different types in a single circle in blue on all die varieties of exchange stamps except, possibly, the $10.00 and $20.00 with large letters, the solid letter Passenger stamps and all values of insurance stamps up to the $19.00 denomination; that is all that show the correct rating; the various errors evidently having been eliminated before this.

The stamps on thin paper must have been just about used up before Mr. Oulton surcharged any, as those on thin bluish have never been found with his initials and but very few on thin white. I now have a $4.00 insurance stamp on very thin paper surcharged G. O. and at one time had a $6.00 Third Exchange same paper and surcharge, as can doubtless be verified by Mr. Eagle whom I think now has it. I do not know positively of any others.

Now a word as to shades. All the first printings of California revenues in red were in shades of orange red from vermilion to dull scarlet. Later printings tend more to carmine and rose.

The Bill of Lading and large insurance stamps last printed, notably those that I have seen surcharged S. H. B., are in a very deep rose. In the small stamps the orange red shades predominate down to about 1863 after which date the carmine and rose shades seem more common. None of these reach the depth of color seen in the large stamps, however.

All the issues of California have now been touched on except the last issue commonly known as the rectangular series or "State revenue" series. This from the fact that this series are inscribed STATE REVENUE instead of STATE TAX as on all the round stamps.

These were first issued in 1865 without anv special announcement so far as I can learn, and continued in use for about seven years or until the stamp taxes were discontinued.

It is known that Brittan and Rey of San Francisco printed some of the later California stamps and it is quite probable that the series of 1865 are of their production although no direct evidence has been adduced to substantiate the belief. The designs are rectangular about 20x24 mm. in size and are not the same for all values, although similar.

The word CALIFORNIA at the top in colored Roman capitals on ribbon or scroll, STATE REVENUE in same letters at base, value in words at sides, figures of value in circles in each corner and large value in central oval are common to all values. Five main types are to be noted, with several subtypes as follows:

Type I, variety a. The frame part of this design is almost identical with the 2c First issue U. S. revenue with the ribbons at ends turning up and around the corner circles variety a. Background of central oval composed of vertical bars broken with short angle at regular intervals.

Variety b. Same, background of oval composed of straight bars.

Variety c. Same, quilted background.

Variety d. Same, engine turned background.

Type II. Similar to type I, but rib-

It will be noticed that all values in the exchange schedule up to and including $56.00, and all values of Insurance up to and including $45.00, are represented in this set.

As these stamps first appeared during the term of George Oulton, nearly all these stamps are known with the G. O. surcharge in blue. Robert Watt succeeded him on December 7, 1867, and held the office until December 2, 1871, when he was succeeded by James J. Green, who held the office until after the stamp taxes were discontinued.

The R. W. surcharge comes in both blue and black. The R. W. surcharge in blue is the commonest while the J. J. G. surcharge which is found in black only is comparatively scarce. Some stamps appear to be without surcharge, but it is presumed that all were surcharged but some very faintly. It is very hard, in some cases, particularly with some of the stamps in dark colors, to distinguish the surcharge from the cancellation when only fragments of it can be seen. It is also presumed that each of the four surcharges were applied to each of the different denominations and colors, but all have not been confirmed. All values above $10.00 are very scarce, more so than the catalogue values of from $5.00 to $18 would seem to indicate. The 60c, 80c, $1.40, $7.00 blue and $8.00 are also hard to pick up with any surcharge.

A 30c brown, 50c carmine and $5.00 purple have been catalogued, but are now considered essays.

All of the California revenues were spaced far enough apart on the sheet to allow for magnificent margins, but unfortunately the practice of users was to cut them very close. Mr. Greany, who has handled as many California revenues as anybody perhaps, estimates that the percentage of cut square specimens in the round stamps is from one to five per cent. of the total issue. It is at least certain that the cut squares are very much the exception. Even the last issue are very often cut to shape as well as are the round ones. When the round ones are cut square it is next to impossible to find any without one or more sides being cut into.

Then there are the die cuts. One called the saw tooth or star cut die is a large circular die, 40 millimeters in diameter, composed of 40 saw teeth or serrations. This was very early applied to the Bill of Lading stamps, and when well centered renders a very attractive effect. It was early used also on the blue and dull vermilion Exchange stamps, but is very scarce. Mr. Smith says all the Bill of Lading stamps cut with this die emanated from the Pacific Mail and Steamship Co., and the Exchange stamps so cut were used only by a few firms.

Several circular dies are also found ranging from 25 to 28 millimeters in diameter, and are comparatively common. The larger ones when centered so as to show a margin clear around the stamp are quite desirable. Various values of the rectangular series are also found cut with the round dies of course marring their appearance. These are catalogued as separate varieties in some catalogues, but there is no reason to presume that they are of any but a private nature.

About 1869 or 1870 some values of the rectangulars were rouletted 10. Presumably these are official. The 4c yellow orange, 4c orange, 10c, 20c dark brown, 40c, 50c yellow, and $1.00 yellow have been catalogued and the 30c has been reported by Mr. Prevost. All have good margins; some enormous ones. Even some of these are known also with round die cut.

Remainders.—There were very few remainders of the California revenues. In a letter which I received in 1900 from Truman Reeves, then Treasurer of California, he states that all remainders were destroyed at the time the law was repealed. There may have been a few remainders of certain issues left in the hands of County treasurers or private users when the laws were repealed for there are certainly stamps extant which have every appearance of being unused. Many of the earlier issues were never cancelled when used, so it is hard to tell.

I have some of the last issue unused with a smooth colorless gum.

Reprints.—It is unknown what became of the dies and plates from which the California stamps were printed. Probably they were destroyed. Mr. Adenaw lists a set of Bill of Lading on white paper consisting of 30, 40c, $1.00, $4.00, $10.00, $20.00 and $40.00, all "Thirds" surcharged A. R. M. in a different type from any others known. He looks upon them with suspicion. I have the $40 apparently of this set which was sent me by Mr. Greany, who says they are reprints. They may be. The frame part seems to be the same as the regular stamps, but the word "Third" is one millimeter shorter and of a lighter type. The color is a pale orange red, quite distinct.

Greany also reports reprints of the small insurance stamps, without surcharge on laid paper in the following values, the three highest of which are unknown in the originals: $2.00, $4.00, $7.00, $10.00, $15.00, $19.00, $45.00, $87.50 and $100.00.

Proofs.—In Proofs, Mr. Bartlett reports a $5.00, 1865, in black on India paper. Mr. Smith and Mr. Greany both have had copies of the 7½c Insurance stamp (large) in black, and Mr. Greany also had a set of rectangulars from $19.00 to $56.00 in dark gray on buff paper. These I saw before they were destroyed with the rest of his collection in the great San Francisco fire of April 18, 1906.

Speaking of the fire: up to this time finds were made from time to time as old and unforgotten records came to light, but since that time new finds are few and far between. Large quantities of the original stamped documents went to Europe where the stamps were seized upon and treasured by foreign collectors who took more interest in them than was taken in this country and some fine collections are held there to this day.

Taken all in all, the California revenues are a deep study. Most of them are scarce, many extremely rare and a few beyond price; yet any collector who will expend a little well directed effort can pick up at little expense a respectable showing of the commoner ones, at least, which will always be an item of interest even to a non-collector, and will eventually become a thing of value.

NEW STAMPS FOR CHINA.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—The Chinese Government has lately placed an order with Messrs. Waterlow & Sons of London for 200,000,000 stamps of the current issue, and from this it would appear that the installation of a Government plant for printing their own stamps is not yet complete.

When these works are ready there should be some interesting results in the way of varieties, for the native printer has, before now, shown that the handling of the plates sent out from England is frequently productive of some weird specimens. Collectors will remember the varieties produced by the native Egyptian workmen when the stamps for that country were first printed at the Government works at Bonlac.

The current issue of China is certainly the most attractive series yet adopted by the Chinese, and up till a short time ago these stamps were commanding quite substantial prices, but China is a vast country, many thousands of stamps must be used daily, and these can be imported by the hundred at a low figure.—Clipping.

$1,000 STAMP THIEF GETS OFF IN DOWN-TOWN CHASE.

Snatches Tray of Collector Scott's Stock While Two Keep Proprietor Busy.

J. W. Scott, dealer in rare coins and stamps, was alone in his shop at No. 36 John street shortly before 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon when two men inquired about stamps. They were about to examine a collection in the rear of the place when a man who had been loitering outside walked to a tray where stamps valued at more than $1,000 were piled.

Before Scott could turn from the two men with him the third man dashed from the store with the stamps. Clerks in Drivas's fruit store, adjoining, chased but the man eluded them.—N. Y. Newspaper.

THE ONLY UNIQUE STAMP.

Pride of place among the many valuable and unique specimens belongs to a singularly unpretentious and sorry looking stamp issued in the colony of British Guiana in 1856, for provisional use pending the arrival of a fresh consignment of the regular postage stamps from England. It is of the denomination one cent, the design being crudely set up from ordinary printer's type at the office of the Official Gazette, with the central device of a sailing ship taken from the heading to the shipping announcements in the paper.

The single known copy of this rarity was discovered by a young collector in the colony among some old family papers stored away in an attic. Knowing nothing of its scarcity and not being favorably impressed by its appearance, he sold it to another collector for a trifling sum, the purchaser also being ignorant of his great bargain. Ultimately it found its way to Europe, and now reposes in the collection of M. Philippe de la Renotiere of Paris, the distinguished owner of the world's greatest stamp collection, who purchased it many years ago for an amount that has never been disclosed, but is believed to have been at that period a record one.

Its intrinsic value today, in the very unlikely contingency of its ever coming into the market is certainly in excess of £2000.

A report on this famous stamp by a celebrated expert states that "the copy is a poor one, dark magenta in color, and somewhat rubbed. It is initialed 'E. D. W.,' and dated April 1, the year not being distinct enough to be read." Nevertheless it is the rarest stamp in the world.—Strand.

EDITORIAL.

The World War—The Titanic struggle abroad has brought philatelists to a grim realization of what war is and while it seems petty to speak of the little concerns of the philatelic world in the light of epochal events that will change the destinies of nations, yet it is only natural that we give attention to some of the effects already apparent. At this writing, mail interruption between the United States and the countries at war is not complete although the service of a necessity is hampered. We understand that two-cent letters to Germany will be forwarded from New York on American Line steamers but as the first stop of the steamers is at Plymouth, England, it is not clear how the mail will reach Germany unless by common consent it is excepted from molestation. First-class mail for countries in Europe "will be routed so as not to pass through intervening countries with which the countries of destination are at war." Parcel post service between France and Germany and the United States was discontinued under an order dated August 3rd, 1914.

Abroad—The philatelic exhibition at Cassel, Germany, this month, will have to be abandoned, Prussia being in the center of the war zone; and we have not heard from Mr. J. M. Bartels, member of the jury, and the other Americans who had planned to attend. There are a number of American dealers abroad according to our recollection, Mr. John A. Klemann and Mr. L. W. Charlat of New York City and Mr. Warren H. Colson of Boston being among the travelers. It is doubtful if Mr. Julian Park, Buffalo, who was last heard from in Luxemburg, will be able to return home as planned, in time for the convention of the American Philatelic Society; and we have not heard from Mr. W. H. McDonald, Chicago, who sailed for Europe the latter part of July. Our managing editor, Mr. W. O. Wylie, was to have sailed for home on one of the steamers whose sailing date has been canceled. We are sure that no real danger menaces our philatelic pilgrims and that at most, they will suffer only serious discomfort.

Citizens of the World—If there is any class of persons entitled to be called cosmopolitans, it is philatelists who know something of all nations through the stamp issues of the countries; and knowing, they have almost an affection for many of the peoples. They may be said to feel others national afflictions and rejoice in their progress. While we deplore the demoralization of philately, as well as all other arts of peace, in the countries at war yet we know that when the strife ceases, philately's resurrection will be at hand and under conditions of tranquillity, it will flourish again abundantly. We shall bear our philatelic friends in the affected countries in mind with the hope that they will escape unscathed by the devastations of war.

The Annual Convention—Following its custom, the WEEKLY will have a brief telegraphic dispatch telling of the results of the early business of the convention in this issue which is concurrent with the convention; and in the two succeeding numbers the proceedings will be given in detail.

Literature—Several weeks ago, we received Part 3 of the Priced Catalogue of the Alfred Smith Philatelic Library, devoted to "separate works" which we placed at one side to await leisurely examination. We find this instalment every whit the equal in interest of the two preceding parts. We have spoken before of the value of this compilation by Alfred Smith & Son as an appraisal of the value of philatelic literature, particularly of the early period of philately. In this part, extending from "Mahe to Societies," we find twenty-three Moens' publications and the highest price affixed to any of them is eight pounds which is asked for "Illustrations du manuel du collectionneur de Timbres-poste," dated 1862-3; the work was in parts with an illustrated prospectus. A Moens' catalogue of 1862, with autograph of the great E. L. Pemberton is offered for five pounds. Perhaps the most fascinating number in the catalogue is "the first catalogue of stamps ever printed." This is the famous production of Alfred Potiquet, "Catalogue des Timbres-poste créés dans les divers Etats du Globe," published at Paris in 1861, actually, although the work seems to have been dated 1862, at the price of one franc and twenty-five centimes. The price of honor, so to say, is given to this first of all philatelic catalogues,—thirty-five pounds.

Confirmation—From C. W. Elliott, Second Lieutenant 28th Infantry, stationed at Vera Cruz, Mexico, we have received the following testimony favorable to the Torreon surcharges, which have been restored to full philatelic repute: "With your permission I will add a mite to the defense of the Torreon surcharges on the Constitutional stamps as I believe that these stamps were absolutely unspeculative and issued without any idea of their sale either then or later, to collectors. I purchased in the post office at Ciudad Juarez on the day they were issued several of them at face value prices, and when I inquired for more a few days later, I found that they were all gone and was told that they had been sold to the public over the counter. On the date of the fall of Torreon, Carranza and his staff were in Juarez and there was a great celebration over the victory, the post office contributing the surcharges with the permission and approval of the Constitutionalist Postmaster General and General Carranza. That some of the stamps were mailed down to Torreon and used on mail from there I know to be the case as I have a cover bearing two of them, postmarked at Torreon, April 11th."

"Wanderer" Rests—We have received the following letter from an attorney-at-law in Philadelphia under date of August 6th, 1914: "A man by the name of Thomas J. Mitchell died in the Rush Hospital, Philadelphia, on Thursday, July 30th, 1914, and was buried at Arlington Cemetery on Saturday, August 1st, 1914. He was a member of my masonic lodge and I visited him a few days before he died. Knowing that he was desperately ill, I endeavored to learn from him the names and addresses or get some information about his relatives. He was very weak at that time and I could get no satisfaction from him. Two other men and I went through his effects last night and we found some letters from you....." Thus alone but not friendless did the spirit of T. J. Mitchell, a philatelic writer whose nom-de-plume was famous twenty-five years ago, pass away. Mr. Mitchell dealt in stamps in Chicago at the time that he was enjoying much popularity as a writer; and to some extent he affiliated with the Chicago societies. Mr. Mitchell was about fifty years of age and though his travels for the past twenty years were almost continuous it seems, yet we have reason to know that his interest in stamps survived through the years.

HOME FROM EUROPE.

To the Editor:

Having just returned from a two months' trip in Europe, I have taken great interest in looking over the accumulation of WEEKLYS that awaited me. I wish to commend such articles as the one in the June sixth number entitled "Toussaint L'Ouverture of Hayti." I would be glad to see a larger number of them in the WEEKLY. I think all true philatelists should take a pride in being acquainted with the history suggested by the stamps in their collection. The historical and other information that can be learned or suggested by stamps, constitutes one of the greatest values of our hobby to the collector himself and to an outsider often the only apparent value. You will have no trouble interesting a friend in your collection, if other stamps suggest information similar to that contained in the article mentioned. As a boy collector I find it especially true that an outsider often has no regard for the hobby until he is shown how much interesting information can be learned from stamps. When an article of that kind is found I think it a good idea to note it under the stamp concerned. In Europe I was quite pleased to find several copies of the WEEKLY exhibited in the philatelic section of the Leipzig Exposition. The exhibit contained many things of interest particularly in connection with philatelic literature. All philatelists would be interested in visiting the Postal Museum in Berlin. Many of the accessories of our postal system, seldom seen in this country are exhibited there. Of course the great collections in the British Museum are the best things a philatelist in Europe can see. I hope any other readers of the WEEKLY that were in Europe, were as fortunate as I in getting away before the unexpected war.

The 1914-15 catalogues will have many sensational advances. British colonials in particular have been priced at figures nearer their value.

I can submit some very fine selections of these stamps including many of the high values. For months I have urged the purchase of the stamps of Papua and those who have taken my advice will be more than pleased when they see the new quotations. I still recommend their purchase and offer a very fine assortment in superb condition. Many fine blocks. Also varieties of watermark, paper and perforation. O. S. varieties in blocks and single.

THE STAMPS OF JOHORE.

By FRED J. MELVILLE.

Johore is a State occupying the southern portion of the Malay Peninsula, and is the nearest mainland to Singapore. It is independent, but in virtue of a Treaty of 1885, its foreign relations are directed by Great Britain, and since 1910, at the request of the Sultan, a British Adviser to the Johore Government has been appointed. Johore has not joined the Federation of Malay States, an omission which probably has been to its disadvantage. The capitol, Johor Bahru, is only fifteen miles from the town of Singapore. The earliest stamps specially designated for use in this State were Straits Settlements stamps overprinted, but there has been a good deal of mystery surrounding the first of these issues.

The Gibbons catalogue accepts 1878 as the date of a certain much-discussed and very rare stamp, the 2 cents brown, Straits Settlements (watermarked Crown over C.C.), overprinted with a device of a crescent and star. Authorities are at variance as to the authenticity of the crescent and star overprints for Johore, though the similar overprints on the Straits stamps for other Malayan States being of later date are not mentioned. Much of the mystery has been due, I think, to the supposed dates hitherto attributed to this stamp of which no records occur in the stamp collectors' journals until 1884. Some authorities consider that the "overprint" is nothing else than a postal obliterating mark, and their opinion was supported by the later stamps, overprinted Johore (or in some cases Johor), used copies of which bore postmarks in which the crescent and star figure together with the name of the town of Johor Bahru.

In my view the stamp is a bona-fide overprinted issue for Johore, but the issue took place earlier than the year given in the catalogue. Its date will probably be fixed as 1876, and in support of this the reports of the Straits Settlements Post Office show that the "Maharajah of Johore consulted with the Straits Postmaster-General as early as 1872 in reference to the establishment of a postal service between Singapore and the Johore capitol." Rates of postage were suggested as 2 cents per ½ oz. letter. The proposal was allowed to drop that year, the Maharajah being left to subsidise a service of coaches in 1873. The question of a proper postal service cropped up again in 1873 and in 1875, and in the latter year it is stated that "satisfactory arrangements are now about to be carried into force."

This was actually accomplished in the middle of 1876, and the postal convention between the Straits Settlements and Johore provided for the use of the stamps of the Colony, bearing such special mark as might be agreed upon to denote their availibility on letters originating in Johore. That this special mark was no other than the Mohammedan symbols, known to the early collectors on the 2 cents brown stamp, then current in the Straits, I consider there can be no doubt. And there must have been a good number of the overprinted stamps used, though very few, indeed, have been preserved in collections. The Tapling collection at the British Museum lacks a copy.

As to the date 1878 given in the catalogues, the postal service was dropped early in that year after a trial of about eighteen months, because it was unremunerative. There was no Government postal service between the Colony and the State from that time until 1884, when the well-known overprints of the name of the State on the 2 cents rose, Straits stamp, appeared. This new service was "considerably availed of by European residents." The rate of postage was clearly on a basis of 2 cents per ½ oz. as we only find the 2 cents stamps overprinted for use in Johore, except, of course, the 24 cents green, which, however, was converted into a 2 cents stamp (by surcharging) before despatch to Johore.

In 1892 appeared the first portrait stamps of Sultan Aboubakas, very finely engraved and printed by the typographical method of Messrs. De La Rue and Co. Portraiture on surface-printed stamps is rarely good, but it is said of this issue that the picture was a particularly good likeness of the Sultan, who was a popular ruler, and a favourite at Queen Victoria's Court. He died while on a visit to England in 1895, after a rule of nearly twenty-five years.

The stamps of the Aboubakas portrait type, overprinted "Kemahkotaan," were issued to mark the coronation of his successor, the Sultan Ibrahim (mahkota=crown). These stamps occur with the word mis-spelt "Ketahkotaan." The stamps of the reign of his Highness Ibrahim, K.C.M.G., are not less faithful in their portraiture, as a comparison with photographs of the Sultan demonstrates, and are evidently the work of the same engraver, as they are of the same printing establishment.—Daily Telegraph.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given, unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—We acknowledge the receipt of an invitation to the marriage of Miss Eva Augusta Robinovits of Worcester, Mass., to our friend and precanceled stamp enthusiast, Mr. John Albert Solomon of Providence, Rhode Island. Bliss in unbounded measure is our wish for the occasion.

—In applying for an approval selection, "Mr. J. Davis," 3325 23rd St., San Francisco, Cal., gave Mr. E. A. Moseley of Bloomfield, Mo., the name of "Mr. C. Caplain," 1602 Nicholas St., San Francisco, "vice-president of the San Francisco Match Co.," as reference. A letter to Mr. Caplain came back unclaimed and endorsed: No such street.

—Before this note is in print, we hope that Willard O. Wylie, a perfectly good managing editor, will have revealed his whereabouts. It will be to his advantage if he will communicate with us. We do not see why they want to keep our m. e. in Europe, anyway.

—Niagara Falls, New York, is en fete for the A. P. S. convention delegates and the advance guard has already entered into close philatelic communion with one another. So says our correspondent on the spot.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents.

ALBANIA.—Four values of the Skandebeg issue, already surcharged with new values in Turkish money, have received an additional overprint "Takse" for use as postage due stamps. The stamps so treated are 10pa, 20pa, 1gr and 2gr.

ANGOLA.—Mr. Schachne has shown us the new issues of postal cards and letter cards for this colony. All the impressed stamps are bicolored, the value and the name of the country being printed in black.

Post Cards.

1c green and black on buff.
2c red and black on white.
1x1c green and black on buff.
2x2c red and black on white.

Letter Cards.

2½c lilac and black on yellow.
5c blue and black on white.
2½x2½c lilac and black on yellow.

ARGENTINE.—According to Lemaire's Journal the 4c and 30c have appeared on the new watermarked paper, thus completing the series.

BOSNIA.—The York Stamp Co. calls attention to the fact that there are two shades of 1h of 1912. The darker shade appears to be the earlier printing. Ewen's Weekly says that this country will shortly issue a 10k stamp. It will be carried out in copper-plate printing, in blue color on pale grey paper and will resemble the 2k stamp of the 1902 issue.

CHINA.—Champion's Bulletin says that China will enter the Universal Postal Union, September 1. On that date all foreign offices will be suppressed, and all issues of stamps will be demonetized, except the current Laborer and Pagoda types.

COLOMBIA.—A series of official stamps will soon be issued, comprising several values. All will have a portrait of Ricaurte. These stamps will not be sold to the public.

COSTA RICA.—Paul W. Riedell also calls our attention to the "Habilltado" error, as noted in No. 1226. These errors appear to have been noted everywhere but in Scott's catalogue.

CUBA.—Lemaire's Journal reports the issue of a new series of postage due stamps for the Island Republic. The design resembles that of the United States, with a large figure of value in the centre, "Republica de Cuba" above, "Tasa por Cobvar" below, and the value repeated in words at either side.

Postage Due Adhesives.

1c carmine.
2c carmine.
5c carmine.

FRANCE.—The postal authorities propose to try the plan of allowing the issue of the low values precanceled as has been done for some time in the United States, Canada, Belgium and Luxemburg, says Lemaire's Journal.

HAYTI.—Hermann Focke sends us a cover received from Port au Prince, Hayti, July 26, with three varieties of the recently reported provisional issue, with surcharge of "Gl. O. Z.—7 Fev. 1914" amongst them a surcharged new value: "1 Cent. de Piastre" on 50c yellow, Scott's type A19 re-issue of 1912, not yet catalogued.

Mr. Focke has received the following stamps with above surcharge.

1c green, Scott's No. 125.
2c vermilion, No. 126.
3c deep brown, No. 127.
3c orange, same type, reissue 1912.

"1 Cent de Piastre" on 50c yellow-orange.

This issue will have to be taken up by the catalogues, the same as the 1902, 1904 and 1905 provisionals.

JAPAN.—Offices in China.—According to Lemaire's Journal the 10s on the new paper has been seen overprinted for use in China.

NEW ZEALAND.—The 5sh revenue has been overprinted "Official" for postal use.

NICARAGUA.—C. P. Frey reports having found an error in the Cordoba surcharged ½c on 15c on 35c, Mountain type. The second "O" of "Cordoba" is a capital letter. This occurs on the third stamp of the fourth row, plate No. 61. Also in a sheet of the 2c on 2p, a "v" is so printed as to look like a "y." This is found on plate 389.

PENRHYN ISLAND.—From Whitfield King & Co. comes the ½ King Edward stamp of New Zealand, surcharged in deep carmine for use in the Island.

In connection with a fair collection of U. S. stamps, I have lately begun to collect blocks of 4 of the various issues of U. S. I have tried different ways of mounting them but have not yet reached anything that is satisfactory. No doubt among your many readers are others who take a pleasure in collecting along this line and possibly they could offer some plans that would be appropriate. If you find time and opportunity will you kindly give this space in the columns of the WEEKLY.

Yours truly,
BLOCKS OF FOUR.

THE POSTAGE STAMPS OF LAGOS.

By D. B. ARMSTRONG.

Formerly a British Crown Colony of importance, but reduced of recent years to the status of a province of the more modern colony of Southern Nigeria, Lagos occupies 28,910 square miles of territory in Western Africa, its coast line bordering on the Bight of Benin. Whilst enjoying the distinction of being the oldest of the Nigerian territories it has long been surpassed in importance by its younger neighbours. It was annexed to the British Crown in 1861, when as a result of the slave-trading propensities of its native ruler, Her Majesty's Government intervened, and having deposed the offending King Kosoko, reinstated a former monarch named Docemo, who under the benign protection of Great Britain pledged himself to suppress the slave-trade in his dominions. Eventually he ceded both himself and territories to the British Government; from which it would appear that he had been unequal to the task he had undertaken.

At this period the region designated by the title of Lagos comprised only the town and island of that name, and the coast line 140 miles in extent, lying between Long. 2° and 6° E. with a total area of 1,500 square miles and a population of about 2,000,000.

Under the provisions of an Order in Council given under date of December 27th, 1899, a large tract of fertile country in the hinterland of the Colony, embracing the whole of the Yoruba district and stretching to the border of the French Niger territories, was incorporated in the Colony under the title of the Lagos Protectorate, thus adding about 27,500 square miles and one million inhabitants to the Colony. A further Order in Council of July 24th, 1901, set forth the composition and defined the extent and boundaries of the colony and protectorate of Lagos.

Lagos was at first administered separately from the other British possessions in West Africa, but in 1866 was placed under the control of the Governor of Sierra Leone, and later, when in 1874 Sierra Leone severed its connection with the Gold Coast administration, became a dependency of that Colony, from which it was finally disunited in 1886 and was created a Crown Colony.

Finally, by an Order in Council dated February 16th, 1905, Lagos was amalgamated with the larger and more recently constituted Colony of Southern Nigeria, of which it now forms the Western province, thus terminating its career as an individual colony.

The climate is tropical and unsuited to Europeans, but the soil is for the most part fertile and well cultivated. The trade in human chattels, for which the district was once notorious, has now given place to more legitimate forms of commerce, and palm oil, cotton, rubber, ivory, gum, and other tropical products are exported, to an annual value of over £1,000,000. A railway has been constructed from Iddo Island into the interior of the Colony, connecting with the Northern Nigeria system, and the country is being opened up and developed upon a systematic scale.

The island of Lagos, from which the district derives its name, lies immediately off the coast, enclosing a vast lagoon which forms an excellent natural harbour. It was from this lagoon that the early Portuguese navigators bestowed the name of Lagos on the island, meaning "the Lakes." The island is 3¾ miles in area and is connected with the mainland by a long bridge. On it stands the town of Lagos on the River Ogun, the principal settlement of the colony, and the seat of government, having the largest population of any town on the West Coast of Africa, and including the bulk of the European community, to the number of about 200.

The history of the colony's early postal affairs is shrouded in mystery. The earliest copy of the Official Gazette available in London is dated 1881, and such other semi-official publications as are to be found, throw but a very faint light upon the beginnings of the Lagos postal service. Lagos and Badagri are, however, mentioned as ports of call for the steamships of the West African mail service plying under contract with H. M. Postmaster-General by an agreement dated January 29th, 1852, for a period of ten years.

Prior to the issue of distinctive postage stamps, an early type of postal frank was in use at Lagos, similar to that employed at Corfu, Tobago, and elsewhere at that period, consisting of a small double-lined circle, broken at the top to admit of the insertion of a roughly formed Crown and inscribed "PAID AT LAGOS." It was struck in red and was first chronicled by the Philatelic Record in July, 1882.

On its political severance from Sierra Leone the colony was provided with a series of postage stamps of its own. Whether or not the stamps of the latter colony had previously been in use by the Lagos Post Office remains to be discovered, but it is a point that commends itself to the Lagos specialist, and a systematic search amongst used copies of the stamps of Sierra Leone issued between the years 1860 and 1873 should be productive of information.

That an internal postal system was already in operation in Lagos previous to the issue of special postage stamps is clearly shown by the following official notice; the earliest that the writer has succeeded in tracing.

Postal Service for Badagry, Palma, and Leckie.—Notice is hereby given that the mails for Badagry will be forwarded from this office every Tuesday at 3 p. m., up to which hour letters and parcels will be received.

By His Excellency's Command,
W. C. PRATT, Postmaster.

Post Office, Lagos, March 5, 1874.

The above notice is of interest as showing the respective uses of the first four postage stamps issued in the Colony. The postal rate to the United Kingdom at that period was 6d per ½ oz.

A series of four postage stamps, which had been ordered from Messrs. Thos. De La Rue & Co., of London, postage stamp contractors to the British and Colonial Governments, were received in the Colony shortly after the appearance of the above notice.

They were of simple and effective design, printed from a key-plate specially constructed to the order of the Lagos Government, and not from any of the general Colonial key-plates.

The outstanding feature of the design was a diademed profile portrait of Her Majesty, Queen Victoria, believed to have been engraved by Mons. Jean Ferdinand Joubert, chief engraver of stamp dies to Messrs. De La Rue & Co., and closely resembling, though not identical with that shown on the contemporary issues of Dominica, Tobago, etc. The head, displayed on a closely shaded ground, was contained in a double-lined circle occupying the whole of the centre of the stamp, whilst above the portrait on a small arched tablet of solid colour was the word "Lagos" in small uncoloured Roman capitals, and on a coloured ground beneath the circular frame was inscribed "Postage" in similar type. Ornate. foliate designs filled the spandrels, which in parts encroached upon the narrow band of colour encircling the frame containing the portrait, whilst across the foot of the stamp was an oblong tablet for the insertion of the value in words; printed in from a separate "duty-plate" at a second impression in heavy sans serif type. The whole design was surrounded by a single line of colour.

An interesting proof of this design was shown to the writer by Mr. H. F. Johnson, being an impression from the original key-plate with the value tablet blank. It was printed in pale lilac upon glazed white card, showing to perfection the fine lines and wealth of detail employed in its engraving. The proof was overprinted "Specimen," and the entire series in their normal state are also known with this overprint.

The stamps were printed typographically by Messrs. De La Rue's well known process in sheets of sixty ranged in ten rows of six, the margins bearing the plate number "1" in white upon a solid circle of colour, above the second stamp from the left in the top, and below the second from the right in the bottom row. An octagonal frame with indented corners contained a "current number" usually "1" also, and was overprinted over the second stamp from the left in the top and beneath the second from the right in the bottom row of the sheet. In all other respects the margins were devoid of embellishment.

Medium white wove paper was employed in their manufacture, watermarked with the device of a Royal Crown above the letters CC, signifying Crown Colony, grouped so as to allow of one complete watermark falling upon the centre of each and every stamp on the sheet. The margins contained the inscription "Crown Colonies" watermarked in large open block capitals. Their perforation was effected by means of a single-line (or guillotine) machine gauging 12½, which had first been brought into use by Messrs. De La Rue & Co., for perforating surface printed stamps in 1863.

Some uncertainty has hitherto existed as to the precise date on which the first Lagos postage stamps were issued to the public, some philatelists ascribing the event to June, 1874, and others including the Royal Philatelic Society in "Africa III." to May of the same year. This important point is finally cleared up by the writer's discovery of the following official notice, which definitely assigns the date of issue to June 10th, 1874.

> The supply of stamps for Postage Rates of sixpence, fourpence, twopence, and one penny having been received for the use of this Settlement, Notice is hereby given that no letters will be received for transmission at the Post Office unless duly stamped.
> By command,
> JOHN SHAW,
> Acting Collector and Colonial Sec'y.
> Secretary's Office, Lagos, June 10th, 1874.

Two further stamps of the face values 3d and 1s respectively were added to the series in March, 1875, bringing the total number of stamps then current in the Colony up to six.

1874-75. Design as above. Head of Queen Victoria. Typographed and printed by Messrs. Thos. De La Rue & Co. in London at two operations; value inserted at second printing. Wmk. Crown CC. Perf. 12½. Dates of issue appended in brackets.

1d lilac-mauve (June 10th, 1874).
2d blue (June 10th, 1874).
3d red-brown (March, 1875).
4d carmine (June 10th, 1874).
6d blue-green (June 10th, 1874).
1s orange (March, 1875).

VARIETY.

The words indicating the value on the original ONE SHILLING duty plate measured exactly 15½ mm. and there was no serif to the G. of Shilling. After it had been in use for a short time, however, this plate in some way got damaged, and in consequence had to be discarded. A fresh duty plate, which was subsequently brought into use, had the words of value a full millimetre longer, whilst there was a serif to the letter G.

Value measures 16½ instead of 15½ mm.
1s orange.

SHADES.

Owing to their being inserted at a separate printing the values of this and the following postal issues of Lagos frequently show marked divergencies in shade from the body of the stamps. In explanation of this fact the late E. J. Nankivell put forward the suggestion that it was possible that a stock of sheets was printed off in the various colours and laid on one side, and that the values were inserted from time to time as fresh requisitions were made, thus accounting for the variations in the shade of the inks. This is known to have been the case with familiar Arms Type stamps of Mauritius, which were sent out to the Colony in some instances with the value tablets blank for the insertion of the values locally as required.

The most pronounced shades occurring in the first issue of Lagos are:—

3d red-brown and chestnut.
6d blue-green and yellow-green.

The obliterator used in cancelling these stamps, which was probably supplied by the printers with the first consignment, was of the duplex type, consisting of a large capital "L" within a small circle surrounded by heavy bars, used in conjunction with a single-lined circular date stamp, inscribed at top with the name of the Colony, and containing the date in two lines in the centre, together with a control letter (A or B) struck in black.—*Stamp Col. $20,000 INTERNATIONAL POSTAL ORDER REFUSED.

BOSTON, MASS., Aug. 3.—An application for an international money order for $20,000 was refused at the Boston Post Office today under a law which permits such exercise of the Postmaster's discretion if he thinks the order will lead to abuse of the postal system.

The proposed $20,000 remittance was thought to be for speculative purposes. Considerable business was done by people by sending money to relatives abroad, but most of it was remittances for merchandise.

In the last week the international money order business has been multiplied twenty times, jumping from $1,000 a week to $20,000 today. Few orders exceeded $500.—Newspaper.

FROM THE UNDERWORLD OF STAMPS.

The question of "philatelic criminals" is one that rises in the mind of every collector, almost as soon as he has dipped beneath the surface of the hobby. To the uninformed collector the subject of "reprints, fakes, counterfeits, and bogus stamps" often appears as an immense stumbling block in his way to the heights of a large collection. However, as he grows more experienced, the collector realizes that all of these things are of little importance. The collector young in experience often confuses these various classes of "undesirables" or fails to distinguish between them. Often the term "reprint" is applied in error to any fake, counterfeit or bogus stamp. Also, reprints and remainders are often confused. These various classes should be distinguished as follows:

REMAINDERS.

These stamps should not be classed among the undesirables. They are genuine stamps which have remained unsold by the post office at the time a new issue takes place, and are in no way counterfeits or even reprints. In many countries, especially the American republics, it is the practice to sell all stamps on hand shortly after a new issue is put out. These remainders are sold to the stamp dealers, sometimes unused, sometimes cancelled to order, and sometimes marked in a certain way to prevent their use for postage. When sold unused, the issue is "demonetized," or declared invalid for postal use, usually after due notice has been given to the people in order that they may use up the supplies they have previously purchased. This was done in the case of the "Seebeck" issues of Central America. These particular remainders, like certain others, were returned to the printers, who disposed of them for their private gain. In the case of the remainders of the stamps of Mauritius, the word "cancelled" was surcharged on the stamps. St. Helena cancelled its remainders by using a diamond shaped rubber stamp, with bars. Spain used a cancellation consisting of four horizontal lines, and also punched a hole in many of the stamps, a practice that did nothing to improve the beauty of the stamp. Roumania, Ecuador, and numerous other countries have used ordinary cancelling stamps on their remainders.

Remainders treated as above are, of course, not as desirable as either unused or postally used copies, though they are collectible. The only fault with remainders is that, when large stocks are disposed of, the market value of the stamp usually decreases unless the stamps are disposed of in such small quantities that they can be absorbed as put on the market. When small stocks are sold the market usually swallows them up without any material difference in value. Remainders are sometimes sold at their face value by the governments but more often at a discount.

REPRINTS.

These are stamps made from the original dies or plates used in the manufacture of the original stamps after the latter stamps have been withdrawn from use. They are often made by the government, for various purposes, such as; for sale to collectors; for historical purposes, as matters of record; or for exhibition purposes, as in the case of the United States reprints made for exhibition at the Centennial. Usually some mark is applied to distinguish them from originals, and the word REPRINT may be applied on the back or face, as the case may be. Many of the Australian reprints are so treated.

Reprints are sometimes made by private individuals who have secured the original plates or dies. These are usually made for the gain of the individual.

On several occasions, the government have wanted to issue reprints of some obsolete issue, and have been unable to find or use the original dies or plates. Accordingly, new plates have been made. Stamps printed from these new plates are not reprints, but are "Government counterfeits." So delicate an operation is the making of postage stamps that even the Governments find it practically impossible to reproduce a stamp so exactly as to defy detection. A notable instance of Government counterfeiting is in the so-called reprints of the 1847 issue of the United States. These "reprints" were made at the same time the reprints of the later issues were printed, and as the original plates had been destroyed long before, the government ordered new plates made, as nearly like the originals as possible. These were made in very close imitation of the originals, but differences are easily detected, however. The stamps from these new plates are not reprints, but are counterfeits.

Reprints and Government counterfeits are of interest only to the advanced collector and specialist, and are in a class by themselves, along with essays and proofs. The beginner and medium collector should let them alone. Reprints are often sold for "space fillers" in place of the more expensive originals. In the writer's estimation, a blank looks better than a "space filler" of any sort. Also, reprints are often sold by unscrupulous dealers as originals, and sometimes are sold as such by dealers who are too ignorant or careless to distinguish them. Make it a rule to have your stamps passed by some reputable dealer or expert before buying them, if you think there is any question. Reprints often present a fresher, cleaner appearance than the originals, and the gum and paper frequently differs. Like many other things, they are very easy to distinguish "when you know how."

FAKES.

Many collectors are of the opinion that "fakes" and "counterfeits" are the same thing. They are distinctly different. A "fake" is a genuine stamp that has been changed or altered in some way to change the value. For instance, by the use of certain chemicals, many stamps may be changed in color, sometimes to represent a rarer shade. Also, a clever penman can sometimes alter a stamp in such a way as to make it much more valuable. A short time ago, the writer saw a one dollar bill that had been altered in such a way that it was passed through five hands as a five dollar bill before being detected. It goes to show that alterations can be made on stamps, though the person skilled enough to be successful in this work would probably profit a great deal more through some legitimate occupation.

Cancellations are faked on stamps. Probably there is more faking done in this line than any other. Cancellations differ in so many ways that even a "strange" one will often be accepted as genuine.

Surcharges are quite frequently faked, though not often enough to be a menace to the collector. Like other counterfeiting, it takes great skill to reproduce a surcharge that cannot be detected, and usually the fakes are so crude as to be "spotted" by the most inexperienced.

Often, also, used stamps are "cleaned" (or the cancellation is removed) and are regummed and sold as unused. This is especially true of stamps with pen and rubber stamp cancellations. The work is usually easy to detect, however, as a mark is usually left by the chemical.

COUNTERFEITS.

In the olden days, when collecting was in its "baby days", counterfeits of rare stamps were not uncommon. In the first place, the stamps themselves were easier to reproduce, as a rule. In the next place, the stamps did not receive the careful study they do today, and counterfeits were not nearly as easily detected. Also, the news of the discovery of a counterfeit was not circulated as it is today. Thirdly, many collectors bought these counterfeits as such, for space fillers, so there was a better market for them. Counterfeits are growing very scarce today, and probably 90% of the counterfeits are of early issues.

One reason why there are so few reproductions of modern stamps is that the manufacturers have learned many little tricks of watermarking and perforating, hence the counterfeiter has a great deal to do besides the mere printing of the stamps in order to make a clever fraud. The printing itself has reached such a high plane that it requires very expensive machinery to make the stamps, and the ordinary individual would not find it profitable to invest in this machinery to make a few stamps, when the detection of his work would probably mean a complete loss of profits and possible legal complications.

Practically all frauds in stamps are made to swindle the collectors. Very few have been directed against the governments, and in these few cases, most of the fraudulent stamps are scarcer and more valuable than the genuine stamps themselves.

Counterfeits are practically confined to high priced stamps. Collectors need worry very little about meeting them in their travels. Usually, they are crude and unfinished appearing, and are easily detected.

In classifying these stamps, remember that a counterfeit is a stamp made in imitation of another stamp, not made from the original plates.

BOGUS STAMPS.

These stamps differ from each of the preceding classes. They are generally the product of someone's vivid imagination. Many of them are supposed to be from countries that never exist, or that never issued stamps. A collector last week called my attention to a label supposedly from Spitzbergen. In this same class, are the U. S. Army Franks, so common in small collections; that set of Brunei, issued years ago, and resurrected several years ago; the stamps for the Principality of Trinidad; for Counani (wherever that place is); for the Friendly Islands; and others too numerous to mention here.

Most of these stamps are short-lived, as collectors soon "get wise" and hence there is no sale for them. Occasionally something new in this line is put on the market, or some of the old ones are resurrected and used again. Collectors have little to fear from them, however, as they are usually inexpensive, and are not at all common. These stamps make interesting fillers for that last page in the album with the exposition labels and those permits, and penalty envelopes, and other miscellaneous "cousins of stamps." They tell a story in their own way, and collectors will find them unique, after the sting of having been caught on them has died away.

The beginner has very little to fear from any of these classes of stamps. To make a clever fake or counterfeit, even of a surcharge, is too arduous a job for the profit involved, hence, compared to the number of stamps issued, the "crooks" are very seldom found. Of course, it is necessary to take some bitter with the sweet. Use your catalogues, buy from dealers who care for their reputation, study your stamps, and in the case of the expensive stamps, use extra care in making your selection, and you will have little cause for complaint on this subject.

STAMPS DE LUXE.

An interesting deal has been made by Messrs. Edwin Healey and Company, of Wormwood Street, London, who have recently acquired from Antwerp about 40 volumes of African stamps, representing about £10,000. The private client did not wish to take the Mauritius section, which is considered to rival the King's collection of Mauritius stamps as the finest in the world, and which has been sold for £7,000. Since then they could have been disposed of three or four times at a higher sum. The collection contained nearly 300 of the first issues of the penny and twopenny stamps, all bearing the rare error ("penoe" instead of "pence"). The principal part of the collection was in very fine condition. The collection also contained 20 copies of the 2d blue Mauritius of 1859.—Glasgow Herald.

TWENTY-NINTH ANNUAL CONVENTION.

AUGUST 11TH, 12TH AND 13TH, 1914, AT NIAGARA FALLS, NEW YORK.

TUESDAY SESSION.

The twenty-ninth annual convention of the American Philatelic Society was called to order before an expectant audience of about seventy-five members and visitors by President Coolidge in the large hall of the International Hotel. It was promptly at 10.30 A. M. that the gavel descended, whereupon Mr. Hugh C. Barr of Buffalo, secured the floor and in the name of Buffalo members welcomed the visitors. After the applause had subsided, a representative of the mayor of Niagara Falls, His Honor having been unavoidably detained, expressed himself pleasantly and seconded Mr. Barr's sentiments. The response of President Coolidge was a befitting one.

The report of the committee on credentials showed that fewer than five hundred ballots had been cast and that the election resulted in the choice of directors as named last week. About the same number of proxies were well distributed and only Messrs. Severn and Webb had a full complement of fifty. A feature of the report was the large number of "scattering" votes for directors, over sixty votes having been entered for nearly as many different members.

The president's report for the first fiscal year was given close attention and was heartily approved by the members; it is printed elsewhere in this number. The report of the board of vice-presidents was read by the chairman, Henry C. Crowell, Cleveland, and the recommendations that were made in it were referred to the different committees, which had been appointed by President Coolidge. The report of the sales superintendent was read by P. M. Wolsieffer who was given a flattering reception on the floor. The report of Secretary Ault showed that the A. P. S. had done better than to hold its position during the past fiscal year; and the routine matters that were touched upon all told of present strength and the best of prospects. The treasurer's report reflected improved financial conditions over those of a year ago. The international secretary's report spoke of the work among foreign societies and the friendly relations existing between the A. P. S. and sister organizations overseas; and foreign matters of interest to members.

No afternoon session was held on Tuesday as the afternoon was devoted to a visit to the Shredded Wheat plant. Two photographs were taken, one in the park and the second on the steps of the factory.

WEDNESDAY SESSION.

The reports of the committees were interesting and occasioned some discussion. President Coolidge announced that there was not a quorum of directors present but that the board had organized tentatively as follows: President, C. A. Coolidge, Detroit; Board of Vice-Presidents, H. C. Crowell, J. F. Rust and Alvin Good, all of Cleveland; Secretary, Wm. E. Ault, Jeffersonville, Indiana; Treasurer, C. F. Mann, Chicago; International Secretary, L. Harald Kjellstedt; Directors at Large, E. M. Carpenter, Boston, and H. B. Phillips, Berkeley, California. The following appointments were made: Superintendent of Sales, P. M. Wolsieffer, Philadelphia; Examiner of Sales Books, Eugene Klein, Philadelphia; Editor of the American Philatelist, Wm. E. Ault, Jeffersonville, Indiana; Librarian, Harrison W. Craver, Pittsburg; Assistant Librarian, Adam E. Daum, Pittsburg; Attorney, Fred R. Schmalzriedt, Detroit; Counterfeit Detector, Eugene Klein, Philadelphia; Expert Committee, J. N. Luff, John A. Klemann and J. M. Bartels, all of New York City. The Recruiting Committee, divided into a western and eastern section, was headed by Ross O'Shaughnessy, San Francisco, for the western division, while the appointment for the eastern section was postponed for the time being. Mr. Wm. L. Stevenson, Flint, Michigan, Dr. Carroll Chase, Brooklyn, were given places on the committee on the United States catalogue. Messrs. I. R. Johnson, H. L. Lindquist and W. H. McDonald, were appointed as the hand-book committee.

An appropriation of one hundred dollars was voted for the uses of the re-

WAR STAMPS.

While the lack of Foreign Mails is holding up the new issues to some extent and the "War Surcharges" have not begun to appear why not fill up on some of the stamps past and present of the countries in which there might be a change. We find we have a nice stock of Servia also of Greece, both 19th and 20th century, including the recent war surcharges none of which are expensive. If you give British Colonials a rest for a few days and fill up those empty spaces with good Foreigns you will make no mistake.

cruiting committee and fifty dollars were allotted to the philatelic index committee.

The report of the committee on by-laws was carefully considered and each recommendation was discussed separately. All of the changes proposed by the committee with one exception were confirmed; and the following changes were made:

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON BY-LAWS.

Page 2—Article 2, Section 3. Strike out the last sentence in the first paragraph, viz: "Members paying dues by personal check must add thereto 10 cts. for exchange."

Page 5—Article 4, Section 3. Add the following:

"The two directors not holding any of the above offices shall be known as Directors-at-large."

Page 7—Article 5. Add a new section, as follows:

"The two Directors-at-large shall have special oversight of all branch societies, and it shall be their duty to promote the organization of such societies."

Page 8—Article 7, Section 1. After the words "An Editor of the American Philatelist," insert the words "An attorney."

Page 11—Article 7, Section 5. Insert after the word "government," in the seventh line, the following:

"Also all stamps which have been repaired or manipulated for the purpose of increasing their value, unless so marked by the owner."

Page 14—Article 10, Section 4. Strike out the first paragraph and insert the following:

"Branch Societies may admit to membership persons not stock-holders of the American Philatelic Society, but such members shall have no vote on matters pertaining to the American Philatelic Society."

Voted, that it is the sense of the Society that the Committee on Credentials are not under obligation to deliver to proxy holders written instructions enclosed by members with their proxies, but that members wishing to give specific instructions with their proxies should personally send such instructions to the persons representing them.

The Committee recommend that the Board of Vice-Presidents see that the Secretary is provided with suitable blanks for obtaining necessary information about the character and financial standing of applicants for membership.

The Committee deem no action necessary on the proposed Amendment as to furnishing blanks in regard to specialties, steps having already been taken in this direction by the Board of Directors.

The report of the committee on place of next convention evoked a general discussion with the result that the choice of the committee, San Francisco, was confirmed. Another topic that was handled from the floor was in what manner the board of vice-presidents should take cognizance of complaints against members when they did not allege specific acts but reflected nevertheless on what might be called the philatelic morality of members and while no definite course of procedure was adopted it was apparently the sentiment of the members that action should be taken to dispossess ultimately the members affected.

No action was taken on the resolution of the Swiss Dealers' Association relative to postally unnecessary issues from southeastern Europe because of the lack of definite information by our society. The determination of the status of the Philadelphia Stamp News in its relation to the society was left to the board of directors.

On Wednesday afternoon no business session was held and the time was devoted to a trip by special trolley car around the gorge and Falls.

THURSDAY SESSION.

At each of the sessions, telegrams and communications were read from societies and persons wishing the convention a successful meeting; and Thursday morning in addition, a long distance telephone message from John A. Wilkowski of Detroit was conveyed to the convention.

Several of the transactions of the preceding days were reviewed at this session and different resolutions were adopted, one of which presented by the St. Louis members to the effect that repaired or otherwise manipulated stamps to increase their material value were not to be allowed to circulate in the sales books was carried emphatically.

A resolution of thanks was voted to the Buffalo and Niagara Falls members for their unremitting efforts for the entertainment and comfort of visitors; and the thanks of members were voted to President Coolidge for his impartial and courteous leadership of the convention in session assembled.

In making his privileged motion that the convention adjourn sine die, W. C. Stone gave a most interesting recapitulation of the conventions of the American Philatelic Society held at Niagara Falls in 1892 and 1894, respectively.

Next week, we shall speak of the social or personal side of the convention, which, we are sure lingers pleasantly in the recollections of all those who attended the most important philatelic event on the yearly calendar for 1914.

A REPORTED FIND.

(Local Correspondence.)

LOS ANGELES HARBOR, July 25—Seven 6-cent stamps bought a few days ago at the East San Pedro postoffice for 42 cents have been sold to a stamp collector in Los Angeles for fifty dollars each or a total of $350 for them. Since the news of the find leaked out, a number of stamp collectors from Los Angeles have been scouring the harbor district for several days.

The find was made through a tip given a collector by a Los Angeles letter carrier, who noticed that a letter he handled carried a brown 6-cent stamp and an East San Pedro post mark. The collector made a hurried trip to the little office on the Salt Lake wharf and found there were seven left and bought them on the spot. He tested the color and found they were genuine, having been printed in the government printing office in brown ink instead of vermilion by a mistake that escaped the inspectors.—Los Angeles Times.

BRAZIL.

By Fred. J. Melville.

A great deal of new interest has been aroused lately in the postage stamps of Brazil. Last year the veteran French philatelist, M. Pierre Mahé, and an English specialist, Captain G. F. Napier, published extensive monographs on the subject. There has since been a development along some of the lines then opened up which would tend to make the exploration of Brazil philately as vast a task as the actual exploration of the land, "where the nuts come from." I refer more particularly to a specialised study in eight loose-leaf albums of one single issue of Brazilian stamps, a very masterpiece of detailed work, carried out by an American collector, Mr. C. L. Pack, who exhibited this curious one-issue collection at the London exhibition.

There was a time when the collector's sole interest in Brazilian stamps centred around the "bull's-eyes" of the first issue, christened "yeux de bœuf" by the pioneer philatelists in the earliest days of the hobby. Those stamps were actually the immediate offspring of the first penny black stamp of Great Britain, and in all three denominations the impressions are in black. It is curious that a country so remote should have been the first to follow the lead of Great Britain in adopting the adhesive postage stamp, Brazil anticipating the United States by four and France by six years. This was chiefly due to the instrumentality of M. J. D. Sturz, a Consul for Brazil in a European city, who, having recognized early the advantages of the new system in Britain, succeeded in moving the Brazilian Government to adopt a similar innovation in July, 1843.

The "bull's-eye" design—an elliptical ground of engine-turned engraving, with uncoloured fancy numerals of value—owes its origin to a respectful and zealous official of the Rio Janeiro Mint. It may be recalled that a criticism levelled at the first English stamp—the original "Queen's Head"—was that the placing of the Royal portrait on the stamps was the "greatest insult the Ministry could have offered her Majesty." This view of the impropriety of the use of the Royal portrait was shared by authorities in several foreign States, and the Director of the Mint at Rio made representations to the Senhor C. J. d'Aranjo Viana (afterwards Viscount de Sapucahy) in a letter of Feb. 13, 1843, that "the respect due to the Emperor would be wounded were the postage stamps bearing the sacred effigy obliterated," as, indeed, they would need to be obliterated to protect the revenue. The monarch for whom this respectful consideration was shown was Pedro II., the son of the first Constitutional Emperor and Perpetual Defender of Brazil.

The stamp issues which followed the "bull's-eyes" bear a distinct family resemblance to the issue of 1843 right on to the middle sixties, but the elliptical form of the design was discarded within twelve months for the (nearly) rectangular issue with "sloping figures." This and the next two series bear numerals on an engine-turned ground. In 1866 the numeral designs, ever an incitement to the counterfeiter, were discarded for one of the most handsome series of portrait stamps ever printed. The engraving and printing were carried out by the American Bank Note Company of New York. They bear portraits of Dom Pedro II, then a man of 41. The series, with minor variations, remained in use for twelve years, with an addition to the set of a bi-coloured 300 reis stamp, in which the portrait of the Emperor is enclosed in a peculiar green border which has gained for this supplementary issue the nickname of the "snake stamp."

Twelve years later the same company engraved and printed a new portrait issue which shows the collector that in the interval between the dates of the two issues the cares of State had told on the Emperor, whose hair had become thin and whose dark beard had turned white. Another decade was to bring the Imperial crown toppling to his feet, but in the interim the business of printing Brazil's stamps was transferred to the Rio Mint. The use of the portrait, however, was retained on the stamps until 1884, when from the set stamps of that year bearing various devices, but no portrait, the collector discerns that Dom Pedro's star was on the wane. The very day before the down-fall of the empire (i. e., Nov. 14, 1889), a stamp of a new Southern Cross design was issued from the Mint to the Post Office. It bore the simple inscription "Brazil," but it was withdrawn on the fateful 15th.

Probably few of my readers have ever seen original specimens of that stamp, nor yet of the rare reprint which has been made in recent years on thick paper. Its denomination was 100 reis, and its colour red lilac. It resembles the stamp of the next (1890) issue, the common 100 reis deep mauve (Southern Cross), which has the inscription altered to E(stados) U(nidos) do Brazil, the new designation adopted by the Republic being the United States of Brazil. The seven companion values of the 1890 series are all in the Southern Cross design with the new inscription. In 1891 the effigy of Liberty, rarely long absent from the stamps of a republic, appeared in a 100 reis stamp of a draughtboard pattern, and in a "tri-colour" scheme of red, blue, and white.

I believe it was a lady—not herself a philatelist—who first noted variations in the features of Liberty's head on the 100 reis stamp of the 1894-1904 design. Her casual remarking on the difference of expression of the effigy on these stamps led to the discovery that heads which can be identified as having been prepared for the 200, 500, and 700 reis stamps were used in some of the 100 reis frames in order to produce 100 reis stamps. The normal 100 reis stamp is common enough, and naturally there has been much interest aroused in the search amongst these for the so-called "borrowed head" varieties, which to all appearances are far from common. Into the further complications of this one stamp—which include flaws, paper perforation, and shade varieties—I do not propose to conduct my readers. The borrowed heads are of a high degree of interest, and the search for them will provide a good test of any collector's perception of philatelic detail.—Daily Telegraph.

NO WONDER WORK WAS POOR.

My dear Severn:

Two recent issues of the Weekly have commented on the extremely poor work on the "United States—Mexico" revenues, which have appeared in Vera Cruz. Naturally, under conditions down there, this was to be expected.

I have just read a very interesting letter from the contractor who got out these stamps commenting on the troubles they had to get them out at all.

Mr. H. W. Beddoe, connected with our company here, is a son of T. Beddoe, who is the head of the type and machinery department of the National Type and Paper Company of Mexico City. His firm closed up shop several months ago since which he has been in Vera Cruz. The following letter received by his son today, explains the matter of the printing of the Revenue issue. It is not exactly clear whether by "we" he means that the job was let to the Mexican Herald or to the National Type and Machinery Company, but we infer the latter.

Yours,
Marsh.

Oklahoma City, Aug. 12, 1914.

Mexico, D. F., Aug. 2, 1914.

Mr. H. W. Beddoe,
Oklahoma City, Okla.

My Dear Son,

I received your kind letter while in Vera Cruz. We stayed there three months, but all the time was too busy to write.

While I was there I was proof reader part of the time on the Mexican Herald, the only English daily in Mexico. Then we printed or rather lithographed the stamps for the revenue office, contract with the U. S. Government.

Our contract to lithograph the stamps amounted close to $10,000 and we completed the job in two months, we had absolutely nothing on hand in the way of machinery and had a force of only about twenty people and three head men.

We caught a lithograph press that happened to be in transit to Mexico City, I yanked it out of the Custom House and proceeded to unbox and set it up in one of the empty government buildings while one man made a rush to New York and secured other machinery and put it in an express car and came with it to Texas City where he transferred it to a transport and in less than three weeks we had a lithograph plant in full operation night and day.

At the end of the three months, when the railroad to Mexico City was repaired we came back to the city.

(Signed) T. Beddoe.

EDITORIAL.

Twenty-ninth Annual Convention—The convention of the American Philatelic Society held at Niagara Falls, New York, August 11th to 13th inclusive was a successful annual meeting and a pleasant occasion generally. The attendance of members and friends was one larger than anticipated and the fact that the registration was about one hundred shows that the interest in the convention was strong as the times were scarcely propitious for a festival of the kind. The presence of so many members under the circumstances was a public declaration of stamp strength, at least. The absence of many of the members whose able guidance at previous conventions made them valuable delegates was regretted but it happened that other tried and true members of the old guard whose coming was not heralded stepped into the breaches. The proxy representation was below expectations but as there was no proxy vote taken, the delinquency in this regard had no effect on legislation. The comparatively small number of ballots cast indicated that only slight interest was manifested in the election. A determination is urged on all who have the welfare of the society at heart to bring out next year a proxy vote sufficiently large to make all legislation that may possibly be transacted, effective.

Its Work—Speaking broadly, practically all of the business done at the convention pertained to the organization itself and its internal workings. At first glance it may seem that it is somewhat unfortunate that no beneficial legislation having a wide suggestion was confirmed but another thought presents itself in this connection. By perfecting the machine, its work will become the more effective and its authority, when it acts, will be the quicker recognized. The most important committee reports were those of the committee on by-laws and on resolutions, respectively, and the recommendations of these committees were chiefly on society matters. There is danger of the conventions becoming too mechanical through the precision with which the work is done in committees; and what is discussed on the floor really has to be interpolated, as it were. Of course, if time is considered a large factor, the best results are obtained through the methods now in use as much of the talk and debate at any convention floor is apt to be pointless and involved but even so, care will have to be taken not to "dehumanize" the conventions.

Its Pleasures—The position of the Buffalo members who attended to the arrangements for the convention and the entertainment of delegates and friends was appreciated and a rousing vote of thanks was given to them just before the convention adjourned. The convention went to Niagara Falls without invitation, as it were, and it was indeed kind of the Buffalo members to take charge of the preliminary work and arrange all the business and social details of the large meeting. The badge was contributed by the Buffalo members and in many other ways that were unobtrusive, their consideration was felt. It is no easy task to plan the work and play of a convention, particularly at a somewhat distant point and the gratitude of those who were entertained was placed on record, for the successful results achieved by the faithful members from Buffalo.

Publicity—It is always of interest to notice the treatment that the convention receives from the press and to notice how the reporters for the local papers grasp a subject that is full of complications for the layman. Of course, the reporters wanted "stories" and their methods of approach in their cathecism of members while varying slightly, narrowed down to demands ultimately for the same character of material. Record was made of the value of the "collections at the convention" and who were celebrities in the general world among our members; and similar "facts." The local papers at Niagara Falls gave due attention, perhaps, to the convention although our gathering was eclipsed in numbers by one or two that seemed to have larger representations. The American Philatelic Society members made a good showing, however, as nearly all of them were at the same hotel, where they thronged the lobbies and fraternized as a huge family party.

San Francisco in 1915—The report of the committee on place of next convention was listened to intently, as a number of cities were entered into competition. San Francisco, Rochester, Baltimore, New York, etc., were named to the committee which selected San Francisco for the honor. The invitation of the philatelic societies on the coast to come to San Francisco next year was accepted and the disposition to recognize the loyalty of the membership in the west by giving the seat of the next convention to them was somewhat general. A delegation of members from Rochester, New York, placed the Flour City before the members as a candidate for 1916 and Boston made known its wish to entertain the members in the same year, as it was ten years before or in 1906 that Boston had its last convention. Some witless member rashly nominated Pepperell, Massachusetts, for 1920,—no doubt he was ejected without unnecessary violence.

The Official Journal—Every reference to the American Philatelist and its efficient editor was applauded and it was shown conclusively that our monthly publication has earned a place in the affections of the members. That it was continued is superfluous information and with the strengthening of the editor's hand the publication will improve in several respects, no doubt. Quite pertinently, the editor said that if the members did not like the contents they were invited to improve them, as the literary side of the American Philatelist was sustained by the contributions of the members. In good time, the official journal of the American Philatelic Society may become a publication such as the one beloved by the members in the late '80's and thereabouts.

In Addition—Business is booming in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing due to conditions that have developed recently and for that reason the Bureau was forced to decline with thanks the invitation extended by President Coolidge to send a representative to address and confer with the members. The resolution from Switzerland condemning the issue and circulation of certain of the recent issues of European countries for which no postal necessity existed and which were foisted on philatelists with the excuse that they were the legitimate postal requirements of countries more or less disorganized by recent events was not acted upon at this time. In the report of the committee on by-laws a list of the changes is given and we shall try to include this report elsewhere in this number.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—A cablegram has been received from our managing editor, Mr. Wylie, saying that he sails from Christiania, Norway, on August 7th; and so, by the time that these lines are in print, he should be in our welcome midst again.

—There were indications at the Niagara Falls convention that the meeting of the Southern Philatelic Association at Indianapolis next month will be somewhat torrid not to say tempestuous but after it is all over, the dove of peace will soar over the scene.

—Lest it be forgot we say that both the Precanceled Stamp Club and the United States Revenue Stamp Society held their annual conventions at Niagara Falls; and they were sandwiched between the sessions of the big show.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

Members of The American Philatelic Society, 29th Annual Convention:

Once again the American Philatelic Society convenes at Niagara Falls, after an absence of twenty years from this locality.

I remember when stationed on the Western Plains at the foot of the Rocky Mountains, reading about the enjoyable gathering at these Falls and regretted that I could not have participated with that coterie of good fellows who were legislating for the benefit of Philately and luxuriating in the scenery which surrounds this mighty flow of water.

There are doubtless several of you here today who were coadjutors of those kindred spirits, earnest in the advancement of our philatelic association and seeking to extend the sphere of its enlightening influence that can relate the unwritten reminiscences of those halcyon days and of those illustrious companions who have finished their collecting career and closed their albums.

I greet today the members of the 29th Annual Convention of The American Philatelic Society (most of you a new generation since 1894) assembled to legislate for the benefit of our much loved avocation, hoping that the work you do here may extend over our broad country to increase the knowledge and regard of all collectors, respecting the object and aim of this organization, also that you may enjoy the pleasure of this famous summer resort and the personal acquaintance with congenial comrades, whose great desire is centered in collecting, preserving and studying the official productions of governmental postal and revenue departments and their congeries.

The honor of presiding over this organization the past year (though I realize that I may have fallen short of your expectations) has been to me a very agreeable duty in many respects; for I have always had the deepest interest in the welfare of the organization and the hope that it would attain a prominent position in our country, to which its highest exponent justly entitles it, and I believe that if we work in harmony and honesty, we shall achieve the best ultimate results.

I thank the members and the officers of the society for their hearty coöperation in making my share of the duties of my office so light and pleasant and congratulate the society on the fact that the numerical list of its membership has increased slightly over that of the previous convention—notwithstanding we have had a large number of resignations (56) and been compelled to drop over one hundred and nine (109) for non-payment of annual dues.

I hope another year this latter class will be nearly eliminated; for the expense of being a member is so reasonably slight, that there is scarcely a respectable collector in this country, who could not afford to pay his dues, even if he received no benefit from the society, except the honor of being recognized as a member of the corporation.

The past year has witnessed considerable advancement of philately in the opinion of the general public, largely due to the exertions of the Committee of International Philatelic Exhibition in gathering together that magnificent collection of stamps in New York City, the week of October 27th, 1913—and the extended notices of it in the philatelic and daily newspapers, which gave the unenlightened public an opportunity to see and realize the collecting, deciphering and arrangement of stamps was an occupation requiring persistent labor, knowledge, thought and scientific attainments—beyond the mere gathering together of bits of paper and that the result was intrinsically worth more than the time, work and money expended in accumulating a good representative collection.

There are such extensive reports of the Exhibition in the journals and daily papers that it would be superfluous for me at this time to enter into particulars, but it is to be hoped that the same management may be enabled to produce another such exhibit a few years hence; for it was a most liberal education in the cause of philately, enlightening the general public and a benefit to the youngest tyro or the most advanced philatelist.

On behalf of the A. P. S., I desire to extend the appreciation of the society to Messrs. Klein, Stone and Richards for their efficient services in arranging our display at the New York exhibition and to Messrs. Joseph Klein, Jr., and Mr. Joseph Klemann for their work in distributing our official journal and circulars during that week.

The 6th Congress of the Royal Philatelic Society of Great Britain, had not only the honor of the patronage of His Majesty, the King, but his actual presence, and lively interest in its proceedings.

The International Philatelic Exhibition at Cassel, Germany, in August, 1914, will be the most extensive and valuable gathering since the New York Exhibition.

The Board of Vice-Presidents will submit a report of their proceedings for the year, which will doubtless show the fact, that there have been less difficulties to adjudicate than for some years in the past and that there have been only five cases that required the expulsion of members.

Our Finances, under the able management of the Treasurer, are in a tolerably fair condition as much so as our exceedingly small annual dues will allow, considering the expense of our philatelic publications. The Board of Directors thought it advisable to invest a portion of our non-producing stock fund in interest paying bonds, the interest of which will become available for general expenses of the society. This transaction was satisfactorily effected by the Treasurer pursuant to the vote of the Board of Directors.

Last year the deficit in the general fund was over $800.00. This year while the figures are not exactly available at the time of writing, they will probably be less than $300.00 and it is confidently expected before the close of the next fiscal year, that deficit will be entirely wiped out and leave a balance on the credit side of the ledger.

The Secretary's Report will give you all necessary information and data regarding the transactions of this department: which I consider has been conducted with energy and efficiency and in agreeable accord with the wishes of the President and feel justified in believing to the benefit and general satisfaction of the society.

The position of Editor of the American Philatelist has been most creditably filled by the occupant who has had an arduous and difficult task to execute to the satisfaction of so large, varied and critical a class as the members of this society. The manuscripts have been regularly submitted to the supervision of the President before being forwarded to the printer and whatever may have passed his scrutiny inimical to the interest of the society must be chargeable to his defective censorship.

The Editor has labored to secure the coöperation of the Printing Company in having the monthly numbers in possession of the members before the expiration of the month, for which they were designated and has generally succeeded.

If the members are not satisfied with the contents of the journal, they must remember, that it is published for the avowed purpose of promulgating the reports of the society; such matters as affect it and valuable articles contributed by the members. The journal cannot remunerate the authors, nor has it an extensive corps of paid correspondents; but every member who is in honor bound and it should be their pleasure to furnish the editor with any news, discoveries or information relating to philatelic matters and such articles as they are capable of writing for the benefit of our publication. It is your paper and its symposium should be the brains of our organization for the benefit of your companions and posterity. The Editor is merely the collaborator of others' work.

The Recruiting service has a little more than made good the losses of the past year, which considering the large number that have resigned or dropped is very creditable. But if we consider that MEKEEL'S WEEKLY claims to have 7,000 subscribers, while the A. P. S. numbers less than 1500, it would seem that there is a vast field which we have not yet garnered.

A correspondent writing me lately, says: "I travel to most cities from New York to Buffalo and have connections in every city and hamlet. I know a number of people who are stamp collectors who have never heard of the (A. P. S.) society." My own limited experience confirms this statement in a somewhat more restricted degree.

I realize the impossibility of inducing every collector to become a member of our association, but if the members would earnestly endeavor to exert themselves in behalf of our society and not allow a desirable collector to escape them, we would ultimately obtain large accessions to our ranks, for even the nominated recruiting committee cannot do all the work.

B. ELMER, 16 Upland Rd., Brookline, Mass.

The last convention authorized the President to appoint a committee of five members to confer with the U. S. authorities regarding the collection of stamps lately transferred from the Post Office Dept. to the National Museum in the City of Washington, D. C. In accordance therewith, I nominated a committee of which Mr. Howard Beck was appointed Chairman and their report will be laid before this Convention.

I recommend the continuance of this same committee.

Mr. J. B. Leavy, a member of the A. P. S., was engaged by the Government as an expert to arrange the collection and I understand has proven very efficient in that capacity though the salary is not commensurate with what he might otherwise earn.

I quote from a newspaper clipping:

"The $100,000 collection of postage stamps that for years have been gathering dust in the archives of the post-office department is being arranged and classified for exhibition at the National Museum. J. B. Leavy, Government Philatelist and T. T. Belote, head of the museum's division of history, expect to have the exhibit in permanent shape in about a year. Officials of the museum and the post office department say the only collection of stamps which excels in completeness the one now being arranged is that owned by the British Museum. There are specimens of every variety and denomination of stamps ever issued by this government as well as a collection of practically all the stamps ever used by any government since the use of postage stamps began. So far only 19th Century issues have been put on exhibit. A novel case, consisting of scores of sliding vertical sections all locked with one key and absolutely air tight contains the stamps. The idea was taken from the British Museum, but the cases are a great improvement on those there employed."
